TO THE MOST NOBLE, MOST MYGHTYE, AND MOST redoubted pryncē kynge HENRY the VIII. kynge of Englande and of Fraunce, defensour of the fayth, lorde of Irelande, and in erth supreme hed immediatly vnder Chryst of the churche of England, his humble seruaunt RYCHARD TAVERNER desireth all Joye, felycitie, and longe lyfe.

NOw hyghly all England is bounde to your incomparable maiestie for the infinite and manifolde benefites receyued at your most gracious handes from tyme to time without ceasing, euē from the begynnyng of your most noble raigne: truly no mortal tonge is hable with wordes sufficiently to expresse, or with secret thoughtes of hert worthely to contriue: Certes, it far passeth bothe the sklender capacitie of my wyt, and also ỹ rude infancy of my tong to do either thone or thother: yea another Cicero or Demosthenes wer not ynough hereunto. Wherfore omittinge or rather leauinge to some other the iust Encomye and commendation of your graces most ample dedes, worthy of eternall memorie, yet this one thing I dare full well affirme, that amonges all your maiesties deseruinges vpon the chrysten religion (then which surely nothing can be greater) your highnes neuer did thing more acceptable vnto god, more profitable to ỹ auauncemēt of true chrystiantie, more displeasaūt to the enemies of the same, & also to your graces enemies then when your maiestie lycenced and wylled the moost sacred Byble conteynyng the vnspotted and lyuely worde of God to be in the Englysh tong set forth to your hyghnes subiectes.

To the settyng forth wherof (most gracious & moost redoubted soueraigne lorde) lyke as certeyn men haue neither vndiligētly nor yet vnlernedly trauelled: So agayn it cannot be denied, but ỹ some faultes haue escaped their hades. Neither speke I this to depraue or maligne their industrie & paynes takē in this behalf: no rather I think them worthy of no litle praise & thankes for the same, considering what great vtilitie & profit hath redounded to your graces hole realme by the publysshyng and settyng forth therof, although it were not finysshed to the ful absolucion and perfection of the same. For assuredly it is a worke of so great difficultie. I meane so absolutely to translate the hole bible that it be faultlesse, that I feare it can scarce be doone of one or two persons, but rather requyreth bothe a deper confarrynge of many lerned wittes togyther, and also a fuller tyme and longer leysure.

Wherfore the premisses wel cōsidered, forasmoch as ỹ printers herof were very desirous to haue this most sacred volume of the bible come forth as faultlesse & emendatly, as the shortnes of tyme for the recognising of ỹ same would require, they desired me your most hūble servāt for default of a better lerned, diligētly to ouerloke & peruse the hole copy: and in case I shold fynd any notable default ỹ neded correctiō, to amēd the same, according to ỹ true exēplars Whiche thynge according to my talent I have gladly done.

These therfore my simple labours & labours, to who might I better dedicate, thē vnto your most excellēt & noble maiestie, ỹ only author & grounde next God of this so high a benefite vnto youre graces people, I meane that the holy scripture is communicate vnto the same.

But now though many faultes perhaūce be yet left behind vncastigat, either for lacke of lerning sufficiēt to so great an enterprise, for default of leasure. I trust your maiestie & all other ỹ shal rede the same, wyll pardon me, consyderynge (as I haue alredy declared) how harde & difficult a thinge it is, so to set forth this worke, as shal be in al pointes faultles & without reprehension.

And thus I cōmit your most gracious & excellēt maiestie to ỹ tuicō of ỹ highest, to who be al honour, glory, & prayse, worlde without ende. AMEN.

Let not the boke of this lawe departe oute of thy mouth: But recorde therin daye and nyghte, that thou mayest be circumspecte to doo accordynge to all that is wrytten therin. For then shalte thou make thy waye prosperous, and then shalte thou haue vnderstandynge. Turne therefrom neyther to the ryght hande, ne to the lefte: that thou mayst haue vnderstandynge in all that thou takest in hande.

The same to the people. Exo. xiii.

And thou shalte shewe thy sonne at that tyme, sayinge: This is done bycause of that whiche the Lorde dyd vnto me when I came oute of Egypte. Therfore it shall be a signe vnto the vpon thyne hande. and a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lordes lawe maye be in thy mouthe. For with a stronge hande the Lorde brought the oute of Egypte.

CAPITVLO. I.

IN the begynnynge ✳ created God heuen & erth. The erth was voyde and emtye/ and darknes was vpon the depe, and the spirite of God was borne vpo the waters. And God sayd: let there be lyght: and there was lyght. And God sawe the lyght that it was good: & diuyded the lyght from the darknesse/ & called the lyght the day/ and the darknesse the nyght: and ꝑ euening & morning was made one daye.

God also sayd: let there be a fyrmament betwene the waters/ & let it diuyde the waters a sonder. Then God made the fyrmament/ and parted the waters whiche were vnder the fyrmament, from the waters aboue the fyrmament: And so it was doon. And god called the fyrmament Heauen: And the euenynge and morynng was made the seconde daye.

And God sayd: ✳ the waters vnder heauen be gathered togyther in one place, that the dry lande maye appere: And so it was doon. And God called the drye lande the erthe/ and the gatherynges togyther of waters called he the see. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayd: let the erth bring forth grene grasse and that bereth seed/ and frutefull trees beryng frute euery one in his kynde/ haynge theyr seed in them selues vpon the erth: And it was doon. And the erth brought forth herbe & grasse that bare seed euery one in his kynde/ and trees beryng frute/ and haynge theyr seed in them selues/ euery one in his kynde: And God sawe that it was good: and the euenyng and morynge was made the thyrde daye.

Than sayd God: ✳ be there lyghtes in the fyrmamente of heauen/ to diuyde daye from nyght that they maye be for sygnes/ seasons/ dayes/ and yeares, And ✳ let them be lyghtes in the fyrmament of heauen, to shyne vpon the erthe: And so it was doon. And God made ✳ two greate lyghtes: A greater lyghte to rule the daye/ & a lesse lyght to rule the nyght: and made sterres also: And God set them in the fyrmament of heauen to shine vpon the erth/ and rule the daye and the nyght: and to diuyde the lyghte from darknesse: And God sawe that it was good: and the euenynge and morynge was made the fourth daye.

And God sayd: ✳ let ꝑ waters bryngе forth creatures that moue and haue life, and foules for to flee ouer the erthe vnder the fyrmament of heauen. And God created greate whales and all maner of creatures that lyue and moue which ꝑ waters brought forth in their kindes/ & all manor of fethered foules in theyr kyndes: And God sawe that it was good: and blessed them sayenge: Encrease and multyplye & fyll the waters of the sees: and let the foules multyplye vpon the erthe. And the euenynge and morynge was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayd: let the erthe bryngе forthe lyuynge creatures in theyr kyndes: catell and wormes & beastes of the erth in theyr kyndes/ and so it was. And God made the beastes of the erthe in theyr kyndes/ and catell in theyr kyndes/ and all maner wormes of the erthe in their kyndes/ and god sawe that it was good.

And God sayd: let vs make man to our symylytude and after our lykenesse: and let hym haue rule ouer the fysh of the see, and ouer the foules of the ayre/ and ouer cattell and ouer all the erthe/ and ouer all wormes that crepe on the erthe. And God created man after his lykenesse/ after the lykenesse of God created he hym: male and female created he them.

And God blessed them, and sayd: Growe and multyplye, and fyll the erthe/ and subdue it/ and haue dompynyon ouer the fysshes of the see/ and foules of the ayre/ and ouer al the beastes that moue on the erth.

And God sayd: Se, I haue gyuen you all herbes that beare seed vpon the erthe/ and all maner trees that haue fruyte in them & beare seed: to be meate for you and for all beastes of the erth/ and vnto all foules of the ayre/ & vnto all that moue on the erthe, and wherin is lyfe/ that they maye haue all maner herbes & grasse for to eate/ and so it was done. Eden signifieth pleasures

And there sprange a ryuer out of Eden to water the garden, and thence deuyded it selfe/ and grewe in to foure pryncypall waters. The name of the one is ✱ Phison/ he it is that compasseth all the lande of Heupla / where golde groweth. And the golde of that countrey is precious/ there is founde Bdellion/ & a stone called Onix. The name of the secõde ryuer is Gihon, whiche compasseth all the lande of Inde. And the name of the thyrde ryuer is Tigris/ whiche renneth on the East syde of the Assiryans. And the fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

Ayd the Lorde God toke Adam, and put hym in the garden of pleasure, to dresse it and to kepe it. And the Lorde God commaunded Adam sayinge: Of all the trees of the garden eate: But of the tree of knowlege of good and bad eate thou not: For the same day thou eatest of it, thou shalte dye the dethe.

And the Lorde God sayd: It is not good that man be a lone/ I wyl make hym an helpe to beare hym compayne. And after the Lorde God hadde made of the erth all maner beestes of the felde/ and all maner foules of the ayre, he brought them vnto Adam to se what he wolde call them. And as Adam called all maner lyuynge beestes, so are theyr names. And Adam gaue names vnto all maner cattell / and vnto the foules of the ayre/ & vnto all maner beestes of the felde. But there was no help founde vnto Adam to beare hym company.

Then the Lorde God cast a slomber on Adam/ and he slepte. And he toke out one of his ribbes/ and in stede therof, he filled vp the place with flesshe. And the Lorde God made of the ribbe which he toke out of Adam ✱ a woman and brought her vnto Adam. Then sayd Adam: This is nowe a bone of my bones / and flesh of my flesshe. This shal be called woman: because she was take of man. ✱ For this cause shall mã leue father and mother, and cleue vnto his wyfe/ and they shall be one flesshe. And they were eyther of them naked / bothe Adam and his wyfe, and were not ashamed.

But the serpent was more subtyle then all the beestes of the erth, whiche the Lorde God had made: & sayd vnto the womã: why? hath God cõmaunded you not to eate of all maner trees in the garden? The woman sayd vnto the serpent/ of the frupte of the trees in the garden we eate / but of the frupte of the tree that is in the myddes of the garden (sayd God) se ye eate not/ & se that ye touche it not/ leest ye dye. Then sayd ✱ the serpent vnto the woman: not so, ye shal not dye: for God doth knowe that when so euer ye sholde eate of it, your eyes sholde be opened/ and ye shold be as goddes, and knowe bothe good and euyll. And the ✱ woman sawe that it was a good tree to eate of, and fayre vnto the eyes/ and a pleasaũt tree for to gyue vnderstandyng. And toke of the frupte of it & ate, and gaue vnto her husbande also/ & he ate. And the eyes of bothe them were opened/ that they vnderstode they were naked. And they herde the voyce of the Lorde God as he walked in the garden in the coole of the daye. And he answered: Thy voyce I herde in the garden / but I was afrayde / bycause I was naked, and therfore hydde my selfe. And he sayd: who tolde the that thou were naked? hast thou eaten of the tree, of whiche I bad the that thou sholdest not eate? And Adam answered: The woman whiche thou gauest me a compagnyon, gaue me of the tree, and I ate. And the Lorde God sayd vnto the woman: wherfore dydest thou so? The woman answered: The serpent dysceyued me and I ate.

¶ Lot receyued two aungelles in to his house. The filthy lustes of the Sodomytes. Lot is delyuered and desyzeth to dwel in the city Zoar. Lottes wife is turned in to a pyller of salt. Sodome is destroyed. Lot is dzonken and lyeth with his doughters, whiche conceyued chyldzen by hym.

CAPI. XIX.

A And there came.ij. aungels to Sodome at euen. And Lot sate at the gate of the city. And Lot sawe them/ and rose vp to mete them/ and he ✝ bowed hym selfe to the grounde with his face. And he sayd: Se lozdes, turne in I pray you in to your seruaũtes houle and tary all nyght and waslhe your fete/ and ryse vp early and go on your wayes. And they sayd: nay/ but we wyl abyde in the streates all night. And he ✝ cõpelled them exceedingly. And they turned i vnto hym & entred i to his house, & he made them a feest & dyd bake swete cakes/ and they ✝ ate. But before they wẽt to rest, the men of the city of Sodome cõpassed the house rounde about/ both olde & ponge/ all the people frõ all quarters. And they called vnto Lot and sayd vnto hym: where are the mẽ which came in to thy house to nyght? bzyng them out vnto vs that we may do our lust with them.

B And Lot went out at the dozes vnto them & shut the doze after hym and sayd: nay for gods sake bzethzen, do not so wyckedly. Beholde I haue two doughters whiche haue knowen no mã, them wyl I bzyng out vnto you: do with them as it semeth you good: Only vnto these mẽ do nothing, for therfore came they vnder the shadow of my rofe. And they sayd: come hither. And they sayd: Camest thou not hyther to sozourne/ & wylt thou be now a ✝ iudge? we wyl surely dele wozse with the than with them.

C And as they preased sore vpon Lot & began to breake vp the doze/ the men put forthe theyr handes and pulled Lot in to the house to them and put to the dooze. And they smote the men that were at the doze of the house with blyndnesse ✝ bothe small & great: so that they coulde not fynde the doze. And the men sayd mozeouer vnto Lot: If thou haue yet here any sonne in lawe, oz sonnes oz doughters, oz what so euer thou hast in the citye/ bzynge out of this place: for we must destroye this place/ bycaule the cry of them is greate ✝ before the Lorde, whiche hath sent vs to destroyd it.

D And Lot went out & spake vnto his sonnes in lawe, which sholde haue maryed his doughters/ and sayd: stande vp & get you out of this place/ for the Lozde wyll destroye the city. But he semed as thoughe he had mocked vnto his sonnes in lawe. And as the moznyng arose the angels caused Lot to spede him saying. Stande vp/ take thy wyfe and thy two doughters, and that is at hande, leest thou perysshe in the synne of the city. And as he prolonged the tyme the men caughte bothe hym, his wyfe, and his two doughters by the handes, bycause the lozde was mercyfull vnto hym/ and they bzoughte hym forth and set hym without the city. When they had bzought them out/ they sayd: Saue thy lyfe, and loke not behynde the, neyther tarye thou in any place of the countrey, but saue thy selfe in the mountayne, lest thou perysshe.

E Then sayd Lot vnto them: Oh nay my Lozde beholde, for alsmoch as thy seruaũt hath founde grace in thy sight/ now make thy mercy great/ whiche thou shewest vnto me, in sauynge my lyfe. For I can not saue my selfe in the mountaynes/ lest some myshoztune fall vpon me and I dye. Beholde, here is a citye by, to fle vnto/ and it is a lytle one: let me saue my selfe therin: is it not a litle one, that my soule may lyue? And he sayd to hym: se, I haue receyued thy request concernyng this thyng/ I wyll not ouerthzowe this citye for whiche thou hast spoken. Haste the/ and saue thy selfe there/ for I can do nothynge tyll thou become in thyther. And therfore the name of the city is called Zoar. And the sonne was vpon the erthe when Lot was entred in to Zoar.

Then the Lozde rayned vpon ✝ Sodome and Gomozra/ bzymstone and fyre from the Lozde out of heuen/ and ouerthzewe those cityes & al the region, & all that dwelled in the cityes/ and that that grewe vpon the erth. And Lots wyfe loked behynde her, & was turned in to a pyller of salte. Abzaham rose vp early, and got hym to the place where he stode before the Lozde/ & loked towarde Sodome and Gomozre and towarde all the lande of that countrey. And as he loked: beholde the smoke of the countrey arose as it had ben the smoke of a furnace. But yet when god destroyed the cities of the region, he thought vpon Abzaham: & sent Lot ✝ out frõ the daũger of the ouerthzowing, when he ouerthzewe the cityes where Lot dwelled.

F And Lot departed out of Zoar and dwelled in the mountayns, & his. ij. doughters with hym, for he feared to tary i Zoar: he dwelled therfore in a caue, bothe he and his. ij. doughters also. Then sayd the elder vnto ỹ ponger: our father is olde/ and there are no mo men in the erth to come i vnto vs after the maner of all ỹ worlde. Come therfore, let vs gyue our father wyne to dzynke, and let vs lye with hym that we maye saue seed of our father. And they gaue theyr father wyne to dzynke that same nyght. And the elder doughter went and laye with her father. And he perceyued it not/ neither when she laye dowine/ neyther when she rose vp.

G And on the mozowe the elder sayd vnto the ponger: Beholde, yesternyght laye I with my father. Let vs gyue hym wyne to dzynke this

And he perceyued it not: neyther when she laye downe/ neyther when she rose vp. Thus were both the doughters of Lot with childe by theyr father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called hym Moab/ which is the father of the Moabyte vnto this daye. And the yonger bare a sonne/ and called hym Ben Ammi/which is the father of the children of Ammon vnto this daye.

¶ Abraham went as a straūger in to the lande of Gerar. The kynge of Gerar taketh away his wyfe.

CAPI. XX.

A AND Abraham departed thence towarde the south country and dwelled betwene Cades and Sur and sotourned in Gerar. And Abraham sayd of Sara his wyfe that she was his * syster. Than Abimelech kyng of Gerar sent and fet Sara awaye.

* Gene.xij.c. and.xx.vi.b.

Abimelech is thretned for Sarais sake.

And God came to Abimelech by nyghte in a dreame and sayd to hym: Se, thou arte but a deed man for the womans sake whiche thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mannes wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her/ and therfore sayd: Lorde, wylte thou slaye ryghtous people? sayd not he vnto me, that she was his syster? yea, and sayde not she her selfe that he was her brother? with a pure herte B and innocent handes haue I doone this. And God sayde vnto hym in a dreame. I wote it well that thou dydest it in the pureneſſe of thy herte. And therfore I kepte the that thou sholdest not synne agaynſte me/ neyther suffred I the to come nyghe her. Now therfore delyuer to the man his wyfe agayne/ for he is a Prophete. And lette hym praye for the that thou mayſte lyue. But yf thou delyuer her not agayne/be sure that thou shalte * dye the deth/ with all that thou hast.

* Gene.ii.c.

Then Abimelech rose vp be tymes in the mornynge, and called all his seruauntes/ and tolde all theſe thynges in theyr eares/ and the C men were sore afrayde. And Abimelech called Abraham and sayd vnto hym: what hast thou done vnto vs, & what haue I offended the, that thou sholdest brynge on me and on my kyngdome so greate a synne? thou hast doone dedes vnto me that ought not to be done. And Abimelech sayd moreouer vnto Abraham: what sawest thou that moued the to do this thyng?

* The feare of god amōg ỹ Hebrewes is principally taken for the honor & fayth that we owe vnto god/ & that with D such a loue as the childe hath to the father.

And Abraham answered. I thought that peraduenture the * feare of God was not in this place/ & that they sholde slee me for my wyfes sake: yet in very dede she is my syster, the dought ter of my father/ but not of my mother: and became my wyfe. And after God caused me to wandre out of my fathers house/ I sayd vnto her: This kyndnes shalt thou shewe vnto me in all places where we come, that thou saye of me, that I am thy brother.

Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen/ men seruaūtes/and women seruaūtes & gaue them vnto Abraham/ and delyuered hym Sara his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayd: beholde the lande lyeth before the/dwell where it pleaseth the best. And vnto Sara he sayd: Se, I haue gyuen thy brother a thousande peces of syluer/beholde this thyng shall be a couerynge to thyne eyes, and vnto all that are with the/ and vnto all men an excuse.

And so Abraham prayed vnto God/ & God healed Abimelech and his wyfe & his maydens so that they bare childeren. For the Lorde had closed to all the matryces of the house of Abimelech, because of Sara Abrahams wyfe.

CAPI. XXI.

THe Lorde vysited Sara as he had sayd, A and dyd vnto her * accordyng as he had promysed. And Sara was with childe * geñ.xvii. c.& xviii.c.& xxi.d.Heb. and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, euē the same season which the Lorde had appoynted. And Abraham called his sones name that was borne vnto him, which Sara * bare him * Matth. i. Isaac/ and Abraham * circumcised Isaac his Iosue.xxiiii. sonne when he was.viij. dayes olde, as God * Geñ.xvii. commaunded hym. And Abraham was an hundred yere olde/ when his sonne Isaac was borne vnto hym. And Sara sayd: God hath made me a laughyng stocke: for all that heare wyll laugh at me. She sayd also: who wolde haue sayd vnto Abraham, that Sara sholde haue gyuen childeren sucke/ or that I sholde haue borne hym a sonne in his olde age: The childe grewe, and was weaned/ and Abraham made a greate feast the same daye that Isaac was weaned. Sara sawe the sonne of Hagar the Egyptian which she had borne vnto Abraham a mockynge. Then she sayd vnto Abraha: B put awaye this * bondmayde & her sonne: for * Gala.iiii. the sonne of this bondwomā shal not be heyre with my sonne Isaac: But the wordes semed very greuous i Abrahams syght, because of his sonne. Then the Lorde sayd vnto Abrahā: let it not be greuous vnto the because of the childe and of thy bondmayde: But in all that Sara hath sayd vnto the, heare her voyce/ for in * Isaac shall thy seed be called. Moreouer of the * Roma. Galat.iiii. Hebre.xi. sonne of the bondwoman wyll I make a nacion/ because he is thy * seed. * Geñ.xvi.

And Abrahā rose vp early in the mornyng and toke bread & a bottell with water, and gaue it vnto Hagar, puttynge it on her sholders with the childe also, and sent her away. And she departed & wandred vp & downe in the wildernes of Berseba. When the water was spente that was in the bottell, she caste the childe vnder a busshe & went & sat her out of syght a gret way as it were a bowshote of: for she sayd: I wyll not se the childe dye. And she sat downe out of syght, and lyfte vp her voyce and wepte.

And god herde the voyce of the childe. And C the aungel of God called Hagar from aboue, and sayd vnto her: what ayleth thy Hagar? Feare not, for God hath herde the voyce of the childe where he lyeth. Aryse and lyfte vp the childe/ and take hym in thy hande/ for I wyll make of hym a great people. And god opened her eyes and she sawe * a well of water. And * Esaie.xli. she went and fylled the bottel with water/and gaue the boye drynke. And God was with the lad, and he grewe and dwelt in the wyldernesse, and became an archer. And he dwelt in the wyldernesse of Pharan. And his mother got him a wyfe out of the lande of Egypte.

And it chaunced the same season, that Abimelech and Phicoll his chefe captayne spake vnto Abraham, sayenge: * God is with the in al that thou doest. Now therfore swere vnto me euen here by God, that thou wilte not hurt me nor my children, nor my childres children. But that thou shalt deale with me and the countreye where thou art a straunger, accordynge vnto the kyndnesse that I haue shewed the. Then sayd Abraham: I wyll swere.

And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a wel of water, whiche Abimelechs seruauntes had taken awaye. And Abimelech answered, I will not who dyd it: also thou toldest me not, neither herde I of it, afore this daye. And Abraham toke shepe and oxen and gaue them vnto Abimelech. And they made both of thē a bonde togither. And Abraham set. vij. lambes by them selues. And Abimelech sayde vnto Abraham: what meane these. vij. lambes whiche thou hast set by them selues. And he answered vij. lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that it maye be a wytnesse vnto me, that I haue dygged this well: Wherfore the place is called Berseba, because they sware both of thē. Thus made they a bond togither at Berseba. Then Abimelech & Phicol his chefe captayne rose vp and turned agayne vnto the lande of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a wod in Berseba, and called there on the name of ỹ Lorde, the euerlastynge God: and dwelt in ỹ Philistin lande a longe season.

After these dedes, God dyd * proue Abraham and sayde vnto hym: Abrahā. And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: take thy only sonne Isaac whom thou louest, and get the vnto the Lande Moria, & sacrifice him there for a sacryfice vppon one of the mountaynes which I wil shewe the. Thē Abraham rose vp early in the mornynge & sadled his asse, and toke two of his meyny with hym, and Isaac his sonne: and cloue wod for the sacrifyce, and rose vp and got him to the place whiche God had appoynted him.

* Judi. viii. c. Eccle. xliii. c. Hebre. xi. d.

The thirde daye Abraham lyft vp his eyes and sawe the place a farre of, and sayde vnto his yonge men: byde here with the asse. I and the lad will go yonder and worshyppe & come agayne vnto you. And Abrahā toke the wood of the sacrifice, & layd it vpon Isaac his sonne, and toke fyre in his hande and a knyfe. And they went both of them togither.

Than spake Isaac vnto Abraham his father and sayde: My father? And he answered here am I my sonne. And he sayde: Se here is fyre and wod, but where is the shepe for sacrifice? And Abraham sayde: my sonne, God will prouyde him a shepe for sacrifyce. So wēt they both togither.

And when they came vnto the place which God shewed hym, Abraham made an aulter there, and dressed the wod, and bounde Isaac his sonne, and * layde hym on the aulter, aboue vpon the wod. And Abraham stretched forth his hande, & toke the knyfe to haue killed his sonne. Then the aungell of the Lorde called vnto hym frome heauen sayenge: Abraham Abraham? And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: laye not thy handes vppon the childe, neyther do any thinge at all vnto him, for now I knowe that thou feareste God, in ỹ thou hast not spared thyne only sonne for my sake. And Abraham lyfted vp his eyes and loked aboute: and beholde, there was a ramme caught by the hornes in ỹ breres. And he wēt and toke the ram and offred hym vp for a sacrifice in the steade of his sonne. And Abrahā called the name of the place, the Lorde wyl se: wherfore it is a comen sayenge this daye: in the mount will the Lorde be sene.

CAPI. XXIII.

Sara was an hundred and. xxvij. yere olde (for so longe lyued she) and than dyed in a heade cytie called Hebron in the lande of Canaan. Then Abraham came to morne and bewayle Sara. And when Abraham stode vp frome the funeralles, he talked with the sonnes of Heth, sayenge: I am a straunger and a forayner amonges you, geue me a possession to burye in with you, that I maye bury my dead out of my syght. And the children of Heth answered Abraham sayeng vnto hym: Heare vs Lorde, thou art a prince of God amonge vs. In the chefest of our sepulchres bury thy dead: None of vs shall forbyd the his sepulchre, that thou shuldest not bury thy dead therin. Abraham stode vp, and reuerentely thanked the people of the lande the children of Heth. And sayde vnto them: If it be youre myndes that

I shall bury my deade out of my syght, heare me and speake for me to Ephron the sonne of Zoar: and let hym gyue me the double caue whiche he hathe in the ende of his felde, for so moche money as it is worth, let hym geue it me in the presence of you, for a possessiō to burye in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the children of Heth.

Then Ephron the Hethyte answered Abraham in the audience of the children of Heth, and of all that went in at the gates of his cytie, sayenge: Not so my Lorde, but heare me: The felde geue I the, and the caue that therin is geue I the also: and euen in the presence of the sonnes of my people geue I it the to bury thy deed in. Then Abraham bowed hym selfe before the people of the lande, and spake vnto Ephron in the audience of the people of the contreye, sayeng: I praye the heare me, I will geue syluer for the felde, take it of me, and so wyll I bury my deed there. Ephron answered Abraham, sayeng: My lorde herken vnto me. The lande is worth. iiij. C. sycles of syluer: but what is that betwene the and me? burye thy deed. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron, and payde hym the syluer whiche he had sayde in the audience of the sonnes of Heth, that is to wyt. iiij. C. syluer sycles of currant money amonge marchauntes. Thus was Ephrons felde wherin the double caue is before Mamre: aswell the felde as the caue that is therin, and all the trees of the felde whiche growe in all the borders rounde about, made sure vnto Abraham for a possession, in the syght of the children of Heth, and of all that wēt in at the gates of the cytie. And then Abraham buryed Sara his wyfe in the double caue of the felde that lyeth before Mamre, otherwyse called Ebron in the lande of Canaan. And so bothe the felde & the caue that is therin, was made Abrahams sure possession to bury in, of the sonnes of Heth.

¶ Abraham maketh his seruant to swere/ & sendeth him to seke a wyfe for Isaac his sonne. The seruant was faythfull and brought Rebecca/ whyche Isaac toke to his wyfe.

CAPI. XXIIII.

ABraham was olde and stryken in age, & the Lorde had blessed him in all thinges. And he sayde vnto his eldeste seruaunte of his house whiche had the rule ouer all that he had: ✠ Put thy hande vnder my thye that I maye make the swere by the Lord that is God of heauen and God of the earth, ✠ thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of the daughters of the Cananites, amonge which I dwell. But shalte go vnto my countrey and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isaac.

Then sayde the seruaunte vnto him: what yf the womā will not agree to come with me vnto this lande, shall I bringe thy sonne agayne vnto the lande whiche thou camest out of? And Abraham sayde vnto him: beware of that, that thou bringe not my sonne thyther. The Lorde God of heauen which toke me frō my fathers house and from the lande where I was borne, & which spake vnto me and sware vnto me sayenge: vnto thy * seed will I geue this lande, he shall sende his angell before the that thou mayste take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuertheles yf the womā will not agree to come with the then shalt thou be without daunger of this oothe. But aboue al thinge bringe not my sonne thyther agayne. And the seruant put his hande vnder the thye of Abraham and sware to hym concernynge ✠ matter. And the seruaunte toke. x. camels of his masters and departed, and had all maner goodes of his master with him, and stode vp & went to Mesopotamia, vnto the cytie of Nahor. And made his camels to lye downe without the cytie by a wels syde at euen: aboute the tyme that women come to drawe water, and he sayde.

Lorde God of my master Abraham, send me good spede this daye / and shewe mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo I stonde here by the well and the doughters of the men of this cytie will come out to drawe water: Nowe the damsell to whome I saye, bowe downe thy pytcher, & let me drynke. If she saye: Drinke, and I wyll geue thy camels drynke also, that same is she that thou hast ordeyned for thy seruaunt Isaac: yea and therby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe or euer he had lefte speakynge, that Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuel, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, and her pytcher vpon her shoulder: The damsell was very fayre to loke vpon, a mayde and vnknowen of man. And she went downe to the well, & fylled hyr pytcher and came vp agayne. Then the seruāt ran vnto her and sayd: let me sup a litle water of thy pitcher. And she sayd: drinke Syr.

And she hasted and late downe her pytcher vpon her arme and gaue him drinke. And whē she had geuen hym drynke, she sayde: I wyll drawe water for thy camels also, vntyll they haue dronke ynoughe. And she poured out hir pitcher into the troughe hastely, and ranne agayne vnto the well, to fet water: and drewe for all his camels. And the felowe wondred at her. But helde his peace, to wete whether the Lorde hadde made his iourney prosperous or not. And as the camels had lett drinkinge/ he toke a golden eare ryng of halfa sycle weight and two bracelettes for hir handes, of. x. sycles weyght of golde, & sayd vnto her: Whose doughter arte thou? tell me: is there rowme in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? And she sayde vnto hym: I am the doughter of Bethuel the sonne of Milca / whiche she bare vnto Nahor: and sayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue litter and prouonder ynoughe, and also rowme to lodge in.

And the man bowed hym self, and worshipped the Lorde/ and sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of my master Abraham whiche ceasseth not to deale mercyfully & truely with my master, and hathe brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ran and tolde vnto theym of her mothers house these thinges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And Laban ran out vnto the man, to the well: for as soone as he had seue the earerynges and the bracelettes vpon his systers handes, and herde the wordes of Rebecca his syster, sayenge: thus sayd the man vnto me, the he went oute vnto the man. And lo, he stode yet with the camels by the well syde. And Laban sayde come in thou blessed of the Lorde. Wherfore stondeste thou without? I haue dressed vp the house, and made rowme for the camels. And the the man came into the house and he vnbrydled the camels: & brought lyster and prouonder for the camels, & water to wash his fete & their fete that were with him, and there was meate set before him to eate. But he sayde: I will not eate, tyll I haue sayd my message. And he sayd: say on. And he sayd: I am Abrahams seruant, and the Lorde hath blessed my master oute of measure, so that he is become great, and hathe geuen hym shepe, oxen, syluer & golde, menseruauntes, mayde seruauntes, camels and asses. And Sara my masters wyfe bare him a sonne, when she was olde: to whom hath he gyuen all that he hath. And my master made me sweare sayenge: thou shalt not take a wyfe to my sonne amonge the doughters of the Cananytes in whose lande I dwell, But shalt go to my fathers house and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my master: what yf the wyfe will not folow me? And he said vnto me: The Lorde before whome I walke, wyll sende his angel with the, & prospere thy iourney that thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. But if (when thou comest vnto my kynred) they wil not geue the one, then shalt thou bere no perell of myne othe.

And I came this daye vnto the well & sayd: O Lorde, the God of my master Abraham, yf it be so that thou makest my iourney which I go, prosperous: beholde I stonde by this well of water, and when a virgyn cometh forth to drawe water, and I saye to her: geue me a lytle water of thy pytcher to drynke, & she saye agayne to me: drynke thou, and I wyll also drawe water for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whome the Lorde hath prepared for my masters sonne.

And afore I had made an ende of speakynge in myne harte: beholde Rebecca came forth, & her pytcher on her shulder, & she went downe to the well and drewe. And I sayde vnto her: geue me drynke. And she made haste, and toke downe her pytcher frome her shulders, & sayde: drynke, and I wil geue thy camels drynke also. And I dranke, & she gaue my camels drinke also. And I asked her sayenge: whose dought er arte thou? she answered: the dought er of Bethuel Nahors sonne, whome Melca bare vnto him. And I put the eare rynges vpō her face and the bracelettes vpon her handes. And I bowed my selfe, and worshypped the Lorde, and blessed the Lorde God of my master Abraham whiche had brought me the ryght waye, to take my masters brothers daughter vnto his sonne. Now therfore yf ye wyl deale mercyfully and truly with my master, tell me: yf not tell me also: that I maye turne me to the right hande or to the left.

Then answered Laban and Bethuel, sayenge: The thinge is procedē of the Lorde, we can not therfore saye vnto the, eyther good or bad: beholde Rebecca before thy face, take her and go, and let her be thy masters sonnes wyfe, as the Lorde hath appointed. And whē Abrahams seruaunt herde their wordes, he bowed hym to the Lorde, flat vpon the earthe. And the seruaunt toke forth iewels of syluer & iewels of golde and rayment, and gaue them to Rebecca: but vnto her brother and to her mother he gaue spyces. And then they ate and dranke, both he & the men that were w̄ him, & taryed all nyght and rose vp in the morninge.

And he sayde: let me departe vnto my master. But her brother and her mother sayd: let the damsell abyde with vs a whyle, at the lest x. dayes, and then go thy wayes. And he sayd vnto them: hynder me not, for the Lorde hath prospered my iourney. Sende me awaye that I maye go to my master. And they sayde: let vs call the damsell, and wytte what she saith to the matter. So they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wilte thou go with this man? And she sayde: yea.

So they let Rebecca their syster goo with her norse and Abrahams seruaunt, & the men that were with him. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou arte oure syster growe into thousande thousandes, & thy seed possesse the gates of their enemyes. And Rebecca arose and her damsels, and sat them vp vpon the camels, and wente their waye after the man. And the seruaunt toke Rebecca, and went his waye.

And the seruant sayd: it is my master. Then she toke her mantell, and put it about her. And the seruaunt tolde Isaac all yᵗ he had done. Then Isaac brought her into his mother Saras tente, and toke Rebecca, & she became his wyfe, and he loued her: and so was Isaac comforted ouer his mother.

And Jsaac digged agayne the welles of water whiche they dygged in the dayes of Abraham his father, whiche the Philistians had

And the herdemen of Gerar did striue with Isaacs herdmen, sayenge: the water is ours. Then called he the well Eleck, because they stroue with him.

E Then digged they another well, and they stroue for that also. Therfore called he it Sitena. And then he departed thence, and digged an other well for whiche they stroue not: therfore called he it Rehoboth, sayenge: the Lorde hath nowe made vs rowme, and we are encreased vpon the earthe. Afterwarde departed he thence, and came to Berseba. And the Lorde appered vnto him the same nyght, and sayde: I am the God of Abraham thy father, feare not for I am with the, & will bielle the, and multyplye thy seed for my seruaunt Abrahams sake. And there he buylded an aulter there, and called vpon the name of the Lorde, and there pitched his tente. And there Isaacs seruauntes digged a well.

F Then came Abimelech to him frome Gerar and Ahulath his frende & Phicoll his chefe captayne. And Isaac sayde vnto them: wherfore come ye to me, seynge ye hate me, & haue put me awaye from you? Then sayde they: we sawe that the ✝ Lorde was with the, & therfore we sayde that there shulde be an othe betweng vs and the, and that we wolde make a bonde with the, that thou shouldeste do vs no hurte, as we haue not touched the, and haue done vnto the nothynge but good, and sent the awaye in peace: for thou arte nowe the blessed of the Lorde. CAPI. XXVII.

A AND it came to passe that Isaac waxed olde and his eyes were dymme, so that he coulde not see. Then called he Esau his eldest sonne and sayde to him: my sonne. And he aunswered him, here Sir. And he sayd: beholde, I am olde, and knowe not the daye of my deathe: now therfore take thy artillery, thy quyuer and thy bowe, and get the to the feldes, and kyll me some venyson, and dresse me meate suche as I loue, and brynge it me, & let me eate that my soule maye bielle the afore I dye. And Rebecca herde when Isaac spake to Esau his sonne. And as soone as Esau was gone to the felde to hunt venyson, & to brynge it, she spake vnto Jacob her sonne, sayenge: Beholde I haue herde thy father talkynge w Esau thy brother and sayenge: brynge me venyson and dresse me meate, that I maye eate & bielle the before the Lorde, er I dye. Nowe B therfore my sonne heare my voyce in ỹ whiche I commaunde the: get the to the flocke, and brynge me thence two good kyddes, & I will make meate of them for thy father, such as he loueth. And thou shalt brynge it to thy father and he shall eate, & bielle the before his death.

Than sayde Jacob to Rebecca his mother: beholde Esau my brother is rough, and I am smoothe. My father shall peraduenture fele me, and I shall seme vnto him as thoughe I went aboute to begyle him, & so shall he bring a curse vpon me, for a bielynge: and his mother sayde vnto him: Upon me be thy curse my sonne, onely heare my voyce, and go and fetche me them. And Jacob went and fet the / and brought them to his mother. And his mother made meate of them, accordyng as his father loued. And she went and set goodly rayment that was her eldest sonne Esaus, which she had in the house with her, & put them vpō Jacob her yongest sonne, and she put the skynnes vpon his handes & vpō the smooth of his necke. And she put the meate & bred which she had made, in the hande of her sonne Jacob.

And he went in to his father, sayenge: my father? And he answered: here am I: who art thou my sonne? And Jacob sayd vnto his father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done as thou badest me: aryse, syt vp, and eate of my venyson, that thy soule maye bielle me. But Isaac sayde vnto his sonne: how cometh it that thou haste founde it so quyckely, my sonne? He aunswered: The Lorde thy God brought it to my hande. Then sayd Isaac vnto Jacob: come nere, and let me fele the, my sonne, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. Then went Jacob to Isaac his father, and he D felt hym and sayd: the voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he knewe hym not, because his handes were roughe as his brother Esaus handes: and so he bielled hym.

And he asked hym: arte thou my sonne Esau? And he sayd: I am. Then sayd he: bring forthe and let me eate of my sonnes venyson, that my soule maye bielle the. And he brought hym, and he ate. He brought hym wyne also, and he dranke. And his father Isaac sayd vnto hym: come nere and kysse me my sonne. And he went vnto hym & kysled hym. And he smelled the sauoure of his rayment, and ✝ bielled hym, and sayde: See, the smell of my sonne is as the smell of a felde whiche the Lorde hath bielled. And Jacob sayde vnto them: Brethren whence be ye? And they sayd, of Haran are we. And he sayd vnto them: knowe ye Laban the sonne of Nahor? And they sayde: we knowe hym. And he sayde vnto them: is he in good welth? And they said: he is in good welth, and beholde, his doughter Rachel commeth with the shepe. bare Jacob an other sonne. Then sayd Lea: happy am I, for the doughters wyll call me blessed, and called his name Aser.

And Ruben went out in the wheet harueste tyme, and found ✠ mandragoras in the feldes, & brought them vnto his mother Lea. Then sayde Rachel to Lea, gyue me of thy sonnes mandragoras. And Lea answered: Is it not ynoughe that thou hast taken awaye my husbande, but wouldest take away my sones mandragoras also? Then said Rachel, wel let him slepe with the this night, for thy sonnes mandragoras. And when Jacob came frome the feldes at euen / Lea wente out to mete hym, and sayd: ye with me, for I haue bought the with my sonnes mandragoras.

And he slept with her that nyght. And God herde Lea, that she conceyued and bare vnto Jacob the fyfth sonne. Then sayde Lea. God hath gyuen me my rewarde, bycause I gaue my mayden to my husbande/ & she called hym Jsachar. And Lea conceyued yet agayne, & bare Jacob the sixth sonne. Then sayde she: God hath endewed me with a good dowry. Now wyll my husbande dwell with me, bycause I haue borne hym. vj. sonnes/ & called his name Zabulon. After that she bare a doughter, and called her ✠ Dina.

And God remembred Rachel, herd her, and made her fruteffull: so that she conceyued and bare a son, and sayd: God hath taken awaye my rebuke. And she called his name Joseph, saying: The Lorde gyue me yet an other son. As sone as Rachel had borne Joseph. Jacob said to his father in lawe. Send me away that I may go vnto my owne place & countrey/ gyue me my wyues and my chyldren for whome I haue serued the, & let me go, for thou knowest what seruyce I haue done the. Then sayd Laban vnto hym. Yf I haue founde fauour in thy syght (for I suppose that the Lorde hath blessed me for thy sake) appoynte what thy rewarde shall be, and I wyll gyue it the. Then he sayd vnto hym, thou knowest what seruyce I haue done the / and in what case thy catell haue ben vnder me: for it was but lytle that thou haddest before I came/ and now it is encreased in to a multitude/ and the Lorde hath blessed the for my sake. But now when shall I make prouysyon for myne owne house also. And he sayd/ what shall I then gyue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt gyue me nothing at all so thou wylt do this one thynge for me/ and then wyll I turne agayne & fede thy shepe and kepe them.

Go thou aboute all thy shepe this day, and seperate from them al the shepe that are spotted and of diuers colours, and all blacke shepe amonge the lambes. And then loke, all that shall be party coloured, blacke and spotted, as wel among the shepe as the kyddes, the same shall be my rewarde. So shall my ✠ ryghtousnes answere for me, when the tyme commeth that I shall receyue my rewarde of the, so that what so euer is not speckled and party among the gotes and blacke amonge the lambes / let that be theefte with me. Then sayd Laban: Lo I am content, that it be accordynge as thou hast said. And he lorted out that same daye the gotes that were party and of dyuers colours, and all the kydes that were spotted and partye coloured, and all that had whyte in them, and all the blacke among the lambes, and put them in the keppynge of his sonnes / and sette tyre dayes tourney betwene hym selfe and Jacob. And so Jacob kepte the reste of Labans shepe.

Jacob toke rodes of grene popull hasell, and of chesnottrees, and pylled whyte streakes in them, and made the whyte appere i the staues: And he layde the staues whiche he had pylled before the shepe in the gutters and watrynge troughes / when the shepe came to drynke: that they sholde conceyue when they came to drynke. And the shepe conceyued before the staues & brought forthe speckled, spotted, and party coloured. Then Jacob dunded the flock and put the rodes in the troughes before the eyes of the wethers and all whyte & all blacke were Labans, but the residue were Jacobs, and he seuered the flockes one from an other. And alwaye in the fyrst buckynge tyme of the shepe. Jacob put the staues before the shepe in the gutters, that they myght conceyue before the staues: But in the latter buckynge tyme he put them not there: so the last brood was Labans, and the fyrst Jacobs. And the man became exceadynge rych, and hadde many shepe/ mayde seruauntes/ men seruauntes/ cameles and asles.

CAPI. XXXI.

And Jacob herd the wordes of Labans sonnes how they sayd: Jacob hath taken awaye all that was our fathers/ and of our fathers goodes hath he goten all this honour. And Jacob beheld the countenaunce of Laban, that it was not towarde him as it was in tymes past. And the Lorde sayde vnto Jacob: turne agayne in to the lande of of thy fathers, and to thy kynred, and I wyll be with the. Then Jacob sent and called Rachel and Lea to the felde vnto his shepe, and said vnto them: I se your fathers countenaunce that it is not towarde me as in tymes paste. Moreouer the God of my father hathe ben with me. And ye knowe how that I haue serued your father with all my myght. And your father hathe disceyued me, and chaunged my wages. x. tymes: but God suffred hym not to hurte me. When he sayd, the spotted shall be thy wages, then all the shepe bare spotted. Yf he sayd, the speckled shall be thy reward, then bare all the shepe speckled: thus hath God taken awaye your fathers catell, and gyuen the me. For in buckynge tyme I lyfted vp myne eyes and sawe in a dreame / and beholde, the rammes that bucked the shepe were straked, spotted, and partye. And the aungell of God spake vnto me in a dreame, sayenge: Jacob? And I answered: here am I. And he sayd, lyft vp thyne eyes and se, how al the rammes that leape vpon the shepe are straked, spotted, and partye:

Than answered Rachel and Lea, and sayd vnto hym: we haue no parte nor enheritance in oure fathers house, he counteth vs as stragers/ for he hath solde vs, and hathe eaten vp the price of vs. Moreouer all the ryches whyche God hath taken frome our father, that is ours and our chyldrens. Now therfore what so euer God hath sayd vnto the, that do. The Jacob rose vp, and set his sonnes and wyues vp vpon camels, and caryed awaye all his catell and all his substaunce whyche he had gotten in Mesopotamia, for to go to Jsaac his father vnto the lande of Canaan. Laban was gone to * shere his shepe, and Rachel had stolen her fathers ymages. And Jacob stale awaye priuily frome Laban the Syrien, and tolde hym not that he wolde departe. So fled he and all that he had, and made him selfe redy, & passed ouer the ryuers, & wente streyght towarde the mount Gilead.

Upon the thirde daye after, was it tolde Laban that Jacob fled. Then he toke his brethre with hym, and pursued hym. vij. dayes iourney, and ouertoke hym at the mount Gilead. D And God came to Labā ꝑ Sirian in a dreame by nyghte, and sayde vnto hym: take hede to thy selfe, that thou speake not to Jacob ouer sharpely. And Labā ouertoke Jacob: and Jacob had pitched his tente in the mounte. And Laban with his brethren, pitched their tente also vpon the mount Gilead. Then sayde Labā to Jacob: why hast thou this done to steale awaye frome me, and caryed away my doughters as thoughe they had bene taken captyue with the swerde? Wherfore wentest thou awaye secretly vnknowen to me, and dyddest not tell me, that I myghte haue brought the on the waye with myrth, syngynge, tymrels, and harpes, and hast not suffered me to kisse my children and my daughters? Thou wert a * fole to do it, for I am hable to do you euyll. But the God of youre father spake vnto me yesterday, saying: take hede that thou speake not to Jacob ought saue good. And nowe thoughe thou wentest thy waye, because thou longest after thy fathers house, yet wherfore hast thou stolen my goodes?

Jacob answered and sayde to Laban: I departed priuely / because I was afraed, and E thought that thou woldest haue taken awaye thy doughters frome me. But where as thou doest calenge me for thefte, with whome so euer thou fyndest thy goddes, let hym dye here before oure brethren. Seke that thyne is with me, and take it to the: for Jacob wist not that Rachel had stolen them. Then wente Laban in to Jacobs tente, and into Leas tente, and into the two maydens tentes: but founde the not. Then wente he out of Leas tente, & entred into Rachels tente. And Rachel toke the ymages and put them in the camels strawe, & sate downe vpon them. And Laban serched all the tente: but founde them not. Then sayde she to her father: Syr, be not angrye that I can not ryse vp before the, for the disease of women is come vpon me. So searched he, but founde them not.

Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban. Jacob also answered and sayde to hym: what haue I trespased, or what haue I offended, that thou folowedeste after me? Thou haste searched all my stuffe, and what haste thou founde of all thy houshold stuffe? put it here before thy brethren and myne, and let theym iudge betwene vs both. Moreouer, by daye the hete consumed me, and the colde by nyght, and my slepe departed frome myne eyes. F

Thus haue I bene. xx. yere in thy house, & serued the * xiiij. yeres for thy. ij. doughters, & vi. yere for thy shepe, and thou hast chaunged my rewarde. x. tymes. And what can I do this daye, vnto these my doughters, or vnto their children whiche they haue borne? And when Jacob sawe them, he sayd: this is Gods hoost, and called the name of that same place, Mahanaim.

¶ The vnyon of the aungels. Jacob sendeth presentes vnto his brother Esau. How he wrestled with the aungell whiche chaunged his name and called hym Israel.

CAPI. XXXII.

A Iosu.xxiiii.a. IAcob sente messengers before hym to Esau his brother, vnto the lande * of Seir and the feld of Edom. And he cõmaunded them sayinge: Se that ye speake after this maner to my Lorde Esau: thy seruaunt Jacob sayth thus. I haue soiourned and ben a straunger with Laban vnto this tyme and haue gotten oxen, asses and shepe, men seruauntes and women seruantes, and now I sende imbassage to the my Lorde, that I maye fynde grace in thy syght. And the messengers came agayne to Ja B cob sayinge: we came vnto thy brother Esau, and he cõmeth agaynst the .iiij. hundred men with hym. Then was Jacob greatly afrayde and wist not which way to turne hym self, and deuyded the people that was with hym, & the shepe, oxen, and camels in to two companyes, and sayd: If Esau come to the one parte and smyte it, the other may saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde: O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac: Lorde which saydest vnto me, returne vnto thy countrey and to thy kynred/and I wyll do all well C with the. I am not worthy of the leest of all the mercyes and truthe whiche thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaunt. For with my ϕ staffe came I ouer this Iordane, and nowe haue I gotten two droues. Delyuer me from the handes of my brother Esau: for I feare hym, leest he wyll come and smyte the mother with the chyldren. Beholde thy seruaunt Jacob commeth after vs/for he sayd I wyl pease his wrath with the present that goeth before me, and afterwarde I wyll se hym my selfe/ so peraduenture he wyll receyue me to grace. So went the present before hym, and he taryed all that nyght in the tente/ and rose vp the same nyght, and toke his two wyues and his .ij. maydens, and his .xi. sonnes, and went ouer the foorde Jacob. CAPI. XXXIII.

IAcob lyft vp his eyes and sawe his brother A Esau come, and with hym. iiij. C. men. And he diuided his children vnto Lea, vnto Rachel, and vnto his two women seruantes. And dyd set the women seruantes & their chyldren formost/and Lea & her chyldren after, and Rachel & Joseph hyndermost. And him selfe went before them and fell on the grounde. vij. tymes tyll he came vnto his brother.

Esau ran to mete him and imbraced him and fell on his necke & kyssed him, and they wepte. And he lyft vp his eyes & sawe the wyues and their childre, & said: what are these which thou there hast? ¶ The rauyshing of Dina Iacobs doughter by the men of Sichē. And of the great bloode sheding done by the sonnes of Iacob.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

A DIna the doughter of Lea which she bare vnto Iacob, went out to se the doughters of the land. And Sichem the sonne of Hemor the Heupte lorde of the countrey sawe her, and toke her and laye with her, and forced her: and his herte laye vnto Dina the doughter of Iacob. And he loued the damsell and spake kyndly vnto her, and spake vnto his father Hemor saying/ get me this mayde vnto my wyfe. And Iacob herd that he had defyled Dina his doughter, but his sonnes were with the catell in the felde, and therfore he held his peace tyll they were come. Then Hemor the father of Sichem went out vnto Iacob, to cōmen with hym. And the sonnes of Iacob came out of the felde as sone as they herde it/ for it greued them/ and they were not a lytle wroth, because he had wrought foly in Israel, in that he had lyen with Iacobs doughter, whiche thynge ought not to be done. And Hemor cō-
B moned with them saynge: The soule of my son Sichem longeth for your doughter: gyue her hym to wife, and make mariages with vs: gyue your doughters vnto vs, and take our doughers vnto you, and dwell with vs, and the lande shall be at your pleasure/ dwell and do your busynes, and haue your possessions therin. And Sichem sayd vnto her father and and her brethren: let me fynde grace in your eyes, and what so euer ye appoint me, that will I gyue. Aske freely of me bothe the dowry and gyftes, & I wyll gyue accordyng as ye say vnto me, and gyue me the damsell to wyfe.

Then the sonnes of Iacob answered to Sichem and Hemor his father disceptfully, by-he had defyled Dina their syster. And they said vnto them/ we can not do this thyng that we shold gyue our syster to one that is vncircūcised/ for þ were a shame vnto vs. Onely in this wyll we consente vnto you. Yf ye wyll be as we be, that all the men chyldren amonge you be circumcised, than wyl we gyue our doughter to you, and take yours to vs, & wyll dwell with you and be one people. But yf ye wyll not herken vnto vs to be circūcised, then wyll
C we take our doughter and go our wayes. And their wordes pleased Hemor: and Sichem his sonne. And the yonge man deferred not for to do the thynge, because he had a lust to Iacobs doughter: he was also mooste set by of al that were in his fathers house. Then Hemor and Sichem went vnto the gate of their citye and commoned with the men of their citye, sayinge: these men are peasible with vs/ and wyll dwell in the lande and do their occupacion therin. And in the land is rowme ynough for them/ let vs take their doughters to wyues, and gyue them ours: onely herin wyll they consent vnto vs for to dwel with vs and to be one people: yf all the men chyldren that are among vs be circūcised as they are. Their goodes and their substance and all their catell are ours, onely let vs consent vnto them, that they may dwell with vs.

And vnto Hemor and Sichem his sonne harkened all that went out of the gate of his
D citye. And all the men chyldren were circumcysed what so euer went out at the gates of his citye. And the thyrde daye when it was paynefull to them, two of the sonnes of Iacob Simeon and Leui Dinas brethren, toke eyther of them his † swerde, and went in to the citye boldly, and slewe all that was male and slewe also Hemor and Sichem his sonne with the edge of the swerde, and toke Dina their syster out of Sichems house, and went their waye. † Gen. xlix. & Iudith ix.

Then came the sonnes of Iacob vpon the deed, and spoyled the citye, because they had defyled their syster: and toke their shepe, oxen, asses and what so euer was i the city & also in the feldes. And all their goodes, all their chyldrē and their wyues toke they captyue & made hauocke of all that was in the houses.

And Iacob said to Simeon & Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me stynke vnto the inhabitauntes of the lande, bothe to the Canaanytes and also to the Pherezytes. And I am few in nōbre. Wherfore they shal gather them selues togither agaynst me and slay me/ and so shall I and my house be destroyed. And they answered, shold they deale with our syster as with an hoore?

AND God sayde vnto Iacob/ aryse, and get the vp to Bethel, and dwell there. A

Then sayd Jacob vnto his housholde & to all that were with him: put away the straūge goddes that are among you & make your selues clene/ & chaunge your garmentes and let vs aryse and go vp to Bethell that I maye make an aulter there vnto God whiche herde me in the day of my tribulacion, and was with me in the way which I went.

And they gaue vnto Jacob all the straunge goddes whiche were vnder theyr handes, and all their eare rynges which were i their eares/ and Jacob hyd them vnder an oke at Sichem And they departed. ¶ Ioseph accuseth his brethren. Joseph dreameth and is hated of his brethren, and is solde to the Ismaelytes Jacob bewayleth Joseph.

CAPI. XXXVII.

AND Jacob dwelte in the lande wherin his father was a straunger / that is to saye in the lande of Canaan. And these are the generacions of Jacob: when Joseph was. xbj. yere olde, he kept shepe with his brethren/& the lad was with the sonnes of Bilha and of Zilpha his fathers wyues. And he accused his brethren vnto his father of an euyll tryme. And Israel loued Joseph more then all his chyldren, because he begat hym in his olde age/& he made hym a cote of many colours.

When his brethren sawe that theyr father loued hym more then all his brethren/they hated hym, and coulde not speke one kynd worde vnto hym. Moreouer Joseph * dreamed a dreame and tolde it his brethren: wherfore they hated hym yet the more. And he sayd vnto them/ heare I pray you this dreame which I haue dreamed: Beholde we were makynge sheues in the felde: and lo, my sheefe arose and stode vpryght, and yours stode rounde about and made obeysaunce to my sheefe. Then sayd his brethren vnto hym: What, shalte thou be our kynge, or shalt thou reygne ouer vs? And they hated hym yet the more, because of his dreame and of his wordes.

And he dreamed yet an other dreame & told it his brethren sayinge: beholde, I haue had one dreame more: Me thought the sonne and the moone and. xj. sterres made obeysaunce to me. And when he had tolde it vnto his father and his brethren, his father rebuked hym and sayde vnto hym: what meaneth this dreame which thou hast dreamed: shall I and thy mother & thy brethren come and fall on the grounde before the? And his brethren hated hym / but his father noted the sayinge.

His brethren wente to kepe theyr fathers shepe in Sichem/and Israel sayd vnto Joseph: Do not thy brethren kepe shepe in Sichem? come, that I may lend the to them. And he answered, * here am I. And he sayd vnto hym: Go & se whether it be well with thy brethren and the shepe, and bryng me worde agayn. And sent hym out of the vale of Hebron, for to go to Sichem. And a certayne man founde hym wandrynge out of his waye in the felde, and asked hym what he sought. And he answered: I seke my brethren, tell me I pray the where they kepe shepe. And the man said, they are departed hence/for I herd them say, let vs go vnto Dothan. Thus went Joseph after his brethren, and founde them in Dothan.

And when he sawe them a farre of before he came at them / they toke counsell agaynste hym for to slay hym/and sayd one to an other: Beholde, this * dreamer commeth/come now and let vs slay hym, and caste hym in to some pytte/and let vs saye that some wycked beest hath deuoured hym, and let vs se what his dreames wyll come to.

When Ruben sawe that, he went about to ryd hym out of theyr handes and sayd / let vs not kyll hym. And Ruben sayd moreouer vnto them/shede not his * bloode, but cast hym in to this pytte that is in the wyldernes/ and laye no handes vpon hym: for he wolde haue rydde hym out of theyr handes, and delyuered hym to his father agayne.

And as soone as Joseph was come vnto his brethren, they stroppe hym out of his gay cote that was vpon hym / and they toke hym and caste hym in to a pytte: But the pytte was empty and had no water therin. And they sat them downe to eate breed. And as they lyft vp their eyes and loked about, there came a com-panye of Jsmaelites frome Gilead, and their camels laden with spicery, baulme and myrre, and were goynge downe into Egypte.

F Then sayde Juda to his brethren, what auayleth it that we slay our brother, and kepe

Thē as the Madianites marchant men passed by, they drewe Joseph oute of the pyt / and solde hym vnto the Jsmaelytes for. xx. peces of syluer. And they brought him into Egypte.

G And when Ruben came agayn vnto the pyt and founde not Joseph there, he rent his clothes, and went agayne vnto his brethren sayenge: the lad is not yonder, and where shal I go? And they toke Josephs cote and kylled a goote, and dypped the cote in the bloude. And they sent ỹ gaye cote & caused it to be brought vnto their father, and sayde: This haue we founde: se, whether it be thy sonnes cote, or no. And he knewe it sayenge: it is my sonnes

¶ The mariage of Juda. The trespase of Er and Onan, and the vengeaunce of god that came there vpon. Juda laye with his daughter Thamar. The brethe of Pharez and Zara.

CAPI. XXXVIII.

A And it fortuned at that tyme, that Judas went frome his brethren, and gat hym to a man called Hira of Odollam
✱i.Par.ij.a. and there he sawe the daughter of a man called ✱ Sua, a Canaanyte: And he toke her, & laye with her. And she concepued, and bare a sonne, and called his name Er. And she concepued agayne, and bare a sonne, and called him Onan. And she concepued the thirde tyme and bare a sonne, whome she called Sela: and he was at Chesyb when she bare him.

And Judas gaue Er his eldest sonne a wyfe whose name was Thamar. But this Er Ju-
B das eldest sonne, was wycked in the syghte of the Lorde, wherfore the Lorde slew him. Thē sayde Judas vnto Onā: go in to thy brothers wyfe and marye her, and styre vp seed vnto thy brother. And when Onan percepued that the seed shulde not be his: therfore when he went in to his brothers wyfe, he spylled it on the grounde, because he wolde not geue seed vnto his brother. And the thinge whiche he Onan is slayn because he wolde not rayse seed to his brother. dyd, displeased the Lorde, wherfore he slewe hym also. Then sayde Judas to Thamar his wughter in lawe: remayne a wydowe at thy fathers house, tyll Sela my sonne be growen: for he feared lest he shoulde haue dyed also, as his brethren dyd. Thus went Thamar, and dwelt in her fathers house.

And in processe of tyme, the daughter of Sua, Judas wyfe, dyed. Then Judas when C he had lefte mournynge, wente vnto his shepe sherers to Thymnath, with his frende Hira of Odollam. And one tolde Thamar, sayeng: beholde, thy father in law goth vp to Thymnath, to ✱ shere his shepe. And she put her wy- ✱Gen. dowes garmentes frome her, and couered her xxxviij.Regū with a cloke, and disgysed her selfe: And sat her downe at the entrynge of Enaim, which is by the hye wayes syde to Thimnath, because she saw that Sela was growen, and she was not geuen him to wyfe.

When Juda sawe her, he thought it hadde D bene an hooze, because she hadde couered her face. And turned to her vnto the waye & sayde Come I praye the, let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his daughter in lawe. And she sayde what wilt thou gyue me, to lye with me? Then sayde he, I will sende the a kydde frome the flocke. She answered, Then geue me a pledge tyll thou sende it. Then sayd he, what pledge shal I geue the? And she sayd E Juda k thy sygnet, thy bracelet, and thy staffe that is teth Th in thy hande. And he gaue it her, and laye by with ch her, and she was with childe by him. And she gat her vp, and went, and put her mantell frō her, & put on her wydowes rayment agayne. And Judas sent the kyd by his neyghboure of Odollam, for to fetche out his pledge agayne from the wyues hande. But he found her not. Then asked he the men of the same place, sayenge: Where is the whore that sat at Enaim in the waye? And they sayde: there was no whore here. And he came to Juda agayn, sayenge: I can not fynde her, and also the men of the place sayde: that there was no whore there. And Juda sayd: let her take it to her, lest we be shamed: for I sente the kydde, and thou couldest not fynde her.

And it came to passe that after thre monethes, one tolde Juda, sayenge: Thamar thy F daughter in lawe hath played the whore, and with playing the whore is become great with childe. And Juda sayde: bringe her forth, and let her be brente. And when they brought her forth, she sent to her father in lawe, sayenge: by the man vnto whome these thynges pertayne, am I with childe. And sayde also: loke whose are this seale, bracelet, and staffe. And Juda knewe them, sayeng: she is more ryghtwyse than I, because I gaue her not to Sela my sonne. But he laye with her no more.

When tyme was come that she shoulde be G delyuered, behold there was two twynnes in her wombe. And as she traueled, the one put out his hande, & the mydwyfe toke & bounde a reed threde aboute it sayeng: this will come out firste. But he plucked his hande backe agayne, and his brother came out. And she sayd: wherfore hast thou ꝓrent a rent vpon the? and called him Pharez. And afterwarde came out his brother that hadde the read threde about his hande, which was called Zara.

¶ God prospereth Joseph. His mayster tempteth him. He is accused and cast in prysō. God hath mercye vppon hym.

CAPI. XXXIX.

Joseph

IOseph was brought vnto Egypt, and Putiphar ✝a lorde of Pharaos: and his chefe marshall an Egyptian bought hym of the Ismaelytes, which brought him thyther. And the Lorde was with Joseph/and he prospered and contynued in the house of his master the Egyptian. And his master sawe that the Lorde was with hym / and that the Lorde made all that he dyd prospere in his hande: Wherfore he founde grace in his masters syght, and serued hym. And his master made hym ruler of his house, and put all that he had in his hand. And as soone as he had made hym ruler ouer his house, and ouer all that he had, the Lorde blessed this Egyptias house for Josephs sake/ and the blessynge of the Lorde was vpon all that he hadde: bothe in the house, and also in the fyldes. And therfore he lefte all that he had in Josephs hande / and loked vpon nothynge that was with hym, saue onely on the breed whiche he ate. And Joseph was a ✝goodly person, and a well fauoured. And it fortuned after this, that his masters wyfe cast her eyes vpon Joseph, and sayde: come lye with me: But he denyed and sayd to her. Beholde, my master woteth not what he hath in the house with me/but hath committed all that he hath to my hande. He hym selfe is not greater in the house then I / and hathe kepte nothynge from me / but onely the because thou arte his wyfe. How then can I do this great wyckednes, for to synne agaynst God? And after this maner spake she to Joseph daye by daye: but he harkened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her company.

And it fortuned about the same season, that Joseph entred in to the house, to do his busynes: and there was none of the housholde by in the house. And she caught hym by the garment, saying: come slepe with me. And he left his garment in her hand, and fled and got him out. When she sawe that he had lefte his garment in her hande, and was fled out, she called vnto the men of the house, and told them sayinge: See, he hath brought in an Hebrue vnto vs, to w vs shame: for he came in to me, for to haue slept with me. But I cryed with a loude voyce. And when he herde that I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he lefte his garment with me and fled awaye, and got hym out.

And she layde vp his garment by her, vntyll her lorde came home. And she tolde hym accordynge to these wordes saying. This Hebrues seruaunte whiche thou hast brought vnto vs came in to me to do me shame. But as soone as I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he lefte his garment with me and fled out. When his master herde the wordes of his wyfe which she tolde hym saying: after this maner dyd thy seruaunt to me, he waxed wroth.

And he toke Joseph and put hym in ✝prison euen in the place where the kynges prysoners lay bounde. And there contynued he in prison/ but the Lorde was with Joseph, & shewed him mercy/and got hym fauour in the syght of the keper of the prison, which comitted to Josephs hande all the prysoners that were in the prison house. And what so euer was done there, that dyd he. And the keper of the prison loked vnto nothynge that was vnder his hande, because the Lorde was with hym, & because that what so euer he dyd, the Lorde made it come luckely to passe.

¶ Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two prysoners.

CAPI. XL.

AND it chaūced after this, that the chefe butler of the kyng of Egypt & his chefe baker had offended their lord the kyng of Egypt. And Pharao was angry with them and put them in warde in his chefe marshals house: euen in the prison where Joseph was bounde. And the chefe marshall gaue Joseph a charge with them/& he serued them. And they contynued a season in warde.

And they dreamed eyther of them in one nyght: bothe the butler and the baker of the kynge of Egypte whiche were bounde in the prison house, eyther of them his dreame, and eche mannes dreame of a sondrye interpretacion. When Joseph came in vnto them in the mornynge / and loked vpon them: Beholde, they were sadde. And he asked them sayinge, wherfore loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered hym/ we haue dreamed a dreame/ and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayde vnto them. Interpretynge belongeth to god, but tell me yet. And the chefe butler tolde his dreame to Joseph, and sayd vnto hym. In my dreame me thought there stode a vyne before me/ and in the vyne were thre braunches, and it was as though it budded, and her blossams shotte forthe: and the grapes therof waxed rype. And I had Pharaos cup in my hande, and toke of the grapes and wronge them in to Pharaos cuppe, and delyuered Pharaos cuppe in to his hande. And Joseph sayd vnto hym/this is the interpretacion of it. The thre braunches are thre dayes: for within thre dayes shall Pharao lyfte vp thyne heed / and restore the vnto thyne office agayne / and thou shalte delyuer Pharaos cuppe in to his hand, after the olde maner, euen as thou dydest when thou wast his butler. But thynk on me when thou art in good case/ and shewe mercy vnto me. And make mencion of me to Pharao/ and helpe to brynge me out of this house/ for I was stollen out of the lande of the Hebrues, and here also haue I done nothynge at all wherfore they shold haue put me in to this dongeon. When the chefe baker sawe that he had well expowned it/ he sayde vnto Joseph/ Me thought also in my dreme, that I had .iij. wyker baskettes on my heed. And in the vppermost basket, of all maner bake meates for Pharao. And the byrdes ate them out of the basket vpon my heed.

Joseph answered and sayde: this is the interpretacion therof. The thre baskettes are thre dayes/for this daye thre dayes shall Pharao take thy heed from the/and shal hang the on a tree, and the byrdes shall eate thy flesshe from the.

And it came to passe the thyrde daye whiche was Pharaos ✝byrth daye / that he made a feast vnto all his seruauntes. And he lyfted vp the heed of the chefe butler and of the chefe baker amonge his seruauntes. And restored the chefe butler vnto his butlershyp agayne/ and he reached the cup in to Pharaos hande/and hanged the chefe baker: euen as Ioseph had interpreted vnto them. Notwithstandynge the chefe butler remembred not Ioseph/ but forgate hym.

¶ Pharaos dreames are expounded by Ioseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypt. He hath two sonnes/ Manasses and Ephraim. The derth begynneth in Egypte.

CAPI. XLI.

A Pharao dreameth.

AND it fortuned at two yeres ende that Pharao dreamed, and thought that he stode by a ryuers syde/ and that there came out of the ryuer. vij. goodly kyne, & fatte fleshed, and fed in a medowe/& hym thought that. vij. other kine came vp after them out of the ryuer eupl fauored and leane fleshed, and stode by the other vpon the brynke of the ryuer. And the eupl fauoured and leane fleshed kyne, ate vp the. vij. welfauoured & fat kyne/ and he awoke therwith. And he slept agayne and dreamed the seconde tyme, that. vij. eares of corne grewe vpon one stalke ranke & goodly. And that. vij. thynne eares blasted with the wynde, sprange vp after them/ and that the. vij. thynne eares deuoured the. vij. ranke
B and full eares. And then Pharao awaked, and se, here is his dreame. When the morynge came, his spirite was troubled. And he sente and called for the sothsayers of Egypte/ and all the wyse men therof, and tolde them his dreame: but there was none of them that coulde interprete it vnto Pharao. Then spake the chefe butler vnto Pharao sayinge. I do remembre my faute this daye. Pharao was angrye with his seruauntes, and put in warde in the chefe marshals house, bothe me and the chefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, & eche mans dreame of a sondrye interpretacion.

And there was with vs a yong man an Hebrue borne, seruaunt vnto the chefe marshall. And we tolde hym, & he declared our dreames to vs accordynge to eyther of our dreames. And as he declared them vnto vs so it came to passe. I was restored to myne office agayn, and he was hanged.

C Then Pharao sent and called Ioseph. And they brought hym forthwith out of prison. And he shaued him self and chaunged his rayment, & went in to Pharao. And Pharao sayd vnto Ioseph, I haue dreamed a dreme and no man can interpretate it/ but I haue herde tell of the, that as sone as thou hearest a dreame, thou doest declare it. And Ioseph answered Pharao saying: God shal geue Pharao a prosperous answere without me. Pharao sayde vnto Ioseph: In my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuers syde, and there came out of the ryuer. vij. fatte fleshed and welfauoured kyne, and fed in the medowe. And then. vij. other kyne came vp after them, poore and very eupl fauoured & leane fleshed: so that I neuer sawe theyr lyke in all the lande of Egypte in eupl fauourdnes. And the. vij. leane and eupl fauoured kyne ate vp the first. vij. fatte kyne. And when they had eaten them vp a mā coulde not perceyue that they had eaten them: for they were styl as eupl fauoured as they were at the begynnyng, And I awoke. And I sawe agayne in my dreme. vij. eares sprynge out of one stalke full and good, and. vij. other eares wythered, thyn and blasted with wynde, sprynge vp after them. And the thynne eares deuoured the. vij. good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto the sothsayers, but no man can tell me what it meaneth. Then Ioseph sayd vnto Pharao, bothe Pharaos dremes are one. And god doth shewe Pharao what he is about to do. The. vij. good kyne are. vij. yeres, and the. vij. good eares are vij. yeres also/ and it is but one dreame. Lyke wise the. vij. thyn and eupl fauoured kyne that came out after them, are seuen yeres/ and the seuen emptye and blasted eares shall be seuen yeres of hunger. This is that whiche I sayde vnto Pharao, that God doth shewe Pharao what he is about to do.

Beholde there shall come. vij. yeres of great D plenteousnes throughout all the lande of Egypt. And there shall aryse after them. vij. yeres of hunger: So that all the plenteousnes shal be forgoten in the land of Egypt. And the hunger shal consume the land, so that the plenteousnes shal not be ones perceyued in the lande by reason of that hunger that shal come after, for it shall be exceedynge great. And where as the dreame was doubled vnto Pharao the seconde tyme, it betokeneth that the thynge is certaynly prepared of God, & that God wyll shortly brynge it to passe.

Now therfore let Pharao prouyde for a man of vnderstandynge and wysdome, and set him ouer the land of Egypt. And let Pharao make officers ouer the lande, and take vp the fyfte parte of the lande of Egypt in the seuen plenteous yeres, and let them gather all the foode of these good yeres that come, & laye vp corne vnder the power of Pharao, that there may be foode in the cityes, and there let them kepe it, that there may be foode in store in the lande agaynst the seuen yeres of hunger whiche shall come in the lande of Egypt, and that the lande perysshe not thorow hunger.

And the saying pleased Pharao and al his ser E uantes. Then said Pharao vnto his seruantes where shall we fynde suche a man as this is, that hath the spirite of God in hym? wherfore Pharao sayd vnto Ioseph: forasmoch as god hath shewed the al this, there is no man of vnderstanding or of wysdom like vnto the. Thou therfore shalt be * ouer my house, & accordyng * Psal. Iecu. vii. to thy worde shall all my people obey: onely in the kynges seat wyl I be aboue the. And he sayd vnto Ioseph, beholde, I haue set the ouer all the land of Egypt. And he toke of his ryng from his hyngre, & put it vpon Iosephs hyngre/ and arayde hym in rayment of sylke, and hong a golden cheyne aboute his necke, and set him vpon the best charet that he had saue one. And proclamacion was made, that euery person shulde bowe his knee before hym, as to hym whome Pharao had set ouer all the lande of Egypte.

And

F And Pharao sayd vnto Joseph. I am Pharao/without thy wyll shal no man lyft vp eyther his hand or fote in all the land of Egypt. And he called Josephs name ✠ Zaphnath Paena. And he gaue him to wife Aseath the doughter of Putiphar preest of On. Then went Joseph abrode in the land of Egypt. And he was thyrty yere olde when he stode before Pharao kynge of Egypte. And then Joseph departed from Pharao, and went throughout all all the lande of Egypte.

And in the seuen plentyfull yeres they made sheues, and gathered vp all the encrease of the seuen plenteous yeres which were in the land of Egypte, and put it in to the cityes. And he put the foode of the feldes that grewe rounde aboute euery city, euen in the same. And Joseph layde vp corne in store, lyke to the sande of the see in multitude aboue measure, vntyll he lefte nombryng: for it was without nombre. And vnto Joseph were borne two sonnes before the yeres of huger came, which Aseath the doughter of Putiphar preest of On, bare vnto hym. And he called the name of the fyrst sonne ✠ Manasse/for God (sayd he) hath made me forget all my laboure, and all my fathers houshold. The second called he Ephraim, for God (sayd he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

And when the seuen plentyfull yeres that were in the lande of Egypt were ended, then came the seuen yeres of ✠ derth, accordyng as Joseph had sayd. And the derth was in all landes, but in the lande of Egypte was there yet fode. When now all the land of Egypt began to hunger, then cryed the people to Pharao for breed. And Pharao sayd vnto all Egypte: go vnto Joseph, and what he sayth to you, that do. And when the derth was throughout all the lande/ Joseph opened all that was in the cityes and solde vnto the Egyptians. And hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte. And all countreys came to Egypt to Joseph for to bye corne: bycause that the hunger was so sore in all landes.

¶ Josephs brethren come into Egypte to bye corne. He knoweth and tryeth them. Symeon is put in pryson/the other returne to theyr father to fetche Ben Jamin. His father lothe to let hym go, at last graunted.

CAPI. XLII.

When Jacob sawe there was corne to be solde in Egypte, he sayde to his sonnes: Why are ye negligent? Beholde I haue herde that there is corne to be solde in Egypt. ✠ Get you thither & bye vs corne from thence, that we may lyue and not dye. So went Josephs ten brethren downe to bye corne in Egypte/ for Jacob wolde not sende Ben Jamin with his other brethren: for he said, some misfortune myght happen hym.

And the sonnes of Israel came to bye corne amonge other that came, for there was derth also in the lande of Canaan. And Joseph was gouerner in the lande, and solde corne to all the people of the land. And his brethren came and fell flat on the grounde before hym. When Joseph sawe his brethren, he knewe them, but made straunge vnto them, and spake roughly vnto them saying: whence come ye? and they sayde: out of the lande of Canaan, to bye vytayle. Joseph knewe his brethren, but they knewe not hym. B

And Joseph remembred his ✠ dreames whiche he dreamed of them/ and sayde vnto them, ye are spyes, and ye come to se where the lande is weake. And they sayd vnto hym: nay my lord, but to bye vitayle thy seruauntes are come. We are all one mans sonnes/ and we meane truly/and thy seruauntes are no spyes. He said vnto them: nay verily, but euen to se where the lande is weake is your commynge. And they sayd: we thy seruauntes are .xij. brethren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Canaan. The yongest is yet with our father/ but one no man wooteth where he is. Joseph said vnto the/that is it that I said vnto you, that ye are surely spyes. Hereby ye shal be proued. For by the lyfe of Pharao ye shall not go hence tyl your yongest brother be brought hither. Sende therfore one of you to fetche your brother, and ye shall be in pryson in the meane season. And therby shall your wordes be proued/ whether ye be true, or els by the lyfe of Pharao, ye are but spyes. And he put them in warde thre dayes. C ✠ Genesis. xxxvii. b

Then Joseph sayde vnto them, the thyrde day. This do, and ye shal lyue/ for I feare god. If ye meane truly, let one of your brethren be bounde in pryson, and go ye and beare necessary fode to your housholdes, and brynge with you your yongest brother vnto me: that your wordes may be proued, and that ye dye not. And they dyd so. D

Then they sayd one to an other: we haue verily synned agayns our brother, in that we sawe the anguyshe of his soule, when he besought vs, and wolde not heare hym: therfore is this trouble come vpon vs. Ruben answered them sayinge. Sayd I not vnto you that ye sholde not ✠ synne agayns the chylde? but ye wolde not heare. And nowe verily se, his bloode is ✠ requyred. They were not aware that Joseph vnderstonde them/ for he spake vnto them by an interpreter. And he turned from them & wepte, and then turned to them agayne & talked with them, and toke out Symeon from them and bounde hym before their eyes, and cõmaunded to fyll their sackes with corne, and to put euery mans money in his sacke, & to gyue them vitayle to spende by the waye. And so it was done to them. And they laded their asses with the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened his sacke for to gyue his asse prouender in the Inne, he spyed his money in his sackes mouthe. And he sayd vnto his brethren: my money is restored me agayne, and is in my sackes mouthe. Then their hertes fayled them, and were astonyed, and sayd one to an other/ how cõmeth it that God dealeth thus with vs? And they came to Jacob their father vnto the lande of Canaan and told him all that had happened them sayinge. The lorde of the lande spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spies to serche the cõtrey. E ✠ Genesis. xxxvii. d. ✠ To require the bloude of the hãd of an other is to take vẽgeaunce of euyl done vn to him/ as in Genesis. ix. a Psa. ix. b and Ezechiel. iii. a F

And we sayd vnto hym: we meane truly and are no spyes. We be twelue brethren sonnes of our father / one is awaye, and the yongest is now with our father in the lãde of Canaan. Then the lorde of the countrey sayd vnto vs: by this shall I knowe yf ye meane truly: leaue one of your brethren here with me, and take foode necessarye for your housholdes, and get you awaye, and bringe your yongest brother vnto me. And hereby shal I knowe that ye are no spyes, but meane truly: So wyll I deliuer you your brother agayne / and ye shall occupye in the lande.

And as they emptied their sackes, behold euery mans bũdell of money was i his sacke. And when both they and their father saw the bundels of money, they were afrayde.

B And Jacob their father sayd vnto them, haue ye robbed me of my children: Joseph is dead, and Symeon is awaye / and ye wyll take Ben Jamin from me. All these thyngs fall vpon me. Ruben answered his father sayinge: Slee my two sonnes, yf I bryng him not to the agayn. Delyuer hym therfore vnto my hande, and I wyll bringe hym to the agayne: But he sayd: my sonne shal not go downe with you / for his brother is dead, and he is left alone. Moreouer some myslortune myght happen vpon him by the way which ye go. And so shulde ye bryng my gray heed with sorowe vnto the graue.

ꝑ Bringe me to my graue: that is ye shal bring me to my death / as in Esaye. xxxviii.

C When Ben Jamin was brought they returned with gyftes. Symeon is delyuered out of pryson. Joseph goth alyde & wepeth. They feast together.

CAPI. XLIII.

A Nd the derth waxed sore in the lande. And when they had eaten vp the come whiche they brought out of the lande of Egypt, their father sayd vnto them: go agayne and bye vs a litle foode. Then sayd Juda vnto him: the man did testifie vnto vs saying, ✱ loke ye se not my face, onlesse your brother come with you. Therfore yf thou wylte sende our brother with vs, we wyll go and bye the foode. Yf thou wylte not sende hym, we wyll not go: For the man sayde vnto vs: loke ye se not my face, excepte your brother be with you. And Jsrael sayd: wherfore delte ye so cruelly with me, to tell the man ye had yet an other brother? They sayde: The man asked vs of our kynred, sayinge: Is your father yet alyue? haue ye not an other brother? And we tolde hym accordynge to these wordes: How coulde we knowe that he wolde byd vs bringe our brother downe with vs? Then sayd Juda vnto Jsrael his father: Send the lad with me, and we wyll ryse and go, that we maye lyue and not dye: both we, thou and also our children. I wyll be suertye for hym / and of my handes requyre hym. Yf I bringe him not to the, and set hym before thyne eyes ✱ let me bere the blame for euer. For onlesse we hadde made this tarying, by this we had ben there twyse and come agayne.

C Then their father Jsrael sayd vnto them. Yf it must nedes be so now, then do thus, take of the best frutes of the lande in your vessels, and cary the man a present, a quantitie of bawme and a porcion of hony, spyces and myrre, dates and almondes. And take as moch money more with you. And the money that was brought agayn in your sackes, take it agayn with you, peraduenture it was some ouersyght.

Take also your brother with you, and aryse and go agayne to the man. And God almyghtye gyue you mercy in the sight of the man and sende you your other brother & also Ben Jamin and I wyl be as a man robbed of his children.

Thus toke they the present & twyse so moche more money with them, and Ben Jamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypt, and presented them selues to Joseph. When Joseph saw Ben Jamin with them, he sayd to the ruler of his house / bryng these men home, and sley & make redy: for they shall dyne with me at none. And the man did as Joseph bad, and brought them in to Josephs house.

D When they were brought to Josephs house / they were afrayde and sayd, bycause of the money ꝑ came in our sackes mouthes at the fyrst tyme / are we brought that they myght pyke a quarell with vs, and laye some thynge to our charge, to bringe vs in bondage and our asses also. So came they to the man that was the ruler ouer Josephs house, and spake with him at the doze and sayd.

E Syr, we came hyther at the fyrst tyme to bye foode, and as we came to an Jnne, and opened our sackes: behold euery mans ✱ money was in his sacke with full weyghte: But we haue brought it agayne with vs, and other money haue we brought also i our handes, to bye foode but we can not tell who put our money in our sackes. And he sayde: be of good chere / feare not: your God, and the God of your fathers hathe put that treasure in your sackes / for I had your money. And he brought Symeon out to them, & led them i to Josephs house, & gaue them water to washe their fete, & gaue their asses prouender: And they made redye their present, agaynst Joseph came at none / for they herde say that they sholde dyne there. When Joseph came home, they brought the present in to the house to hym, whiche they had in their handes, and fell flat in the ground before him. And he welcomed them courteysly, sayinge / is your father that olde man which ye told me of in good helth? and is he yet alyue? They answered: thy seruant our father is i good helth and is yet alyue. And they bowed them selues and fell to the grounde.

And he lyft vp his eyes and behelde his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne and sayd: ✱ Is this your yongest brother of whome ye sayde vnto me? And sayd: God be mercyfull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast (for ✱ his hert did melt vpon his brother) & sought where to wepe, and entred in to his chambre, for to wepe there. And he washed his face and came out and refrayned hym selfe, and bad set bred on the table.

A AND he commaunded the ruler of his house sayeng: fyl the mens sackes with food, as moche as they can carye, & put euery mans money in his bagge mouthe, and put my syluer cup in the sackes mouthe of the yongest and his corne money also. And he dyd as Joseph had sayde. And in the morynge as soone as it was lyghte, the men were let go with their asses. And when they were out of the cytie and not yet ferre paste, Joseph sayde vnto the rular of his house: Aryse and pursue after the men, and ouertake theym, and saye vnto theym: Wherfore haue ye rewarded euell for good? is that not the cuppe, of whiche my lorde drynketh, and dothe he not prophecye therin? ye haue cupll done, that ye haue done.

And he ouertoke theym and sayde the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayth my lorde suche wordes? God forbyd that thy seruauntes shulde do so. B Behold, the money which we founde in our sackes mouthes, we broughte agayne vnto the, out of the lande of Canaan: how then shulde we steale out of my lordes house, either syluer or golde? with whomsoeuer of thy seruauntes it be founde let hym dye, and let vs also be my lordes bondemen. And he sayde. Nowe therfore according vnto youre wordes he with whome it is founde, shalbe my seruaunt: but ye, shalbe harmelesse.

And forthwith euerye man toke downe his C sacke to the grounde, and euery man opened his sacke. And he serched from the eldest, to the yongest. And the cup was founde in Ben Jamins sacke. Then they * rente their clothes, and laded euery man his asse, and went agayne vnto the cytie. And Juda and his brethren came to Josephs house, for he was yet there, and they fell before him on the ground. And Joseph sayde vnto theym: what dede is this whiche ye haue done? wiste ye not that suche a man as I, can prophecye?

Then sayde Juda: what shall we saye vn- D to my lorde, what shall we speake, or what excuse can we make? God hathe founde oute the wickednesse of thy seruauntes. Beholde, dothe we and he, with whome the cuppe is founde, are thy seruauntes. And he answered: God forbyd that I shulde do so, the man with whome the cuppe is founde, he shalbe my seruaunte: but go ye in peace home to your father.

Then Juda went vnto him and sayde: oh my lorde, let thy seruaunte speake a worde in my lordes eare, and be not wrothe with thy seruaunt: for thou arte euen as Pharao. My lorde asked his seruaunte sayenge: haue ye a E father or a brother? And we answered my lord * we haue a father that is olde, and a yonge ladde which he begat in his age: and the brother of the layde lad is dead, and he is all that is left of that mother. And his father loueth hym. Then sayde my lorde vnto his seruauntes, brynge him vnto me, that I may set myne eyes vppon hym. And we answered my lorde, that the lad coulde not go from his father, for yf he shulde leaue his father, his father were but a deed man. Then sayde ye thou vnto thy seruantes * onles your yongest brother come with you, loke that ye se my face no more.

And whan we came vnto thy seruaunt our father, we shewed hym, what my lorde hadde sayde. And when our father sayde vnto vs, go agayne, and bye vs a lytle fode: we sayd, that we coulde not go. Neuertheles yf our yongest brother go with vs, then will we go, for we maye not se the mannes face excepte oure youngeste brother come with vs. Then sayde F thy seruaunt oure father vnto vs. Ye knowe that my wyfe bare me two sonnes. And the one went out from me, and it is sayd that he is * torne in peaces, of wylde beastis, & I sawe him not sence. Now therfore when I come to thy seruant my father, yf the lad be not with me: seynge that his lyfe hangeth by the laddes lyfe, then as soone as he seeth that the lad is not come, he shall dye. So shall we thy seruantes, bring the grape head of thy seruaunt oure father, with sorowe vnto the graue. Moreouer yf thou knowe any men of actiuitie amonge them, make the rulars ouer my catell. And Ioseph brought in Jacob his father, and set hym before Pharao. And Jacob blessed Pharao. And Pharao asked Jacob, howe olde art thou? And Jacob sayde vnto Pharao: the dayes of my pilgremage, are an hundred and thirty yeres. Fewe and euyll haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, and haue not atteyned vnto the yeres of the lyfe of my fathers, in the dayes of their pilgremages. And Jacob blessed Pharao, and wēt out frome hym. And Ioseph prepared dwellinges for his father and his brethren, and gaue them possessions in the lande of Egypte, in the best of the lande: euen in the lande of Rameses, as Pharao commaunded. And Ioseph made prouysyon for his father, his brethren and all his fathers houshold, as ponge chyldren are fed with bread.

There was no bread in al the lande, for the derth was exceadynge sore: so that the lande of Egypte, and the lande of Canaan, were fampyshed, by the reason of the derth. And Ioseph gathered togyther all the money that was founde in the lande of Egypte, and of Canaan, for the corne whyche they boughte: and he layde vp the money in Pharaos house. When money fayled in the lande of Egypte, & of Canaan, all the Egyptians came vnto Ioseph, and sayde: geue vs sustenaunce: wherfore suffrest thou vs to dye before the: for our money is spent. Then sayde Ioseph: bringe your catell, and I wyll geue you for your catell, yf ye be without money. And they brought their catel vnto Ioseph. And he gaue them bread for horses and shepe, and oxen and asses: so he fed them with bread, for all their catell, that yere. C

When that yere was ended, they came vnto hym the next yere, and sayde vnto hym: we will not hyde it frome my lorde, how that we haue neyther money nor catell, for my lorde: there is no more left for my lorde, but our bodyes, and oure landes. And Ioseph bought all the lande of Egipt for Pharao. For the Egyptians solde euery man his lande, because the derth was sore vpon them: and so the lande became Pharaos. And he appointed the people vnto the cytes/ frome one syde of Egypte vnto the other: only the lande of prestes bought he not. A THESE ARE THE NA

* Gen.xlvi.b mes of the * chyldren of Israel, whiche came to Egypte with Jacob, euerye man with his housholde: Ruben, Simeon, Leui, Juda, Isachar, Zabulon, Ben Jamin, Dan, Nephtali, Gad and Aser. All these soules procedinge out of the loynes of Jacob, were. lxx. where as Joseph was in Egypte all redye.

When Joseph was dead, and al his brethern and all the generation: the * children of Israel grewe, encreased, multyplyed, and waxed very myghtye: so that the lande was full of them.

* Act.vii.c Psal.cuiij.c

B Then there rose vp a newe kynge in Egypte whiche knewe not Joseph. And he sayde vnto his folke: beholde the people of the children of Israel are mo & myghtyer than we. Come, let vs playe wysely with them: lest they multiplye, and so (yf there chaunce any warre) they ioyne them selues to oure ennemyes and fyghte agaynste vs, and so gette them oute of the lande.

C And he set taskemasters ouer them, to kepe them vnder with burdens. And they buylt vnto Pharao cyties of defense: Phiton and Rameses. But the more they vexed the, the more they multyplyed and grewe: so that they abhorred the children of Israel. And the Egyptians helde the children of Israel in bondage withoute mercye, and made their lyues bitter vnto theym, with cruell laboure in claye, and bycke, and all maner worke in the feldes, and in all maner seruice, whiche they caused them to worke, cruelly.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwyues of the Ebruel women, of whiche the ones name was Sephora, and the other Phua: When ye do the office of a mydwyfe, to the women of the Ebrues, & se in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, kyll it. But yf it be a mayde, let it lyue. Notwithstanding the mydwyues feared God, and dyd not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them: but saued the men children.

D Then the kynge of Egypte called for the mydwyues, and sayde vnto them: why haue ye delt on this maner, and haue saued the men children? And the mydwyues answered Pharao, that the Ebrues wemen were not as the wemen of Egypte: but were sturdy women, and were delyuered afore the midwyues came at them. And god therfore delt well with the mydwyues. And the people multyplyed and waxed very myghty. And because the mydwyues feared God, he made them houses.

Then Pharao charged all his people, sayenge. All the menchildren that are borne, caste into the ryuer, and saue the maydechildren a lyue.

¶ Moses and Aaron go vnto Pharao. The people of Israel are oppressed more and more / and they crye out vpon Moses and Aaron therfore.

A CAPI. V.

THen Moses and Aaron went and tolde Pharao, thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel. Let my people go, that they may kepe holye daye vnto me in the wyldernesse.
And Pharao answered: What felowe is the Lorde, that I shuld heare his voyce for to let Israel go? I know not the Lorde, neyther will let Israel go. And they sayde: the God of the Hebrewes hath met with vs: let vs go (we praye the) three dayes iourney into the desert, that we maye sacrifice vnto the Lorde oure
God: lest he smyte vs eyther with pestilence, or with swerde. Then sayde the kynge of Egypt vnto them: Wherfore do ye, Moses and Aaron, let the people frome their worke, get you vnto your laboure. And Pharao sayd furthermore: beholde there is moche people in the lande, and ye make theym playe, and let their worke stande.

B And Pharao commaunded the same daye the taskemasters ouer the people, and the officers, sayenge: se that ye geue the people no more strawe to make brycke with, as ye dyd in tyme passed: let them go and gather straw them selues, and the nombre of brycke, which they were wont to make in tyme passed, laye vnto theyr charges also, and dymynysshe no-thinge therof. For they be ydell, and therfore crye, sayenge: Let vs go and do sacrifice vnto our God. They must haue more worke layde vpon them, that they maye labour therin, and then will they not turne theym selues to false wordes.

Then went the taskemasters of the people and the officers out, and tolde the people say-enge: Thus sayth Pharao: I will geue you no more strawe, but go youre selues, and gather you strawe where ye can fynde it, yet shal none of your labour be mynysshed. Then the people scatered abrode thorow out all the lād of Egypte, for to gather theym stubyll, to be
C in stede of strawe.

And the taskemasters hasted them forward, sayenge: Fulfill your werke daye by day, euē as when strawe was geuen you. And the officers of the children of Israel, which Pharaos taskemasters had set ouer them, were beaten.
And it was sayde vnto them: Wherfore haue ye not fulfilled your taske in makynge brycke, both yesterdaye and to daye, as well as in tymes paste.

Then went the officers of the children of Is rael, and complayned vnto Pharao, sayeng: Wherfore dealest thou thus with thy seruan-tes? there is no strawe geuen vnto thy seruauntes, and yet they saye vnto vs: make brycke. And lo, thy seruantes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. And he answered: Ydell are ye, and therfore ye saye: let vs go and do sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Go therfore and worke, for there shall no strawe be geuen you, and yet se that ye delyuer the hole tale of brycke.

D When the officers of the children of Israel sawe them selfes in ferwde case (in that he sayde, ye shall mynysshe nothinge of your day-ly makynge of brycke) then they met Moses and Aaron, stondinge in their waye, as they came out frome Pharao, and sayd vnto them:
The Lorde loke vnto you & iudge, for ye haue made the sauoure of vs stynke in the sighte of Pharao, and of his seruauntes, and haue put a swerde into their handes to sley vs.

Moses returned vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Lorde, wherfore dealest thou cruelly with this people: and wherfore hast thou sent me? For sence I came to Pharao to speke in thy name, he hathe fared foule with this folke, and yet thou hast not delyuered thy people at all. The the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Nowe shalte

Then wente Moses and Aaron to Pharao, and dyd as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aaron cast forth his rodde before Pharao and his seruauntes, and it turned to a serpente. Then Pharao called for the wyse men and * enchaunters of Egypte: and they dyd in lyke maner with their sorcerye. And they caste downe euery man his rodde, and they turned to serpentes: but Aarons rodde ate vp their roddes: and yet for all this Pharaos herte was hardened, so that he herkened not vnto them, accordyng as the Lord had sayde.

THe Lorde spake vnto Moses: Go vnto Pharao, and tell hym, thus sayth the Lorde: * Let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, beholde, I wyll smyte all thy lande with frogges. And the ryuer shall sceale with frogges, and they shal come vp, & go into thyne houlse and into thy chaumbre, where thou slepeste, and vppon thy bedde, and into the houlses of thy seruauntes, and vpon thy people, and into thyne ouens, and vpon thy vytayles, whiche thou haste in store. And the frogges shall come vppon the, and on thy people, and vpon all thy seruauntes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saye vnto Aaron: stretche forthe thyne hande with thy rodde ouer the streames, ryuers and pondes. And dyrynge vp frogges vpon the lande of Egypte. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the water of Egypte, and the frogges came vp, and couered the lande of Egypte. And the sorcerers dyd lykewyse with their sorcery, and the frogges came vp, vppon the lande of Egypte.

Then Pharao called for Moses, and Aaron, and sayde: Praye ye vnto the Lorde that he maye take awaye the frogges from me and frome my people, and I wyll let the people go, that they may do sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moses sayde vnto Pharao: Appoynte thou the tyme vnto me, when I shall pray for the / and thy seruauntes, and thy people, to dryue awaye the frogges frome the, and thy houlse, so that they shall remayne but in the ryuer onely. And he sayde to morowe. And he sayd: euen as thou hast sayd that thou mayst knowe that there is none lyke vnto the Lord our God. And the frogges shall departe from the, and frome thyne houses, and frome thy seruauntes, and frome thy people, and shall remayne in the ryuer onely.

And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharao, and Moses cryed vnto the Lorde vppon the apoyntment of frogges, whiche he hadde made vnto Pharao. And the Lorde dyd accordynge to the sayenge of Moses. And the frogges dyed out of the houlses, courtes & feldes. And they gathered them togither vpō heapes so that the lande stanke of them.

But when Pharao sawe that he had reste gruen hym, he hardened his hert, and herkened not vnto them, as the Lorde hadde sayde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron, stretche out thy rodde, and smyte the duste of the lande, that it maye turne to lyse / in all the lande of Egypte. And they dyd so. And Aaron stretched oute his hande, with his rodde, and smote the dust of the earth, and it turned to lyse, both in man and beast, so that all the duste of the lande, turned to lyse, thorowe out all the lande of Egypte. And the enchaunters assayde lykwyse with their enchauntementes, to dryngе forth lyse, but they coulde not. And the lyse were bothe vpon man and beast. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharao: It is the fynger of God. Neuerthelater Pharaos hert was hardened, and he regarded them not, as the Lorde had sayde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: ryse vp early in the morynyng, and stonde before Pharao, for he will come vnto the water: and say vnto hym, Thus sayth the Lorde: let my people go, that they may serue me. If thou wylt not let my people go, beholde, I will sende al maner flyes, bothe vpon the, thy seruauntes, and thy people, and into thy houlses. And the houlses of the Egyptians shalbe full of flyes, and the grounde whereon they are. And I will put a dyuysyō, betwene my people and thyne. And euen to morow shal this miracle be wone.

And the Lorde dyd accordyngly: and there came noysome flyes into the houlse of Pharao and into his seruauntes houses, and into all the lande of Egypte: so that the lande was marred with flyes. Then Pharao sent for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Go and do sacrifice vnto your God in the lande. And Moses answered: it is not mete so to do. For we shulde so offer vnto the Lorde our God, that whiche is an abhominacyon vnto the Egyptians: beholde, shall we sacrifice that whiche is an abominacion vnto the Egyptiās before their eyes, & shall they not stone vs? we wyll therfore go thre dayes iourney, into the wyldernesse, and sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God as he hath commaunded vs. The fourth plage.

But let Pharao frome hencefoorth deleaue no moare, that he will not let the people go to sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And Moses went oute frome Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde dyd as Moses had sayd, and toke away the flyes frome Pharao, and from his seruauntes, and frome his people, so that there remayned not one. But for all that, Pharao hardened his herte euen then also, and wolde not let the people go.

E in haste and sayd: I haue synned agaynst the Lorde your God, and agaynst you. Forgyue me yet my synne onely this ones, and pray vnto the Lorde your God, that he may take away from me this deth only. And he went out from Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lord, and the Lorde turned the wynde in to a myghtye stronge weste wynde / and it toke awaye the grashoppers and cast them in to the reed see: so that there was not one grashopper in al the coostes of Egypte. But the Lorde * hardened Pharaos herte, so that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israel go.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Stretche out thy hand vnto heuen / & let there be darknesse vpon the lande of Egypt, euen that they may grope the darknes. And Moses stretched forthe his hande vnto heuen, and there was a thycke darkenes vpon the lande of Egypt. iij. dayes long, so that no man sawe an other neyther rose vp from the place where he was by the space of iij. dayes / but all the children of Israel had lyght where they dwelled. The nynth plage. Palpable darkenes.

Then Pharao called for Moses and sayde: Go and serue the Lorde, onely let your shepe F and your oxen abyde, but let your chyldren go with you. And Moses answered: thou musse gyue vs also offrynges and burnt offrynges for to sacrifyce vnto the Lorde our God: our catell therfore shall go with vs / and there shall not one hofe be lefte behynde, for therof must we take to serue the Lorde our God. But the Lorde hardened Pharaos herte, so that he wolde not let them go. And Pharao sayd vnto hym: get the from me and take hede to thy selfe that thou se my face no more. For when so euer thou commest in my syght / thou shalt dye. And Moses sayd: Let it be as thou hast sayd: I wyll se thy face no more.

And he went out from Pharao in a great anger.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Pha- D rao shall not regarde you, that many wonders may be wrought in the lande of Egypte. And Moses and Aaron dyd all these wonders before Pharao. But the Lorde hardened Pharaos herte, so that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israel go out of his lande.

AND the Lorde spake to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying: This moneth shall be your chefe moneth, euē of the fyrst moneth of the yere shall it be vnto you. Speke ye vnto al the felowship of Israel, sayinge: that they take the tenth daye of this moneth to euery housholde a shepe. Yf the housholde be to fewe for a shepe, then let hym and his neighbour that is next vnto his house take accordynge to the nombre of the soules/ and counte vnto a shepe accordynge to euery mans eatynge. And ye shall kepe hym in tyll the .xiiij. daye of the same moneth. And euery man of the multitude of Israel shal kyll hym about euen. And they shall take of the bloode, and stryke it on the two syde postes, & on the vpper doze post of the houses, wherin they eate hym. And they shall eate the flesshe the same nyght, roll with fyre and with vnleuended breed/ & with soure herbes they shall eate it. Se that ye eate not therof rawe, nor soden in water/ but roste with fyre: both the heed, fete, and purtenance togyther. And se that ye let nothynge of it remayne vnto the morynyng: yf ought remayne burne it with fyre.

B Of this maner shall ye eate it: with your lopnes gyrded/ and shoes on your fete/ & your staues in your handes. And ye shall eate it in haste/ for it is the Lordes passeouer, for I wyl go aboute in the lande of Egypte this same night/ and wyl smyte all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypte, bothe of man and beest/ and vpon all the Goddes of Egypte wyll I the Lorde do execution. And the bloode shall be vnto you a token vpon the houses wherin ye are, for when I se the bloode, I wyll passe ouer you, and the plage shall not be vpon you to destroye you / when I smyte the lande of Egypte.

Therfore se that ye eate not leuended breed, but in all youre habitacyons eate swete breed. D

And Moses called for the elders of Israel, and sayde vnto them: Chose out and take to euery housholde a shepe, and kyll passeouer. And take a bunche of ysope, and dyp it in the bloode that is in the basen/ and stryke it vpon the vpper post, and on the two syde postes, and se that none of you go out at the dooze of his house vntyll the morynyng. For the Lorde wyll go about & smyte Egypte. And when he seeth the blood vpon the vpper doze post, and on the two syde postes, he wyll passe ouer the dooze, and wyll not suffre the destroyer to come in to your house to plage you. Therfore se that thou observe this thynge, that it be an ordinaunce to the and thy sonnes for euer.

And when ye be come in to the lande which the Lorde wyll gyue you accordyng as he hath promysed/ se that ye kepe this seruyce. And when your chyldren axe you what maner of seruyce is this ye do? Ye shall say, it is the sacrifyce of the Lordes passeouer, whiche passed ouer the houses of the chyldren of Israel in Egypte, as he smote the Egyptians, and saued our houses. Then the people bowed them selues & worshypped. And the chyldren of Israel went and dyd as the Lorde had commaunded Moses and Aaron.

E And at mydnyght the Lorde smote all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypt. from the fyrst borne of Pharao that sat on his seat, vnto the fyrst borne of the captyue that was in pryson, and all the fyrst borne of catell. Then Pharao arose the same nyght and all the seruauntes and all the Egyptians: * & there was a great cryinge throughout Egypte, for there was no house where there was not one deed. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordynge to the sayinge of Moses: and they borowed of the Egyptians iewels of syluer, and iewels of golde / and rayment. And they baked swete cakes of the dough which they brought out of Egypte / for it was not soured, because they were thrust out of Egypt and could not tary, neyther had they prepared any other prouysyon of meate.

And the tyme of the dwellynge of the chyldren of Israel which they dwelled in Egypte was. iiij. hundred and. xxx. yere. And when the iiij. hundred and. xxx. yeres was expyred, euen the selfe same daye departed all the hoostes of the Lorde out of the lande of Egypte. This is a nyght to be obserued to the Lorde / because he brought them out of the lande of Egypte. This is a nyght of the Lorde, to be kepte of all the children of Israel and of theyr generacyons after them.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses & Aaron: this is the maner of Passeouer: there shall no straunger eate therof / but all the seruauntes that are bought for money shall ye circumcise, and then let them eate therof. A straunger and a hyred seruaunt shall not eate therof. In one house shal it be eaten. Ye shal cary none of the flesshe out at the dores: moreouer * se that ye breke not a bone therof. All the multytude of the chyldren of Israel shall obserue it.

If a straunger dwell amonge you, and wyll holde Passeouer vnto the Lorde, let hym circumcyse all that be males, & then let him come and obserue it, & be taken as one that is borne in the land. No vncircumcised person shal eate therof. One maner of lawe shall be vnto them that are borne in the lande / & vnto the straungers that dwell among you. And all the chyldre of Israel did as the Lorde comaunded Moses and Aaron. And euen the selfe same day dyd the Lorde bryng the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte with theyr armyes.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moses saying * Sanctifye vnto me all the fyrst borne that open all maner matrices amonge the children of Israel as well of men as of beestes: for they are myne. And Moses sayd vnto the people, thinke on this day i which ye came out of Egypt, and out of the house of bondage: for with a myghty hande the Lorde brought you out from thence. Se therfore that ye eate no leuened breed. This day come ye out of Egypt, in the moneth of * Abib.

When the Lord hath brought the in to the lande of the Cananytes, Hethytes, Amorites, Heuytes and Jebusytes, whiche he sware vnto thy fathers that he wolde gyue the a lande wherin mylke and hony floweth, then se that thou kepe this ceremonye in this same moneth. Seuen dayes thou shalte eate swete breed: * and the. vij. daye shall be feastfull vnto the Lorde. Therfore thou shalte eate swete breed seuen dayes, and se that there be no leuended breed sene nor yet leuen among you in all your quarters.

God woll * the cause of * ceremonie be declared at * tyme of the celebration therof. * Luke Mat. cxxv. b.

And thou shalt shew thy sonne at that tyme saying: this is done, because of that which the Lorde dyd vnto me when I came out of Egypte. Therfore it shall be a sygne vnto the vpon thyne hande, and as a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lordes lawe may be in thy mouthe. For * with a stronge hande the Lorde brought the out of Egypte, se thou kepe therfore this ordynaunce in his season from yere to yere. Moreouer when the Lorde hath brought the in to the lande of the Cananytes, as he hath swore vnto the and to thy fathers, and hath gyuen it the, then thou shalt appoynt vnto the Lorde all that openeth the matrice, all the fyrst borne amonge the beestes whiche thou hast yf they be males. And all the fyrst borne of the asses, thou shalt redeme with a shepe: yf thou redeme hym not, then breake his necke. But all the fyrst borne amonge thy chyldren shalt thou bye out.

And when thy sonne axeth the in tyme to come sayinge: what is this? thou shalte saye vnto hym: with a myghty hande the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte, out of the house of bondage. And when Pharao was lothe to let vs go / the Lord slewe all the fyrst borne in the land of Egypt: as well the fyrst borne of men as of beestes. And therfore I sacrifyce vnto the Lorde all the males that open the matrice, but all the fyrst borne of my chyldre I must redeme. And this shall be as a token in thyne hande, and as a thing hanged vp betwene thyne eyes because the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte with a myghty hande.

When Pharao had let the people goo, God saued them not thorow the land of the Philistynes, though it were a nye waye, thynkynge that the people myghte happely repent when they se warre, and so turne agayne to Egypt: therfore god led them about thorow * wildernesse that bordreth on the red see. The chyldre of Israel went harnessed out of the lande of Egypte. And Moses toke the bones of Joseph with hym: for he made the chyldren of Israel swere saying * God wyl surely visyt you, take my bones therfore away hence with you. And they toke their iourney from Sucoth, and pitched theyr tentes in Etham in the edge of the wyldernes. * And the Lorde went before them by day in a pyller of a cloude to leade them the waye: and by nyght in a pyller of fyre to gyue them lyght, that they myght go bothe by day and night. * And the pyller of the cloude neuer departed by day, nor the pyller of fyre by night out of the peoples syght.

¶ Pharaos hert is hardened and foloweth the Israelites with all his hoost / and is drowned. The Israelites grudge. They go through the red see.

CAPI. XIIII.

THen the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: byd the children of Israel that they turne and pitche their tentes before the entryng of Hiroth betwene Migdole and the see toward Baalzephon: euē before that shal ye pytche vpon the see. For Pharao wyll saye of the chyldren of Israel: they are inuegled in the land/the wyldernes hath shut them in. And I wyll harden his herte, that he shall folowe after them, to thintent I may get me honour vpon Pharao and vpon all his host, that the Egyptians maye knowe that I am the Lorde. And they dyd euen so.

B And when it was tolde the kynge of Egypt that the people fled, then Pharaos herte and all his seruauntes turned agaynste the people and sayde: why haue we this done, that we haue let Israel go out of our seruyce? And he made redye his charettes and toke his people with hym, & toke .vj. hundred chosen charettes and all the charettes of Egypte, and capteyns vpon all his people. For the Lorde hardened the herte of Pharao kynge of Egypte, that he folowed after the chyldren of Israel, whiche neuertheles went out thorow an hye hande, and the Egyptians folowed after them, and ouertoke them where they pytched by the see with all the horses and charettes of Pharao and with his horsemen and his hoost: fast by the entrynge of Hiroth before Baal Zephon. And Pharao drewe nye/ and when the chyldren of Israel lyfte vp theyr eyes, and sawe that the Egygtians folowed after them, they were sore afrayde, & cryed out vnto the Lorde.

C Then sayd they vnto Moses. Were there no graues for vs in Egypte, but thou muste brynge vs awaye to dye in the wyldernesse? wherefore hast thou serued vs thus, to carye vs out of Egypt? Dyd not we tell the this in Egypte sayinge/ let vs be in reste and serue the Egyptians? For it hadde ben better for vs to haue serued the Egyptians, then to dye in the wyldernesse. And Moses sayde to the people: feare not but stande styll and beholde how the Lorde shall saue you this day: For the Egyptians whome ye se this daye, ye shall neuer se more for euer, The Lorde shall fyght for you, and ye shall be styll.

D The Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Wherefore cryest thou vnto me? speke to the chyldren of Israel to go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rod, and stretche forthe thy hande ouer the see and diuyde it asondre, that the chyldren of Israel may go on drye ground, thorow the myddest therof. And beholde, I wyll harden the hertes of the Egyptians that they may folow you. And I wyll get me honour vpon Pharao and vpon all his hoost vpon his charettes, and vpon his horse men. And the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lorde when I haue gotten me honoure vpon Pharao, vpon his charettes and vpon his horsemen.

E And the aungell of god whiche went before the hoost of Israel, remoued and went behynd them. And the clouden pyller that was before them, remoued and stode behynde them, & went betwene the host of the Egyptians & the host of Israel. It was a darke cloude, & gaue lyght by nyght: so that all the nyght longe the one coulde not come at the other.

* When Moses stretched forth his hande ouer the see, the Lorde caryed awaye the see with a strong east wynd that blewe all night, and made the see drye lande, and the water deuyded it selfe. And the chyldren of Israel went in thorow the myddest of the see vpon the dry ground. And the water was a wall vnto them bothe on their ryght hande and on their lefte. And the Egyptiās folowed, and went in after F them to the myddest of the see, with all Pharaos horses and his charettes & his horsemen. And in the morynge watche the Lorde loked vnto ꝑ hoost of the Egyptians out of the fiery and cloudye pyller/ & troubled theyr hoost/ and smote of theyr charet wheles, and caste them downe to the grounde. Then sayd the Egyptians: Let vs fle from Israel, for the Lorde fyghteth for them agaynst vs. Then sayd the Lorde vnto Moses: stretch forth thyne hande ouer the see, that the water may come agayn vpon the Egyptians, vpon theyr charettes and horsemen.

Then stretched forth Moses his hande ouer G The 1. plage. the see/ and it came agayne to his course early in the morynge/ and the Egyptians fledde agaynst it. Thus the Lord ouerthrew the Egyptians in the myddest of the see/ and the water returned and couered the charets & the horsemen: so that of all the hoost of Pharao that came i to the see after them, remayned not one. But the children of Israel went vpon dry land in the myddest of the see, and the water was a wall to them, both on the ryght hand of them and also on the lefte.

* Thus the Lorde delyuered Israel the * Exo selfe same daye out of the hande of the Egyptians/ and Israel sawe the Egyptians deed vpon the see syde. CAPI. XV.

A Then Moses and the chyldren of Israel sange this songe vnto the Lorde, & sayd. Let vs synge vnto the Lorde/ for he is become glorious/ the horse and hym that rode vpon hym, hathe he ouerthrowne in the see. * The Lorde is my strength and my song, and is become my saluacion.

He is my God and I wyll glorifye hym/ he is my fathers God, and I wyll lyft hym vp on hyghe. The Lorde is a man of warre almyghtye is his name: Pharaos charettes and his hoost hath he cast in to the see. His tolye captaynes are drowned in the red see/ the depe waters haue couered them: they sonke to the botome as a stone. Thyne hande Lorde is glorious in power/ thyne hande Lorde hath all to dasshed the ennemye. And with thy great glorye thou haste destroyed thyne aduersaryes/ thou sentest forthe thy wrathe, and it consumed them as stobell. With the breth of thyne anger the water gathered togyther and the floodes stode styll as a rocke/ and the depe water congeled togyther in the myddest of the see.

The ennemye sayde: I wyll folowe and B ouertake them/ and wyll deuyde the spoyle:

I wyl

I wyll satisfye my luste vpon them: I wyll drawe my swerde, and myne hande shall destroye them.

Thou blewest with thy breth and the see couered them, and they sanke as leed in the mighty waters. Who is lyke vnto the, o Lorde, amonge godes: who is like the, so glorious in holynes, fearfull, laudable, and that shewest wondres? Thou stretchedest out thy ryght hande, & the erth swalowed them. And thou carydest with thy mercye this people whiche thou delyueredest, and broughtest them with thy strength vnto thy holy habitacion. The nacions herde, and were afrayde, panges came vpon the Philistynes. Then the dukes of the Edomytes were amased/ and tremblynge came vpon the myghtyest of the Moabytes, and all the inhabiters of Canaan waxed faynt herted. Let feare and dreed fall vpon them thorow the ℣ greatnesse of thyne arme, and let them be as styll as a stone: whyle thy people passe thorowe, o Lorde, whyle the people passe thorowe, whiche thou hast goten. Brynge them in, and plant them in the mountaynes of thyne enherytaunce, the place Lorde whiche thou hast made for to dwell in/ the sanctuarye Lorde, whiche thy handes haue prepared. The Lorde reygne euer and alwaye. For Pharao went in on horsebacke with his charettes and horsemen in to the see, & the Lorde broughte the waters of the see vpon them. And the chyldren of Israel went on dryye lande thorow the middest of the see. And Wyr Jam a pphetesse the syster of Aaron, toke a tymbrel in her hand, & all the wome came out after her with tymbrels in a daunce. And Mir Jam sang before them: Sing ye vnto the Lorde, for he is become glorious in dede: the horse and his ryder hathe he ouerthrowne in the see. Moses brought Israel from the red see, and they went out in to the wyldernesse of Sur. And they went thre dayes longe in the wyldernesse, and could fynd no water. At last they came to Mara: but could not drinke of the waters for bitternesse, for they were bitter, therfore the name of the place was called Mara. Then ỹ people murmured against Moses, saying: ✱ what shal we drinke? And Moses cried vnto the Lorde, and he shewed hym a tree which he caste in to the waters, and they waxed swete.

There he made vnto them an ordinaūce and a lawe, and there he proued them, and said: If ye wyll herken to the voyce of the Lorde your God, and do that which is ryght in his syght, and gyue eare to his commaundementes, and kepe all his ordinaunces: I wyll put none of these diseases vpon you, whiche I broughte vpon the Egyptians/ for I am the Lorde God your surgeon.

And he said vnto them, this is that whiche the Lorde hath sayde: to morowe is the Saboth of the holy rest of the Lorde, bake that ye wyll bake, and seethe that ye wyll sethe, and that remayneth laye vp for you, & kepe it tyll the mornynge. And they layde it vp tyll the mornynge as Moses bad, and it stanke not, neither was there any wormes therin. And Moses said: eate this to day: for to daye it is the Lordes Saboth: to daye ye shall fynde none in the felde. Sixe dayes ye shall gather/ for the. vij. is the Saboth: in it shall be none.

Notwithstandyng there went out of the people in the. vij. daye to gather, but they founde none. Then the Lorde sayd to Moses: how long shall it be ere ye wyl kepe my cōmaundementes and lawes? * Se, bycause the Lorde hath gyuen you a Saboth, therfore he gyueth you the sixt daye breed for two dayes. Abyde therfore euery man at home, and let no mā go out of his place the.vij.daye. And the people rested the seuenth daye. And the house of Israel called it man Alan. * And it was lyke vnto Coryander seed, and whyte/and the taste of it was lyke vnto wafers made with hony.

And Moses sayde: this is that the Lorde commaundeth, fyll a Gomor of it that it may be kept for your chyldren after you, that they may se the breed wherwith he fed you in wyldernesse, when he had brought you out of the lande of Egypt. And Moses sayd vnto Aaron: take a cruse, and put a Gomer full of Man therin/ and laye it vp before the Lorde to be kepte for your chyldren after you, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And Aaron layde it vp before the testimony there to be kepte. * And the chyldren of Israel ate Man. xl. yere vntyll they came to a lande inhabited. So they ate Man tyll they came to the borders of the land of Canaan. Truly a Gomor is the tenth part of an Epha.

¶ The Israelytes come in to Raphidim. They grudge. water is geuen them out of the rocke. Moses holdeth vp his handes, and they ouercome the Amelechytes.

CAPI. XVII.

A AND all the company of the childrē of Israel went on theyr iourneys from the wyldernesse of Sin at the commaundement of the Lorde, and pitched in Raphidim: where was no water for the people to drynke who chode with Moses and sayde: Gyue vs water to drynke. Moses sayde vnto them: Why chyde ye with me, and wherfore do ye tempte the Lorde? So the people thyrsted for water, and murmured agaynste Moses, and sayde: wherfore hast thou brought vs out of Egypte, to kyll vs and our chyldren and our catell with thurst? B

So Moses cryed to the Lorde saying, what shal I do vnto this people? they be almost redye to stone me. Then the Lorde sayd to Moses: go before the people, and take with the of the elders of Israel, & thy rod wherwith thou smotest the ryuer take in thyne hande and go. Beholde I wyll stande there vpon a rocke in Horeb: and thou shalte smyte the rocke, and there shall come water out therof, that the people may drynke. C

* And Moses dyd so before the elders of Israel: And called the name of the place Massa, and Meriba, bycause of the chydynge of the chyldren of Israel, and bycause they tempted the Lorde, sayinge: Is the Lorde amonge vs or not?

Then came Amelech and fought with Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayd vnto Josua: chose out men, and go fyghte with Amelech. To morowe I wyll stande on the top of the hyll, and the rodde of God in myne hande. And Josua dyd as Moses bade hym, & fought with the Amelechites. And Moses, Aaron and Hur wente vp to the toppe of the hyll. And when Moses helde vp his hande, Israel had the better. And when he late his hand downe Amelech had the better. D

When Moses handes were weery, they toke a stone and put it vnder hym, and he sate downe theron. And Aaron and Hur stayed vp his handes, the one on the one syde, and the other on the other syde. And his handes were stedye vntyll the sonne was downe. * And Josua discomfeted Amelech and his people with the edge of his swerde.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses, wryte this for a remembraunce in a boke and tell it vnto Josua, for I wyl put out the remembraunce of Amelech vnder heuen. And Moses made an alter, and called the name of it * Jeouah Nissi/ for he sayde: the hande is on the syght of the Lorde, that the Lorde wyll haue warre with Amelech throughout all generations.

I Ethro the preest of Madian Moses father in lawe herde of all that God had done to Moses and Israel his people, how that the Lorde had brought Israel forthe of Egypte. And he toke Ziphora Moses wyfe, after the was sent backe, and her two sonnes, of which the one was called Gerson / for he sayde: I haue ben an alien in a straunge lande. And the other was called Elieser, for the god of my father was myne helpe, and delyuered me from the swerde of Pharao. And Moses tolde his father in lawe all that the Lorde had done vnto Pharao, and to the Egyptians for Israels sake/and all the trauayle that had happened them by the waye, & how the Lorde hadde delyuered them. And Jethro reioysed ouer all the good whiche the Lorde had done to Israel/ and that he had delyuered them out of the hande of the Egyptians. And Jethro sayd: blessed be the Lorde, which hath delyuered you out of the hande of the Egyptians, and oute of the hande of Pharao, and hath delyuered his people from the power of the Egyptians. For when they haue a matter, they come to me, and I must iudge betwene euery man and his neighbour, and must shewe them the ordinaunces of God and his lawes.

And his father in lawe sayde to him: It is not well that thou doest. But heare my voyce, and I wyll gyue the counsell, and God shall be with the. If thou shalte doo this thynge, then thou shalte be hable to endure that whiche God chargeth the with all, and all this people shall goo to their places quietly.

And Moses herde the voyce of his father in lawe, and dyd all that he had sayde, and chose actyue men out of all Israel, and made them heedes ouer the people, captaynes ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fyfty, & ouer ten. And they iudged the people at all seasons, and brought the harde causes vnto Moses, & iudged all small maters them selues. And then Moses let his father in lawe departe, and he went in to his owne lande.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Lo, I wyll come vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people may heare when I talke with the, and also bileue the for euer. There shall not an hande touche it, but that he shall either be stoned or els shot thorowe: whether it be beest or man, it shall not lyue / when the horne bloweth, then let them come vp in to the mountayne. And Moses went downe from the mounte to the people, and sanctifyed them, and they washed their clothes. And the thyrde daye in the morynyng there was thunder, and lyghtenyng, and a thycke cloude vpon mount, and the voyce of the horne wared exceedynge loude, and all the people that was in the hoste was afrayde. Then went Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the. lxx. elders of Israel vp, & sawe the God of Israel, and vnder his feete as it were a bricke worke of Saphir, and as it were the facion of heuen when it is clere, and vpon the nobles of the children of Israel he set not his hande. And wen they had seue God, they ate and dronke.

And the Lorde sayde to Moses: come vp to me in to the hyll, and be there, and I wyll gyue the tables of stone, and a lawe and commaundements which I haue wrytten to teache them. If any man haue any maters to do, let him come to them. When Moses was come vp to the mounte/ a cloude coured the hyll, and the glory of the Lorde abode vpon mounte Sinai, and the cloude couered it sixe dayes. of their right handes, and vpon the great too of their right fete, and sprenkell the bloude vpon the alter round about.

D Then take of the bloude, that is vpon the alter, and of the annoyntinge oyle, and sprenkell it vpon Aaron, and his vestimentes, and vpon his sonnes, and vpon their garmentes also. Then is he and his clothes holy and his sonnes, and their clothes holy also.

Then take the fat of the ramme, and his rompe, and the fat that coureth the inwardes, and the kall of the lyuer, and the two kydneys, and the fat that is vpon them, and the right shoulder (for that ram is a full offringe) and a symnell of bred, and a cake of oyled bred and a wafer oute of the basket of swete bred that is before the Lorde, and put all vpon the handes of Aarō, and on the handes of his sonnes: and waue them in & out a waue offringe vnto the Lorde. Then take it frome of their handes, and burne it vpon the alter: euen vpon the burntoffring, to be a sauoure of swetnesse before the Lorde. For it is a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Then take the breste of the ram E that is Aarons full offrynge, and shalt sanctifie it an offringe before the Lorde, and let that be thy part. And sanctify the brest of the waue offringe, and the shoulder of the heueoffringe, which is the fulloffringe of Aaron, and of his sonnes. And it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes ductie for euer, of the childzen of Israel, for it is an heueoffringe. And the heueoffring shall be the Lordes ductye of the childzen of Israel: euen of the sacrifice of their peaceofferinges, whiche they haue vnto the Lorde. And the holy garmentes of Aaron, shalbe his sonnes after him, to annoynte them therin, and to fill their handes therin. And that sonne that is preest in his stede after hym, shal put them on seuen dayes: that he go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, to ministre in the holy place.

Then take the ram that is the fulloffringe and sethe his flesshe in an holy place. And Aaron and his sonnes shall eate the flesh of him F and the bred that is in the basket: euen in the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And they shall eate them, because the attonement was made therwith to fyll their handes, and to sanctifie them: but a straūger shall not eate therof, because they are holy.

Yf ought of the flesshe of the fulloffringes, or of the bred remayne vnto the morninge, thou shalte burne it with fyre: for it shall not be eaten, because it is holy. And se thou do vnto Aaron and his sonnes, euen so in all thinges as I haue commaunded the: that thou fil their handes seuen dayes, and offre euery day an oxe for a synne offringe to reconcyle with. And thou shalt halowe the alter, when thou reconcylest it, and shalt annoynte it, to sanctifie it. Seuen dayes thou shalte reconcyle the G alter, and sanctifie it, that it maye be an alter most holye: so that no man may touche it but they that be consecrate.

This is that thou shalt offre vpon the alter two lambes of one yere olde, daye by daye for euer, the one thou shalt offre in the morninge and the other at euē. And vnto the one lambe take a tenth deale of floure myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of beaten oyle, and the fourth parte of an hin of wyne, for a drynkofringe. And the other lambe thou shalte offer at euen, and shalt vnto therto accordynge to the meateoffringe and drynkeoffringe in the morninge, to be an odoure of a swete sauoure of ỹ sacrifice of the Lorde. And it shalbe a continuall burnt offringe, amonge your childzen after you, in the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, before the Lorde, where I will mete you, to speke vnto you there. There I wil mete with the childzen of Israel, and will be sanctyfyed, in myne honoure. And I will sanctifie the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the alter: and I wil sanctifie also both Aaron and his sonnes to be my preestes. And moreouer I wil dwell amōg the childzen of Israel, and will be their God. And they shall knowe that I am the Lorde their God, that brought them out of the lād of Egypte, to dwell amonge them: euen I ỹ Lorde their God.

CAPI. XXX.

AND thou shalte make an alter to burne A cense therin, of Sethim wodde: a cubyte longe, and a cubyte broade, euen fouresquare shall it be, and two cubytes hye: with hornes procedynge oute of it, and thou shalte ouerlaye it with fyne golde, bothe the rofe, and the walles rounde aboute, and his hornes also, and shalt make vnto it a crowne of golde rounde about, and two golden rynges on eyther syde, euen vnder the crowne, to put staues therin, for to beare it withall. And thou shalt make the staues of Sethim wodde and couer them with golde. And thou shalte put it before the vayle, that hangeth before the arcke of wytnesse, and before the mercyseate that is before the wytnesse, where I wil mete the.

euerye mornynge, when he dresseth the lampes: and lykewyse at euen, when he setteth vp the lampes, he shall burne cense perpetually before the Lorde, throwe oute your generacyons. Ye shall put no straunge cense theron, neyther burntsacrifice, nor meateoffrynge, neyther poure any drynkeoffrynge theron.

And Aaron shall reconcyle vpon the hornes of it, once in a yere, with the bloude of the synneofferinge of reconcylinge: euen once in the yere shall he reconcyle it throwe your generacions. And so is it moofte holye vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: * When thou takeste the summe of the childzen of Israel, and tellest them, they shal gyue euerye man a reconcylynge of his soule vnto the Lorde that there be no plage amonge the when thou tellest them. And thus moch shall euery man gyue that goeth in the noumbre: halfe a sycle, after the sycle * of the sanctuary A sycle is. xx. gerras: and an halfe sycle shalbe the

The ryche shal not passe, and the pore shall not goo vnder halfe a sycle, when they gyue an heueoffringe vnto the Lorde, for the attonement of their soules. And thou shalte take the reconcylinge money of the chyldren of Israel, and shalt put it vnto the vse of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and it shall be a memorial of the chyldren of Israel, before the Lorde, to make an attonnemente, for their soules.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng:
*Exodi. xl.d * Thou shalte make a lauer of brasse, and his fote also of brasse to washe with, and shalte put it betwene the tabernacle of witnesse and the alter, and put water therein: that Aaron and his sonnes may washe both their handes and their fete thereout, when they go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, or when they go vnto the altare, to mynistre and to burne the Lordes offrynge, lest they dye. And it shalbe an ordinaunce for euer vnto him & his seed among your children after you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayenge: take principall spices: of pure myrre fyue hundred sycles, of swete cynamome halfe so moch two hundred and fyfty sycles: of swete calampte, two hundred and fyfty. Of casia, two hundred and fyfty, after the holy sycle, and of oyle olyue, an hin. And make of them ℣ holy anoyntynge oyle, euen an oyle compounde after the crafte of the Apotycary. And annoynte the tabernacle of wytnesse therwith, and the arke of wytnesse, and the table with al his appertenaunce, and the candelsticke with al his ordinaunce, and the altare of incense, and the alter of burnt sacrifice and all his vessels, & the lauer and his fote. And sacrifie them that they may be most holy: so that no man touche them, but they that be halowed. And anoynte Aaron and his sonnes, and consecrate them to minister vnto me.

And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayeng: This shalbe an holy oynting oyle vnto me, thorowe outs youre generacions. No mans flesshe shalbe annoynted therwith: neyther shall ye make any other after the makynge of it, for it is holye, se therfore that ye take it for holy: Who so euer maketh lyke that, or who so euer putteth any of it vpon a straunger, shall perysshe frome his people.

And the Lorde sayde to Moses: Take to the swete spices: stacte, onycha, swete galbanum, and pure frankencens, of eche lyke moche: and make encense of them compounde after the crafte of the apotycary, myngled togither, that it maye be made pure and holy. And beate it to powder, and put it before the witnesse, in the tabernacle of wytnesse, where I wyll mete the, but let it be vnto you holye. And se that ye make none after the makyng of that, but let it be vnto you holy for the Lorde. And who so euer shall make lyke vnto that, to smell there to, shall perysshe frome his people.

¶ The callinge of Bezaleel and Ahaliab the workmen. The Saboth is commaunded. The tables of stone are gyuen Moses.

CAPI. XXXI.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: Beholde * I haue called by name Bezaleel, the sonne of Ury, sonne to Hur, of the trybe of Juda. And I haue fylled hym with the spryte of God, with wysdome, vnderstandynge and knowledge: euen in all maner worke, to fynde oute sotle feaytes, to worke in golde, syluer and brasse, and with ℣ crafte to graue stones, to set and to carue in tymbre, and to worke in all maner workmanshyp. And beholde, I haue gyuen hym, to be companyon, Ahaliab, the sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, & in the hertes of all that are wyse harted, I haue put wysdom to make all that I haue commaunded the: the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the arcke of wytnesse, and the mercyseate that is there vpon all the ornamentes of the tabernacle, and the table with his ordinaūce, and the pure candelsticke with all his apparell, and the alter of incens, and the alter of burnt offringes, with all his vessels, and the lauer with his foote, and the vestimentes to mynistre in, and the holy garmentes for Aaron the preest, and the garmentes of his sonnes to mynistre in, & the annoyntynge oyle, and the swete sense for the sanctuary: accordynge to all that I haue commaunded the, shall they do.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: In any wyse, se that ye kepe my * Sabboth, for it shall be a signe betwene me and you, in youre generacyons, for to knowe, that I the Lorde doo sanctifie you. Kepe my Sabboth therfore, that it be an holy thinge vnto you. He that defyleth it shalbe slayne therfore. For who so euer worketh there in, the same soule shalbe roted out frome his people.

Sixe dayes shal men worke, but the seuēth daye is the Sabboth, of the holye reste of the Lorde: so that who so euer doeth any worke in the Sabboth daye, shall dye for it: Wherfore let the children of Israel kepe the Sabboth, that they obserue it thorowe out their generacions, that it be an appoyntement for euer. For it shalbe a signe betwene me and the children of Israel, for euer. * For in six dayes the Lorde made heauen and earthe, and the seuenth daye he rested and was refreshed.

And when he hadde made an ende of comenynge with Moses vpon the mounte Sinai, * he gaue him two tables of wytnesse: which were of stone, and written with the ℣ fynger of God.

¶ The Israelites worshyp the golden calfe. Moses prayeth for them, puttynge God in remembraunce of his promyse. He breaketh the tables for anger. He chydeth Aaron. The ydolaters are slayn. Moses prayeth God to forgyue them, or to put him out of the booke of lyfe.

CAPI. XXXII.

And when the people sawe that it was longe or Moses came wyne of ꝑ mountayne, they gathered them selues togither, and came vnto Aaron, and sayde vnto him. ✳ Aryse and make vs a God to go before vs: for of this Moses thy felow that brought vs oute of the lande of Egypte, we wote not what is become.

And Aaron sayde vnto them: plucke of the golden earynges, whiche are in the eares of your wyues, your sonnes and of your doughters: and bringe theym vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earynges, that were in their eares, and broughte theym vnto Aaron. And he ✳ receyued them of their handes, and facyoned it with a grauer and made it a calfe of molten metall. And they sayde: ✳ This is thy God O Israel, whiche broughte the out of the lande of Egypte.

And when Aaron saw that, he made an altare before it, and made a Proclamation sayenge, To morowe shall be holy daye vnto the Lorde. And they rose vp in the mornynge and offred burntoffringes, and broughte offringes of attonement also. ✳ And than they sat them wyne to eate and drinke, and rose vp agayne to playe.

Then the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: ✳ go get the downe, for thy people whiche thou broughteste oute of the lande of Egypte haue marred all, they are turned at once out of the waye whiche I commaunded them: ✳ & haue made them a calfe of molten metall, and haue worshypped it, and haue offred therto, & haue sayde: This is thy God thou Israel, whiche hath brought the out of the lande of Egypte. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: behold ✳ I se this people that it is a styfe necked people and nowe therfore suffre me that my wrathe maye waxe hote vpon them, and that I maye consume them: and then will I make of the a myghty people.

Then Moses besought the Lorde his God and sayde: O Lorde, Why shulde thy wrath waxe hote vpon thy people whiche thou haste brought out of the lande of Egypte ✠ greate power and with a myghtye hande? ✳ wherfore shulde the Egyptians speake and say: For a mischefe dyd he bringe theym out: euen to slee them in the mountaynes, and to consume them frome the face of the earth? Turne from thy fearse wrath, and haue compassion ouer ꝑ wyckednesse of thy people. Remembre Abraham, Isaac and Israel thy seruaūtes, to whō thou sworeste by thyne owne selfe, and saydest vnto them: ✳ I will multiplye youre seed as the starres of heauen, and all this lande whiche I haue sayde, I will gyue vnto your seed: & they shall enheret it for euer. And the Lorde refrayned him selfe frome that cupll, which he sayde he wolde do vnto his people.

And Moses turned his backe, and wente downe frome the hyll, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hande: whiche were wrytten on bothe the leaues, and were the worke of God, and the wrytynge was the wryting of God, grauen vpon the tables. And when Iosua herde the noyse of the people as they shouted, he sayde vnto Moses: there is a noyse of warre in the holte. And he sayde: it is not the crye of them that haue the maistrye, nor of the that haue the worse: but I do heare the noyse of syngynge.

And as sone as he came myghe vnto the host and sawe the calfe and the daūsyng, his wrath waxed hote, and he cast the tables out of his hande, and brake them euen at the hyll fote. And he toke the calfe which they had made, & burned it with fyre, and stampt it vnto powder, and strawed it in the water, and made ꝑ childzen of Israel drynke. And than Moses sayde vnto Aaron: What dyd this people vnto the, that thou hast brought so great a synne vpon them?

And Aaron sayde: let not the wrath of my Lorde waxe fearse, thou knowyste the people that they are euen set on mischefe: they sayde vnto me: Make vs a God to go before vs, for we wote not what is become of Moses thy felow, that brought vs out of the lande of Egypte. And I sayd vnto them: Let them that haue golde, take and bringe it me: And I cast it into the fyre, & thereof came out this calfe.

When Moses sawe that the people were naked (for Aaron had made them naked vnto their shame when they made insurrection) he went and stode in the gate of the holte, & sayd: Yf any man pertayne vnto the Lorde, let him come to me. And all the sonnes of Leui gathered them selues togyther, and came vnto him. And he sayde vnto them: Thus sayth ꝑ Lorde of Israel: ✳ Put euery man his swerd by his syde, and go in and out from gate to gate thorow out the host: and slee euery man his brother, euery man his frende, and euery mā his neyghboure. And the childzen of Leui dyd as Moses had sayde. ✳ And there were slayne of the people the same daye, aboute thzee thousande men. Then Moses sayde: fyll your hāndes vnto the Lorde this daye, euery man vpō his sonne and vpon his brother: to bringe vpon you a blessynge this daye.

And on the morowe, Moyses sayde vnto the people: Ye haue synned a great synne. But now I will goo vp vnto the Lorde, to wytte whyther I can make an attonement for your synne.

And Moses went agayne vnto the Lorde, & sayde: Oh, this people haue synned a great synne, and haue made them a god of gold: yet forgyue them their synne I praye the: Yf not ✠ wype me out of thy boke whiche thou haste written. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will put him out of my boke that hath synned against me. But goo and bringe the people vnto the lande which I sayd vnto the: beholde, myne aungell shall goo before the. Neuerthelater in the daye when I vyset, I will ‡ vyset their synne vpon them. And the Lorde plaged the people, because they made the calfe which Aaron made.

¶ The Lorde sendeth an angell before his people. The Lorde denyeth to go vp with the people. The people lament theyr synne. Moses talketh with the Lorde and desyreth to se his face: and is commaunded to stande vpon the rocke.

CAP. XXXIII.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: departe and go hence: both thou and the people which thou hast brought out of
A the lande of Egypt, vnto the lande whiche I swore vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, sayenge: vnto thy seed I will gyue it. * And I
*Exo.xxiii.c will sende an angell before the, and will caste oute the Canamytes, the Amorytes, the Hethites, the Pherezites, the Heuites, and the Jebusytes: that thou mayste go into a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. But I will not go amonge you my selfe, for ye are a stynenecked people: lest I consume you by the waye. And when the people herde this euyll tydinges, they sorowed: and no man dyd put on his best rayment.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, Say vnto the children of Israell: ye are a stynenecked people: I must come once sodenly vpon you, and make an ende of you. But now put your goodly rayment from you, that I maye wete what to do vnto you. And the children of Israel layde their goodly rayment frome theym

And Moses toke the tabernacle & pytched it without the hoste a farre offrome the hoste, and called it the tabernacle of wytnesse. And all that wolde axe any question of the Lorde, wente oute vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, which was without the host. And when Moses went out vnto the tabernacle, all the people rose vp, and stode euery man in his tent doze, and loked after Moses, vntyll he was gone into the tabernacle. And as sone as Moses was entred into the tabernacle, the clouden pyller descended, and stode in the dooze of the tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And when all the people saw the clouden pyller stande in the tabernacle doze, they rose vp & worshipped: euery man in his tent doze.

o To se God, or to speke to God, face to face, is: to haue a manifest and a sure knowledge of him as in Gene.xxxii.g.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses o face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende. And when Moses turned agayn into the host, the lad Josua his seruaunte the sonne of Nun departed not out of the tabernacle. And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: See, thou saydest vnto me: Leade this people forthe, but thou shewest me not whom thou wilt sende with me.
C And hast sayd moreouer: I know the by name and thou hast also founde grace in my sighte: Now therfore, yf I haue founde fauour in thy sight, then shew me thy waye, & let me know the: that I maye fynde grace in thy sighte. And loke on this also, how that this nacyon is thy people.

And he sayde: my presence shall go with the, and I will gyue the rest. And he sayd: Yf thy presence go not with me, cary vs not hence for how shall it be knowen now that both I and thy people haue founde fauoure in thy sighte, but in that thou goest with vs: that do the I and thy people haue a preeminence before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will do this also that thou haste sayde, for thou haste founde grace in my syghte, and I knowe the by name.

And he sayde: I beseche the, shewe me thy glory: And he sayd: I wyll make all my good

And the Lorde sayde, Beholde, there is a place by me, & thou shalt stonde vpon a rocke, and whyle my glory goeth forthe, I will put the in a clyfte of the rocke, and will put myne hande vpon the whyle I passe by. And then I wyll take awaye myne hande, and thou shalte se my backe partes: but my face shall not be sene.

¶ The tables are renued. The mercye of God. To haue felowshyp with the gentyles is forbidden, and theyr ydolatrie also. The feast of swete breade. The fyrste begotten. The Sabboth. The feaste of thre wekes. The fyrste frutes. Moses fast, Moses face glystreth.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: hewe the two tables of stone, lyke vnto the
A first, that I may wryte in them the wordes which were in the first two tables, which thou brakest. And be redy against the morning that thou mayst come vp early vnto the mount of Sinai and stande me there vpon the toppe of the mounte. But let no man come vp with the, neyther let any man be sene thorowe out all the mount, neyther let shepe nor oxen fede before the hyll.

And Moses hewed two tables of stone like vnto the first, and rose vp early in the morning and went vp vnto the mount of Sinai as the Lorde commaunded him, and toke in his hand the two tables of stone. And the Lorde descended in the cloude, & stode with him there: and he called vpon the name of the Lorde. And when the Lorde walked before him, he cryed: *Jas
Lorde * Lorde God, full of compassion and mercy, whiche arte not lyghtly angrye, but abundant in mercy and truth, and kepest mercy in store for thousandes, and forgyuest wyckednesse, trespace, and synne (for there is no man innocent before the) and visytest the wyckednesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, & vpon chyldrens chyldren, euen vnto the thyrde and
B fourth generacions. And Moses bowed him selfe to the erth quyckly, and worshypped and sayde: Yf I haue founde grace in thy syght, o Lorde, then let my Lorde go with vs (for it is a stubburne people) and haue mercy vpon our wickednes and our synne, and let vs be thyne enheritaunce.

And he sayd: beholde, I make an appoyntment before all this people, that I wil do maruelles, suche as haue not bene doone in all the worlde, neither amonge any nacion. And all the people, amonge which thou art, shal se the worke of the Lorde: for it is a terrible thynge that I wyll do with the: kepe all that I commaunde the this daye, and beholde, I wyl cast out before the: the Amorites, Canaanytes, Hethytes, Pherezites, Heuytes, and Jebusites. * Take hede to thy self, that thou make no leage with the inhabyters of ỹ lande whether thou goeste, leaste it be cause of ruyne amonge you. But ouerthrow their altars and breake their pylers, and cut downe their groues, for thou shalte worshippe no straunge God. For the Lorde is called gelous, because he is a gelous God: least ỹ thou make any agrement with the inhabitauntes of the land when they go a hoorynge after their goddes and do sacrifice vnto their goddes, they call ỹ and thou eate of their sacrifice: and thou take of their doughters vnto thy sonnes, and whē their doughters go a hoorynge after their goddes, they make thy sonnes go a hoorynge after their goddes also.

Thou shalt make the no goddes of metall, The feast of swete bred shalte thou kepe, and seuen dayes thou shalt eate vnleuend bred (as I commaunded the) in the tyme appoynted in the moneth of Abib: for in the moneth of Abib thou camest out of Egypte. All that breaketh vp the matrice shalbe myne, and al that breaketh the matryce amonge thy catell, yf it be male: whether it be oxe or a shepe. But ỹ firste of the asse thou shalte bye oute with a shepe, or if thou redeme him not: se thou breake his necke. All the firste borne of thy sonnes thou must nedes redeme. * And se that no mā appeare before me emptye.

Sixe dayes thou shalte worke, and the seuenth thou shalt rest: bothe frome earynge & reappynge. * Thou shalte obserue the feast of wekes with the first frutes of wheate hervest and the feast of ingadrynge at the yeres ende. Thryse in a yere shall all youre men childzen appeare before the Lorde omnipotent God of Israel: for I will cast out the nacyons before the, and wyll enlarge thy costes, so that no man shall desyre thy lande, whyle thou goest vp to apeare before the face of the Lorde thy God, thryse in the yere.

* Thou shalte not offre the blonde of my sacrifice with leuended bred: neyther shall ought of the sacrifice of the feast of Passeouer be lefte vnto the morninge. The firste of the firste frutes of thy lande, thou shalte brynge vnto the house of the Lorde thy God. And se, thou seethe not a kydde in his mothers mylke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Wryte these wordes, for vpon these wordes I haue made a couenaunt with the, and with the childzen of Israel. * And he was there with the Lorde. xl. dayes, and. xl. nyghtes, and neyther ate bred nor dranke water. And he wrote in the tables the wordes of the couenaunt: euen ten verses.

And Moses came downe frome mount Sinai, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hande, and wyste not that his face shoone with beames of his commenynge with the Lorde.

And when Aaron and all the childzen of Israel looked vpon Moses, and sawe that the skynne of his face shone with beames, they were afrayde to come nyghe him. But he called them to hym, and then Aaron and all the chiefe of the company came vnto him, & Moses talked with them.

And at last all the childzen of Israel came vnto him, and he gaue commaundement vnto them of all that the Lorde had sayde vnto him in mounte Sinai. And as soone as he hadde made an ende of talkynge with theym, he put a couerynge vpon his face. But when he wēt before the Lorde to speake with him, he toke the couerynge of, vntyll he came out. And he came out and spake vnto the childzen of Israel that which he was commaunded. And the childzen of Israel sawe the face of Moses, that the skynne of his face shoone with beames / but Moses put a couerynge vpon his face, tyll he wente in to commen with him.

¶ The Sabboth. The fyrste frutes are requyred The redynes of the people to offre. Bezaleel and Aholiab are prayed of Moses and set to worke.

CAPI. XXXV.

AND Moses gathered all the companye of the childzen of Israel togyther, and sayde vnto theym / these are the thynges whiche the Lorde hathe commaunded to do. Sixe dayes ye shall worke, but the seuenth daye shall be vnto you the holy Sabboth of the Lordes reste / so that who so euer wythe anye worke therein, shall dye. Moreouer ye shall kyndle no fyre throughowe out all your habitations, vpon the Sabboth daye. A

This is the summe of the habitatiō of witnesse, which was counted at the commaundement of Moses: and was the office of the Leuytes by the hande of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the preeste. And Bezaleel sonne of Uri, sonne to Hur of the tribe of Juda, made all that the Lorde commaūded Moses, and with hym Ahaliab sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, a connynge grauer, and a worker of nedleworke in Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple and Bysse.

AND of the Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, A and twyned Bysse, they made the vestimentes of ministration to do seruice in that holy place, and made the holy garmentes that pertayned to Aaron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made the Ephod of golde, Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned bysse. And they dyd beate the golde into thynne plates, and cut it into wyres: to worke it in the Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, and the Bysse, with broderd worke. And they made the sydes come together, and closed them vp by the. ij. edges. And the brodrynge of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe and after the same worke of Golde, Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple and twyned Bysse, as the Lorde cōmaunded Moses.

And they wrought Onix stones, closed in B ouches of golde and graued as signettes are grauen with the names of the children of Israel, & put them on the shoulders of ꝑ Ephod that they shoulde be a remembraunce of the children of Israel, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

D And they made vpon the brestlappe, two fastenynge cheynes of wrethen worke of pure golde. And they made two hokes of golde and two golde rynges, and put the two rynges vpon the two corners of the brestlappe. And they put the two cheynes of golde in the two rynges, in the corners of the brastlappe. And the two endes of the two chaynes they fastened in the two hokes, and put theym on the shoulders of the Ephod vpon the forefronte of it.

And they made two other rynges of golde and put theym on the two other corners of the brestlappe a longe vpon the edge, toward the inside of the Ephod that is ouer against it. And they made yet two other golden rynges, and put them on the two sides of the Ephod, beneth on the forside of it, euen where the sides goo together, aboue vpon the bordinge of the Ephod, and they strayned the brestlappe by his rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with laces of Jacincte, that it myghte lye faste vpon the bordynge of the Ephod, and shoulde not be lowsed frome of the Ephod, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

E And he made the Tunicle vnto the Ephod of wouen worke, and all together of Jacinct, and the head of the Tunicle was in the myddest of it as the coler of a partlet, with a bond rounde aboute the coler, that it shoulde not rent. And they made beneth vpon the hem of the Tunycle, Pommegranates of Jacynte, Scarlet, purple and twyned Bysse. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put the amonge the Pommegranates rounde aboute vpon the edge of the tunycle a bell & a Pommegranate, a bell and a Pommegranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the Tunycle, to mynister in / as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made cootes of bysse of wouen worke for Aaron and his sonnes, and a mytre of Bysse, and goodly bonettes of Bysse, and lynen breches of twyned bysse, and a gyrdell of twyned Bysse, Jacynte, Scarlet and purple / euen of nedleworke, as the Lorde cõmaunded Moses.

F And they made the plate of the holy crown of fyne golde, and wrote vpon it with grauen worke, the holynes of the Lorde / and tyed it to a lace of Jacynte to fasten it an hyghe vpon the mytre, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Thus was all the worke of the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnesse fynyshed. And the children of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde hadde commaunded Moses.

And they brought the habitation vnto Moses / the tent and all the furniture therof / the buttons, boordes, barres, pylers and sockettes / and the couerynge of Rams skynnes red / and the couerynge of Taxus skynnes, and the hangynge vayle, and the arcke of wytnesse with the staues thereof, and the mercyseate: the table and all the ordinaunce therof, and the shewbred, and the pure candelstycke, and the lampes prepared therunto, with all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lyghtes, and the golden altare, and the annoyntynge oyle and the swete incense, and the hangynge of the tabernacle worke, and the brasen altare / and the gredyron of brasse longynge therunto with his barres and all his vessels, and the lauer with his fote, and the hangynges of ỹ courte with his pylers and sockettes, and the hanginge to the courte gate, his boordes and pynnes, and all the ordinaunce that serueth to the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the mynistrynge vestimentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestimentes of Aaron the preaste and his sonnes raymentes to mynistre in / accordynge to all ỹ the Lorde commaunded Moses / euen so the children of Israel made all the worke. And Moses beheld all the worke / and se, they hadde done it euen as the Lorde commaunded / and then Moses blessed them. G

¶ The tabernacle is reared vp. The glorye of the Lorde appeareth in a cloude couerynge the tabernacle.

CAPI. XL.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge. In the first daye of the firste moneth shalt thou set vp the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and put therin the arcke of wytnesse, and couer the arcke with the vayle, and bynge in the table and apparel it, and bynge in the candelstycke and put on his lampes, and set the cense altare of golde, before the arcke of wytnesse, and put the hangynge of the doze vnto the habitatiõ. And set the burnteoffrynge altare before the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and put water therin, and make ỹ court rounde about, and set vp the hangynge of the court gate. * And take annoyntynge oyle and anoynt the habitation, and all that is therein, and halowe it, and al that belongeth therto: that it maye be holye. And annoynte the altare of the burntoffrynges, and all his vessels, and sanctifye the altare that it maye be moste holye. And annoynte also the lauer and his fote and sanctify it. * Exod. xxx.c

Than bynge Aaron and his sonnes vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and washe them with water. And put vpon Aaron the holy vestimentes, and annoynte hym and sanctifye hym that he maye mynystre vnto me, that their annoyntinge maye be an euerlastinge preasthode vnto theym thorowe oute their generacyons. * And Moses dyd * Num. vii. g

Thus was the tabernacle reared vp the

And Moses reared vp the tabernacle/ and fastened his sockettes, and set vp the bordes, and put in their barres, and reared vp the pillers, and spred abrode the tent ouer the habitation, and put the couerynge of the tente on hyghe aboue it: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he toke and put the testimony in the arcke, and set the staues to the arcke, and put thegu ercyseate on hyghe vpon the arcke, and brogeh te the arcke into the habitation, and hanmd vp the vayle and couered the arcke of wytnesse, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he put the table in the Tabernacle of wytnesse in the Northsyde of the habitation, without the vayle, and set the breed in ordre before the Lorde, euen as the Lorde had commaunded Moses.

*Exodi.xxx.c * And he set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and poured water therin to washe with. And both Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed their handes and their feete thereat: bothe when they went into the tabernacle of wytnesse, & when they wente to the altare, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he reared vp the court roundeabout the habitation and the altare, and set vp the hangynge of the court gate: and so Moses fynished the worke.

* And the cloude couered the tabernacle of * Nu wytnesse, and the glorye of the Lorde, fylled the habitation, so that Moses coulde not entre into the tabernacle of wytnesse, because þ clowde abode therin, and the glory of þ Lorde fylled the habitation.

When the clowde was taken vp frome of the habytation, the childzen of Israell toke their iourneys as ofte as they had iorneyed. And yf the clowde departed not, they iorneyed not, tyll it departed, for the clowde of the Lorde was vpon the habitation by daye, and fyre by nyght, in the sight of all the house of Israel in all their iorneyes.

And let it be cutte in peces: euen with his heed and his fatte, and lette the Preeste put them vpon the wodde that lyeth vpon the fyre in the aulter. But lette hym washe the intrayles and the legges with water, and then brynge all togyther and burne it vpon the aulter: that is a burnt offryng, and a sacrifices of swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

D Yf he wyll offre a burnt offrynge of the foules, he shall offre eyther of the turtle doues, or of the younge pygyons. And the Preeste shall brynge it vnto the aulter, and wrynge the necke asonder, and burne it on the aulter, and lette the blonde runne oute vpon the sydes of the aulter, and plucke awaye his croppe and his fethers, and caste them beside the aulter on the East part vpon the heape of asshes, and breake his wynges, but plucke them not asonder. And then lette the Preeste burne it vpon the aulter: euen vpon the wodde that lyeth vpon the fyre, a burnt sacrifyce, and an offerynge of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

¶ The order of meateoffrynges, of swete cakes, of fyne flower, of frankencens. &c. without leuen and without hony, but not without salte.

CAPI. II.

Yf any soule wyll offre a meat offerynge A vnto the Lorde, his offerynge shall be fyne floure, and he shall poure therto oyle, and put frankensence theron, and shall brynge it vnto Aarons sonnes the Preestes. And one of them shall take therout his handfull of the floure, and of the oyle with all the frankensence, and burne it for a remembraunce vpon the aulter: an offerynge of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde. And the remnaunt of the meat offryng shall be Aarons and his sonnes, as a thynge moost holy of the sacrifices of the Lorde.

Yf anye man brynge a meate offerynge B that is baken in the ouen, lette hym brynge swete cakes of fyne floure mingled with oyle, and vnleuend wafers annoynted with oyle. Yf thy meate offerynge be baken in the fryinge panne, then it shall be of swete floure myngled with oyle. And thou shalte mynce it small, and poure oyle theron: and so it is a meat offerynge.

Yf thy meat offerynge be a thynge brayed vpon the gredyron, of floure myngled with oyle it shall be. And thou shalte brynge the meat offerynge that is made of these thynges vnto the Lorde, and shalte delyuer it to the C preest, and he shall brynge it vnto the aulter, and shall heue vp parte of the meat offerynge for a memoriall, and shall burne it vpon the aulter: an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that is lefte of the meat offerynge shall be Aarons, and his sonnes, as a thynge that is mooste holy of the offerynges of the Lorde.

All the meat offerynges which ye shal bryng vnto the Lorde, shall be made without leuen. For ye shall neyther burne leuen nor hony in any offeryng of the Lorde: Notwithstanding ye shall brynge the firste frutes of them vnto the Lorde: but they shall not come vpon the aulter, to make a swete sauour.

All thy meat offrynges thou shalt salt with salte: neither shalt thou suffre the salte of the couenaunt of thy God to be lackyng from thy meat offeryng: but vpon all thyne offrynges thou shalt brynge salte.

Yf thou offre a meat offering of the first ripe frutes vnto the Lorde, then take that whiche D is yet grene, and drye it by the fyre, and beat it small, and so offre the meat offring of thy first ripe frutes. And then poure oyle therto, and put frankensence theron: and so it is a meat-offerynge. And the preest shall burne parte of the beaten corne, and parte of that oyle with all the all the frankencence, for a remembraunce, that is an offerynge vnto the Lorde.

¶ The order of peaxoffeynges, whiche were offerd for the keppynge of peax, made of oxen, shepe, lambes and gotes.

CAPI. III.

A ✱Ex. xxiiii. b

YF any man brynge a ✱ peax offerynge of the oxen: whether it be male or female, he shall brynge suche as is without blemyshe before the Lorde: and let hym put his hande vpon the heed of his offerynge, and kyll it before the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse. And Aarons sonnes the Preestes shall sprynckle the bloude vpon the aulter rounde aboute. And they shall offre of the peax offerynge to be a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: the fatte that couereth the inwardes and all the fat þ is vpon the inwardes: and the two kydneys, with the fatte that lyeth vpon the loynes: and the hall that is on the lyuer they shall take awaye with the kydneys. And Aarons sonnes shall burne them vpon the aulter with the burnt sacrifyce which is vpon the wod on the fyre: that is a sacrifyce of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

Yf a man brynge a peax offerynge vnto the Lorde frome the flocke, whether it be male or female, it shall be without blemyshe. Yf he offre a lambe, he shall brynge it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon his offerynges heed, and kyll it in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and Aarons sonnes shal sprynckle the bloude therof rounde aboute the aulter.

And the of peax offeryng they shall brynge a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: the fatte therof and the rompe all togyther whiche they shal take of, harde by the backe bone: and the fat that coureth the inwardes, and all the fat that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneys with the fatte that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the loynes, and the hall that is vpon the lyuer, he shall take awaye with the kydneys. And the Preeste shall burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes offrynge with.

Yf the offerynge be a goote, he shall brynge [illegible] fore the Lorde, and put his hande vpon [illegible] eed of it, and kyll it before the taberna- [illegible] wytnesse, and the sonnes of Aaron shall [illegible] nckle the bloude therof vpon the aulter [illegible] unde about. And he shall brynge therof his offerynge vnto the Lordes sacrifyce: the fatte that coureth the inwardes, and all the fatte that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kydneys, and the fat that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the loynes. & vpon the hall that is vpon the lyuer, he shall take awaye with the kydneys. And the Preeste shall burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes sacrifyce with, and to make a swete sauour. And thus shal all the fatte be the Lordes, and it shall be a lawe for euer amonge youre generacions after you in youre dwellynge places: that ye eate neyther fat nor bloude.

¶ The offerynge made for synnes doone of ignorauunce.

CAPI. IIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saynge Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: when a soule synneth thorow ignorauce, and hath done any of those thynges whiche the Lorde hath forbydden in his commaundementes to be doone: Yf the preest that is anoynted, synne and make the people to doo amysse, he shall brynge for his synne whiche he hathe done: an oxe without blemyshe vnto the Lorde for a synne offering. And he shall brynge the oxe vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lorde, and shall put his hande vpon the oxe heed, & kyll hym before the Lorde.

And the preest that is ✱anoynted shal take of the oxe bloude, and brynge it in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall dyppe his fynger in the bloude and sprynckle therof seuen tymes before the Lorde: euen before the hangynge of the holy place. And he shall put some of the bloude vpon the hornes of the aulter of swete incense before the Lorde, which is in the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall poure all the bloude of the oxen vpon the bottome of the aulter of burnt offerynges, whiche is by the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And he shall take awaye all the fatte of the oxe that is the synne offerynge: the fatte that coureth the intrayles, and all the fatte that is aboute them, and the two kydneys with the fat that lieth vpon them and vpon the loynes, and the hall vpon the lyuer let them take awaye also with the kydneys: as it was taken from the oxe of the peax offerynge, and let the Preeste burne them vpon the aulter of burnt offerynges. But the skynne of the oxe, and all his flesshe with his heed, his legges, his intrayles with his donge, shall he cary all togither oute of the hoste vnto a clene place: where the asshes are poured oute, and burne hym on wodde with fyre: euen vpon the heape of asshes.

And the Preeste shall make an attonement for them, and so it shall be forgyuen them. And he shall brynge the oxe without the hoste, and burne hym as he burned the firste: so is this the synne offerynge of the commonaltie.

When a Lorde synneth, and commytteth thorow ignorannce any of these thynges whiche the Lorde his God hathe forbydden to be doone in his commaundementes and hath so offended: when his synne is shewed vnto hym whiche he hathe synned, he shall brynge for his offerynge an he goote without blemysshe, and laye his hande vpon the heed of it, and kyll it in the place where the burnt offerynges are kylled before the Lorde: this is a synne offerynge. Then let the preest take of the bloud of the synne offerynge with his fynger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offerynge aulter, and poure his bloude vpon the bottome of the burnt offerynge aulter, and burne all his fatte vpon the aulter, as he dothe the fatte of the peax offerynges. And the Preest shall make an attonement for hym as concernyng his synne, and so it shall be forgyuen hym.

Yf one of the common people of the lande synne thorowe ignorannce, and commyt any of the thynges whiche the Lorde hathe forbydden in his commaundementes to be done and so hath trespased, when his synne which he hathe synned is come to his knowlege, he shall brynge for his offerynge a she gote without blemysshe for his synne whiche he hathe synned, and laye his hande vpon the heed of the synne offerynge, and slee it in the place of burnt offerynges. ✱ And the preest shal take of the bloude with his fynger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offerynge aulter, and poure all the bloude vpon the bottome of the aulter, and shall take awaye all his fat as the fat of the peax offerynges is taken awaye. And the preest shall burne it vpon the aulter for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, and the preest shal make an attonement for hym, and it shal be forgyuen hym.

Yf he bryng a lambe, and offre it for a synne offerynge, he shall brynge a female without blemysshe, and laye his hande vpon the heed of the synne offerynge, and slee it in the place where the burnt offerynges are slayne. And the preest shall take of the bloude of the synne offerynge with his fynger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offeryng aulter, and shall poure all the bloude therof vnto the bottome of the aulter. ✱ And he shall take awaye all the fatte therof, as the fatte of the shepe of the peax offerynges was taken awaye. And the Preest shall burne it vpon the aulter of the Lordes sacrifice, and the preest shall make an attonement for his synne, and it shall be forgyuen hym.

¶ Of othes. The clensynge of him that toucheth vncleane thynges. The purgacion of an othe and of synne done by ignorannce.

When the soule hath synned, and herd the voyce of cursyng, and is a wytnes, whether he hath sene or knowne of it, yf he haue not vttered it, he shall beare his synne. Eyther when a man toucheth any vncleane thynge: whether it be the carpon of an vncleane beest, or of vnclene catell or vncleane wormе, and is not ware of it, he is also vncleane and hathe offended. Eyther when he toucheth any vnclennesse of man (what so euer vnclennesse it be, that a man is defyled w) and is not ware of it, and after commeth to the knowlege of it, he is a trespacer.

Either when a soule sweareth, so that he pronounceth with his lyppes to do euyll, or to doo good (what so euer it be that a man pronounceth with an othe) and the thynge be out of his mynde, and afterwarde commeth to the knowlege of it, then he hathe offended in one of these. Then when he hathe synned in one of these thynges, he shall confesse that wherin he hath synned, and shall brynge his trespace offerynge vnto the Lorde for his syn whiche he hathe synned. A female frome the flocke, whether it be a lambe, or a she goote, for a synne offeryng. And the preest shall make an attonement for hym for his synne. ✱ But yf he be not hable to brynge a shepe, then let hym brynge for his trespace whiche he hathe synned, two turtle doues, or two yonge pygions to the Lorde, one for a synne offeryng, and an other for a burnt offerynge. And he shall brynge them vnto the preest, whiche shall offre the synne offerynge fyrste, and wrynge the necke alonder of it, but plucke it not clene of. And let hym sprynckle of the bloude of the synne offerynge vpon the syde of the aulter, and lette the reste of the bloude blede vpon the botome of the aulter, and then it is a synne offerynge. And let him offer the seconde for a burntofferynge as the maner is: and so shall the Preeste make an attonement for him for the synne whiche he hath synned, and it shall be forgyuen hym.

And yet yf he be not hable to brynge two turtle doues or two yonge pygyons, then let him brynge his offrynge for his synne: ✱ the tenthe parte of an Epha of fyne floure for a synne offrynge, but put none oyle therto neyther put any frankencens theron, for it is a synne offerynge. And let hym brynge it to the preest, and the Preest shall take his handefull of it, and burne it vpon the aulter for a remembraunce. to be a sacrifyce for the Lorde: that is a synne offrynge. And let the Preest make an attonement for hym for his synne (whatsoeuer of these he hath synned) and it shall be forgiuen. And the remnaunt shalbe the prestes as it is in the meate offrynge.

And the Lorde communed with Moses, sayinge: When a soule trespaseth and synneth thorowe ignorannce in any of the holye thynges of the Lorde, he shall brynge for his trespace vnto the Lord a ramme without blemysshe out of the flocke valued at two sycles after the sycle of the sanctuarye, for a trespace offryng e,

When a soule synneth and committeth any of these thynges whiche are forbydden to be done by the commaundementes of the Lorde: thoughe he wyst it not, he hathe yet offended and is in synne, and shall bryng a ram without blemysshe out of the flocke that is esteemed to be worthe a synne offeryng, vnto the Preest. And the Preest shall make an attonement for hym for the ignorannce which he dyd, and was not ware, and it shall be forgyuen hym: This is a trespace offeryng, for he trespaced agaynst the Lorde.

¶ The offerynges for synnes whiche are done wyllyngly. The lawe of burntoffrynges. The fyre must abyde euermore vpon the altare. The offerynges of Aaron and his sonnes.

CAPI. VI.

A And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: When a soule synneth, and trespaceth agaynst the Lorde, and denyed vnto his neyghbour that whiche was taken hym to kepe, or that was put vnder his hande or that which he hath violently taken away, or that whiche he hath disceyued his neyghbour of with subtelte, or hathe founde that whiche was lost and denyeth it, and sweareth falsely in what so euer thyng it be that a man dothe, and synneth therin.

Then when he hath synned or trespaced, he shall restore agayne that he toke violently awaye or the wronge whiche he dyd, or that whiche was deliuered him to kepe, or the lost thynge whiche he founde, or what so euer it be about whiche he hathe sworne falsely, he shall restore it agayne in the hole summe, and adde the fyfte parte more therto, and gyue it vnto him to whome it pertayneth, the same daye that he offereth for his trespace, and shal bryng for his trespace offeryng vnto the Lord a ramme without blemysshe out of the flocke that is esteemed worth a trespace offeryng vnto the Preest. And the Preeste shall make an attonement for him before the Lorde, and it shall be forgyuen him, in what so euer thyng it be that a man doth and trespaceth therin.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge:
B Commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, sayinge: this is the lawe of the burnt offeryng. The burnt offeryng shal be vpon the harth of the aulter all nyght vnto the morynge, and the fyre of the aulter shall burne therin. And the preest shall put on his lynnen Albe, and his lynnen breches vpon his fleshe, and take awaye the asshes whiche the fyre of the burnt sacrifice in the aulter hath made, and put them beside the aulter, & then put of his rayment, and put on other, and carye the asshes out, without the hoost vnto a clene place.

The fyre that is vpon the aulter shal burne therin, and not go out. And the preest shal put woode on the fyre euery morynge, and put the burnt sacrifice vpon it, and he shall burne theron the fatte of the peas offeryngs. The fyre shall euer burne vpon the aulter, and neuer go out. *Leuit. vi. d

This is the lawe of the meat offeryng: Aarons sonnes shall bryng it before the Lorde, vnto the aulter: and one of them shall take his handfull of the floure of the meat offeryng and of the oyle with all the frankencens whiche is theron, and shall burne it for a remembraunce vpon the aulter, to be a swete sauour of the memorypall of it vnto the Lorde. And the rest therof, Aaron and his sonnes shal eate vnleuended: it shall be eaten in the holy place: euen in the courte of the tabernacle of wytnesse they shall eate it. Their parte which I haue gyuen them of my sacrifice shall not be baken with leuen, for it is moost holy, as is the synne offeryng, and trespace offeryng. All the males amonge the chyldren of Aaron shall eate of it: and it shall be a duty for euer vnto your generacions of the sacrifices of the Lorde, neyther shall any man touche it, but he that is halowed. C

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: this is the offeryng of Aaron and of his sonnes which he shall offre vnto the Lorde in the daye when they are anoynted: the tenth part of an Epha of floure, whiche is a dayly meat offeryng perpetually: halfe in the morynge and halfe at nyght: and in the fryinge panne it shall be made with oyle. And when it is fryed, thou shalt bryng it in as a baken meat offeryng mynsed small, and shalte offer it for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that preeste of his sonnes that is anoynted in his steade shall offre it: and it shalbe the Lordes dutye for euer, and it shall be burnt all togyther. For all the meat offerynges of the preestes shall be burnt all togyther, and shall not be eaten. D

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron and vnto his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the synne offeryng. In the place where the burnt offeryng is kylled, shal the synne offeryng be kylled also before the Lorde, for it is moost holy. The preest that offereth it, shall eate it in the holy place: euen in the courte of the tabernacle of wytnesse. No man shall touche the fleshe therof saue he that is halowed. And yf any rayment be syprynckled therwith, it shall be washed in the holy place, * and the erthen potte that it is soden in, shall be broken. Yf it be soden Leuit. vi. in brasse, then the potte shall be scoured and rynsed in water. All the males amonge the preestes shall eate therof, for it is moost holye. Notwithstandynge no synne offeryng that hathe his bloude broughte in to the tabernacle of wytnesse to reconcyle with, in the holy place, shall be eaten: but shall be burnt in the fyre.

¶ Trespaceoffrynges. Synne offrynges and peaceoffrynges. The fat and the bloude maye not be eaten.

CAPI. VII.

A THis is the lawe of the treſpace offeryng which is moſt holy. In the place where the burnt offeryng is kylled, the treſpace offeryng ſhal be kylled alſo: & his bloude ſhal be ſprynckled round about vpon the aulter. And all the fat that couered the inwardes and the two kydneys with the fat that lyeth on them and vpon the loynes, and the kall on the lyuer ſhall be taken awaye with the kydneys: and the prieſt ſhal burne them vpon the aulter, to be an offeryng vnto the Lorde, this is a treſpace offeryng.

All the males among the prieſtes ſhal eate therof in the holy place, for it is moſt holy. As the ſynne offeryng is, ſo is the treſpace offeryng, one lawe ſerueth for bothe. And it ſhall be the prieſtes that reconcyleth therwith. And the prieſt that offered a mans burnt offeryng ſhall haue the ſkynne of the burnt offeryng whiche he hath offered. And all the meat offerynges that are baken in the ouen, & all that is dreſſed vpon the gredyron and in the frying pan, ſhall be the prieſtes that offereth them. And all the meat offerynges that are mingled with oyle or drye, ſhall pertayne vnto all the ſonnes of Aaron, and one ſhall haue as moche as an other.

B This is the law of the peax offeringes whiche ſhall be offered vnto the Lorde. If he offre to gyue thankes, he ſhal bryng vnto his thake offeryng: ſwete cakes myngled with oyle & ſwete wafers anoynted with oyle, and cakes myngled with oyle of fyne flower fryed, and he ſhall bryng his offeryng vpon cakes made of leuend breed vnto the thanke offeryng of his peax offerynges, and of them all, he ſhall offre one to be an heue offeryng vnto the Lorde, and it ſhall be the prieſtes that ſprynckleth the bloude of the peax offerynges. And the fleſhe of the thanke offeryng of his peax offerynges ſhall be eaten the ſame daye that it is offred/and there ſhall none of it be layde vp vntyll the morneynge.

If it be a vowe of a freewyll offering that he bryngeth that ſame daye that he offereth it it ſhall be eaten, and that remayneth maye be eaten on the morow: but as moche of the offered fleſhe as remayneth vnto the thyrde daye, ſhall be burnt with fyre. For yf any of the fleſhe of the peax offerynges be eaten in the thyrde daye, then ſhall he that offred it obtayne no fauour, neyther ſhall it be reckened vnto him, but ſhall be an abhominacion, and the ſoule that eateth of it, ſhall beare the ſynne therof.

C The fleſhe that toucheth any vncleane thynge, ſhall not be eaten, but burnte with fyre: and al that be clene in theyr fleſhe, may eate fleſhe. If any ſoule eate of the fleſhe of the peax offerynges that pertayne vnto the Lorde, and his vnclennes yet vpon hym, the ſame ſoule ſhall peryſſhe oute of his people.

Moreouer yf a ſoule toucheth any vncleane thynge, whether it be the vnclennes of man, or of any vncleane beeſt, or any abhominacion that is vncleane, and then eate of the fleſh of the peax offerynges, whiche pertayne vnto the Lorde, that ſoule ſhall perysſhe from his people.

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſaye: ye ſhall eate no maner fatte of oxen, ſheepe, or gootes: yet the fatte of the beeſt that dyeth alone and the fatte of that whiche is torne with wylde beeſtes, maye be occupyed in all maner vſes: but ye ſhall in no wyſe eate of it. For who ſo euer eateth the fatte of the beeſt of whiche men brynge an offeryng vnto the Lorde, that ſoule that eateth it, ſhall perysſhe from his people.

Moreouer ye * ſhall eate no maner of bloude where ſo euer ye dwell, whether it be of foule or of beeſt. What ſo euer ſoule it be that eateth any maner bloude, ſhall perysſhe from his people. * Leu. xvii. d

And the Lorde talked with Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſaye: He that offereth his peax offeryng vnto the Lorde, ſhall bryng his gyfte vnto the Lorde of his peax offeryng: his owne handes ſhall bryng the offeryng of the Lorde: euen the fatte vpon the breſt, he ſhall bryng with the breſt, to waue it a waue offeryng before the Lorde. And the prieſt ſhall burne the fat vpon the aulter, and the breſt ſhall be Aarons and his ſonnes. And the ryght ſhoulder they ſhall gyue vnto the prieſt, to be an heue offeryng, of theyr peax offeryngs. And the ſame that offereth the bloude of the peax offeryngs and the fatte amonge the ſonnes of Aaron, ſhall haue the ryghte ſhoulder vnto his parte, for the wauebreſt and the heueſhoulder I haue taken of the chyldren of Iſrael, euen of theyr peaxofferynges, and haue giuen it vnto Aaron the prieſt, and vnto his ſonnes: to be a dutye for euer of the chyldren of Iſrael.

This is the anoyntynge of Aaron, and of the ſacrefyces of the Lorde, in the daye when they were offred to the prieſtes vnto the Lord, whiche the Lorde commaunded to be gyuen them in the daye when he anoynted them, of the chyldren of Iſrael, & to be adutye for euer amonge theyr generacions. This is the lawe of burntoffrynges, of meateoffrenges, of ſinne offrynges, of treſpaceoffrynges, of fulloffrynges, of peaceffrynges, which the Lorde commaunded Moſes in the mounte Sinai, in the daye when he comaunded the chyldren of Iſrael to offer theyr offrynges vnto the Lorde in the wildernelle of Sinai.

¶ The anoyntynge and conſecracion of Aaron and his ſonnes.

CAPI. VIII.

AND the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes. ſaynge: take Aaron and his ſonnes with A hym, and the veſtures and the anoyntynge oyle, and an oxe for a ſynneofferynge, and two rammes and a baſket of ſwete breed: and gather all the commentye togyther vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnelle. And Moſes dyd as the Lorde commaunded hym,

hym, and the people gathered them selues to-gyther, vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses sayd vnto the people, this is the thynge which the Lozde commaun ded to do.

And Moses brought Aaron and his sonnes and washed them with water, and put vpon him the albe, and gyrded him with a gyrdell, & put vpon him the tunicle, and put the Ephod theron, and gyrded him with the brodred gyr-dell of the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therwith. And he put the brestlap theron, and put in the brestlap Urim and thumim. And he put the myter vpon his heed, and put vpon the myter euen vpō the forefront of it the gol den plate of the holy crowne, as the Lozde cō- B maunded Moses.

And Moses toke the anoyntynge oyle, and anoynted the habitacion and all that was therin, & sanctified them, and sprynckled therof vpon the alter seuen tymes, and anoynted the aulter and all his vessels, and the lauer with the fote, to sanctifie them. And he poured of ꝑ anoyntynge oyle vpon Aarons heed, and a-noynted him to sanctifie him. And he brought Aarons sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrded them with gyrdles, and put bonettes vpon theyr heedes: as the Lozde commaun-ded Moses.

And the synneofferynge was broughte. And C Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon the heed of the ore of the synneofferynge. And when it was slayne, Moses toke of the bloude and put it vpon the hornes of the alter rounde aboute with his fynger, and purified it, and poured the bloude vpon the bottome of the aulter, and sanctified it, and reconciled it. And he toke al the fatte that was vpon the inwar des, and the hall that was on the lyuer, and the two kydneys with theyr fatte, and burned it vpon the aulter. But the ore, the hyde, his flesshe and his donge, he burnt with fyre without the hoste, as the Lozde commaunded Moses.

And he broughte the ramme of the burntof- D ferynge, and Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ramme, and it was killed. And Moses sprynckled the bloud vpon the aulter rounde aboute, and cut the ramme in peces, and burnt the heed, the peces and the fatte, and washed the inwardes and the legges in water, and burnte the ramme euery whit vpon the aulter. That was a burnt sacrifyce of a swete sauoure, and an offerynge vnto the Lozde, as the Lozde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the other ram that was the fullofferynge, and Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ramme, and when it was slayne, Moses toke of the bloud of it, and put it vpon the typ of Aarons ryght eare, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the greate too of his ryghte foote. E Then were Aarons sonnes brought, and Mo-ses put of the bloude on the typ of the ryghte eare of them, and vpon the thombes of theyr ryghte handes, and vpon the greate toes of theyr ryghte feete, and sprynckled the bloude vpon the aulter rounde aboute.

And he toke the fat and the rompe, and all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the hall of the lyuer, and the two kydneys with theyr fatte, and theyr ryght shoulder. And out of the basket of swete breed that was before the Lozd, he toke one swete cake of oyled bred and one wafer, and put them on the fat, and vpon the ryght shoulder: and put all togither vpon Aarons handes, and vpon his sonnes handes, and waued it a waue offerynge be-fore the Lozde.

And then Moses toke them from their han F des agayne, and burnt them vpon the aulter, euen vpon the burntofferynge: These are the fulofferynges of a swete sauoure, and a sacri-fyce vnto the Lozde. And Moses toke ꝑ bred, and waued it a waue offerynge before the Lozde, of the ramme of the fulofferinges: and it was Moses parte, as the Lozde commaun-ded Moses.

And Moses toke of the anoyntynge oyle, & of the bloud which was vpon the aulter, and sprynckled it vpon Aaron, and vpon his vesti-mentes, and vpon his sonnes and on their ve-stimentes with him, and sanctifyed Aaron and his vestures, and his sonnes and his sones ve-stures also. Then Moses sayd vnto Aaron & his sonnes: boyle the flesshe in the doze of the G tabernacle of witnes, and there * eate it with *Gal. the bred that is in the basket of fulofferyn-ges, as the Lozde commaunded, sayinge: Aa-ron and his sonnes shall eate it: and that whi che remayneth of the flesshe and of the bred, burne it with fyre.

And se ye departe not from the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse seuen dayes longe, tyll the dayes of your fulofferynges be at an ende. For seuen dayes muste your handes be fylled, as they were this day: euen so the Lozd hath commaunded to do, to thintent to reconcyle you. Se therfore ye abyde in the doze of the ta bernacle of witnesse day and nyght seuē dayes longe: and kepe the watche of the Lozde that ye dye not, for so I am commaunded. And Aa-ron and his sonnes did all that the Lozde com maunded by the handes of Moses.

¶ The fyrste offrynges of Aaron, for hym selfe and for the people. Aaron blesseth the people. The glorye of the Lozde is shewed. The fyre commynge from aboue consumeth the sacrifyce.

CAPI. IX.

AND the eyght daye, Moses called Aa- A ron and his sonnes, and the elders of Is rael, and sayd to Aaron: take a calfe for a synne offerynge, a ram for a burntofferynge: bothe without blemysshe, and bryng them be-fore the Lozde. And vnto the children of Israel he spake, saying: take ye an he gote for a synne offerynge, and a calfe and a lambe bothe two of a yere olde, & without blemysshe for a burnt sacrifice, and an ore and a ramme for peax offe-rynges, to offre before the Lozde, and a meat-offerynge myngled with oyle, for to daye the Lozde wyll appere vnto you.

And

B And they brought that whiche Moses commaunded vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse and all the people came and stode before the Lorde. And Moses sayde: this is that the Lorde commaunded ye sholde do: and then the glory of the Lorde shall appere vnto you. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Goo vnto the aulter, and offre thy synneofferynge, and make an attonement for the and the people: and then offre the offerynge of the people, and reconcyle them also: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And Aaron went to the aulter, and slewe the calfe that was his synneofferynge. And the sonnes of Aaron brought the blonde vnto hym, and he dypte his fynger in the blonde, and put it vpon the hornes of the aulter, and poured the blonde vnto the bottome of the alter. And the fatte and the two kydneys, with the kall of the lyuer of the synne offerynge he burnt vpon the aulter, as the Lord commaunded Moses: but the flesshe and the hyde, he C burnt with fyre without the hoste. Afterwarde he slewe the burntoffrynge, and Aarons sonnes brought the blond vnto him, and he sprinkled it rounde aboute vpon the aulter. And they brought the burntofferynge vnto hym in peces, and the heed also, and he burnt it vpon the aulter, and dyd washe the inwardes, and the legges, and burnt them also vpō the burnt offerynge in the aulter.

And then he brought the peoples offerynge and toke the goote that was the peoples synofferynge, and slewe it, and offered it for a synneofferynge: as he dyd the first. And then brought the burntofferynge, and offered it as the maner was, and brought the meatoffering and fylled his hande therof, and burnt it vpon the aulter, beside the burnt sacrifice in the morynge.

Then he slewe the oxe and the ramme that were the peoples peaceoffrynges, and Aarons sonnes brought the blonde vnto hym, and he sprynckled it vpon the aulter rounde aboute, and toke the fat of the oxe and of the ramme: the rompe & the fat that coucreth the inwardes and the kydneyes and the kall of the lyuer, and put them vpon the brestes and burne it D vpon the aulter: but the brestes and the right shoulders Aaron waued before the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And Aaron lyfte vp his hande ouer the people and blessed them, and came downe from offerynge of synofferynges, burntofferynges and peaxofferynges. Then Moses and Aaron went in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, and came out agayne and blessed the people, and the glorye of the Lorde appeared vnto all the people. And there came a fyre out from the Lorde, and consumed vpon the aulter, the burntofferynge and the fat. And all the people sawe it, and shoted, and fell on theyr faces.

¶ Nadab and Abihu are slayne. Israel mourneth for them. The Priestes are forbidden wyne. The residue of the sacrifyce the Priestes eate.

A And Nadab and Abihu the sonnes of Aaron toke either of them his censor, and put fyre therin, and put cens vpon, and brought straung fyre before the Lorde: which he commaunded them not: and there wente a fyre out from the Lorde, & consumed them, and they dyed before the Lorde. Then Moses said vnto Aaron: this is that the Lorde spake saying: I wyl be sanctified in them that come nye me, and before all the people I wyll be glorified. And Aaron held his peax. And B Moses called Misael and Elisaphan the sonnes of Oziel the vncle of Aaron, and said to them: Go and carye youre brethren frome the holy place out of the hoste. And they went to them and caryed them in theyr albes out of the host as Moses bad.

And Moses sayd vnto Aaron and Eliazar, and Ithamar his eldest sonnes: vncouer not your heed, neyther rent your clothes, least ye dye, and wrath come vpon all the people, let your brethren the hole house of Israel bewepe the burnynge whiche the Lorde hathe burnt. But go ye not out by the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, leest ye dye: for the anoyntynge oyle of the Lorde is vpon you. And they dyd as Moses bad,

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron, sayinge: C drynke no wyne ne stronge drynke, neyther thou nor thy sonnes with the: when ye go in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye. And let it be a lawe for euer vnto youre chyldren after you: that ye maye put difference betwene holy and vnholy, betwene vncleane and cleane, and that ye maye teache the chyldren of Israel all the ordinaunces whiche the the Lorde hath commaunded them by ỹ handes of Moses.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron, and vnto Eleazar and Ithamar his sonnes that C were lefte. Take the meatofferynge that remayneth of the sacrifyces of the Lorde, and eate it without leuen beside the aulter, for it is moost holy: eate it therfore in the holy place, bycause it is thy dutye and thy sonnes dutye of the sacrifyce of the Lorde: for so I am commaūded. And the wauebrest and heue shoulder eate in a cleane place: bothe thou and thy sonnes, and thy doughters with the. For it is thy durye, and thy sonnes duty with the, of the peaxofferynges of the chyldren of Israel. For the heueshoulder, and the wauebrest whiche they bryngе with the sacrifyces of the fatte, to waue it before the Lorde, shall be thyne, and thy sonnes with the: and be a lawe for euer, as the Lorde hathe commaunded.

And Moses sought for the goote that was the synneofferynge, and se it was burnt. And D he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar the sonnes of Aaaron, whiche were lefte alyue, saying: wherfore haue ye not eaten the synne offerynge in the holy place, seynge it is moost holy: and for as moche as it is gyuen you to bere the synne of the people, and make agrement for them before the Lorde? Beholde, the blonde of it was not brought in within the holy place, therfore sholde ye haue eaten it in the holy place, as I commaunded. And Aaron said vnto Moses: beholde, this day haue they offered their synneofferynge and their burnt offerynge before the Lorde, and it is chaunsed me after this maner. If I sholde eate of the synneofferyng to day, wolde the Lorde be content withall? And when Moses herde that, he was content.

¶ Of beastes whiche be cleane and whiche be vncleane.

CAPI. XI.

A And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, saying: speake vnto the chyldre of Israel, and say: these are the beestes whiche ye shall eate amonge all the beastes that are on the erth: what so euer hath hoofe and deuideth it in to two clawes, and cheweth cud among the beastes, that shall ye eate. But these shal ye not eate of them that chewe cud
The Camell. and haue hoofes. The Camell, for he cheweth cud, but he deuideth not the hoofe in to two clawes, therfore he shall be vncleane vnto you.
The Conye. And the Conye, for he cheweth the cud, but de-uideth not the hoofe in to two clawes, therfore
The Hare. he is vncleane to you. And the Hare, for he like wyse cheweth the cud, but deuideth not ꝑ hoofe
The swyne. into two clawes, he is therfore vncleane to you And the swyne, for though he deuyde the hoofe in to two clawes, yet he cheweth not the cud, and therfore is vncleane to you. Of their flesh se ye eate not, and their carkalles se ye touche not, for they are vncleane to you.

B These shal ye eate, of all that are in the wa-Fyshes. ters: what so euer haue fynnes and scales in the waters, sees and ryuers, that shal ye eate.
And all that haue not fynnes and scales in the sees and ryuers of all that moue and lyue in the waters shall ye abhorre. Se ye eate not of their flesshe, and also that ye abhorre their C carcalles: for all that haue no fynnes nor Foules. scales in the waters, shall be abhominacion vnto you. These are the foules which ye shal abhorre, and which shal not be eaten, for they are abhominacion. The egle, the golhauke, the cormorant, the kyte, the vultur and all his kynde, and all kynde of rauens, the estrich the nyghtcrow, the cuckow, the sparowhauke and all the kynde: and the lytle oule, ꝑ storcke, the great oule, the backe, the pellicane, ꝑ pye,
the heron, ꝑ lape with the kynde, the lapwing, and the swalowe. And all foules that crepe and go vpo all foure, shall be an abhominacion vnto you.

D Yet these maye ye eate of all the foules that moue and go vpon four fete: euen those that haue no knees aboue vpon their fete to leape withall vpon the earthe: euen these of them ye may eate: the Arbe and all his kynde:
the Selaam with all his kynde: the Hargol and all the kynde, the Hagab and all his kynd.
All other foules that moue and haue foure fete, shall be abhominacion vnto you. In such ye shal be vnclene who so euer touche the carkalle of them, shall be vnclene vnto the euen/and who so euer beareth the carkalle of them shal washe his clothes, and so shal be vnclene vntyll euen.

Amonge all maner beastes that haue hoofes and deuyde them not in to two clawes, or that chewe not the cud, shall be vncleane vnto you: and all that toucheth them shall be vncleane. And all that goeth vpon his handes a- E monge all maner beastes that go on all foure fete, are vncleane vnto you: and as many as touche their carkalles, shall be vnclene vntyll the euen. And he that beareth the carkalle of them, shall washe his clothes, and be vncleane vntyll the euen, for suche are vnclene vnto you.

And these are also vnclene to you amonge the thynges that crepe vpon the erathe: the wesell, the mouse, the toode, and all his kynde, Mus the hedgehogge, stellio, the licerte, the snayle, and the moule: these are vncleane to you among all that moue, and al that touche them when they be ded, shall be vnclene vntyll the euen. And what so euer any of the ded car-kalles of them fall vpon, shall be vncleane:
what so euer vessell of wod it be, or rayment, or skynne, or bagge, or what so euer thynge it be that any worke is wrought withall. And they shall be plunged in the water, and be vn-clene tyll the euen, and then they shal be clene agayne.

All maner of erthen vessell wherinto any of them falleth is vnclene with al that therin is F and * ye shal breake it. All maner meate that * It is eaten, yf any suche water come vpon it, it and shall be vncleane. And all maner drynke that is dronke in all maner suche vessels shal be vn clene. And whether it be ouen or kettel it shal be broken. For they are vnclene, and shal be vnclene vnto you. Howbeit the fountaynes and welles, and pondes of water, shal be clene styll. But who so euer toucheth their carkal-ses, shall be vncleane.

Yf the ded carcalle of any such fal vpon any seed vsed to sowe, it shal yet be clene styl: but yf any water be poured vpon the seed, and afterwarde the ded carkalle of them fall theron, then it shal be vncleane vnto you.

Yf any beest of whiche ye may eate, dye/he ꝑ toucheth the ded carcalle shal be vnclene tyll the euen. And he that eateth of any suche ded carkalle, shal washe his clothes, and remayne vnclene tyll the euen. And he also that beareth the carkalle of it, shal washe his clothes and be vnclene tyl euen.

All that scrauleth vpon the earthe, is ab-hominacion, and shal not be eaten. And what so euer goeth vpon the brest, and what so euer goeth vpon foure or mo fete, amonge all that scrauleth vpon the erth, of that se ye eate not:
for they are abhominable.

Make not your soules abhominable with G nothyng that creepeth, neither make your sou-les vnclene with them: that ye sholde be defiled therby. For I am the Lorde youre God,
* be sanctified therfore that ye may be holy, or * Le
I am holy: and defyle not your soules with i. Ho any maner thyng that crepeth vpon the erth. H For I am the Lorde that brought you out of the lande of Egypt to be your God: be holy therfore, for I am holy.

This

This is the lawe of beest and foule, and of all maner thynge that lyueth and moueth in the water, & of all thynges that creepe on the earth, that ye may put difference betwene vnclene and clene, and betwene the beestes that are eaten, and the beestes that are not eaten.

¶ A lawe howe women shuld be purged after theyr childyeraunce.

CAPI. XII.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, and sayd: speake vnto the childzen of Israel and saye: when a woman hath conceyued, and hath borne a man childe, she shall be vncleane seuen dayes: euen in lyke maner as when she is put apart in tyme of her naturall disease. And in the eyght daye the flesh of the childes foreskynne shall be cut awaye. And she shal continue in the blonde of her purifyinge. xxxiij. dayes, she shall touche no halowed B thynge, nor come in to the sanctuarye, vntyll the tyme of her purifyng be out. Yf she beare a maydechylde, then she shall be vnclene two wekes, as when she hath her naturall disease. And she shall continue in the blonde of her purifyng. lxvj. dayes.

C *And when the dayes of her purifyinge are out: whether it be a sonne or a doughter, she shal bring a lambe of one yere olde for a burnt offering, and a yonge pigyon or a turtle doue for a synne offeryng vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, vnto the preest: which shall offre them before the Lorde, and make an attonement for her, & so she shal be purged of her luke.ii.d. issue of blonde. *This is the law for her that hath borne a childe, whether it be male or female. But yf she be not able to bring a shepe then let her bringe two turtles, or two yong pygions: the one for the burntofferynge, and the other for the synneofferyng. And the preest shall make an attonement for her, and she shall be clene.

¶ The Preestes are appoynted to iudge who are Lepers.

CAPI. XIII.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, and vnto Aaron, sayinge: when there appereth a rysyng in a mans flesshe eyther a scabbe or a glysterying whyte: as thoughe the plage of leprosye were in the skyn of his flesh, let him be brought vnto Aaron the preest, or vnto one of his sonnes the preestes, and lette the preest loke on the sore that is in the skynne of his flesshe. Yf the heere in the sore be turned vnto whyte, & the sore also seme to be lower then the skynne of his flesshe, then it is surely a leprosye, and let the preest loke on hym, and iudge him vnclene.

Yf there be but a whyte plecke in the skyn of his flesshe, and seme not to be lower then the other skyn, nor the heere therof is turned vnto whyte, then let the preest shut him vp seuen dayes. And let the preest loke vpon hym the seuenth day: yf the sore seme to hym to abyde styll, and to go no further in the skynne, then let the preest shut him vp yet seuen dayes mo. And let the preest loke on him agayne the seuenth daye. Then yf the sore be waxed blackysh, and is not growen abrode in the skynne, let ỹ preest make him clene, for it is but a skirf. And let him washe his clothes, and then he is clene: But yf the scabbe growe in the skynne after that he is sene of the preest agayn: if the preest se that the scabbe be growen abrode in the skynne, let him make hym vnclene: for it is surely a leprosye.

Yf the plage of leprosye be in a man, let him be brought vnto the preest, and let the preest se B him. Yf the rysing appeare whyte in the skyn, and haue also made the heere white, and there be rawe flesshe in the sore also: then it is an olde leprosy in the skyn of his flesshe. And the preest shall iudge him vncleane, and shall not shut hym vp. for he is vncleane.

Yf a leprosy breake out in the skyn, and couer all the skynne from the heed to the foote ouer all where so euer the preest loketh, then let the preest loke vpon hym. Yf the leprosye haue couered all his flesshe, let him iudge the disease clene, for in as moche as he is all togyther whyte, he is clene. But yf there be rawe C flesshe on hym when he is sene, then he shall be vnclene. Therfore when the preest seeth the rawe flesshe, let him iudge him vnclene. For in as moche as his flesshe is rawe, he is vnclene: and it is surely a true leprosye. But if the raw flesshe depart agayn and chaunge in to white, then let him come to the preest, and let ỹ preest se hym. yf the sore be chaunged vnto whyte, let the preest iudge the disease clene, and then he is clene.

When there is a byle in the skynne of any mannes flesshe, and is healed and after in the place of the byle there appeare a whyte rysyng eyther a shynynge whyte, somwhat redysshe, let hym be sene of the preest. yf when the preest seeth hym, it appeare lower then the other skynne, and the heere therof be chaunged vnto whyte, let the preest iudge hym vncleane: for it is a very leprosye, that is broken out in the place of the byle But if when the preest. loketh on it there be no white heeres therin, neither the scabbe lower then the other skynne, and be somwhat blackysshe, then the Preeste shall shut him aparte seuen dayes. Yf it spred abrode in the meane season, then let the preest iudge him vncleane: for it is a leprosye. But yf the glysterynge whyte abyde styll in one place, and goo no further, then it is but the prynt of the byle, and the Preest shall iudge him clene.

When the skyn of any mans flesshe is burnt D with fyre that it be rawe, and there appere in the burnynge a glysterynge whyte that is somwhat redysshe or all togyther whyte, let the preest loke vpon it. yf the heere in that brightnesse be chaunged to whyte, and it also appere lower then the other skynne, then it is a leprosye that is broken oute of the place of the burnynge. And the preest shall iudge him vncleane, for it is a leprosye. But yf (when the Preeste loketh on it) he se there is no whyte heere in the brightnes, and that it is no lower then thother skynne, and that it is also blackelye, then let the Preest shut hym vp seuen dayes. And yf (when the preest loketh on him the seuenth daye) it be growen abrode in the skynne, let hym iudge hym vncleane: for it is a leprosye. But yf that brightnesse abyde styll in one place and go no further in the skynne and be blackish, then it is but a rysyng in the place of the burnynge, and the Preest shall make hym cleane: for it is but the pynne of the burnynge onely.

E When eyther man or woman hathe a brea kynge out vpon the heed or the beerde, let the Preest se it. And yf it appeare lower then the other skynne, and there be therin golden heeres and thynne, let the preest iudge hym vncleane, for it is a breakynge oute of leprosye vpon the heed or beerde. Yf (when the Preeste loketh on the breakynge oute) he se it is no lower then thother skynne, and that there are blacke heeres therin, let hym shut him vp seuen dayes. And let the preest loke on the disease the seuenth daye: and yf the breakynge out be gone no further, neyther be any golden heeres therin, neyther the scabbe be lower then the other skynne, then let him be shauen, but let him not shaue the scabbe: and let the preest shut hym vp seuen dayes mo. And let the preest loke on the breaking out the.viij. daye agayne: yf the breakyng out be gone no further in the skynne, nor more lower then thother skynne, then let the preest iudge him cleane, and let hym washe his clothes, and then he is cleane.

F Yf the breakynge out growe in the skynne after he be ones iudged cleane, let the preeste se hym. yf it be growen abrode in dede in the skynne, let the Preest seke no further for any golden heeres, for he is vncleane. But yf he se the scabbe stande styll, and that there is blacke heere growen vp therin, then the scabbe is healed, and he is cleane: and the Preeste shall iudge hym cleane. Yf there be founde in the skynne of the flesshe of man or woman a glysterynge whyte, lette the preest se it. Yf there appeare in theyr flesshe a glysterynge whyte, somwhat blackysshe, then it is but frekels growen vp in the skynne: and he is cleane.

Yf a mans heere fall of his heed, then he is heedbaulde and clene. Yf his heere fall before in his forehed, then he is foreheedbaulde and clene. Yf there be in the baulde heed, or baulde foreheed a redysshe whyte scabbe, then there is leprosye spronge vp in his baulde heed, or baulde foreheed. And let the preest se it: and yf the rysynge of the sore be reddysshwhyte in his baulde heed or foreheed after the maner of a leprosye in the skynne of the flesshe, then he is a leper, and vncleane: and the preest shall iudge him vncleane, for the plage of his heed.

G And the leper in whom the plage is, shal haue his clothes rent, and his heed bare, and his mouthe mofeld, and shall be called vncleane. And as long as the disease lasteth vpon hym, he shall be vncleane, for he is vncleane: & shall therfore dwell alone, and euen without ỹ host shall his habitacion be.

Leprosy cloth.

When the plage of leprosye is in a clothe: whether it be lynnen or wollen, yea and whether it be in the warpe or wolfe of the lynnen, or of the wollen: eyther in a skynne, or any thynge made of skynne, yf the disease be pale or somwhat redysshe in the clothe or skynne: whether it be in the warpe or wolfe, or any thyng that is made of skynne, then it is a very leprosye, and must be shewed vnto the preest And when the preest seyth the plage, let hym shut it vp seuen dayes, and let him loke on the plage the seuenth daye. Yf it be increased in the cloth, whether it be in the warpe or wolfe or in a skynne, or in any thynge that is made of skynne, then the plage is a freatyng leprosye, and it is vncleane: and that clothe shall be burnt, eyther warpe or wolfe, whether it be wollen or lynnen, or any thynge that is made of skynne wherin the plage is, for it is a freatynge leprosye, and shall be burnt in the fyre.

Yf the preest se that the plage hath freaten no further in the clothe: eyther in the warpe or wolfe, or in what so euer thynge of skynne it be, then let the preest commaunde them to washe the thynge wherin the plage is, and let hym shut it vp seuen dayes and moo. And let the preest loke on it agayne after that the plage is washed. If the plage haue not chaunged his fashion, though it be spred no further abrode, it is yet vncleane. And se ye burne it in the fyre, for it is freat inwarde: whether in parte or in all. But yf the preest se it somwhat blackysshe after it is washed, let hym rent it out of the clothe, or out of the skynne, or out of the warpe or wolfe.

And yf it appeare any more in the clothe eyther in the warpe, or in the wolfe, or in any thynge made of skynne, then it is a waxynge plage. And se ye burne that with fyre wherin the plage is. Moreouer the cloth either warpe or wolfe, or what so euer thing of skynne it be which thou hast washed, and the plage be departed from it shall be washed ones agayne. and then it is clene. This is the lawe for the plage of leprosye in a cloth, whether it be wollen or lynnen: either whether it be in ỹ warpe or wolfe, or in any thyng made of skynnes, to iudge it clene or vncleane.

¶ The cleanlinge of the leper, and of the house that he is in.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: * this is the law for a leper when he shall be clensed: He shal be brought vnto the preest, and the preest shall go forthe without the hoost and loke vpon hym. Yf the plage of leprosye be healed in the leper, then shall the preest commaunde that there be brought for hym that shall be clensed two lyuynge byrdes that are clene, and cedar woode, and a pece of purple cloth and yssope. And the preest shal cõmaunde that one of the byrdes be kylled in an erthen vessell with rennyng water. And the Preest shall take the lyuynge byrde and the cedar wode and the purple and the yssope, and shal dyppe them and the lyuing byrde in the bloude of the slayne byrde, and in the rennynge water and sprynkle it vpon him that muste be clensed of his leprosye seuen tymes and clense him, and shall let the liuing byrde goo free in to the feldes.

B And he that is clensed shall washe his clothes, and shaue of all his heere, and wash him selfe in water, and then he is clene. And after that he shall come in to the hoost, but shal tarye without his tent seuen dayes. When the seuenth daye is come, he shall shaue of all his heere, bothe vpon his heed, and his berde, and on his browes: and euen all the heere that is on him, shall be shauen of. And he shal washe his clothes and his flesshe in water, and then he shall be clene.

And when the eyght daye is come, let hym take two lammes without blemysshe, and a yewelambe of a yere olde without blemysshe, and thre tenth deales of fyne flour, for a meat offerynge myngled with oyle, and a logge of oyle. Then let the Preeste that maketh him clene, bryng the man that is made clene with those thynges before the Lorde vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And let the preest take one of the lambes, & offre hym for a trespaceoffering, and the logge of oyle: and waue them before the Lorde. And then let them slee the lambe in the place where the synne offeryng and the burntoffering were slayne: euen in the holy place. For as the synneofferynge is, euen so is the trespaceofferynge of the preestes for it is moost holy.

C Then let the preest take of the bloude of the trespaceofferynge, and put it vpon the typ of the right eare of hym that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his right foote. Then let the preest take of the logge of oyle, and poure it in to the palme of his lefte hande, and dyp his right fynger in the oyle that is in the palme of his lefte hande, and let hym sprynckle it with his fynger seuen tymes before the Lorde. And of the reste of the oyle that is in his hande, shall the preest put vpon the typ of the ryght eare of hym that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his ryght foote: euen vpon the bloude of the trespaceofferynge. And the rest of the oyle that is in the preestes hande, he shall poure vpon the heed of hym that is clensed: and so shall the preest make an attonement for him before the Lorde.

Then let the preest offre the synneofferynge and make an attonement for him that is clensed for his vnclennesse. And then let the burnt offeryng be slayne, and let the preest put bothe the burntofferyng and the meatofferyng vpon the aulter: and make an attonement for him and then he shall be clene. Yf he be poore and can not get so moche, then let hym bryng one lambe for a trespace offerynge to waue it, and to make an attonement for him, and a tenthe deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferynge, and a logge of oyle, and two turtle doues or two ponge pigions whiche he is able to get, and let thone be a synneofferynge, and thother a burnt offerynge. And let him bryng them the eyght day for his clensing vnto the preest to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lorde.

D And let the preest take ꝑ lambe that is the trespace offerynge, and the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And when the lambe of the trespaceofferynge is kylled, the preest shall take of the bloude of the trespace offerynge, and put it vpon the typ of his ryght eare that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his ryghte hande, and vpon the greate too of his ryghte foote. And the preest shall poure of the oyle in to his ryghte hande, and shall sprynckle with his fynger of the oyle that is in his lefte hande seuen tymes before the Lorde.

And the Preest shall put on the oyle that is in his hande (vpon the typ of the ryghte eare of hym that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the greate too of his ryghte foote: euen in the place where the bloude of the trespaceofferynge was put. And the reste of the oyle that is in his hande, he shall poure vpon the heed of him that is clensed: to make an attonement for hym before the Lorde. And he shall offre one of the turtle doues, or of the ponge pigions, suche as he can get: the one for a synne offeryng, and thother for a burntofferyng vpon the aulter. And so shal the preest make an attonement for him that is clensed before the Lorde. This is the lawe of him that hathe the plage of leprosye, whose hande is not able to get that belongeth to his clensynge.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron saying: when ye become vnto the land of E Canaan which I giue you to possesse: yf I put the plage of leprosye in the house of the lande of your possession, let hym that oweth ꝑ house go and tell the preest, saying: me thynke that there is as it were a leprosye in the house. And the preest shall commaunde them to voyde all thynge forth of the house, before the preest, enter to se the plage: that he make not all that is in the house vnclene, and then the preest shal go in, and se the house.

Yf the Preest se that the plage is in the walles of the house, and that there be holow strakes pale or redde whiche seme to be lower then the other partes of the wall, then lette the preest go out at the house doores, and shut vp the house for seuen dayes. And let the preest come agayne the seuenth daye and se it, yf the F plage be increased in the walles of the house, lette the Preeste commaunde them to take awaye the stones in whiche the plage is, and lette them caste them in a foule place without the cytye, and scrape the house within rounde aboute: and poure oute the dust without the cytye in a foule place. And lette them take other stones, and put them in the places of those stones, and other morter, and plaster the house with. Yf nowe the plage come agayne, and breake oute in the house, after that they haue taken awaye the stones, and scraped the house, and after that the house is playstered anewe: let the Preest come and se it. And if then he perceyue that the plage hath eaten further in the house, it is a freetynge leprosye that is in the house, and it is vncleane. Then they shall breake downe the house: bothe stones, tymbre, and all the morter of the house, and carye it forthe of the citye vnto a foule place. Moreouer he that goeth in to the house all the whyle it is shut vp, shall be vncleane tyll nyght. And he that slepeth in the house shall washe his clothes, and he also that eateth in the house, shall washe his clothes.

But yf the Preeste come and se that the plage hathe spred no further in the house after it is newe plastered, then let hym make it cleane, for the plage is healed. And lette hym take to clense the house with: two byrdes, cedar wodde, and purple clothe and yssope. And let hym kyll one of the byrdes in an earthen vessell with runnynge water: and take the cedar wodde, the yssope, the purple and the lyuynge byrde, and dyppe them in the bloude of the slayne byrde, and in the runnynge water, and sprynckle vpon the house seuen tymes, and clense the house with the bloude of the byrde, and with the runninge water, and with the lyuynge byrde, and with the cedar wodde, and the yssope, and the purple clothe. And he shall let the lyuynge byrde flee forthe of the towne in to the wylde feldes, and so make an attonement for the house, and it shall be cleane. This is the lawe for all maner plage of leprosye and breakynge out, and of the leprosye of clothe and house, and of rysinges, scabbes, and glistering white, to teache when a thynge is vncleane or cleane. This is the lawe of leprosye.

¶ The maner of purgynge the vnclennes bothe of men and women.

CAPI. XV.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: Speake vnto the childre of Israel, and say vnto them: euery man that hath a runnynge yssue in his flesshe, is vncleane by reason of his yssue. And hereby shall it be knowen when he is vncleane. Yf his flesshe runne, or yf his flesshe congele by the reason of his yssue, then he is vncleane. Euerye couche wheron he lyeth, and euerye thynge wheron he sytteth shall be vncleane. He that toucheth his couche shall washe his clothes, and bath him selfe with water, and be vncleane tyll the euen.

He that sytteth on that wheron he sate, shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euenynge. And he that toucheth his flesshe, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. Yf any suche spyt vpon hym that is cleane, he muste washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water and be vnclene vntyll euen.

And what so euer sadel that he rideth vpon shall be vncleane. And who so euer toucheth any thynge that was vnder hym, shal be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any suche thynges, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: and what so euer he toucheth (yf he haue not fyrste washed his handes in water) must washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euenynge. *And yf he touche a vessell of erth, it shall be broken: and all vessels of wod, shall be rynsed in water. *Leui. 11. and. 15.

When he that hath an yssue is clensed of his yssue, let hym nombre seuen dayes after he is cleane, and washe his clothes, and bathe his flesshe in runnynge water, and then he is cleane. And the eyght daye lette hym take two turtle doues, or two ponge pygyons, and come before the Lorde vnto the wye of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and gyue them vnto the Preeste. And the Preeste shall offre them: the one for a synne offerynge, and the other for a burntofferynge: and make an attonement for hym before the Lorde concernynge his yssue.

Yf any mans seed departe frome him in his slepe, he shall washe his flesshe in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And all the clothes or furres wheron suche sede chaunceth, shall be washed with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And yf a woman lye with suche person, they shall washe them selues with water, and be vncleane tyll euen.

When a womans naturall course of bloud runneth, she shall be put aparte seuen dayes: and who so euer toucheth her, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that she lyeth or sytteth vpon as longe as she is put aparte, shall be vncleane. And who so euer toucheth her couche, shall washe his clothes, and bath him selfe with water, & be vnclene vnto the euen. And who so euer toucheth any thyng that she sate vpon, shal washe his clothes, and washe hym selfe also in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: so that whether he touch her couche or any thynge wheron she hath sytten, he shal be vncleane vnto the euen: and yf a man lye with her in the meane tyme, he shall be put aparte as well as she, and shall be vncleane seuen dayes, and all his couche wherin he sleepeth shall be vncleane.

When a womans bloude runneth longe tyme, beyonde the tyme of her natural course: as longe as her vnclennesse runneth, she shall be vncleane, after the maner as when she is put aparte. All her couches wheron she lyeth (as longe as her yssue lasteth) shall be vnto her as her couche, when she is put aparte. And what so euer she sytteth vpon, shall be vncleane as is her vnclennesse when she is put aparte. And who so euer toucheth them, shall be vncleane, and shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto euen.

But yf she be cleane of her yssue, lette her count her seuen dayes, after that she is clene. And the eyght daye let her take two turtles or two ponge pygyons and bryngе them vnto

CAPI. XVI.

A And the Lorde spake vnto Moses *after the death of the two sonnes of Aaron, when they had offered before the Lorde and dyed: And he sayde vnto Moses: Speake vnto Aarō thy brother that he go not at all tymes into the holy place, that is within the vayle that hangeth before the mercyseate which is vpon the arche that he dye not For I will appeare in a clowde vpō the mercyseate.

But on this maner shall Aaron go into the holy place: with a bullocke for a synneoffring and a Ram for a burntoffringe. And he shall put the holy lynen albe vpon him, and shall haue a lynen breche vpon his flesshe, and shal gyrde him with a lynen gyrdell, and put the lynen myter vpon his heade: for they are holy raymentes. And he shall washe his flesshe B with water, and put theym on. And he shall take of the multitude of the chyldren of Israel two he gotes for a synneoffring and a Ram for a burntoffringe.

And Aaron shall offer the bullocke for his synneoffringe and make an attonemēt for him and for his houssle. And he shall take the two gotes and presente them before the Lorde in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnelle. And Aaron shall cast lottes ouer the two gootes: one lot for the Lorde, & an other for a scapegote. And Aaron shall bringe the gote vpon which the Lordes lot fell, and offer him for a synneoffringe. But the gote on which the lot fell to escape, he shal set alyue before the Lord to reconcyle with and to let him go fre into ỹ wyldernelle. And Aaron shall bringe the bul- C locke of his synneoffringe, and make attonement for him selfe and for his houshold, and kyll him.

And then he shall take a censer full of burnynge coles out of the altare that is before ỹ Lorde, and his handeful of swete incense beaten small and bringe them within the vayle, and put the incense vpon the fyre before the Lorde: that the clowde of the incense maye couer the mercyseate that is vpon the wytnes that he dye not. * And he shall take of the bloude of the bullocke and sprinkle it with his fynger before the mercyseate eastwarde: euen seuen tymes. *Hebre. ix.c. and. x.a.

Then shall he kyll the gote that is the peoples synneoffringe, & bringe his bloude within the vayle, and do with his bloude as he dyd with the bloude of the bullocke, and let hym sprinkle it towarde the mercyseate, and before the mercyseate: and reconcyle the holy place frome the vnclennelle of the chyldren of Israel, and frome their tresspaces and all their synnes. And so let him do also vnto the tabernacle of wytnelle that dwelleth with them, euē D amonge their vnclennesses.

* And there shalbe no person in the tabernacle of wytnelle, when he goeth in to make *Luke.i.a an attonement in the holy place, tyll he come forth agayne. And he shall make attonement for him selfe and his houshold, and all the multitude of Israel. Then he shall go forthe vnto the aultare that standeth before the Lorde, and clense it, and shall take of the bloude of the bullocke, and the gote, and put vpon the hornes of the altare rounde aboute, and sprynkle of the bloude vpon it with his fynger seuen tymes, and clense it, and halow it frome the vnclennelles of the chyldren of Israel.

And when he hath clensed the holy place & the tabernacle of wytnelle, and the altar, let E him bringe the lyue gote, and let Aaron put bothe his handes vpon the head of the lyue gote, and confelle ouer him all the misdeades of the chyldren of Israel, and their tresspaces, & all their synnes: and let him put theym vpon the heed of the gote, and sende him awaye by the handes of one that is acquaynted in the wyldernelle. And the goote shall beare vpon him all their misdedes into the wyldernelle, and he shall let the gote go fre in the wyldernelle.

And let Aaron go into the Tabernacle of wytnelle, and put of the lynen clothes which he put on when he went into the holy place, and leaue them there. And let him washe his flesshe with water in the holy place, and put on his owne rayment, and then come out and offer his burntofferynge and the burntoffring of the people, and praye for him selfe and the people, and the fat of the synneoffrynge let him burne vpon the altare. And let him that carped forth the scapegote, washe his clothes F and bathe his flesshe in water, and then come into the hoste agayne.

And the bullocke of the synneoffringe and the gote of the synneofferynge (whose bloude was brought in to make an attonemēt in the holy place) let one carye forthe without the hoste and burne with fyre: bothe their skynnes, their flesshe and their donge. And let him that burneth theym, washe his clothes and bathe his flesshe in water, and so come into ỹ hoste agayne. And this shalbe an ordinaunce for euer vnto you. And euen in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, ye shall humble your soules

And the preest that is anoynted and whose hande was fylled to mynystre in his fathers stede, shall make the attonement and shall put on, the holy synnen clothes and holy vestimentes, and shall repourge the holy sanctuary and the tabernacle of witnesse and the aultare, and shall make attonement also for the preestes and all the people of the congregacion. And this shall be an euerlastyng ordinaunce vnto you to make attonemente for the chyldren of Israel for al theyr synnes ones a yere. and it was done euen as ꝑ Lorde commaunded Moses.

¶ All sacrifyce must be brought to the dore of the tabernacle. To deuyls may they not offer. Bloude and all karen is forbydden them.

CAPI. XVII.

A And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake to Aaron and his sonnes, and vnto al the chyldren of Israel, and tell them, this is the thyng which the Lorde charged, sayinge: what so euer he be of the house of Israel, that killeth an oxe, lambe or gote, in the hoste or out of the hoste, and bryngeth them not vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, to offre an offerynge vnto the Lorde, before the dwellyng place of ꝑ Lorde, bloude shall be imputed vnto that man, as thoughe he had shedde bloude, and that man shall perysshe from his people.

Wherfore let the chyldren of Israel bryng theyr offerynges that they offre in the wylde felde, vnto the Lorde: euen vnto the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, and vnto the preest, and offre theym for the peaceofferynges vnto the Lorde. And the Preeste shall sprynckle the bloude vpon the aulter of the Lorde in

And thou shalte saye vnto theym: what so euer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the straungers that sotourne among you, that offereth a burntofferynge, or any other offerynge, and bryngeth it not vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse to offre vnto the Lorde, the same shall perysshe frome his

And what so euer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the straungers that sotourne amonge you that eateth any maner of bloude, I wyll sette my face agaynst that soule that eateth bloude, and wyll destroye him out of his people, for the lyfe of the flesh is in the bloude, and I haue geuen it vnto you D vpon the aulter, to make attonement for youre soules, for bloude shall make attonemente for the soule. And therfore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye no soule of you eate bloude, ne any straunger that sotourneth amonge you.

Whatsoeuer man it be of the chyldren of Israel or of the straungers that sotourne amonge you: that hunteth and catcheth any beeste or foule that maye be eaten, he shall poure out the bloude and couer it with erth, for the lyfe of al flesche is in the bloude, therfore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel ye D

And whatsoeuer soule it be that eateth that whiche dyed alone or that whiche was torne with wylde beastes: whether it be one of youre selues or a straunger, he shall washe his clothes and bathe him selfe in water and shall be vncleane vnto the euen, and then is he cleane. But yf he wasshe theym not nor washe his flesshe, he shall beare his synne.

A And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and shewe theym, I am the Lorde youre god. Wherfore after the doynges of the lande of Egypte wherin ye dwelte, se ye doo not: after the doynges of the lande of Canaan, whyther I wyll brynge you: neyther

B Se ye goo to none of youre nyghest kynred, for to vncouer theyr secretes, for I am the Lorde. The secretes of thy father, and thy mother, se thou vnhylle not: she is thy mother, therfore shalte not thou discouer her secretes. The secretes of thy fathers wyfe shalte thou not discouer, for they are thy fathees secretes. Thou shalte not discouer the

Tho shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy sones daughter or thy daughters daughter, for that is thyne owne pruntie: Thou shalte not vncouer the secretes of thy fathers wyues daughter, whiche she bare to thy father, for she is thy syster: Thou shalte therfore not discouer her secretes Thou shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy fathers syster, for she is thy fathers nexte kynswoman. Thou shalte not discouer the secretes of thy mothers syster, for she is thy mothers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalt not discouer the secretes of thy doughter in lawe, she is thy sonnes wyfe: therfore vncouer not her secretes. Thou shalt not vnhyl the secrettes of thy brothers wife, for that is thy brothers preuite. Thou shalte not dyscouer the preuytes of the wyfe and her daughter also, neyther shalte thou take her sonnes daughter or her daughters daughter to vncouer theyr secrettes, they are her nexte kynne, it were therfore wyckednesse. Thou shalte not take a wyfe and her syster therto, to vexe her that thou wouldest open her secrettes as longe as she lyueth. Thou shalte not goo vnto a woman to vncouer her preuitye, as longe as she is put aparte for her vnclennesse. * Thou shalte not lye with thy neyghboures wyfe, to defyle thy selfe with her. Thou shalt not gyue of thy seed to offer it vnto Moloch, þ thou defyle not the name of thy God, for I am the Lorde.

Thou shalt not lye with mãkynde as with womankynde, for that is abhominacion.

Thou shalt lye with no maner of beaste to defyle thy selfe therewith, neyther shall any womã stonde before a beast to lye downe therto, for that is abhominacion.

Defyle not your selues in any of these thinges, for with all these thinges are these nacions defyled which I cast out before you: and the lande is defyled, and I will vysett the wickednesse thereof vpon it, and the lande shall spewe out her inhabiters. * Kepe ye therfore myne ordinaunces and iudgementes, and se ye do none of these abhominacions: neyther any of you nor any straunger that sojourneth amonge you (for all these abhominacions haue the men of the lande done whiche were there before you, and the lande is defyled) lest the lande spewe you out when ye haue defyled it, as it spewed oute the nacions that were there before you. For who so euer shall commit anye of these abhominacions, the same soules that do them shall perisshe from their people. Therfore se ye kepe myne ordinaunces, that ye commit none of these abhominable customes whiche were committed before you: that ye defyle not your selues therwith for I am the Lorde your God.

¶ They that gyue of theyr seed to Moloch shall dye therfore. Other goodly lawes necessarye to be vsed in common wealthes.

CAPI. XX.

AND the Lorde talked with Moses, sayenge: tell the children of Israel, whosoeuer he be of the children of Israel or of the straungers that dwell in Israel, that gyueth of his sede vnto Moloch he shall dye for it: the people of the lande shall stone him w stones. And I will set my face vpon that felow, and will destroye him frome his people: because he hath gyuen of his seed vnto Moloch, to defyle my sanctuary and to polute my holy name. And thoughe the people of the lande hyde their eyes frome that felow, when he gyueth of his seed vnto Moloch, so that they kyll him not: yet I will put my face vpō that man and vpon his generacion, and will destroye him and all that goo a hoorynge with him and commit horedome with Moloch frō their people.

Yf any soule turne him to enchaunters or expounders of tokens and go a hoorynge after them, I will put my face vpon that soule and will destroye him frome his people. Sanctifye your selues therfore, and be holy, for I am ỳ Lorde youre God. And se ye kepe myne ordinaunces and do theym. For I am the Lorde which sanctifye you.

Who so euer curseth his father or mother, shal dye for it, his bloude on his head, because he hath cursed his father or mother.

He that breaketh wedlocke with an others mans wyfe shall dye for it, because he hathe broke wedlocke with his neyghbours wyfe, & so shall she lykewyse.

Yf a man lye with his fathers wyfe & vncouer his fathers secrettes, they shall bothe dye for it, their bloude be vpon their heedes.

Yf a man lye with his daughter in lawe they shall dye both of the: they haue wrought abhominacion, their bloude vpō their heedes.

Yf a man lye with mankynde after the maner as with woman kynde, they haue bothe committed abhominacion and shal dye for it. Their bloude be vpon their heades.

Yf a man take a wyfe and her mother therto, it is wyckednesse. Men shall burne with fyre both him and them, that there be no wickednesse amonge you.

Yf a man lye with a beast he shall dye, and ye shall slay the beast.

Yf a woman go vnto a beast and lye w̄one therto: thou shalte kyll the woman and the beast also, they shall dye, and their bloude be vpon their heades.

Yf a man take his sister, his fathers daughter or his mothers daughter, & se her secrettes and she se his secrettes also: it is a wycked thinge. Therfore let them perysshe in the sight of their people, he hath sene his sisters secretnesse, he shall therfore beare his synne.

Be holy vnto me, for I the Lorde am holy, and haue seuered you frome other nacions: that ye shulde be myne.

* Yf there be a man or woman that worketh with a spirite or that expoundeth tokēs, they shall dye for it. Men shall stone theym with stones, and their bloude shall be vpon them.

¶ The preest forbydden to be at the death of any of his people, a fewe of his kynne excepte. Preestes maye not be shaven neyther on the heade nor on the beарde. The preestes wyfe muste be a mayde. The preestes daughter maye not be an harlot.

CAPI. XXI.

A And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: speake vnto the preestes the sonnes of Aaron and saye vnto them. A preest shall not defyle him selfe at the death of any of his people, but vpon his kynne that is nyghe vnto him: as his mother, father, sonne, doughter and brother: and on his syster as longe as she is a mayde and dwelleth nyghe him and was neuer gyuen to man: on her he maye defyle him selfe. But he shal not make him selfe vncleane vpon a rular of his people to polute him selfe withall.

They shall make them no baldnesse vpon their heades or shaue of the lockes of their beardes, nor make any markes in their flesshe. They shall be holy vnto their God, and not polute the name of their God, for the sacrifices of the Lorde and the breed of their God they do offer: therfore they must be holy.

B They shall take no wyfe that is an hoore or poluted, or put frome her husbande: for a preest is holy vnto his God. Sanctifye hym therfore, for he offreth vp the bread of God: he shall therfore, be holy vnto the, for I the Lorde which sanctifie you, am holy.

C If a preestes doughter fall to play the hore she poluteth her father: therfore she shall be burnt with fyre.

D He that is the hyghe preest amonge his brethren vpon whose head the annoyntinge oyle was powred and whose hande was fylled to put on the vestimentes, shall not vncouer his head nor rent his clothes, neyther shall go to any dead body nor make him selfe vncleane: not on his father or mother, neyther shall go out of the sanctuary, that he defyle not the holy place of his God, for the crowne of the annoyntynge oyle of God, is vpon him. I am the Lorde. He shall take a mayde vnto his wyfe: but no wydow nor deuorsed nor defyled hore. But he shall take a mayde of his owne people to wyfe, that he defyle not his seed vpon his people: for I am the Lorde which sanctifye hym.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayenge / speake to Aaron, and saye: No mā of thy seed in their generacions that hath any defourmitie vpon him, shall preace to offer the bred of his God: for none that hath any blemyshe shall come nere: whether he be blynde, lame, snotnosed, or that hath any mishappen membre, or broken foted, or broken handed, or croke backed, or perleyed, or gogeleyed / or maungye, or skaulde, or hath his stones broken.

No man that is defourmed of the seed of Aaron the preest, shall come nyghe to offer the sacrifices of the Lorde. Yf he haue a defourmitie, he shall not preace to offer the bred of his God. Notwithstandinge he shall eate of the bred of his God: euen as well of the most holy, as of the holy: but shall not go in, vnto ỹ vayle, nor come nyghe the altare, because he is defourmed that he polute not my sanctuary / for I am the Lorde that sanctifye them. And Moses tolde it vnto Aaron and to his sonnes and vnto all the Children of Israel.

¶ What maner personnes ought to abstayne from eatynge the thynges that were offred. How, what, and when they shulde be offered.

CAPI. XXII.

And the Lorde comened with Moses, A sayenge: byd Aarō and his sonnes that they abstayne frome the halowed thinges of the children of Israel which they haue halowed vnto me, that they polute not my holy name: for I am the Lorde. Saye vnto them: who so euer he be of all youre seed amonge your generacion after you, that goeth vnto the halowed thinges which the children of Israel shall haue halowed vnto the Lorde, his vnclennes shall be vpon hym: and that soule shall perysshe forth of my sighte. I am the Lorde.

None of the seed of Aaron that is a leper or that hath a runnynge sore, shall eate of the halowed thinges tyll he be cleane. And whoso euer toucheth any vncleane soule, or man whose seed runneth frome him by nyghte, or who so euer toucheth any wormе that is vncleane to him, or man that is vncleane to him what so euer vnclennesse he hath: the same soule that hath any suche thinge, shall be vncleane vntyll euen, and shall not eate of the halowed thinges vntyll he haue washed his flesshe with water. And then when the sonne is downe, he shall be cleane and shall afterwarde eate of the halowed thinges: for they Exodi.xxii.d. are his fode. * Of a beast that dyeth alone or Ezech.xxiiii.g is rent with wylde beastes, he shall not eate, to defyle him selfe therwith: I am the Lord. But let them kepe therfore myne ordinaunce least they lade synne vpon them and dye therin, when they haue defyled them selues: for I am the Lorde which sanctify them.

There shall no straunger eate of the halowed thinges, neyther the preestes gest, or his hyred seruaunt. But yf the preest bye any person with money, he maye eate of it, and he also that is borne in his house, maye eate of his bred. Yf the preestes doughter be maryed vnto a straunger, she maye not eate of the halowed heueofringes. Notwithstandinge yf the preestes doughter be a wydow or deuorsed, and haue no childe but is returned vnto her fathers house agayne, she shall eate of her fathers bred as well as she dyd in her youth. But there shall no straunger eate therof. Yf a man eate of the halowed thinges vnwittingly, he shall put the fyfte parte thervnto, and make good vnto the preest ỹ halowed thinge. And let the preestes se, that they defyle not ỹ halo-halowed thynges of the childzen of Jsrael which they haue offred vnto the Lozde, least they lade them selues with mislwynge & trespace in eatynge their halowed thynges, for I am the Lozde which halowe them.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: speake to Aaron and his sonnes and to all ꝑ childzen of Jsrael and saye vnto them, whatso euer he be of the house of Jsrael or straunger in Jsrael that will offer his offerynge: what so euer vowe or freewyll offerynge it be whiche they wyll offer vnto the Lozde for a burntofferynge to reconcyle them selues, it must be a male without blemysh of the oxen, shepe, or gootes, let them offer nothyng that is defozmed for they shall gette no fauoure

Yf a man wyll offer a peaceoffrynge vnto the Lozde and seperate a vowe or a freewyll offerynge of the oxen or the flocke, it muste be without defozmyte, that it maye be accepted.

There maye be no blemyshe therin: whether it be blynde, broken, wounded or haue a wen, or be maungye or scabbed, se ye offer no suche vnto the Lozde, noz put an offerynge of any such vpon the autrare vnto the Lozde.

An oxe or a shepe that hathe any membze out of pzopozcion, maysle thou offer for a freewyll offerynge: but in a powe it shall not be accepted. Thou shalt not offer vnto the Lozd that is bzused, bzoken, plucked out or cutt awaye, neyther shalte make any suche in your lande, neyther of a straungers hande shall ye offer an offrynge to your God of any suche. For they marke al in that they haue defozmytes in them, and therfoze can not be accepted for you. And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: when an oxe, a shepe, or a goote is bzoughte forth, it shall be seuen dayes vnder the dame. And frome the eyght daye forth, it shall be accepted vnto a gyfte in the sacrifice of the Lozde. And whether it be oxe or shepe, ye shall not kyll it and her younge bothe in one daye.

When ye wyll offer a thanke offerynge vnto the Lozde, ye shal so offre it that ye may be accepted. And the same day, it must be eaten vp, so that ye leaue none of it tyl the mozow. For I am the Lozde, kepe now my commaundementes and do them, for I am the Lozde. And polute not my holy name, that I maye be halowed amonge the childzen of Jsrael. For I am the Lozde whiche halowe you, and bzought you out of the lande of Egypt, to be your God: for I am the Lozde.

¶ Of the holy dayes, as the Sabboth, Ester, whitsontyde, the feast of the fyrste frutes. The feaste of cleansynge. The feaste of Trompetes. The feast of the tabernacles.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the childzen of Jsrael and saye vnto them: when ye be come in to the lande which I gyue vnto you and repe doune youre harueste / ye shall bzynge a shefe of the fyrste frutes of youre harueste vnto the preeste, and he shall waue the shefe before the Lozde to be accepted for you: and euen the mozowe after the Sabboth the preeste shall waue it. And ye shall offer that daye when he waueth the shefe, a lambe without blemyshe of a yere olde for a burntofferynge vnto the Lozde: and the meatofferynge thereof, two tenthe deales of fyne floure mengled with oyle to be a sacryce vnto the Lozde of a swete sauoure: and the dzynkofferynge therto, the fourth deale of an hyn of wyne. And ye shall eate neyther bzeade, noz parched cozne, noz fyzmentye of new cozne: vntyl the selfe same daye that ye haue bzought an offerynge vnto your God. And this shallbe a lawe for euer vnto your childzen after you, wherseuer ye dwell.

And ye shall counte frome the mozowe after the Sabboth: euen frome the daye that ye bzought the shefe of the waueoffryng. vij. wekes complete: euen vnto the mozowe after the seuen wekes, ye shal nombze. l. dayes. And ye shall make a proclamacion the same daye, that it be an holy feast vnto you, and ye shall do no labozious wozke therin: And it shal be a law for euer thozow out all your habitacions vnto your childzen after you.

* When ye repe downe your harueste, thou shalt not make clene rydd aunce of thy feloe, neither

And the Lozde spake vnto Moſes, sayenge: speake vnto the childzen of Israel, and saye. The firſt daye of the ſeuenth moneth shall be a reſt of remembzaunce vnto you, to blowe hoznes in, an holy feaſt it shalbe, and ye shal do no labozious wozke therin, and ye shal offer sacrifice vnto the Lozde.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moſes sayenge: E also the tenthe daye of the ſelfe ſeuenth moneth, is a daye of attonement, and shal be an holy feaſt vnto you, and ye shal humble youre ſoules and offer sacrifice vnto the Lozde. Moreouer ye shal do no wozke the ſame daye, foz it is a daye of attonement to make an attonment foz you before the Lozde your God. Foz what ſo euer ſoule it be that humbleth not him ſelfe that daye, he shall be deſtroyed frome his people. And what ſo euer ſoule do any maner wozke that daye, the ſame I will deſtroye frome his people. Se ye do no maner wozke therfoze. And it shalbe a lawe foz euer vnto your generacions after you in all youre dwellynges. A Sabboth of reſte it shalbe vnto you, and ye shall humble your ſoules. Euen dayes ye shall offer ſacrifice vnto the Lozde, and the. viij. daye shalbe an holy feaſt vnto you, and ye shall offer ſacrifice vnto the Lozde. It is the ende of the feaſt, and ye shal do no labozious wozke therin.

These are the feaſtes of the Lozde whiche ye shall proclayme holy feaſtes, foz to offer ſacrifice vnto the Lozde, burntoffrynges, meatoffrynges and dzinkeoffrynges euery daye: beſyde the Sabbothes of the Lozde, and beſyde your gyftes, and all your bowes, and al your frewilloffrynges which ye shall gyue vnto the Lozde.

And se that no man oppzesse his neyghboure, but feare thy God. For I am the Lorde youre God. Wherfore doo after myne ordinaunces, and kepe my lawes, and doo them, that ye maye dwell in the lande in safetye. And the lande shall gyue her frute, and ye shall eate youre fyll and dwell therin in safetye.

Yf ye shall saye: what shall we eate the seuenth yere, in as moche as we shall not sowe, nor gather in oure encrease. I wyll sende my blessyng vpon you in the syxte yere, and it shall bzynge forthe frute for thze yeres: and ye shall sowe the eyghte yere, and eate of olde frute vntyll the nynth yere, and euen vntyll her frutes come, ye shall eate of olde stooze.

Wherfore the lande shall not be solde for euer, bycause that the lande is myne, and D ye but straungers and sotourners with me: and ye shall throwe oute all the lande of youre possession, let the lande goo home free agayne.

✶ When thy brother is waxed pooze, and hath solde of his possession: yf any of his kin come to redeme it, he shall bye out that whiche his brother solde. And though he haue no man to redeme it for hym, yet yf his hand can get sufficient to bye it out agayne, then let hym counte how longe it hath be solde, and delyuer the rest vnto hym to whome he solde it, and so he shall returne vnto his possession agayne. But yf his hande can not get sufficyent to restore it to hym agayne, then that whiche is solde shall remayne in the hande of hym that hathe boughte it, tyll the Jubelye: and in the yere of Jubelye it shall come oute, and he shall retourne vnto his possession agayne.

Yf a man sell a dwellynge house in a walled citye, he maye bye it oute agayne anye tyme within a hole yere after it is solde: and that shall be the space in whiche he maye redeme it agayne.

But yf it be not bought out agayne with- E in the space of a full yere, then the house in the walled citye shall be stablysshed for euer vnto hym that boughte it, and to his succes- sours after hym, and shall not goo out in the yere of Jubelye. But the houses in vyllages whiche haue no walles rounde aboute them shall be counted lyke vnto the feldes of the countrey, and maye be boughte oute agayne at any season, and shall goo oute free in the yere of Jubelye.

Notwithstandynge the cityes of the Leuytes and the houses in the cytyes of theyr possessions, the Leuytes maye redeme at all seasons. And yf a man purchase oughte of the Leuytes: whether it be house or city that they possesse, the bargayne shall goo oute in the yere of Jubelye: for the houses of the cityes of the Leuytes, are theyr possessyons amonge the chyldren of Israel. But the feldes that lye rounde aboute theyr cytyes, shall not be bought: for they are theyr possessyons for euer.

F Yf thy brother be waxed poore and fallen in decaye with the, receyue hym as a straunger or a soiourner, and lette hym lyue by the. * And thou shalte take none vsurye of hym, nor gaynes. But shalte feare thy God, that thy brother maye lyue with the. Thou shalte not lende hym thy money vpon vsurye, nor lende hym of thy fode to haue gaynes by it: for I am the Lorde youre God whiche haue brought you forth of the lande of Egypte. to gyue you the land of Canaan and to be your God.

Yf thy brother that dwelleth by the, wexe poore and sell him selfe vnto the, thou shalte not let him labour, as a bondseruaunt doeth: but as an hyred seruaunte, and as a soiourner he shall be with, and shall serue the, vnto the yere of Iubelye, and then shal ye departe from the: bothe he and his chyldren with hym, and shall returne vnto his owne kynred agayne and vnto the possessions of his fathers: for they are my seruauntes whiche I brought out of the lande of Egypte, and shall not be solde as bondmen.

Se therfore thou raygne not ouer him cruelye, but feare thy God. Yf thou wilte haue bondseruauntes and maydens, thou shalte bye them of the heythen that are rounde about you, and of the chyldren of the straungers that are soiourners amonge you and of theyr generations that are with you, whiche they begate in your lande And ye shal possesse them and gyue them vnto youre chyldren after you, to possesse them for euer: and they shall be youre bondemen. * But ouer your brethren the chyldren of Israel, ye shall not raygne one ouer an other cruelly.

G When a straunger and a soiourner waxeth ryche by the, and thy brother that dwelleth by him waxeth poore and sell him selfe vnto the straunger that dwelleth by the, or to anye of the straungers kynne: after that he is solde he maye be redemed agayne: one of his brethren maye bye hym oute: whether it be his vncle or his vncles sonne, or any that is nye of kynne vnto hym of his kynred: eyther yf his hande can get so moche, he maye be loosed.

And he shal recken with hym that bought hym frome the yere in whiche he was solde, vnto the yere of Iubelye, and the pryce of his brynge shall be accordynge to the nombre of yeres, and he shall be with hym as a hyred seruaunt.

Yf there be yet many yeres behynde, accordynge vnto them he shall gyue agayne for his delyueraunce, of the money that he was solde for.

Yf there remayne but fewe yeres vnto the yere of Iubelye, he shall so counte with hym, and accordynge vnto his yeres gyue hym agayne for his redemption, and shall be with hym yere by yere as an hyred seruaunte, and the other shall not raygne cruelly ouer hym in thy syght. Yf he be not bought free in the meane tyme, then he shall go out in the yere of Iubelye and his chyldren with him: for the chyldren of Israel are my seruauntes whiche I brought out of the lande of Egypte.

CAPI. XXVI.

I Am the Lorde your God. Ye shal make you no ydolles nor grauen ymage, neyther reare you vp anye pyller, neyther ye shall set vp any ymage of stone in your lande to bowe your selues therto: for I am the Lorde your God: kepe my Sabothes and feare my sanctuarye: for I am the Lorde. A

Yf ye shall walke in myne ordinaunces and kepe my cõmaundementes and do them, then I will sende you rayne in the ryght season, & youre lande shall yelde her encrease and ẏ trees of the felde shall gyue their frute. And the threshynge shall reache vnto wyne haruest, & the wyneharuest shall reache vnto sowinge tyme, and ye shall eate youre breed in plenteousnes, and shall dwell in youre lande peasably. And I will sende peax in your lande, that ye shall slepe, and no man shall make you afrayde.

And I will ryd cuyll beastes out of youre lande, and there shall no swerde goo thorowe out your lande. And ye shall chace your ennemyes, and they shall fall before you vpon the swerde. And fyue of you shall chace an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten thousande to flyghte, and your ennemyes shal fall before you vpon the swerde. And I wyll tourne vnto you and encrease you and multiplye you, and set vp my testament with you. And ye shall eate olde stoare, and caste out the olde for plenteousnes of the newe. * I wyll make my dwellynge place amonge you, and my soule shall not lothe you. And I wyll walke amonge you, and wyll be youre God, and ye shall be my people. For I am the Lorde your God, whiche brought you out of the lande of the Egyptians, that ye should not be theyr bondmen, and I brake the bowes of youre yockes, and made you goo vpryght. B * ii. Cor. vi. b Exodi. xxix g

* But yf ye will not herken vnto me, nor will do all these my commaundementes, or yf ye shall despyse myne ordinaunces, eyther yf your soules refuse my lawes, so that ye wyll not do all my commaundementes, but shall breake myne appoyntement: then I will do this agayne vnto you: I will vysyt you with veracions, swellinge and feuers, that shall make your eyes dasell, and with sorowes of herte. And ye shall sowe youre seed in vayne / for your ennemyes shall eate it. And I will set my face againste you, and ye shall fall before your ennemyes, and they that hate you shall rayne ouer you, and ye shall flee when no man pursueth you. * De. xxviii. b. Gala. iii. b. C

And yf ye will not yet for all this herken vnto me, then will I punysh you seuẽ tymes more for youre synnes, and wyll breake the pryde of youre strengthe. For I will make the heauen ouer you as harde as yron, & your lande as harde as braſſe. And ſo your laboure ſhalbe ſpent in vayne. For your lande ſhall not gyue her encreaſe, neyther the trees of the lande ſhall gyue their frutes.

And yf ye walke contrary vnto me and will not herken vnto me, I will bringe seuen tymes mo plages vpon you accordynge to your ſynnes. I will sende in, wylde beaſtes vpon you, which ſhall ſpoyle you of your childzen and deſtroye your catel, and make you ſo few in nombze that youre highe wayes ſhal grow to a wyldernesſe.

D And yf ye wyll not be lerned yet, for all this, but ſhal walke contrarye vnto me, then will I alſo walke contrarye vnto you, and wyll punnyſh you yet seuen tymes for youre ſynnes. I wyll ſende a ſwerde vpon you, that ſhall auenge my teſtament with you. And when ye are fled vnto youre cytyes, I wyll ſende the peſtilence amonge you, ye ſhalbe gyuen into the handes of your ennemyes. And when I haue broken the ſtaffe of youre bred / that. x. wyues ſhall bake your bred in one ouen and men ſhall delyuer you your breed agayne by weyght, then ſhall ye eate and ſhal not be fylled.

And yf ye will not yet for all this, herken vnto me, but ſhall walke contrary vnto me, then I will walke contrarye vnto you alſo, wzathfully and will alſo punyſhe you seuen tymes for your ſynnes: ſo that ye ſhall eate þ fleſſhe of your ſonnes and the fleſſhe of youre doughters. And I will deſtroye your altares buylt vpon hyghe hylles, & ouerthzowe your ymages, and caſt your carkaſes vpon the bodyes of your ydolles, and my ſoule ſhall abhorre you. And I will make your cyties deſolate, & bzynge your ſanctuaries vnto nought, and will not ſmel the ſauoures of your ſwete odoures.

And I will bzinge the lande vnto a wyldernesſe: ſo that your enemyes whiche dwell therin, ſhall wondze at it. And I will straw you amonge the hethen, and will drawe out a ſwerde after you, and youre lande ſhall be waſt, and your cyties deſolate. Then the lād ſhall reioyſe in her Sabbothes, as longe as it lyeth voyde and ye in your ennemies lande euen then ſhall the lande kepe holy daye and reioyſe in her Sabbothes. And as longe as it lyeth voyde it ſhall reſt, for that it coulde not reſte in youre Sabbothes, when ye dwelte therein.

And vpon them that are left alyue of you I will ſende a faynтnelle in to their hertes in the lande of their ennemyes: ſo that þ ſound of a leef that falleth, ſhall chace them & they ſhall flee as thoughe they fled a ſwerde, and ſhall fall no man folowinge them. And they ſhall fal one vpon an other, as it were before a ſwerde no man purſuyng them, and ye ſhal haue no power to ſtande before youre ennemyes: And ye ſhall perysſhe amonge the heythen, and the lande of youre ennemyes ſhall eate you vp.

And they that are left of you, ſhall pyne awaye in their vnrighteouſnes, euen in their ennemyes lande, and alſo in the miſdeades of their fathers ſhall they conſume. And they ſhall confeſſe their miſdedes, and the myſdedes of their fathers in their treſpaces whiche they haue treſpaced againſt me, and for that alſo that they haue walked cōtrary vnto me. Therfore I alſo will walke contrarye vnto them, and will bzynge them into the lande of their ennemyes. And then at leeſt waye their vncircumcyſed hertes ſhall be tamed, & then they ſhall make attonement for their myſdedes. G

And I will remembze my bonde with Jacob and my couenant with Iſaac, and my teſtament with Abzaham, and will thinke on ỹ lande. For the lande ſhall be left of them and ſhall haue pleaſure in her Sabbothes, whyle ſhe lyeth waſt without them, and they ſhall make an attonement for their miſdedes, becauſe they deſpiſed my lawes and their ſoules refuſed myne ordinaunces. And yet for al that when they be in the lande of their ennemye, *D
* I will not ſo caſt them awaye nor my ſoule ſhall not ſo abhorre them, that I will vtterly deſtroye them, and breake myne appointement with theym: for I am the Lorde their God. I will therfore remembze vnto them the firſte couenaunte made when I brought them out of the lande of Egypte in the ſight of the heythen to be their God: for I am the Lorde.

Theſe are the ordinaunces, iudgementes, and lawes whiche the Lorde made betwene hym and the childzen of Iſrael in mount Sinai by the hande of Moſes.

CAPI. XXVII.

AND the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayenge/ ſpeake vnto the childzen of Iſrael and ſaye vnto them: Yf any mā wil gyue a ſinguler vowe vnto the Lorde accordynge to the value of his ſoule, then ſhal the male frome twenty yere vnto. lx. be ſet at. l. * ſycles of ſyluer, after the ſycle of the ſanctuary, and the female at. xxx. ſycles. And frō v. yeres to. xx. the male ſhall be ſet at. xx. ſycles, and the female at. x. ſycles. And frome a moneth vnto. v. yere, the male ſhall be ſet at. v. ſycles of ſiluer, and the female at thze. And the man that is. lx. and aboue, ſhalbe valued at. xv. ſycles, and the woman at. x. Yf he be to poze ſo to be ſet, thē let him come before the prieaſt: and let the prieaſt value him, accordynge as the hande of him that vowed is able to get. *Exo. 30. A B

Yf it be of the beaſtes of which men bzinge an offrynge vnto the Lorde: all that any mā gyueth of ſuche vnto the Lorde, ſhalbe holy. He maye not alter it nor chaunge it: a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. Yf he chaunge beaſt for beaſt, then both the ſame beaſt and it alſo wherwith it was chaunged ſhalbe holy. Yf it be any maner of vncleane beaſt of which men maye not offer vnto the Lorde, let hym bzinge the beaſt before the prieaſt and let the

preast value it. And whether it be good or bad as the preast setteth it, so shall it be. And yf he will bye it agayne, let him gyue the fyfte parte more to that it was set at.

Yf any man dedicate his house, it shall be holy vnto the Lorde. And the preast shall set it, whether it be good or bad, and as ꝑ preast hath set it, so it shall be. Yf he that sanctified it, wil redeme his house, let him gyue the fift parte of the money that it was iuged at therto, and it shalbe his.

Yf a man halowe a pece of his enheryted lande vnto the Lorde, it shall be set according to that it beareth. Yf it beare an homer of barley, it shall be set at fyftye sycles of syluer. Yf he bowe his lande forthwith from the yere of Jubely, it shalbe worthe accordynge as it is estemed. But yf he halowe his felde after the trompet yere, the preast shall recken the pryce with him accordynge to the peres ꝑ remayne vnto the trompet yere, and therafter, it shall be lower set.

Yf he that sanctifyed the felde will redeme it agayne, let him put the fyfte parte of the pryce that it was set at thervnto, and it shall be his, yf he will not, it shall be redemed no more. But when the felde goeth out in ꝑ yere of Jubylye, it shalbe holy vnto the Lorde: euen as a thinge dedycated, and it shall be the preastes possession.

Yf a man sanctifie vnto ꝑ Lorde a felde, whiche he hath boughte and is not of his enherytaunce, then the preast shall reken with hym what it is worth vnto the yere of Jubyly, and he shall gyue the pryce that it is set at ꝑ same daye, and it shalbe holy vnto the Lorde. But in the yere of Jubely, the felde shall returne vnto him of whome he bought it, whose enherytaunce of lande it was.

And all settynge shall be accordynge to the holy sycle. One sycle maketh. xx. Geras.

But the fyrst borne of the beastes that pertayne vnto the Lorde, maye no man sanctifye whether it be ore or shepe, for they are ꝑ Lordes alredy. Yf it be an vncleane beaste, then let him redeme it as it is set at, and gyue the fyfte parte more therto. Yf it be not redemed then let it be solde as it is rated.

Notwithstandynge no dedycated thynge ꝑ a man dedycateth vnto the Lorde, of all his good, whether it be man or beast or lande of his enheritaunce, shalbe solde or redemed: for all dedicate thinges are moste holy vnto the Lorde. No dedicate thinge therfore that is dedicate of man, may be redemed, but must nedes dye.

All these tythes of the lande, whether it be of the corne of the felde or frute of the trees, shalbe holy vnto the Lorde. Yf any man will redeme ought of his tythes, let him adde the fyfte parte more therto. And the tythes of ore and shepe and of all that goth vnder the heerdmans keppynge, shall be holy tythes vnto the Lorde. Men shal not loke yf it be good or bad nor shall chaunge it. Yf any man chaunge it then both it and that it was chaunged with all, shalbe holy and may not be redemed.

CAPI. V.

AND the Lorde spake to Moses, sayeng: commaunde the childzen of Israel they put forth of the hoste, all lepers, and all that haue yssues, and all that are defiled vpon the ded, whether they be males or females ye shal put them out of the hoste, that they defile not the tentes among which I dwell. And the childzen of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the hoste, as the Lorde commaunded Moses so dyd the childzen of Israel.

And ℣ Lord spake to Moses, sayeng: speake vnto the childzen of Israel: whether it be man or woman, when they haue synned anye maner synne whiche a man doeth wherwith a man trespaceth agaynst the Lorde: so that the soule hathe doone amisse: then they knowe lege theyr synnes whiche they haue done, and restore agayne the hurte that they haue wonne in the hole, and put the fifte parte of it more therto, and gyue it him whom he hath trespaced agaynst. But yf he that maketh the amendes haue no man to doo it to, then the amendes that is made shall be the Lordes, and the preestes, beside the ramme of the attonement offeryng, wherwith he maketh attonement for him selfe. And all the fyrste frutes whiche the childzen of Israel bryng vnto the preest, ℣ shall be the preestes, and euery mannes halowed thynges shall be his owne, but what so euer any man gyueth the preest, it shall be the preestes.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: Speake to the childzen of Israel, and shewe Thi them. Yf any mannes wyfe goo a syde and Gre trespase agaynste hym, so that an other man lye with her fleshelye and the thynge be hyd frome the eyes of her husbande and is not come to lyghte that she is defyled (for there is no wytnesse agaynste her) in as moche as she was not taken with the manor, and the spyryte of gelousye cometh vpon him and he is gelouse ouer his wyfe and she defyled, or happelye the spyryte of gelousy cometh vpon him, and he is gelouse ouer his wyfe, and she yet vndefyled. Then let her husbande bryng her vnto the preeste, and bryng an offeryng for her: the tenthe parte of an Epha of barlye meele, but he shall poure none oyle therunto, nor put franckencens theron: for it is an offeryng of gelousye, and an offerenge that maketh remembraunce of synne.

And let the preeste bryng her and sette her before the Lorde, and let him take holy water in an erthē vessel and of the dust that is in the floure of the habitacion, and put it in to the ℒ water. And the preeste shall set the wife before the Lorde and vncouer her heade, and put the memorial of the offeryng in her handes

whiche is the gelousye offering, and the preest shal haue bitter and curling water in his hand and he shal coniure her, and shal saye vnto her Yf no man hathe lyen with the, neyther haste gone aside and defyled thy selfe behynde thy husbande, then haue thou no harme of this bytter curlynge water.

But yf thou hast gone aside behynde thyne husbande, and art defyled, and some other mā hath lyen with the beside thyne husband (and let the preest coniure her with the coniuracion of the curse, and saye vnto her) the Lord make the a curse and a coniuracion among thy people: so that the Lorde make thy thyghe rotte, and thy belye swell, and this bytter curlyng water goo in to the bowels of the, that thy belye swell, and thy thyghe rotte, and the wyfe shal saye: Amen Amen.

And the preest shal wrype this curse in a byll and walshe it oute in the bytter water. And when the curlynge water is in her, then lette the preest take the gelousyofferynge out of the wyues hande, and waue it before the Lorde, and bringe it vnto the aulter: and he shall take an handfull of the memoryallofferynge, and burne it vpon the aulter, and then make her drynke the water, and when he hath made her drynke the water: Yf she be defyled, and haue trespased agaynste her husbande, then shall the curlynge water goo in to her and be so bytter that her belye shall swell, and her thygh shal rotte, and she shal be a curse among her people: That yf she be not defiled but is clene, then she shal haue no harme, but that she may conceyue.

This is the lawe of gelousye, when a wyfe goeth aside behynde her husbande and is defiled, or when the spirete of gelousye commeth vpon a mā, so that he is gelouse ouer his wife, then he shall bringe her before the Lorde, and the preest shal minister all this lawe vnto her, and the man shalbe giltlesse, and the wife shal beare her synne.

¶ The lawe of the Nazarees that toke vpon them abstynence. The maner of blessynge the people.

CAPI. VI.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when a man or woman appoynteth to bowe a bowe of abstinence for to absteyne vnto the Lorde, he shal absteyne from wyne and stronge drynke, and shall drynke no vynegre of wyne or of strong drynke, nor shal drynke what so euer is pressed out of grapes: and shal eate no fresh grapes, neyther yet dryed as longe as his abstinence endureth. Moreouer he shal eate nothing that is made of the vyne tree, not so moche as the kynnels or the huske of the grape.

And as long as the bowe of his abstinence endureth, there shall no rasure nor sheeres come vpon his heed, vntyll his dayes be runne out whiche he fasteth vnto the Lorde, and he shall be holye, and shall let the lockes of his heere growe. As longe as he absteyneth vnto the Lorde, he shall come at no deed dodye he shall not make hym selfe vncleane at the deathe of his father, mother, brother or syster: for the abstynence of his God is vpon his heed. And therfore as longe as his abstynence lasteth, he shall be holye vnto the Lorde.

And yf it fortune that any man by chaunce dye sodeynly before hym, and defile the heed of his abstinence, then muste he shaue his heed the daye of his clensynge: euen the seuenth daye he shall shaue it. And the eyght daye he shall bringe two turtles, or two yonge pygyons to the preest, vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Preest shall offre thone for a synneofferynge and thother for a burntofferynge, and make attonement for hym in that he synned vpon the deed, and shal also halowe his heed the same daye, and shall absteyne vnto the Lorde the tyme of his abstinencye, and shall bringe a lambe of a yere old for a trespaceofferyng: but the dayes that were before are loste, bicause his abstinenencie was defiled.

This is the lawe of the absteyner, when the tyme of his abstynence is runne oute, he shall be broughte vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall bringe his offeryng vnto the Lorde: an he lambe of a yere olde without spotte for a burntofferynge and a she lambe of a yere olde without blemysshe for a synofferynge, a ramme without blemysh also for a peaceofferynge, and a basket of swete breed of fyne flour myngled with oyle and wafers of swete breed anoynted with oyle with meatofferynges and drynkofferynges that belonge therto.

And the preest shall bringe him before the Lorde and offre his synofferyng and his burnt offerynge, and shall offre that ramme for a peaceofferynge vnto the Lorde with a basket of swete breed, and the Preeste shall offre also his meatofferyng and his drynkofferyng. And the absteyner shall shaue his heed in the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall take the heere of his sober heed and put it in that fyre whiche is vnder the peaceofferynge.

Then the Preeste shall take the sodden shoulder, of the ramme and one swete cake oute of the basket, and one swete wafer also, and put them in the hande of the absteyner after he hathe shauen his abstinence of, and the Preeste shall waue them vnto the Lorde, whiche offerynge shall be holy vnto the preest, with the wauebrest and heue shoulder: & then the absteyner may drynke wyne.

This is the lawe of the Nazaree whiche hathe vowed his abstynence vnto the Lorde for his abstinence, besydes that his hande can gette. And accordynge to the vowe whiche he vowed, so he muste do in the lawe of his abstynence.

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge speake to Aaron and his sonnes, sayinge: of this wyse ye shall blesse the chyldren of Israel sayinge vnto them.

¶ The disposicion and order of the lampes. The forme of the candelstycke. The cleansynge and offerynge of the Leuites. The age of the same.

CAPI. VIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saynge: speake vnto Aaron, and say vnto him: * when thou puttest on the lampes, se they lyghte all seuen vpon the forefront of the candelstycke. And Aaron did accordingly and put the lampes vpon the forefront of the candelstycke, as the Lorde comaunded Moses, and the worke of the candelstycke was of stuffe golde, bothe the shafte and the floures therof. And accordynge vnto the vision which the Lorde had shewed Moses, so he made the candelstycke. A

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: take the Leuites forth of the chyldren of Israel, and clense them. And this do vnto them when thou clensest them, syrynele water of purifyenge vpon them, and make a rasure to runne alonge vpon all the flesshe of them, B and let them walshe theyr clothes, and then they shall be clene. And let them take a bullok and his meatofferynge fyne flour mingled with oyle: and an other bullocke shalt thou take to be a synofferynge.

Then bringe the Leuytes before the tabernacle of wytnesse, and gather the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel togyther. And bringe the Leuytes before the Lorde, and let the chyldren of Israel, put theyr handes vpon the Leuytes. And lette Aaron heue the Leuytes before the Lorde for an heue offerynge gyuen of the chyldren of Israel, and then let them be appoynted to wayte vpon the seruice of the Lorde.

And let the Leuytes put theyr handes vpon the heedes of the bullockes, and then offre the: the one for a synofferynge, and the other for a burntofferynge before the Lorde, to make attonement for the Leuytes. And make the Leuytes stande before Aaron and his sonnes, and heue them to be an heueofferynge vnto the Lorde. And thou shalte separat the Leuytes from amonge the chyldren of Israel, that they be myne: and after that let them goo and doo the seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

C Clense them, and halow them, for they are gyuen me frome amonge the chyldren of Israel for * I haue taken them vnto me for all the firstborne that open the matrice amonge the chyldren of Israel.

*Num. iii. c.

*Exod. xiii. a

* For all the fyrstborne amonge the chyldren of Israel are myne bothe man and beast, bycause the same tyme that I smote the firste borne in the lande of Egypte, I sanctifyed them for my selfe: and I haue taken the Leuytes for all the fyrstborne amonge the chyldren of Israel, and haue gyuen them vnto Aaron and his sonnes for the of the chyldren of Israel, to doo the seruyce of the chyldren of Israel in the tabernacle of wytnesse, and to make an attonement for the chyldren of Israel, that there be no plage among the chyldren of Israel, yf they come nye vnto the sanctuarye.

D And Moses and Aaron and all the congregacion of the chyldren of Israel dyd vnto the Leuytes accordynge vnto all that the Lorde comaunded Moses. And the Leuytes clensed them selues, and walshed theyr clothes. And Aaron offered them before the Lorde, and make an attonement for them to clense them. And after that, they went in to doo theyr seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, before Aaron and his sonnes. And accordynge as the Lorde had commaunded Moses concernyng the Leuytes, euen so they dyd vnto them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: This shal be the maner of the Leuytes: frome. xxv. yere vpwarde, they shall go in, to wayte vpon the seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, and at fifty they shall cease wayting vpon the seruyce of therof, and shall laboure no more, but shall minister vnto theyr brethre in the tabernacle of witnesse, and there wayte but shall do no more seruyce. And se thou doo after this maner vnto the Leuytes, in theyr waytynge tymes.

¶ The Ester or passouer offerynge of the cleane and vncleane. A cloude couerynge the tabernacle leadeth the hoste.

CAPI. IX.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the wildernesse of Sinai, in the firste moneth of the seconde yere after they * were come out of the lande of Egypt, sayinge: let the chyldren of Israel offre Passeouer in his season, euen the. xiiij. daye of this moneth at euen, they shall kepe it in his season, accordynge to the ordinaunces and maners therof. And Moses bad the chyldren of Israel that they sholde offre Passeouer, and they offered Passeouer the. xiiij. daye of the firste moneth at euen in the wyldernesse of Sinai: and dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses:

And it chaunced that certayne men whiche were defiled with a deed corse, so that they myghte not offre Passeouer the same daye, came before Moses and Aaron the same time and sayde: We are defiled vpon a deed corse, wherfore are we kepte backe that we maye not offre an offerynge vnto the Lorde in the due season, amonge the chyldren of Israel? And Moses sayde vnto them: tarye, that I maye heare what the Lorde wyll commaunde you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye. Yf any man amonge you or youre chyldren after you, be vncleane by the reason of a corse, or is in the waye ferre of, then let hym offre Passeouer vnto the Lorde, the fourtene daye of the seconde moneth at euen, and eate it with swete breed and sour herbes, and let them leaue none of it vnto the morynge, nor breake any bone of it. And accordynge to all the ordynaunce of the Passouer lette them offre it.

But yf a man be cleane and not lette in a iourney, and yet was negligent to offre Passeouer: the same soule shall perysshe frome his people, bicause he broughte not an offerynge vnto the Lorde in his due season: and he shal beare his synne. And when a strounger dwelleth among you, and wyll offre Passeouer vnto the Lorde, accordynge to the ordinaunce of Passeouer and maner therof shall he offre it. And ye shall haue one law both for the straunger, and for hym that was borne at home in the lande.

And the same daye that the habitacion was reared vp, a cloude couered it an hye vpon the tabernacle of wytnesse: and at euen there was vpon the habitacion, as it were the lykenesse of fyre vntyll the morynge. And so it was alwaye, that the cloude couered it by day and the symilitude of fyre by night. And when the cloude was taken vp frome the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Israel iourneyed/and where the cloude abode, there the chyldren of Israel pytched theyr tentes. At the mouthe of the Lorde the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, and at the mouth of the Lorde they pytched. And as long as the cloude abode vpon the habitacion, they laye styll, and when the cloude taryed styll vpon the habitacion longe tyme, the chyldren of Israel wayted vpon the Lorde and iourneyed not.

Yf it chaunsed that the cloude abode anye space of tyme vpon the habitacion, then they kepte theyr tentes at the mouth of the Lorde: and they iourneyed also at the cõmaundement of the Lord. And if it happened that the cloude was vpon the habytacyon frome euen vnto morning, and was taken vp in that morning, then they iourneyed. Whether it was by daye or by nyghte that the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. But when the cloude taryed two dayes, or a moneth, or a longe season vpon the habytacyon, as longe as it taryed theron, the chyldren of Israel kepte theyr tentes, and iourneyed not. And as soone as the cloude was taken vp they iourneyed. At the mouthe of the Lorde they rested, and at the commaundement of the Lorde they iourneyed. And thus they kepte the watche of the Lorde, at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

¶ The Trompettes of syluer, and the vse therof. The Israelytes departe frome Sinai. The captaynes of the hoste are nombred. Hobab refuseth to go with Moses.

CAPI. X.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Make the two trompettes of beaten syluer, that thou mayst vse them to call the company togyther, and when the host shall iourney. When they blowe with them, all the companye shall resorte to the vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. Yf but one trompet blowe onely, then the prynces which are heedes ouer thousandes of Israel shall come vnto the. And when ye trompe the fyrste tyme, the hostes that lye on the east partes shall go forwarde.

And when ye trompe the seconde tyme, then the hostes that lye on the south syde shal take theyr iourney: for they shal trompe whe they take theyr iourneys. And in gatherynge the congregacion togyther, ye shall blowe and not trompe. And the sonnes of Aaron the Preestes shall blowe the trompettes, and shall haue them, and it shall be a lawe vnto you for euer, and amonge youre chyldren after you.

And when ye shall goo to warre in youre lande agaynste youre ennemyes that vexe you ye shall trompe with the trompettes, and ye shall be remembred before the Lorde your god and saued frome youre ennemyes. Also when ye be merye in your feest dayes, and in the fyrste dayes of youre monethes, ye shall blowe the trompettes ouer your burnt sacrifices & peaxofferynges, that it may be a remembraunce of you before youre God. I am the Lorde your God.

And it came to passe the twentye daye of the seconde moneth in the seconde yere that the cloude was take vp from the tabernacle of witnesse. And the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iourney out of the wyldernesse of Sinai, and the cloud rested in the wyldernesse of Pharan And they fyrste toke theyr iourney at ꝑ mouth of the Lorde by the hand of Moses: euen the standarde of the hoste of Juda remoued with theyr armyes, whose capytayne was Nahason sonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the chyldren of Issachar, was Nathanael the sonne of Zuar. And ouer the hoste of the tryde of the chyldren of Zabulon was Eliab the sonne of Helon. And the habitacyon was taken downe: and the sonnes of Gerson and Merari went forth bearynge the tabernacle.

Then the standerd of the hoste of Ruben went forthe with theyr armyes, whose capytayne was Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoste of the tryde of the chyldren of Symeon: was Samaliel the sonne of Suri Saddai. And ouer the hoste of the tryde of the chyldren of Gad: was Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel. Then the Cahathytes went forwarde and bare the holy thynges, and the other dyd set vp the habitacion agaynste theyr commynge.

Then the standard of the hoste of the chyldrē of Ephraim went forth with their armies whose capitayne was Elisama the sonne of Amiud. And ouer the hoste of the tryde of the sonnes of Manasse, was Gamaliel the sonne of Pedazur. And ouer the hoste of the tryde of the sonnes of Ben Jamin, was Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni.

And hyndermoost of all the hoste, came the standarde of the hoste of the chyldren of Dan with theyr armies whose capitayne was Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Saddai. And ouer the hoste of the tryde of the chyldren Aser was ꝑ Pagiel the sonne of Ochran. And ouer the hoste of the tryde of the chyldren of Nephthali, was Ahira the sonne of Enan: In this maner were the iourneys of the chyldren of Israel with theyr armyes when they remoued.

And Moses sayd vnto Hobab the sonne of Raguel the Madianyte, Moses father in lawe: We goo vnto the place of whiche the Lorde sayde, I wyll gyue it you. Goo with vs, and we wyll do the good: for the Lorde hath promysed good vnto Israel. And he sayd vnto hym: I wyll not, but wyll go to myne owne lande, and to my kynred. And Moses sayde: oh naye, leaue vs not, for thou knowest where is best for vs to pytche in the wildernesse, and thou shalte be oure gyde. And yf thou goo with vs, loke what goodnesse the Lorde sheweth vpon vs, the same we wyll shewe vpon the.

And they departed frome the mounte of the Lorde thre dayes iourney, and the arke of the testament of the Lorde wente before them in the thre dayes iourney, to serche out a restyng place for them. And the cloude of the Lorde was ouer them by day when they went forth of the tentes.

And when the Arcke wente forthe, Moses sayde, Ryse vp Lorde, and let thyne enemyes be scattered, and let them that hate the, flee before the. And when the arke rested, he sayd: returne (Lorde) vnto the manye thousandes of Israel.

¶ The people murmureth and is punysched with fyre. They desyre flesshe. They loothe Manna. The murmurynge and wauerynge kynde of Moses. The Lorde dyuydethe the burden of Moses to seuentye of the auncyentes, and they prophesye. Eldad and Medad doo also prophesye in the hoste. It rayneth quayles. The flesshe raueners are punysched.

CAPI. XI.

A AND the people complayned, and it displeased the eares of the Lorde. And when the Lorde herd it, he was wroth, and the fire of the Lorde burnt amonge them, and consumed the vttermost of the hoste. And the people cryed vnto Moses, and he made sute vnto the Lorde, and the fire quenched. And they called the name of the place Thabarah, because the fire of the Lorde burnt amonge them.

And the common sorte of people that was amonge them fell a lustynge. And the chyldren of Israel also wente to, and wepte and sayde: who shall gyue vs flesshe to eate? we remembre the fysshe whiche we sholde eate in
B Egypte for nought, and of the Cucumbres and melouns, lekes, onyons, and garlyke. But nowe oure soules are dryed awaye, for our eyes loke on nothynge elles, saue vpon Manna.

The Manna was as it hadde ben Coriander seed, and in apparaunce lyke Bedellion. And the people went aboute and gathered it, and grounde it in mylles, or beat it in morters and baked it in pannes, and made cakes of it. And the taste of it was lyke vnto the taste of an oyle cake. And when the dewe fell aboute the hoste in the nyght, the Manna fell therwith.

And when Moses herde the people wepe in theyr housholdes, euery man in the dooze of his tente, then the wrethe of the Lorde wared hote exceedyngly: and it greued Moses also. And Moses sayd vnto the Lorde: wherfore dealest thou so cruelly with thy seruaunt? wherfore doo I not fynde fauour in thy syghte, sythens thou puttest the wyght
☞ of this people vpon me? Haue I conceyued all this people? or haue I begot them, that thou sholdest saye vnto me, carye them in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the suckyng child) vnto the lande whiche thou swarest vnto their fathers? where sholde I haue flesshe to gyue vnto all this people? For they wepe vnto me, sayinge: gyue vs flesshe that we may eate. I am not able to beare all this people alone, for it is heuye for me. Wherfore yf thou deale thus with me, kyll me, I praye the, yf I haue founde fauour in thy syghte, and let me not se my wretchednesse.

D And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: gather vnto me thre score and ten of the elders of Israel, whiche thou knowest that they are the elders of the people, and officers ouer them, & bringe them vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, and let them stande there with the. And I wil come downe and talke with the there, & take of the spirite wich is vpon the, and put vpon the and vpon them, and they shall beare with the in the burthen of the people, and so shalt thou not beare alone.

And saye vnto the people: halow your selues agaynst to morow, that ye may eate flesh, for ye haue whyned in the eares of the Lorde sayinge: who shall gyue vs flesshe to eate, for we were happy whē we were in Egypt? therfore the Lorde wyll gyue you flesshe, and ye shal eate. Ye shall not eate one daye onely, either two or fiue dayes, either ten or twentye dayes: but euen a moneth longe, and vntyll it come out at the nostrels of you, that ye be redye to perbrake: because ye haue caste that
E Lorde aside, which is amonge you, and haue wepte before hym, sayinge: why came we out of Egypt.

And Moses sayde: fire hundred thousande foote men are there of the people, amonge whiche I am. And thou hast sayd: I wil giue them flesshe, and they shall eate a moneth longe. Shall the shepe and the oxen be slayne for them to fynde them? Eyther shall all the fysshe of the see be gathered togyther to serue them? And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Is the Lordes hande wared shorte? Thou shalte se whether my worde shall come to passe vnto the, or not.

And Moses went forth, and tolde the people the sayinge of the Lorde, and gathered the thre score and ten elders of the people, and sette them rounde aboute the tabernacle. And the Lorde came downe in a cloude, and spake vnto hym, and toke of the spirite that was vpon him, and put it vpon the thre score and ten elders. And as the spirite rested vpon them
F they prophecied and dyd nought elles. But there remayned two of the men in the hoste: the one called Eldad, and the other Medad. And the spirite rested vpon them for they were of them that were wrytten, but they went not out vnto the tabernacle: and they prophesied in the hoste.

And there ran a ponge man and tolde Moses, and sayd: Eldad, and Medad do prophecy
H in the hoste. And Iosua the sonne of Nun the seruaunt of Moses whiche he had chosen out answered and sayde: Master Moses, forbyd them. And Moses said vnto him: enuiest thou
G for my sake? wolde God that all the Lordes people coulde prophecye, and that the Lorde wolde put his spirete vpon them. And then both Moses and the elders of Israel, gat them in to the hoste.

And there wente forthe a wynde frome the Lorde and brought quayles from the see, and let them fal about the hoste, euen a dayes iourney rounde aboute on euery syde of the hoste. And two cubytes hye vpon the erthe. And the people stode vp al that day and all that night, and on the morowe, and gathered quayles. And he that gathered leest, gathered tenne homers full. And they kylled them roundē about the hoste.

And whyle the flesshe was yet betwene theyr teeth, afore it was chewed vp, the wrath of the Lorde waxed hoote vpon the people, and the Lorde slewe of the people an exceadynge myghtye slaughter. And they called the name of the place ✠ Kybroth Hathauah: because they buryed the people that lusted there.

And the people toke theyr iourney frome Kybroth Hathauah vnto Hazeroth, and abode at Hazeroth.

¶ Aaron and Mary grudge agaynst Moses. Mary was stryckē with the leper and healed at the prayer of Moses.

CAPI. XII.

AND ✠ Marye and Aaron spake agaynst Moses, bycause of his wyfe of Inde whiche he hadde taken: for he hadde taken to wyfe one of Inde. And they sayde, dothe the Lorde speake onely thorowe Moses? dothe he not speake also by vs? And the Lorde herde it. But Moses was a very meke man aboue all the men of the earthe. And the Lorde spake attonce vnto Moses, vnto Aaron, and vnto Marye: Come oute ye three vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse: & they came out all three.

And the Lorde came downe in the pyller of the cloude, and stode in the doore of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Marye. And they wente out bothe of them. And he sayde, heare my wordes: yf there be a Prophete of the Lordes amonge you, I wyll shewe my self vnto him in a vysion, and wyll speake vnto him in a dreame. But my seruaunt Moses is not so: whiche is faythfull in all myne house Vnto hym I speake mouthe to mouthe, and he seeth the sygdt and the facyon of the Lorde and not thorow rydels. Wherfore then were ye not afrayde to speake agaynst my seruaunt Moses.

And the Lorde was angrye with them, and went his waye, and the cloude departed from the tabernacle. And beholde, Marye was become leprous, as it were snowe. And when Aaron loked vpon her and sawe that she was leprous, he sayde vnto Moses: Oh I beseche the my Lorde, put not the synne vpon vs whiche we haue folysshly committed and synned. Oh, let her not be as one that come deed forth of the mothers wombe: for halfe her flesshe is eaten awaye.

And Moses cryed vnto the Lorde, sayinge: Oh God, heale her. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Yf her father had spytte in her face, shulde she not be ashamed seuen dayes, let her be shutte forth of the hoste seuen dayes, and after that let her be receyued in agayne. And Marye was shut out of the hoste seuen dayes and the people remoued not, tyll she was brought in agayne. And afterwarde, they remoued from Hazeroth, and pitched in the wyldernesse of Pharan.

¶ Certayne are sende to searche the lande of Canaan: which bryngē with them a cluster of grapes for a signe of fruytfulnesse.

CAPI. XIII.

AND the Lorde spake thus vnto Moses sayinge: ✠ Sende men oute to serche the lande of Canaan, whiche I gyue vnto the chyldren of Israel: of euery tryde of theyr fathers a man: and let them all be such as are rulers among them. And Moses at the commaundement of the Lorde sent forthe of the wyldernesse of Pharan, suche men as were al heedes among the children of Israel, whose names are these.

In the tryde of Ruben: Sammua the sonne of Zacur: In the tryde of Symeon, Saphat the sonne of Hori: In the tryde of Juda, Caleph the sonne of Jephune. ✠ Hosea or Osee sygnifieth sauynge or sauioure. Josua or Jehosua signifieth the saluacion of the Lorde.

And Moses sent them forthe to espye oute the lande of Canaan, and sayde vnto them: get you southwarde, and go vp in to the hygh countrey, and se the lande what maner thinge it is, and the people that dwell therin: whether they be stronge or weyke, fewe or many e and what the land is that they dwel in, whether it be good or bad, & what maner of cities they dwell in, whether in tentes or walled townes, and what maner of lande it is: whether fatte or leane, and whether there be trees therin or not. And be of good courage, and bryngē of the fruyte of the lande. And it was aboute the tyme that grapes are fyrste ryppe.

And they went vp and serched out the lande from the wyldernesse of Zin vnto Rehob, as men go to Hemath, and thei ascended vnto the south and came vnto Hebron, where Ahiman was and Sesai, and Thalmai the sonnes of Enacke. Hebron was buylt seuen yere before Zoan in Egypt. And they came vnto the riuer of Escol, and they cut downe there a braunche with one cluster of grapes, and bare it vpon a staffe betwene twayne, and also of the pomegranates, and of the fygges of the place. The ryuer was called Nehel, Escol, bycause of the cluster of grapes whiche the chyldren of Israel cut downe there.

And they turned backe agayne frome searchynge the lande at fourtye dayes ende. And they wente and came to Moses and Aaron and vnto all the companye of the chyldren of Israel, vnto the wildernesse of Pharan, euen vnto Cades, and broughte them worde and also vnto all the congregacyon, and shewed them the frute of the lande. And they tolde him, sayinge: we came vnto the lande whyther thou sendest vs, and surely it is a lande that floweth with mylke and honye, and here is of the frute of it. Neuertheiesse the people be stronge that dwell in the lande, and the cytyes are walled and exceadynge greate, and moreouer we sawe the chyldren of Enacke there.

That is to saye, replenished with all plentye and commodities

The Amalleckes dwell in the south countrey, and the Hethytes, Jebusytes and the Amorytes dwell in the mountayns, and the Cananytes dwell by the see, and alonge by the coste of Jordane.

And Caleb stylled the murmure of the people agaynst Moses, sayinge: let vs go vp and cõquere it, for we be hable to ouercome it. But the men that went vp with him, said: We be not hable to go vp agaynst the people, for they are stronger then we: And they broughte vp an euyll reaport of the lande which they had serched vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: The lande whiche we haue gone thorowe to serche it out, is a lande that eateth vp the inhabytauntes therof, and the people that we sawe in it are men of stature. And there we sawe also gyauntes, the chyldren of Enacke whiche are of the gyauntes. And we semed in our syghte as it were greshoppers, and so we dyd in theyr syght.

¶ The people despearyng of commyng to the lande prompted, do murmure agaynste God, and wolde haue stoned Caleb and Josue, The searchers of the land dye. Amalech kylleth the Israelites.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND all the companye cryed out, and the people wept thorowe out that nyght, and all the people of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron: sayinge. Wolde God we had dyed in the lande of Egypte, either we wolde we hadde dyed in this wyldernesse. Wherfore hath the Lorde broughte vs vnto this lande to fall vpon the swerde, that both our wyues, and also our chyldren sholde be a praye? is it not better that we returne to Egypte agayne? And they sayd one to an other: let vs make a Capitayne, and returne to Egypte agayne.

And Moses and Aaron hearyng this fel on their faces before all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun, & Caleb the sonne of Jephone whiche were of them that serched the lande, rent their clothes and spake vnto all the company of the chyldre of Israel, saying. The lande which we walked thorowe to serche it, is a very good lande. Yf the Lorde haue lust to vs, he wyll bryng vs in to this lande, and gyue it vs, which is a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. But in any wyse rebell not agaynst the Lorde. Moreouer feare ye not the people of the lande, for euen as bread, so may we deuour. Their shylde is departed from them, and the Lorde is with vs: feare them not therfore.

1. Mac. ii. f

And all the people bade stone them with stones. But the glorye of the Lorde appeared in the tabernacle of witnesse vnto al the children of Israel. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses Howe longe shall this people raple vpon me, and howe longe wyll it be er they bleue me? for all my sygnes whiche I haue shewed amonges them? I wyll smyte them with the pestylence and destroye them, and wyll make of the a greater nacion, and a myghtier then they.

And Moses sayd vnto the Lorde: then the Egyptians shall heare it, for thou broughtest this people with thy myghte from them. And it wyl be tolde to the inhabiters of this lande also, for they haue herde lykewyse that thou the Lorde arte amonge this people, and that thou arte sene face to face, and that thy cloude standeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them by dape tyme in a pyller of a cloude, and in a pyller of fire by nyght.

Yf thou shalte kyll all this people, as they were but one man, then the nacions whiche haue herde the fame of the wyll speake, sayinge: bycause the Lorde was not hable to bryng in this people in to the lande which he sware vnto them, therfore he slew them in the wyldernesse.

So now let the power of my Lorde be great accordynge as thou hast spoken, sayinge: the Lorde is longe er he be angrye, and ful of mercye, and sufferyth synne and treipace, and leaueth no man innocent, and visityth the vnrighteousnesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen vpon the thyrde and fourth generacion, be mercyfull I beseche the therfore vnto the synne of this people, accordynge vnto thy greate mercye, and accordynge as thou haste forgyuen this people from Egypte, euen vnto this place.

And the Lorde sayde: I haue forgyuen it, accordynge to thy request. But as truly as I lyue, all the earthe shall be fylled with my glorye. For of all those men whiche haue sene my glorye, and my myracles whiche I dyd in Egypte, and in the wyldernesse, and yet haue tempted me now this tenne tymes, & haue not herkened vnto my voyce, there shall not one se the lande whiche I sware vnto their fathers: neyther shall any of them that rayled vpon me, se it. But my seruaunt Caleb: bycause there is an other maner spirite with hym, and because he hathe folowed me: him I wyll bryng in to the lande whiche he hath walked in, and his seed shall conquere it, and also the Amalleckytes and Cananytes whiche dwel in the lowe countreys. To morow turne you and get you in to the wildernesse: euen the waye towarde the red see.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: how longe shall this euyll multytude murmure agaynst me: I haue herd the murmurynges of the chyldren of Israel, which they murmure agaynste me. Tell them that the Lorde sayethe: as truly as I lyue, I wyll doo vnto you euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares. Youre carkalles shall lye in the wyldernesse: neyther shall anye of these nombres whiche which were nombred frome twenty yere and aboue of you which haue murmured againste me come into the lande ouer which I lyfted ✱ myne hande to make you dwel therin, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune, and Iosua the sonne of Nun.

And your childzen which ye sayde shulde be a praye, them I will bringe in, and they shall knowe the lande which ye haue refused, and your carkales shall lye in this wyldernesse. And your childzen shall wandre in this wyldernesse. xl. yeres and suffre for youre whoredome vntyll youre carkelles be wasted in the wyldernesse, after the nombre of the dayes in which ye serched out the lande. xl. dayes, and euery day a yere: so that they shal beare your vnryghteousnes. xl. yere, and ye shall fele my vengeaunce, I the Lorde haue sayde that I will do it vnto all this cursed congregacō that are gathered togyther against me: euē in this wyldernesse ye shalbe consumed, and here ye shall dye.

And the men which Moses sent to serche ꝑ lande, and whiche (when they came agayne) made all the people to murmure agaynst it in that they broughte vp a sclaunder vpon the lande: dyed for their bryngynge vp that cursed sclaunder vpon it, and were plaged before ꝑ Lorde. But Iosua the sonne of Nun and Caleb the sonne of Iephune whiche were of the men that went to enserche the Lande, lyued styll. And Moses tolde these sayenges to all the childzen of Israel, & the people toke greate sorowe.

And they rose vp early in the mornyng and gat theym into the toppe of the mountayne, sayenge: lo we be here, and will go vp vnto the place of whiche the Lorde sayde, for we haue synned. And Moses sayd: wherfore wil ye go on this maner beyonde the worde of the Lorde? it wyll not come well to passe, go not vp (for the Lorde is not amonge you) least ye be slayne before your ennemyes. For the Amalechytes and the Cananytes are there before you, and ye wyl fal vpon the swerde, because ye are tourned away frome the Lorde, & therfore the Lorde will not be with you.

But they were blynded to goo vp in to the hyll toppe: Neuertheles, the arcke of the testamēt of the Lorde and Moses departed not out of the hoste. Then the Amalechytes and the Cananytes which dwelt in that hil, came downe and smote them and hewed them: euen vnto Horma.

¶ The drynkoffrynges of them that enter in to the lande the punyshment of hym that synneth of arrogancy or pryde. The man is stoned that gathered stykes on the Saboth. Gardes must be made vpon the quarters of theyr garmetes.

CAPI. XV.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake vnto the childzen of Israel, and saye vnto theym: When ye be come into the lande of your habitation which I gyue vnto you, and will offre an offrynge vpon the fyre vnto the Lorde, whether it be a burntoffrynge or a speyall bowe or frewil offringe, or yf it be in youre principall feastes to make a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, of ꝑ oxen or of the flocke.

Then, let him that offreth his offrynge vnto ꝑ Lorde, bryng also a meatoffrynge of a tenth deale of floure, myngled with ꝑ fourth parte of an hin of oyle, and the fourth part of an hin of wyne for a drynkeoffrynge, and offer with the burntoffrynge or any other offrynge when it is a lambe. And vnto a Ram B thou shalt offer a meatoffrynge of .ij. tenth deales of floure, myngled with the thyrde parte of an hin of oyle, and to a drynkoffryng thou shalt offer the thirde parte of an hin of wyne, to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

When thou offerest an oxe to a burntoffrynge or in any special bowe or peaceoffring vnto the Lorde, then thou shalt bryng vnto an oxe, a meateoffringe of thre tenth deales of floure myngled with halfe an hin of oyle. And thou shalt bryng for a drynkeoffrynge halfe an hin of wyne, that is an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. This is the C maner that shalbe done vnto one oxe, one Rā a lambe or a kydde. And accordynge to the nō bre of suche offrynges, thou shalte encrease the meateoffrynges and the drynkoffringes.

All that are of youre selues shall do these thinges after this maner, when be offreth an offringe of swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And yf there be a straunger with you or be amonge you in your generacions, and will offer an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde: euen as ye do, so he shall do. One ordynaunce shall serue both for you of the congregacion, and also for the straunger. And it shalbe an ordynaunce for euer amonge youre childzen after you, that the straunger and ye shalbe lyke before the Lorde. One lawe and one maner shall serue, bothe for you and for the straunger that dwelleth with you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: speake vnto the childzen of Israel and saye vnto them: When ye be come into the lande whether I will bryng you, then when ye wil eate of the bread of the lande, ye shal gyue an heueoffrynge vnto the Lorde. Ye shall gyue a bake of the first of your dowe vnto an heueoffrynge: as ye do the heueoffringe of ꝑ barne euen so ye shall heue it. Of the firste of youre dowe ye must gyue vnto the Lorde an heueoffrynge, thorowout your generacions.

Yfye ouerse your selues and obserue not al these commaundementes whiche the Lorde hath spoken vnto Moses, and all that the Lorde hathe commaunded you by the hande of Moses, frome the first daye forwarde that the Lorde commaunded amonge youre generacion: when ought is committed ignorauntly before the eyes of the congregacion, then al the multitude shall offer a calfe for a burntoffringe to be a swete sauoure vnto ꝑ Lorde, and the meatoffringe and the drynkeoffringe thereto, accordynge to the maner: and an he gote for a synneoffringe. And the preast shall make an attonement for all the multitude of the childzen of Israel, and it shalbe forgyuen them them for it was ignorannce. And they shall bringe their gyftes vnto the offeringe of the Lorde, and their synneoffringe before the Lorde for their ignorannce. And it shalbe forgyuen vnto all the multitude of the childzen of Israel, and vnto the straunger that dwelleth amonges you: for the ignorannce perteyneth vnto all the people.

D Yf any one soule synne thorow ignorannce, he shall bringe a the gote of a yere olde for a synneoffringe. And the preaste shall make an attonement for the soule that synned vnwetyngly with the synneofferinge before the Lorde and make him at one, and it shalbe forgyuen him. And both thou that art borne one of the childzen of Israel & the straunger that dwelleth amonge you, shall haue bothe one lawe, yf ye synne vnwetingly.

God punisheth them that dispyse his worde. And the soule that doth oughte presumptuously, whether he be an Israelite or a straunger, the same hath despysed the Lorde. And that soule shall be destroyed out of his people, because he hath despysed the worde of the Lorde and hath broken his commaundementes, that soule therfore shall perysh and his synne shal be vpon him.

15 And whyle the childzen of Israel were in the wylderneſſe, they founde a man gathering stickes vpon the Saboth daye. And they that founde him gatheringe styckes, brought him vnto Moses and Aaron and vnto all the congregacion: and they put hym in warde, for it was not declared what shoulde be done vnto hym. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: the man shall dye: let al the multitude stone him with stones forth of the host. And all the multitude brought him without the hoste & stoned him with stones, and he dyed as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Fardes. Deute. xxii. b And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to the childzen of Israell, and byd the, they make them gardes on the quarters of their garmentes thorow out their generacions and let them make the gardes of rybandes of Jacynct. And the garde shall be vnto you, to loke vpon it, that ye remembre all the commaundementes of the Lorde and do them: that ye seke not a waye after youre owne hertes, and after your owne eyes, to go a hooring after them: but that ye remembre and do all my commaundementes, and be holye vnto youre God, for I am the Lorde youre God, whyche brought you oute of the lande of Egypte to be your God. I am the Lorde God.

¶ The rebellion and resistaunce of Corah Dathan and Abiram. The erth opened and swalowed them vp.

CAPI. XVI.

A Nd * Corah the sonne of Jezehar, the sonne of Cahath, the sonne of Leui, & Dathan, and * Abiram the sonne of Eliab, and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben: stode vp before Moses, with other of the childzen of Israel. ij. hundred and fyftye heades of the congregacion, and counsailours and men of fame, and they gathered them selues togyther againste Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them: ye haue done ynoughe. For all the multitude are holy euery one of them and the Lorde is amonge them. Why therfore auaunce ye your selfes abone the congregacion of the Lordes.

* Some wryte Korah the sonne of Izachar.
* Som wryte Abirom.

When Moses herde it, he fell vpō his face and spake vnto Corah and vnto all his companye, sayenge: to morowe the Lorde wyll shewe who is his, and who is holy, and will take them vnto him, & whome so euer he hath chosen, he will cause to come to him. This do: take fyrepannes, thou Corah and all thy cōpanye, and do fyre therin and put cens therto before the Lorde to morowe. And then whō so euer the Lorde wyll chose, the same is holye. Ye make ynoughe to do ye childzen of Leui.

And Moses sayde vnto Corah: heare ye childzen of Leui, Semeth it but a smal thinge vnto you, that the God of Israell hath seuered you from the multitude of Israel to bring you to him, to do the seruyce of the tabernacle of the Lorde, and to stande before the people to minister vnto them? he hath taken the to him and all thy brethren the sonnes of Leui with the, and ye seke thoffice of the preast also. For which cause both thou and all thy cōpany are gathered togither against the Lord: for what is Aaron, that ye shoulde murmure against hym.

And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, and they answered, we will not come. Semeth it a small thinge vnto the that thou hast brought vs oute of a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, to kyll vs in the wylderneſſe? but that thou shuldest raygne ouer vs also? Moze ouer thou hast brought vs vnto no lande that floweth with mylke and hony, neyther haste gyuen vs possessions of feldes or of vynes. Eyther wilte thou pull out the eyes of these men? we wyll not come.

And Moses waxed verye angrye and sayde vnto the Lorde: Turne not vnto their offringes. I haue not taken so moche as an asse frō them, neyther haue vexed any of them. Then Moses sayde vnto Corah: Be thou and all thy companye before the Lorde: bothe thou they and Aaron to morowe. And take euerye man his cēser and put cens in them, and come before the Lorde euery man with his censer: two hundred and fyftye censers, and Aaron with his censer. And they toke euery man his censer and put fyre in them and layde cens theron, and stode in the woze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and Moses and Aaron also. And Corah gathered all the congregacion againste them vnto the woze of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And the glory of the Lorde appeared vnto all the congregacion. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayenge: seuer your selues frome this congregacion, that I maye consume them at once. And they fell vpō their faces, and sayde. * O most myghtye God of the spirites of all flesh, one man hath synned and wilte thou be wrothe with all the multitude? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge:

enge: speake vnto the congregacion and say: Get you away frō ỹ tētes of Corah, Dathā & Abiram. And Moses arose vp and went vnto Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel folowed him. And he spake vnto the congregacion, sayenge: departe frome the tentes of these vngodly men, and touche not thinge of theirs: least ye perysshe in all their synnes. And they gat theym frome the tentes of Corah, Dathan and Abiram on euery syde. And Dathan and Abiram came oute and stode in ỹ woze of their tentes with their wyues, their sonnes and their childzen.

D And Moses sayde: Hereby ye shall knowe that the Lozde hathe sent me to wo all these wozkes, and that I haue not wone theym of of myne owne hed: Yf these men dye the cōmen death of all men, oz yf they be vysited after the visitacion of all men, then the Lozde hath not sent me. But yf the Lozde make a E newe thinge, and the earth open hir mouthe and swalowe them, and all that pertayne vnto theym, so that they go wwne quycke into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, that these mē haue rayled vpon the Lozde.

And as sone as he had made an ende of spekynge all these wozdes, the grounde cloue a sonder that was vnder them, and the earthe Num.xvi.a. opened her mouthe and swalowed them and their houses and all the men that were with Corah and all their goodes. And they and al that pertayned vnto them, went wwne alyue vnto hell, and the earthe closed vpon theym, and they perysshed awaye frome the congregacion. And al Israel that were aboute them fled at the crye of them. For they sayde: The earth mighte happely swalowe vs also. And there came out a fyre frome the Lozde and cōsumed the two hundzed and fyftye men that offred incens.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: Speake to Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preest and let him take vp the censers out of the burnynge and scatter the fyre here & there, for the censers of these synners are halowed in their deathes: and let them be beaten into thynne plates and fastened vpon the altare. For they offred them before the Lozde, & therfore they are holye and they shalbe a signe vnto the childzen of Israel.

And Eleazar the preest toke the bzasen censers, which they that were burnt had offered, F and beat them and fastened theym vppon the altare, to be a remembzaunce vnto the childzen of Israel, that no straunger which is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer incese before the Lozde, that he be not made lyke vnto Corah and his cōpany: as the Lozde sayd vnto him by the hande of Moses.

And on the mozowe all the multitude of ỹ childzen of Israel murmured againste Moses and Aaron, sayenge: ye haue kylled the people of the Lozde. And when the multitude was gathered againſt Moses and Aarō, they loked towarde the tabernacle of wytnesse. And beholde, the cloude had couered it and ỹ glozy of the Lozde appeared. And Moses and Aaron went before the tabernacle of wytnes. And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Get you frome this congregacīō, that I may consume theym quyckely. And they fell vpon their faces.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censer and put fyre therin oute of the altare, and powze on incens, and go quickely vnto the cō gregacion and make an attonemēt for them. G For there is wzathe gone out from the Lozde and there is a plage begonne. And Aarō toke as Moses commaunded him, and ran vnto ỹ congregacion: and beholde, the plage was begonne among the people, and he put on incens, and made an attonement for the people. And he stode betwene the deed, and them H that were alyue, and the plage ceased. And the nombze of theym that dyed in the plage, were. xiiij. thousande and seuen hundzed: besyde them that dyed about the busynes of Corah. And Aaron went agayn vnto Moses vnto the woze of the tabernacle of witnesse, and the plage ceased.

CAPI. XVII.

AND the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to the childzen of Israell A and take of them, for euery principall house a rod, of their pzynces ouer the houses of their fathers: euen. xij. roddes, and wzyte euery mans name vpon his rod. And wzyte Aarons name vpon the staffe of Leui: for euery heedmā ouer the houses of their fathers shall haue a rod. And put theym in the tabernacle of wytnesse where I will mete you. And his rod whome I chose, shall blossome: B So I will make cease frome me the grudgynges of the childzē of Israel which they grudge againſt you.

And Moses spake vnto the childzen of Israel, & all the pzinces gaue him for euery pzince ouer their fathers houses, a rod: euen. xij. rodes, and the rodde of Aaron was amonge the roddes. And Moses put the roddes before C the Lozde in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And on the mozowe, Moses went into the tabernacle: and beholde * the rod of Aaron of the house of Leui was budded and bare blossomes and almondes. So Moses bzought out all the roddes whiche were before the Lozde, D vnto all the childzen of Israel, and they looked vpon theym, and toke euerye man his rodde.

And the Lozde sayde vnto Moses: bzynge Aarons rod agayne before the wytnesse to be kept for a token vnto the childzen of rebellīō, that their murmurynges may cease from me, that they dye not. And Moses dyd as ỹ Lozd commaunded him. And the childzen of Israel spake vnto Moses, sayenge: beholde, we are destroyed and all come to noughte: for whoso euer commeth nyghe the dwellynge of the Lozde, dyeth. Shall we vtterly consume awaye?

CAPI. XVIII.

A Nd the Lorde sayd vnto Aaron. Thou and thy sonnes and thy fathers house with the, shall beare the saute of that whiche is done amysse in the holy place. And thou and thy sonnes with the, shal beare the saute of that whiche is done amysse in youre preasthode. And thy brethren also the tribe of Leui, the tribe of thy father take with the, & let them be ioyned vnto the and minister vnto the. And thou & thy sonnes with the, shall ministre before the tabernacle of wytnesse. And let them wayte vpon the and vpon all ꝑ tabernacle: onely let them not come nyghe ꝑ holy vessels and the altare, that bothe they & ye also dye not. And let theym be by the, and wayte on the tabernacle of wytnesse, and on all the seruice of the tabernacle, and let no straunger come nyghe vnto you.

Wayte therefore vpon the holy place & vpō the altare, that there fall no more wrath vpō the childzen of Israel: beholde, I haue taken your brethren the Leuites forth of the childrē of Israel, to be yours, as gyftes gyuen vnto the Lorde to do the seruice of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And se that both thou and thy sonnes with the take hede vnto your preastes office, in all thinges that pertayne vnto the altare and within the vayle. And se ye serue, for I haue gyuen your preastes office vnto you for a gyfte to do seruice: and the straunger that commeth nyghe, shall dye.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron: beholde I haue gyuen the the keppynge of myne heueoffrynges in all the halowed thinges of ꝑ childzen of Israel. And vnto the I haue gyuē thē vnto annoyntynge and to thy sonnes: to be a B dutye for euer. This shall be thyne of moste holy sacrifices. All their gyftes, thorow oute all their meatoffrynges, synneoffrynges, and trespaceoffringes which they bringe vnto me. They shalbe most holy vnto the and vnto thy sonnes. And ye shall eate it in the moste holy place: all that are males shall eate of it, for it shalbe holy vnto the.

And this shalbe thyne: the heueoffrynges of their gyftes, thorow out all the waueoffrynges of the childzen of Israel, for I haue gyuen theym vnto the, and thy sonnes, and thy doughters with the to be a dutye for euer: & all that are cleane in thy house, shall eate of it, all the fat of the oyle, of the wyne and of ꝑ corne: their first frutes which they gyue vnto the Lorde, haue I gyuen vnto the. The first frutes of all that is in their landes, whyche they bringe vnto the Lorde, shall be thyne: and all that are cleane in thyne house, shall eate of it.

Al dedicate thinges in Israel, shalbe thyne. C All that breaketh the matrice of all flesshe ꝑ men bringe vnto the Lorde, both of man and beast, shall be thyne. Neuertheles the firste borne of man shall be redemed, and the firste borne of vncleane beastes shall be redemed. And their redemptions shall be at a moneth olde, valued at fyue sycles of syluer, of the holy sycle. A sycle maketh twentye Geras. But the first borne of oxen, shepe and goates shall not be redemed. For they are holy, and thou shalt sprinkle theyr bloude vpon the altare, & shalt burne their fat to be a sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

And the flesshe of them shalbe thyne, as ꝑ wauebreast and all the eyght shulder is thyne all the holy heueoffringes which the childzen of Israel heue vnto the Lorde, I gyue the & thy sonnes and thy doughters with the to be a dutye for euer. And it shall be a salted couenaunt for euer, before the Lorde: vnto the & to thy seed with the.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aarō: thou shalt haue none enheritaūce in their land nor parte amonge them. For I am thy parte and thy enheritaunce amonge the childzen of Israel. And beholde I haue gyuen the childzen of Leui the tenth in Israel to enheryte, for the seruice which they serue in the tabernacle of witnes, that the childzen of Israel henceforth come not nyghe the tabernacle of wytnesse, & beare synne and dye. And the Leuites shall do the seruice in the tabernacle of witnesse and beare their synne, and it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto your childzen after you: But amonge the childzen of Israel they shall enheret none enheritaunce. For the tythes of the childzen of Israel whiche they heue vnto the Lorde, I haue gyuen the Leuites to enheret. Wherefore I haue sayde vnto thē: Amonge the childzen of Israel, ye shall enheret none enheritaunce.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayenge: speake vnto the Leuites, and saye vnto them: when ye take of the childzen of Israel the tythes which I haue gyuen you of them to your enheritaunce, ye shall take an heueoffringe of that same for the Lorde: euen the tenthe of ꝑ tythe. And it shalbe rekened vnto you for your heueofferinge, euen as thoughe ye gaue corne out of the barne or a fulloffringe frō the wyne pzelle.

And in this maner ye shall heue an heueoffringe vnto the Lorde, of al your tythes whiche ye receyue of the childzen of Israel, and ye shall gyue therof the Lordes heueoffringe vnto Aaron the preaste. Of all youre gyftes, ye shall take out the Lordes heueoffringe: euen the fat of all their halowed thinges.

And thou shalte saye vnto them: when ye haue take awaye the fat of it frome it, it shal be counted vnto the Leuites, as the encrease of corne and wyne. And ye shall eate it in all places both ye and your housholdes, for it is your rewarde for your seruice in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And ye shal beare no synne by the reason of it, when ye haue taken frome it the fat of it: neyther shall ye vnhalowe the halowed thinges of the childzen of Israel, and so shall ye not dye.

¶ Of the redde kowe. The lawe of him that dyeth in the tabernacle: and of him also that toucheth any vncleane thynge.

CAPI. XIX.

And

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayenge: this is the ordinaunce of the lawe which the Lorde commaũdeth, sayenge: speake vnto the childzen of Israel and let theym take the a red kowe without spot whiche neuer bare yocke vpon her. And ye shall gyue her vnto Eleazar the preast and he shall bzynge her without the host and cause her to be slayne before him.

And Eleazar the preaste shall take of her bloude vpon his fynger, & sprynkle it streyght towarde the tabernacle of wytnes. vij. tymes. And he shal cause the kowe to be burnt in his sight: both skynne, flesshe and bloude, with the dunge also. And let the preast take Cedar woode, and Isope and purple clothe, and cast it vpon the kowe as she burneth. And let the preast washe his clothes and bathe his flesshe in water, and then come into the hoste, & the preast shalbe vncleane vnto the euen.

B And he that burneth her, shall washe his clothes in water and bathe his flesshe also in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And one that is cleane, shall go and take vp the asshes of the kowe, and put them without the hoste in a cleane place, where they shall be kept to make sprynklynge water for the multitude of the childzen of Israel: for it is a synneoffring. And let him that gathered the asshes of the kowe, washe his clothes, and remayne vncleane vntyll euen. And this shall be vnto the childzen of Israel and vnto the straũger that C dwelleth amonge them, a lawe for euer.

He that toucheth any deed persone, shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. And he shal purify him selfe with the asshes the thyrde daye, and so he shalbe cleane the seuenth daye. And yf he purifye not him selfe the thyrde daye, then ỹ seuenth daye, he shall not be cleane. Whosoeuer toucheth anye persone that dyeth and sprinkleth not him selfe, defyleth the dwellynge of the Lorde: and therfore that soule shall perysshe out of Israel, because he hathe not sprinkled the sprynklynge water vpõ him, he shalbe vncleane, and his vncleannesse shall remayne vppon him.

This is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a tent: all that come into the tẽt and al that is in the tent, shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. And all the vessels that be open whiche haue no lyd nor couerynge vpon them, are vnclene. And who so euer toucheth one that is slayne with a swerde in the feldes, or a deed persone, or a bone of a deed man, or a graue: shall be vncleane seuen dayes.

D And they shall take for an vncleane person of the burnt asshes of the synneoffringe, and put runnynge water therto into a vessell. And a cleane persone shal take Isope and dyppe it in the water, and sprynkle it vpon the tent & vpon all the vessels and on the soules that were there, and vpõ him that touched a bone or a slayne persone or a deed body or a graue. And the cleane person shall sprynkle vpon the vncleane the. iij. daye and the. vij. daye. And the. vij. daye he shall purify him selfe & washe his clothes and bathe him selfe in water, and shalbe cleane at euen.

Yf any be vncleane and sprynkle not hym selfe the same soule shalbe destroyed forth of the congregacion: for he hath defyled the holy place of the Lorde and is not sprynkled wt sprynklynge water, therfore is he vncleane. And this shalbe a perpetual lawe vnto them. And he that sprinkleth the sprynklynge water, shall washe his clothes.

And he that toucheth the sprynklynge water, shall be vncleane vntyll euen. And what so euer the vncleane persone toucheth, shall be vncleane. And the soule that toucheth it, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen.

¶ Mir Iam dyeth. The people murmure. They haue water euen oute of the rocke. Edom denyeth the Israelites passage thorow his realme. The deth of Aaron in whose roume Eleazar succedeth.

CAPI. XX.

A AND the hole multitude of the childzen of Israel, came into the desert of Sin in the firste moneth, & the people dwelt at Cades. And there dyed Mirye, and was buryed there. Moreouer there was no water for the multitude, wherfore they gathered them selues togither againste Moses and Aaron. And the people chode with Moses and spake, sayenge: wolde God we had perysshed, when our brethrẽ perysshed before the Lorde. Exodi.xvii.d Why haue ye brought the congregaciõ of the Lord vnto this wylderneste, that both we and our catell shulde dye here? Wherfore brought ye vs out of Egypte to bringe vs into this vngracious place, which is no place of seed nor of frygges nor vynes nor of pomgranates, neither is there any water to drynke?

B And Moses and Aaron went frome the congregacion vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and fell on their faces. And the glory of the Lorde appeared vnto them. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Take the staffe, and gather thou and thy brother Aaron the congregacion togyther, and saye vnto the rocke before their eyes, that he gyue forth his water. And thou shalt bzynge them water out of the rocke and shalt gyue the cõpany drinke and their beastes also.

C And Moses toke the staffe frome before the Lorde, as he commaunded him. And Moses & Aaron gathered the congregacion togyther before the rocke, and he sayde vnto thẽ, heare ye rebellyons, muste we fet you water oute of this rocke? And Moses lyfte vp his hande wt his staffe and smote the rocke. ij. tymes, and the water came out abundantly, and the multitude dranke and their beastes also. Sapien.xii.a Psal.lxxvii.b

D And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aarõ because ye beleued me not, to sanctifie me in ỹ eyes of the childzen of Israel, therfore ye shal not bzinge this congregacion into the lande which I haue gyuen them. This is the water of stryfe, because the childzen of Israel stroue with the Lorde, and he was sanctifyed vpon them. Deute.i.f

E And Moses sent messengers frome Cades vnto the kynge of Edom. Thus sayth thy bzo ther Israel: Thou knowest all the trauell ỹ hath hathe happened vs, howe oure fathers went wonne into Egypte, and how we haue dwelt in Egypte a longe tyme, and how the Egyptians vexed bothe vs and our fathers. Then we cryed vnto the Lorde, and he herde oure voyces, and sent an aungell and hathe fet vs out of Egypte. And beholde, we are in Cades a cyty harde by the borders of thy coūtrey, let vs go we pray the thorow thy coūtrey we wil

And Edom answered him: Se thou come not by me, lest I come out agaynst the with the swerde. And the chyldren of Israel sayde vnto him: we wyll goo by the beaten waye: and yf eyther we or oure catell drynke of thy water, we wyll paye for it, we wyll do no more but passe thorowe by fote onely. And he sayde: ye shall not go thorow. And Edom came out
D agaynste him with moche people and with a myghtye power. And thus Edom denyed to gyue Israel passage thorowe his countreye. And Israel turned awaye frome him.

And the chyldren of Israel remoued frome Cades and wente vnto mount Hor with all the companye. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron in mounte Hor, whiche is vpon the borders of the lande of Edom, sayinge: let Aaron be put vnto his people, for he shall not come into the lande whiche I haue gyuen vnto the chyldren of Israel: because ye disobeyed my mouth at the water of stryfe.
Deut.xxxii.g Take Aarō and Eleazar his sonne, and bringe them vp into mount Hor, and stryppe Aaron out of his vestimentes and put theym vpon Eleazar his sonne, and let Aaron be put vnto his people and dye there.

The death of Aaron. Deute.xxvi.b. And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded: and they went vp into mount Hor in ꝑ sight of all the multitude. And Moses toke of Aarons clothes and put them vpon Eleazar his sonne, and Aaron dyed there in the toppe of the mount. And Moses & Eleazar came down out of the mount. And all the house of Israel mourned for Aaron. xxx. dayes.

¶ Israel vanquyssheth kyng Arad. The fyrye serpentes stynge them: but when they loke at the brasen serpent whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses to lyft vp, they are healed. The kynges, Sehon and Og are ouercome in batell.

CAPI. XXI.

A AND when kynge Arad the Cananite, whiche dwelt in the south partyes, herde tel that Israel came by the way that the espyes had founde out, he came and foughte with Israel and toke some of them pryssonners. Then Israel vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Yf thou wilt gyue this people into our handes, we will destroye their cyties. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Israel, and delyuered vnto theym the Cananytes. And they destroyed both them and their cyties, and called the place Horma.

Then they departed frome mount Hor towarde the red see: to compasse the lande of Edom. And the soules of the people faynted by the waye. And the people spake against God and against Moses: Wherfore hast thou brought vs out of Egypte, for to dye in the wyldernesse, for here is neyther bread nor water, and oure soules lothe this * lyghte bred.

Then the Lorde sent fyrye serpentes amōg the people, which stonge them: so that moch people dyed in Israel. And the people came to Moses, and sayde: we haue synned, for we haue spoken against the Lord and against the, make intercession to the Lorde, that he take awaye the serpentes frome vs. And Moses made intercession for the people. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: make the a serpent and hange it vp for a signe, and let as manye as are bytten loke vpon it, and they shall lyue. And Moses made a serpent of brasse, and set it vp for a signe. And when the serpentes had bytten any man, he went and beheilde the serpent of brasse and recouered.

And the chyldren of Israel remoued & pytched in Oboth. And they departed frome Oboth and laye at Egebarim in the wyldernes whiche is before Moab on the eastsyde. And they remoued thence, and pytched vpon the ryuer of Zarad. And they departed thence & pytched on the other syde of Arnon, whiche ryuer is in the wyldernesse, and commeth out of the costes of the Ammorites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, betwene Moab and the Ammorytes. Wherfore it is spoken in the * booke of the warre of the Lorde: goo with a violence, both on the ryuer of Arnon and on the ryuers heed, whiche shooteth downe to dwell at Ar, and leaneth vpon the costes of Moab.

And frome thence they came to Beer, whiche is the well, wherof the Lorde spake vnto Moses: gather the people togither, that I may gyue them water. Then Israel sange this songe: Aryse vp well, synge therto: The wel which the rulers dygged and the capytaynes of the people with the helpe of the lawgyuer and with their staues.

And frome this wyldernesse they went to Matana, and frome Matana to Nahaliel, & frome Nahaliel to Bamoth, and frome Bamoth to the valay that is in the felde of Moab in the toppe of * Phasgah which boweth towarde * Jesimon. And Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon, kynge of the Ammorites, sayenge: let vs go thorow thy lande: we wil not turne into thy feldes nor into thy vyneyardes, ne drynke of the water of the welles: but goo alonge by the commen waye, vntyll we be past thy countreye. And Sehon wolde gyue Israell no lycence to passe thorowe his countreye, but gathered all his people togyther and made out against Israel into the wildernesse. And he came to Jaheza and foughte with Israel.

And Israel smote him with the edge of the swerde and conquered his lande, frome Arnō vnto Jabock: euen vnto the chyldren of Ammon. For the borders of the chyldren of Ammon, mon, are strounge. And Israel toke all these cyties, and dwelt in all the cyties of the Amorites / in Hesbon / and in all the townes therevnto belongynge. For Hesbon was the cytie of Sehon the kynge of the Ammorites, who had fought before with the kynge of the Moabytes, and had taken all his lande forth of his hande, euen vnto Arnon. Wherfore it is a prouerbe, go to Hesbon and let the cytie of Sehon be bupit and made redy, for there is a fyre gone forth of Hesbon and a flame from the cytie of Sehon, and hath consumed Ar of the Moabites, and the men of the hylles of Arnon. Wo to the Moab: o people of Chamos ye are vndone. His sonnes are put to flyghte, and his doughters brought captyue vnto Sehon kynge of the Ammorites. Their lyght is out frome Hesbon vnto Dibon, and we made a wylderneile cuē vnto Nopha whiche reacheth vnto Medida. And thus Israel dwelt in the lande of the Amorites. And Moses sent to serche out Jaezer, and they toke þ townes belongynge therto, and conquered þ Amorites that were there.

And then they turned and went vp toward Basan. And Og the kyng of Basan came out against them, bothe he and all his people, to warre at Adrei. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: feare him not, for I haue delyuered him into thy handes with all his people and his land. And thou shalt do with him as thou dyddest with Sehon the kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Hesbon. And they smote him and his sonnes and all his people, tyll there was nothinge left him. And they conquered his lande, and the children of Israel remoued & pytched in the feldes of Moab, on theother syde of Jordan, by Jericho.

The kynge Balac sendeth for Balam, to curse Israel: but Balam can do nothynge against the will of the Lorde, Balams asse speaketh to him in the waye.

CAPI. XXII.

AND Balac the sonne of Ziphor sawe al that Israel had done to the Amorites, and the Moabites were sore afrayed of the people, because they were many, and abhorred the children of Israel: And Moab sayd vnto the elders of Madian, nowe shall this company lycke vp al that are roundeabout vs as an oxe lycketh vp the grasse of the felde. And Balac the sonne of Ziphor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.

And he sent messangiers vnto *Balam the sonne of Beor, the ꝓ interpreter which dwelt vpon the ryuer of the lande of the children of his folke, to call him, sayenge: Behold, there is a people come out of Egypte whiche couereth the face of the earth and lyeth euen hard by me. Come nowe I praye the, and curse me this people. For they are to myghtye for me/ so peraduenture I myghte be hable to smyte them, and to dryue them out of the lande. For I wote that whom thou blessest, shall be blessed, and whome thou cursest shall be cursed.

And the elders of Moab went with the elders of Madian, hauinge the rewarde of the sothesayenge in their handes. So they came vnto Balam and tolde him the wordes of Balac. And he sayde vnto the, tary here al nighte and I will bringe you worde, euen as þ Lord shall saye vnto me. And the lordes of Moab abode with Balam.

And God came vnto Balam & sayd: What men are these which are with the? And Balam sayde vnto God: Balac the sonne of Ziphor kynge of Moab hath sent vnto me, sayenge: Beholde, there is a people come forth of Egypte and coureth the face of the earth: come now therfore and curse me them, that so peraduenture I may be hable to ouercome them in batell, and to dryue them out. God sayde vnto Balam: thou shalte not go with them, neyther curse the people for they are blessed.

So Balam rose vp in the morninge & sayd vnto the lordes of Balac: Get you vnto your lande, for the Lorde will not suffre me to go with you. And the lordes of Moab rose vp & went vnto Balac and sayd. Balam wold not come with vs. And Balac sent agayne a greater company of Lordes, and more honorable then they. And they came to Balam and told him: Thus sayth Balac the sonne of Ziphor Oh, let nothinge let the, to come vnto me, for I will highly auaūce the vnto great honour, and will do what so euer thou sayest vnto me, come therfore I praye the, curse me this people.

And Balam answered and sayde vnto the seruauntes of Balac. * Yf Balac wold gyue me his house full of siluer and golde, I can go no further, then the worde of the Lorde my God, to do lesse or more. Neuertheless tarye ye here all nighte: that I maye wete, what þ Lorde wil saye vnto me ones more. And God came vnto Balam by nighte and sayde vnto him: Yf the men come to fet the, aryse vp and go with them: but what I say vnto the, that onely thou shalt do.

And Balam arose vp earely, and sadled his asse, and went with the Lordes of Moab. But God was angrye because he went. And the aungell of the Lorde stode in the waye against him. And he eyd vpon his asse and two seruauntes with him. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde stande in the waye & his swerde drawen in his hande, she turned a syde oute of the waye, and went out into the felde. And Balam smote the asse, to turne her into the waye.

And the aungell of the Lorde went & stode in a path betwene þ vyneyardes, where was a wall on the one syde and an other on the other. When the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde, she wrenched vnto the wal and thrust Balams fote vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. But the aungell of the Lorde went further, & stode in a narow place, where was no waye to turne, eyther to the righthand or to the lyft. And when the asse saw the angell of the Lorde, she fell downe vnder Balam: & Balam was wroth and smote the asse with a staffe. And the Lorde opened the mouth of the Asse, and the sayde vnto Balam: What haue I done vnto the, that thou smytest me thus thre tymes? And Balam sayde vnto the Asse: because thou hast mocked me? I wolde that I hadde a swerde in myne hande, that I myght now kyll the. And the Asse sayde vnto Balam: am not I thyne Asse which thou hast ryden vpon sythes thou wast borne vnto this daye? Was I euer wont to do so vnto the? And he sayde, naye.

F And the Lorde opened the eyes of Balam, that he sawe the angell of the Lorde standing in the waye, with his swerde drawen in his hande. And he bowed him self and fell flat on his face. And the aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto him: Wherfore smytest thou thyne asse thus thre tymes? Beholde I came oute to resist the, for thy waye is frowarde and contrary vnto me, and the Asse saw me and auoyded me three tymes: or else (hadde she not turned frome me) I had surely slayne the and saued her alyue. And Balam sayde vnto the aungell of the Lorde: I haue synned: for I wist not that thou stodest in the way against me. Now therfore yf it displease thyne eyes, I wil turne againe. And the aungell sayde vnto Balam, go with the men: but in anye wyse, what I saye vnto the, that saye. And Balam went wt the lordes of Balac.

G And when Balac herde that Balam was come, he went out against him vnto a cytie of Moab that stode in the border of Arnon, whyche was the vttermost parte of his countrey. And Balac sayd vnto Balam: dyd I not send for the, to call the? wherfore camest thou not vnto me? thinkeste thou I am not able to promote the vnto honoure? And Balam sayd vnto Balac: Lo I am come vnto the. But I can saye nothinge at all, saue what God putteth in my mouthe, that muste I speake. And Balam went with Balac, and they came vnto the large cytie. And Balac offred oxen and shepe, and sent for Balam and for the lordes that were with him.

¶ Balam blesseth the people, where he was requyred to curse them and prophesieth that they shall be a greate people.

CAPI. XXIII.

A And on the morowynge, Balac toke Balam, and brought him vp into ꝑ hyghe place of Baal, and thence he sawe vnto the vttermost parte of the people. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: buylde me here seuen altares and prouyde here seuen bullockes and seuen Rammes. And Balac dyd as Balā sayd. So Balac and Balam offred on euery altare a bullocke and a Ram. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: stande by the sacrifice, whyle I go to wete whether the Lorde will come and mete me, and what so euer he sheweth me, I wyll tell the, and he wente forthwith. And God came vnto Balam, and Balam sayd vnto him I haue prepared seuen altares, and haue offred vpon euery altare, a bullocke and a ram. And ꝑ Lorde put a sayeng in Balams mouth and sayde: goo agayne to Balac and saye on this wyse. And he went agayne vnto him and lo, he stode by his sacrifice, both he and al the lordes of Moab. And he began his parable & sayde: Balac the kynge of Moab hath fet me frome Mesopotamia out of the mountaynes of the East, sayenge: Come and curse me Jacob, come and defye me Israel. How shall I curse whome God curseth not, and how shal I defye whome the Lorde defyeth not? from the toppe of the rockes I se him and from the hylles I beholde him: loo, the people shall dwell by him selfe and shall not be reckened amonge other nacions. Who can tell the dust of Jacob, and the nombre of the fourth parte of Israel. I praye God my soule may dye the death of the ryghteous, and that my last ende maye be lyke his. And Balac sayde vnto Balam, What hast thou done vnto me? I dyd fet the to curse myne enemyes: and behold thou blessest theym. And he aunswered and sayde: must I not kepe that and speake it, whyche ꝑ Lorde hathe put in my mouthe? And Balac sayde vnto him: Come I praye the with me vnto an other place whence thou shalte se thē and shalt se but the vttermoste parte of them and shalt not se them all, and curse me theym there. And he brought him into a playne feld, where men myght se farre, euen to the toppe of Phasgah, and buylt seuen altares and offred a bullocke and a Ram on euery altare. And he sayde vnto Balac: stande here by thy sacrifice, whyle I go yonder. And the Lorde met Balam, & put wordes in his mouth, and sayde: go agayne vnto Balac, and thus saye. And when he came to him: beholde, he stode by his sacrifice and the lordes of Moab with him. And Balac sayde vnto him: What sayth the Lorde?

And he toke vp his parable and sayde: ryse vp Balac and heare, and herken vnto me thou sonne of Ziphor. The Lorde is not a man, ꝑ he can lye, neyther the sonne of man, that he can repent: shulde he saye and not do, or shuld he speake and not make it good? Beholde, I haue begon to blesse and haue blessed, and can not go backe therfro. He beheldē no wickednesse in Jacob nor sawe Idolatrye in Israel: The Lorde his God is with him, and the triumphe of a kynge amonge theym. God that brought thē out of Egypte, is as the strength of an vnicorne vnto them, for there is no sorcerer, in Jacob, nor sothsayer in Israel. Whē the tyme commeth, it will be sayde of Jacob and of Israel, what God hath wrought. Beholde, the people shall ryse vp as a lyonesse & heue vp him selfe as a lyon, and shall not lye downe agayne, vntyll he haue eaten of the praye and dronke of the bloude of them that are slayne.

And Balac sayde vnto Balā: neyther curse them nor blesse them. And Balam answered and sayde vnto Balac / tolde not I the sayenge / all that the Lorde byddeth me, that I must do? And Balac sayde vnto Balam / come I praye the, I will bringe the yet vnto an other place / so peraduenture it shal please God that thou mayst curse them there. And Balac broughte Balam vnto the toppe of Peor, that boweth towarde the wylderneſſe. And Balam ſayde vnto Balac / make me here. vij. altares, and prepare me here. vij. bullockes & vij. Rammes. And Balac dyd as Balam had ſayde, and offered a bullocke and a Ram on euery altare.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A When Balam ſawe that it pleaſed the Lorde that he ſhoulde bleſſe Iſrael, he went not as he dyd twyſe before to ſet ſothſayenge, but ſet his face towarde the wildernelle, and lyft vp his eyes and loked vpon Iſrael as he laye with his trybes, & the ſpyrite of God came vpon him. And he toke vp his parable and ſayde: Balam the ſonne of Beor hathe ſayde, and the man whoſe eye is open hath ſayde: he hath ſayde which heareth the wordes of God, and ſeeth the viſions of the almyghty, which falleth downe and his eyes are opened.

How goodly are the tentes of Jacob and thyne habitation Iſrael, euen as the brode valeyes and as gardens by the ryuers ſyde, as the tentes which the Lorde hath pitched, and B as Cypres trees vpon the water. The water ſhal flowe out of his bouket and his ſeed ſhal be many waters, and his kynge ſhalbe higher then Agag, And his kyngdome ſhalbe exalted. God that brought him oute of Egypte, his ſtrength is as the ſtrength of an vnicorne, and he ſhall eate the nations that are his enemies and breake their bones & perce them thorowe with his arowes. He couched him ſelfe & laye downe as a lyon and as a lyoneſſe, who ſhall ſtere him vp? bleſſed is he that bleſſeth the, & curſed is he that curſeth the.

And Balac was wrothe with Balam, and ſmote his handes togither, and ſayde vnto him: I ſent for the to curſe myne ennemyes: & beholde, thou haſt bleſſed them this three tymes, and now get the quickly vnto thy place. I thought to haue auaūced the vnto honour, C but the Lorde hath kept the backe frome worſhyp. And Balam ſayde vnto Balac: tolde I not thy meſſengers whiche thou ſenteſt vnto me ſayenge. * Yf Balac wolde gyue me his houſe full of ſiluer and golde, I can not paſſe the mouth of the Lorde, to do eyther good or bad of myne owne myndc. What the Lorde ſayeth, that muſt I ſpeake. And now beholde, I go vnto my people: come let me ſhewe the, what this people ſhall do to thy folke in the later dayes. And he began his parable & ſayd: Balam the ſonne of Beor hath ſayde, and the man that hath his eye open hath ſayde, & he hath ſayde that heareth the wordes of God, and hath the knowlege of the moſte hyghe, & beholdeth the viſion of the almyghtye, and when he falleth downe hath his eyes opened I ſe him but not nowe, I beholde him but not nyghe. There ſhall come a ſterre of Jacob & ryſe a ſcepter of Iſrael, which ſhall ſmyte the coſtes of Moab, and vndermyne all the chil- dren of Seth. And Edom ſhall be his poſſeſſiō and the poſſeſſion of Seir ſhall be theire ennemyes, and Iſrael ſhall do mankully. And out of Jacob ſhall come he that ſhall deſtroye the reſidue of the cyties.

And he loked on Amaleck and began his parable and ſayde: Amaleck is the firſt of the nations, but his latter ende ſhal peryſſhe vtterly. And he loked on the Kenites and toke his parable and ſayde: ſtronge is thy dwellynge place and put thy neſt vpon a roche, Neuerthe leſſe thou ſhalt be a burnynge to Kain, vntyl Aſſur take the pryſonner: And he toke his parable and ſayde: Alas, who ſhall lyue when God weth this? The chyppes ſhall come out of the coſte * of Chittim, and ſubdue Aſſur, and ſubdue Eber, and he hym ſelfe ſhall peryſſhe at the laſt. And Balam roſe vp & went and dwelt in his place: and Balac alſo went his waye. D

And these sixe free cityes shall be for the chyldren of Israel, and for the straunger, and for hym that dwelleth amonge you, that all they whiche kyll anye person vnwares, maye flee thyther.

Yf any man smyte an other with a weapon of yron that he dye, then he is a murtherer/ and shall dye for it.

Yf he smyte hym with a throwynge stone that he dye therwith, then he shall dye, for he is a murtherer, and shall be slayne therfore.

Yf he smyte hym with a hande weapon of wodde that he dye therwith, then he shall dye: for he is a murtherer, and shall be slayne therfore.

The iustyce of bloude shall slee the murtherer, as sone as he fyndeth him: Yf he thrust at him * of hate, or burle at him with lyinge awayte that he dye, or smyte hym with his hande of malice that he dye, he that smote him shall dye, for he is a murtherer. And the lande can none otherwyse be clensed of the bloude that is shedde therin, but by the bloude of hym that shedde it. Defyle not therfore the lande whiche ye inhabyte, and in the myddes of whiche, I also dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel.

¶ In order for the maryage of the daughters of Zelaphead. One of the trybes maye not marye with an other: but euerye one muste take him a wyfe of his owne tryhe.

Nowe when any of the sonnes of the trybes of Israel take them to wyues, then shall theyr inheritaunce be taken frome the enheritaunce of our fathers, and shall be put vnto the enheryteaunce of the tryhe in whiche they are, and shall be taken frome the lotte of oure enheritaunce. And when the yere of Jubelye commeth vnto the chyldren of Israel, then shall theyr enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the trybe wherin they are and so shall theyr enheritaunce be taken away from the enheritaunce of the tryde of oure fathers.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel at the mouth of the Lorde, saying: the tryde of the chyldre of Joseph haue sayd wel. But that the chyldren of Israel may abyde euerye man in the enheritaunce of the tryde of his fathers. * Tobi. vii. C

And euery doughter that possesseth any enheritaunce, amonge the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, shall be wyfe vnto one of the kynred of the tryde of her father, that the chyldren of Israel maye enioye euerye man the enheryteaunce of his father, and that the enheritaunce goo not frome one trybe to an other: but that the trybes of the chyldren of Israel may abyde euery man in his owne enheritaunce.

And as the Lorde commaunded Moses, euen so dyd the doughters of Zelaphead: Mahela, Thirza, Hagla, Milcha, and Noa, and were maried vnto theyr fathers brothers sonnes, of the kynred of the chyldren of Manasses the sonne of Joseph, and so they badde theyr enheritaunce in the tryde of the kynred of theyr father. These are the commaundementes and lawes whiche the Lorde commaunded thorowe Moses vnto the chyldren of Israel in the feldes of Moab vpon Jordan nere vnto Jericho.

THE FYFTE BOOKE OF MOSES CALLED DEVTERONOMIVM.

¶ A briefe rehersall of thynges done before, frome the pytchynge at mount Horeb vntyll they came to Cades barne.

CAPI. I.

A THese be the wordes which Moses spake vnto al Israel on the other syde Jordan in the wyldernes, in the feldes by the red see, betwen Pharan, Thophel, Laban, Hazeroth, and Disahab xi. dayes iourney frome Horeb vnto Cadesbarne, by the way that leadeth vnto mount Seir. And it happened ꝑ firste daye of the. xi. moneth, in the. xi. yere that Moses spake vnto the children of Israel according vnto all that the Lord had gyuen him in commaundement vnto them after he ꝑ had smytten Sehon the kyng of the Amorites which dwelt in Hesbon and Og kynge of Basan, whiche dwelt at Astaroth in Edrai.

Numeri. xxi. c

On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab, Moses began to declare this law, sayinge: the Lorde oure God spake vnto vs in ❧ Horeb, saying: Ye haue dwelt long ynough in this mount: departe therfore and take your iourney and go vnto the hylls of the Amorytes, and vnto all places nye there vnto: both feldes, hylles and dales: and vnto the southe and vnto the sees syde of the lande of Canaan, and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the great ryuer Euphrates. Beholde, I haue set the lande before you: go in therfore and possesse the lande whiche the Lorde sware vnto your fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to gyue vnto them, and their seed after them.

And I sayd vnto you the same season: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde your God hath multiplied you: so that ye are this daye as the sterres of heuen in nombre (the Lorde God of your fathers make you a thousande tymes so many mo as ye are, and bielde you as he hath promysed you) how (said I) can ✱ I my self alone beare the accõbraunce charge and stryfe that is amonges you: bring therfore men of wysdome and of vnderstandynge and of experience, knowne among your trybes, that I maye make them rulers ouer you. And ye answered me and sayd, that which thou hast spoken is good to be done. And then I toke the heedes of your trybes men of wisdome and experience, and made them rulers ouer you: capitaynes ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes, ouer fyftye, and ouer ten, and officers amonge your trybes.

toously betwene euerye man and his brother, and the straunger that is with hym. Se ye know no mans personage in iudgement, ✱ but heare the small as well as the greate, and be afrayde of no man, for the iudgement is Gods. And the cause that is to harde for you, bringe vnto me, and I wyll heare it. And I commaunded you the same season al thinges whiche ye sholde do. And then we departed frome Horeb, and walked thorow all that great and terrible wyldernesse as ye haue sene alonge by the waye that leadeth vnto the hylles of the Amorytes, as the Lorde oure God commaunded vs, and came to Cades Barne. And there I sayd vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hylles of the Amorytes whiche the Lorde our God dothe gyue vs.

Beholde, the Lorde thy God hathe set the lande before, goo vp and conquere it, as D the Lorde God of thy fathers sayethe vnto the: feare not, neyther be discouraged. And then ye came vnto me euerye one, and sayde. Lette vs sende men before vs, to inserche out the lande, and to bringe vs worde agayne, bothe what waye we shall goo vs by, and vnto what cytyes we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well, and I toke twelue men of you, of euerye tryde one. And they departed and wente vp in to the hyghe countrey, and came vnto the ryuer Escoll, and serched it oute, and toke of the frute of the lande in their handes, and broughte it downe vnto vs, and broughte vs worde agayne and sayd: It is a good lande which the Lorde our God dothe gyue vs.

Notwithstandynge ye wolde not consent to goo vp, but were disobediente vnto the mouth of the Lord your God, and murmured in youre tentes, and sayde: because the Lorde hateth vs, therfore he hath broughte vs oute of the lande of Egypte, to delyuer vs into the handes of the Amorites, and to destroye vs. Howe shall we goo vp? Oure brethren haue E discouraged our hertes, sayinge: The people is greater and taller then we, and the cityes are greate and walled, euen vp to heuen / and more ouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakims there.

And I sayde vnto you: dred not, neyther be afrayde of them. The Lorde your God which goeth before you, he shall fyght for you according to all that he dyd vnto you in Egypt, before your eyes, and in the wyldernesse, as thou hast sene how the Lorde thy God bare the as a man sholde beare his sonne thorowe out all the waye whiche ye haue gone, tyll ye came vnto this place. And yet for all this, ye dyd not beleue the Lorde youre God, whiche goeth the waye before you, to serche you oute a place to pytche youre tentes in, ✱ in fire by ✱ B nyght, that ye myght se what waye to go and in a cloude by daye.

And the Lorde herde the voyce of youre wordes, and was wrothe and sware, sayinge/ there shall not one of these men of this frowarde generacion se that good lande whiche I sware to gyue vnto youre fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune, he shall se it/ and to hym wyll I gyue the lande whiche he hathe walked in, and to his children becaule he hathe continually folowed the Lorde.

Likewise

Lykewyse the Lorde was angrye with me for your sakes, sayinge: thou also shalte not goo in thither. But Iosua the sonne of Nun whiche standeth before the, he shall go in thither. Bolden him therfore for he shall diuyde the heritage vnto Israel.

Num.xx.b

* Moreouer youre chyldren whiche ye sayd sholde be a praye, and youre sonnes whiche knowe neyther good nor bad this daye, they shall goo in thyther, and vnto them I wyll gyue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne backe and take youre iourneye in to the wylderneslle: euen the waye to the redde see. Then ye answered and sayde vnto me: We haue synned agaynst the Lorde we wyll goo vp and fyghte, accordynge to all that the Lorde oure God commaunded vs.

Deu.i.xxxiiii.c

And when ye hadde gyrde on euerye man his weapons of warre, and were redye to goo vp in to the hylles, the Lorde sayd vnto me: saye vnto them, se ye go not vp and that ye fyghte not, for I am not amõges you: lest ye be scoure ged before your ennemyes. * And when I told you ye wolde not heare: but disobeyed the mouthe of the Lorde, and wente presumptuously vp in to the hylles.

Then the Amorytes whiche dwelt in those hylles, came out agaynste you and chased you as bees do, and hewed you in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye came agayne and wept before the Lorde: but the Lord wold not heare your voyce, nor gyue you audience. And so ye abode in Cades alonge season.

The rehersall of that which was done frome the tyme that they departed frome Cades barne, vnto the battell agaynste the kynges Sehon and Og.

CAPI. II.

THen we turned and toke oure iourneye in to the wyldernesse, euen the waye to the redde see as the Lorde commaunded me. And we cõpassed the mountaynes of Seir a longe tyme. Then the Lorde spake vnto me sayinge: Ye haue compassed this mountaynes longe ynoughe, turne you northwarde. And warne the people, saying: Ye shall go thorow the costes of your brethren the chyldren of Esau, whiche dwell in Seir, and they shall be afrayde of you: But take good hede vnto youre selues, that ye prouoke them not, for I wyll not gyue you of theyr lande, no not so moche as a fote breade: because I haue gyuen mounte Seir vnto Esau to possesse. Ye shall bye meate of them for money to eate / and ye shall bye water of them for money to drynke. For the Lorde thy God hathe blessed the in al the workes of thyne hand, and knewe the as thou wentest thorow his great wylder nesse. Moreouer the Lorde thy God hath ben with the this fourtye yeres, so that thou hast lacked nothynge.

And when we were departed from our brethren the chyldren of Esau whiche dwelte in Seir by the felde waye from Elath and Ezion Gaber, we turned and wente the waye to the wyldernesse of Moab. Then the Lorde sayd vnto me, se that thou vexe not the Moabites, neyther prouoke them to battayle, for I wyll not gyue the of theyr lande for possesse: because I haue gyuen Ar vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. The Emims dwelt therin in tymes past, a people great, many and tall, as the Enakims: whiche also were taken for gyauntes as the Enakims: And the Moabites called them Emims.

Emim a kind of Gyauntes so called because they were terrible and cruel for Emim signifieth terriblenesse.

In lyke maner the Horims dwelte in Seir before tyme whiche the chyldren of Esau call out, and destroyed them before them & dwelte there in theyr stede: as Israel dyd in the lande of his possession whiche the Lorde gaue them. Now ryse vp (sayd I) and get you ouer the riuer Zared/ and we wente ouer the ryuer Zared. The space in which we came from Cades Barne, vntyll we were come ouer the ryuer Zared was .xxxviij. yeres, vntyll all the generacion of the men of warre were wasted oute of the hoste as the Lorde sware vnto them. For in dede the hand of the Lorde was agaynst them to destroye them oute of the hoste, tyll they were consumed.

And as soone as all the men of warre were consumed and deed for the of the people, then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge. Thou shalte go thorowe Ar the coste of Moab this daye, and shalt come nere vnto the chyldren of Ammon: se thou vexe them not, nor yet prouoke them. For I wyll not gyue the of the lande of the chyldren of Ammon to possesse, bycause I haue gyuen it vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. That also was taken for a land of gyauntes, and gyauntes dwelt therin in olde tyme, and the Ammonites called them Zanzummims. A people that was greate, many and talle, as the Enakims. But the Lorde destroyed them before the Ammonytes, and they caste them out, and they dwelte there in theyr stede: as he dyd for the chyldren of Esau, whiche dwell in Seir: euen as he destroyed the Horims before them, and they caste them oute and dwell in theyr stede vnto this daye. And the Auims whiche dwelte in Hazarim euen vnto Aza, the Caphthorims whiche came out of Caphthor, destroyed them and dwelte in theyr rowmes.

And so the Lozde oure God delyuered in to our handes, Og also the kynge of Basan, and all his folke. And we smote him, tyll noughte was lefte hym.

And we toke all his cityes the same season (foz there was not a citye which we toke not frome them, euen thze scoze cityes, all the region of Argob, the kyngdom of Og in Basan. All these cityes were made stronge with hye walles, gates, and barres/ besyde vnwalled townes a greate meyny. And we vtterly destroyed them as we played with Sehon kyng of Hesbon, bzyngynge to noughte all the cytyes with men, women, and chyldren. But all the cattell and the spoyle of the cityes, we preserued foz our selues.

And thus we toke the same season, the lande oute of the hande of two kynges of the Amozytes on the other syde Jozdan, frome the ryuer of Arnon vnto mounte Hermon, (whiche Hermon the Sidons call Sirion, but the Amozytes call it Senyz) all the cityes in the playne, and all Galaad, & all Basan vnto Salecha and Edzai, cityes of the kyngdom of Og in Basan. Foz onely Og kynge of Basan remayned of the rest of the gyauntes/ beholde his yzon bed is yet at Rabah among the chyldzen of Ammon, nyne cubytes longe, and four cubytes bzode, of the cubytes of a man.

And when we had conquered this land the same tyme, I gaue from Aroer, which is vpon the riuer of Arnon, and halfe mount Galaad, and the cityes therof vnto the Rubenites, and Gadites. And the rest of Galaad and all Basan, the kyngdome of Og / I gaue vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse, all the region of Argob withall. Basan was called the lande of gyauntes. Jair the sonne of Manasse toke all the regyon of Argob vnto the costes of Gesuri and Maachati, and called them after his owne name: Basan ϕ Hauoth Jair vnto this daye. And I gaue halfe Galaad vnto Machir. And vnto Ruben and Gad I gaue frō Galaad vnto the ryuer of Arnon, and halfe the valley and the coste, euen vnto the ryuer Jabocke, whiche is the bozder of the chyldren of Ammon, and the feldes and Jozdan with the coste from Cineroth vnto the see in the felde, whiche is the salt see vnder the spyzynges of Phasgah eastwarde.

And I commaunded you the same tyme (ye Ruben and Gad) sayinge: the Lozde youre God hathe gyuen you this lande to enioye it: se you goo harnelled before youre bzethzen the chyldzen of Israel all that are men of warre amonges you. Your wyues onely, youre chyldzen and your catell (foz I wote that ye haue moche catell) shall abyde in your cityes which I haue gyuen you, vntyll the Lozde haue gyuen rest vnto youre bzethzen as well as vnto you, and vntyll they also haue conquered the lande which the Lozde your God hath gyuen them beyonde Jozdan: and then returne agayne euery man vnto his possession which I haue gyuen you.

And I warned Josua the same tyme, sayinge: thyne eyes haue sene all that the Lozde your God hath done vnto these two kynges, euen so the Lozde wyll doo vnto all kyngedomes whyther thou goest. Feare them not, foz the Lozde youre God it is, that fyghteth foz you.

And I besought the Lozde the same tyme, sayinge: O Lozde God, thou hast begon to shewe thy seruaunt thy greatnesse & thy migh tye hande, foz there is no God in heuen noz in erth that can doo after thy wozkes, and after thy power: let me goo ouer and se the good land that is beyonde Jozdan, that goodly hye countrey, and Libanon. But the Lozde was angry with me foz your sakes, and wolde not heare me, but sayde vnto me: be content, and speake hence forthe no moze vnto me of this matter. ✝Get the vp in to the top of Phasgah and lyfte vp thyne eyes west, nozth, south and east, and beholde it with thyne eyes / foz thou shalte not goo ouer this Jozdan. Moreouer charge Josua and incourage him, and bolden him, foz he shall go ouer before his people, & he shall diuyde the lande, whiche thou shalte se, vnto them. AND nowe herken Israel vnto the ordynaunces and lawes which I teache you for to doo them, that ye maye lyue and go and conquere the lande whiche the Lorde God of your fathers gyueth you. Ye shall put nothyng vnto the word whiche I commaunde you, neyther do ought therfrom, that ye maye kepe the commaundementes of the Lord your God, whiche I commaunde you. * Your eyes haue sene what the Lorde dyd to Baal Peor: for all the men that folowed Baal Peor, the Lorde youre God hathe destroyed amonge you. But ye that claue vnto the Lorde your God are alyue euerye one of you this daye. Beholde, I haue taught you ordinaunces and lawes suche as the Lorde my God commaunded me that ye shulde do in the lande whyther ye go to possesse it.

Kepe them therfore and do them, * for that is your wysdome and vnderstandynge in the sight of the nacions: whiche when they haue herde all these ordynaunces, shall saye: O what a wyse and vnderstandynge people is this greate nacion. For what nacion is so greate that hathe Goddes so nye vnto him: as the Lorde our God is nye vnto vs in all thynges, when we call vnto him? Yea, and what nacions so great, that hathe ordinaunces and lawes so rygh tous, as all this lawe whiche I set before you this daye.

Take hede to thy selfe therfore onely, and kepe thy soule dylygently, that thou forget not the thynges whiche thyne eyes haue sene, and that they departe not out of thyne herte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but teache them thy sonnes, and thy sonnes sonnes. The daye that I stode before the Lorde youre God in Horeb when he sayd vnto me, gather me the people together, that I may make them heare my wordes to thintent they may lerne to feare me as long as they lyue vpon the erth, and that they may teache their chyldren: ye came and stode also vnder the hyll, and the hyll burnt with fire: euen vnto the myddes of heuen, & there was derknes cloudes and mist. And the Lorde spake vnto you out of the fire, and ye herd the voyce of the wordes: but saw no ymage, saue herde a voyce onely.

And he declared vnto you his couenaunt, whiche he commaunded you to doo, euen ten sayinges, and wrote them in to tables of stone And the Lord commaunded me that same season to teache you ordinaunces and lawes, for to doo them in the lande whyther ye goo to possesse it.

Take hede vnto youre selues dilygently, concernynge youre soules, for ye sawe no maner of ymage the day whē the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb out of the fire, lest you marre youre selues, and make you grauen ymages after what so euer lykenesse it be: whether after the lykenes of man or woman, or anye maner beest that is on the erth, or of any maner fethered foule that fleeth in the ayre, or of any maner worme that crepeth on the erth, or of any maner fysshe that is in the water benethe the erth: yea and lest thou lyfte vp thyne eyes vnto heuen, and when thou seest the sonne and the mone and the sterres, and what so euer is contayned in heuen, shuldest be discerued, and shuldest bowe thy selfe vnto them, and serue those thynges whiche the Lorde thy God hath distributed vnto all nacions, that are vnder all quarters of heuen.

For the Lorde toke you and brought you out of the yron fornace of Egypte, to be vnto him a people of enherytaunce, as it is come to passe this daye. Furthermore, the Lorde was angrye with me for your sakes and sware, that I shulde not goo ouer Iordane, and that I shulde not go vnto that good lande, which the Lorde thy God gyueth the to enheritaūce. For I muste dye in this lande, and shall not goo ouer Iordan. But ye shall goo ouer and conquere that good lande. Deute. i. f

Take hede vnto youre selues therfore that ye forget not the appoyntment of the Lorde your God whiche he made with you, and that ye make you no grauen ymage of what so euer it be that the Lorde thy God hath forbydden the. For the Lorde thy God is a consuming fire and a gelous God.

Yf after thou haste gotten chyldren, and chyldrens chyldren, and haste dwelte longe in the lande, ye shall marre youre selues and make grauen ymages after the lykenesse of what so euer it be, and shalte worke wickednesse in the syghte of the Lorde thy God, to prouoke him, I call heuen and earthe to recorde vnto you this daye, that ye shall shortly perysshe fro the of the lande whether ye go ouer Iordan to possesse it: ye shall not prolonge youre dayes therin, but shall shortly be destroyed. And the Lorde shall skatter you amonges nacions, and ye shall be lefte fewe in nombre among the people whyther the Lorde shall bringe you: and there ye shal serue goddes whiche are the workes of mannes hande, wodde and stone whiche neyther se, nor heare, nor eate, nor smell. Neuerthe lesse, ye shall seke the Lorde your God euen there, and shall fynde hym, yf thou seke hym with all thyne herte, and with all thy soule. In thy tribulacyon, and when all these thynges are come vpon the euen in the latter dayes; thou shalte tourne vnto the Lorde thy God, and shalte herken vnto his voyce. For the Lorde thy God is a pitefull God: he wyll not forsake the, neyther destroye the, nor forget the appoyntment made with thy fathers whiche he sware vnto them.

For aske I praye the, of the dayes that are paste whiche were before the, frome the daye that God created man vpon the earthe, and frome the one syde of heuen vnto the other, whether any thynge hath ben lyke vnto this great thyng, or whether any suche thinge hathe ben herde as it is, that a nacyon hathe herde the voyce of God speakynge out of fyre

These wordes the Lorde spake vnto all youre multitude in the mounte, oute of the fyre, cloude, and darkenesse, with a loude voyce, and added no more therto, and wrote them in two tables of stone, and delyuered them vnto me.

But as soone as ye herde the voyce, oute of the

And now wherfore shulde we dye ✠ this great fyre shuld consume vs: ✠ we shuld heare the voyce of the Lorde oure God anye more, we shulde dye. And the Lorde herde the voyce of your wordes when ye spake vnto me, and he sayde vnto me: I haue herde the voyce of the wordes of this people whiche they haue spoken vnto the, they haue well sayde al ✠ they haue sayd. ✳ Oh that they had suche an herte with them to feare me and kepe all my commaundementes alwaye, that it myght go well with them and with their children for euer. Go and say vnto them: Get you into your tentes agayne but stande thou here before me AND I wil tell the all the commaundementes, ordinaunces, and lawes which thou shalt teach them, that they may do them in the lande whiche I gyue them to possesse.

¶ The lawe must be earnestly printed in theyr hartes and to kepe it in memorye they must wryte it on the dores and postes of theyr houses: And teache it vnto theyr children.

CAPI. VI.

THese are the commaundementes, ordinaunces & lawes which the Lord your God commaunded to teache you, that ye myght do them in the lande whether ye go to possesse it: that thou mightest feare the Lorde thy God, to kepe all his ordinaunces and his commaundementes whiche I commande the, both thou and thy sonne and thy sonnes sonne all dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes maye be prolonged. Heare therfore Israel and take hede that thou do therafter, that it maye go well with the, and that ye maye encrease mightely euen as the Lorde God of thy fathers hathe promysed the, a lande that floweth with mylke and hony.

Heare Israel, the Lorde thy God is Lord only and thou shalt loue the Lorde thy God with all thyne harte, with all thy soule and with all thy myght. And these wordes which I commaunde the this daye, shalbe in thyne herte and thou shalt whet theym on thy children, and shalt talke of them when thou arte at home in thyne house, and as thou walkest by the waye, and when thou lyest downe and when thou ryssest vp: and thou shalte bynde them for a signe vpon thyne hande. And they shalbe papers of remẽbraunce betwene thyne eyes, and shalt wryte them vpon the postes of thy house and vpon thy gates.

And whẽ the Lorde thy God hath brought the into the lande whiche he sware vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to gyue the: with great and goodly cyties which thou buyldedst not, and houses full of all goodes which thou fylledest not, and welles dygged which thou dyggedest not, and vynes & oliue trees whiche thou plantedest not, and when thou haste eaten and arte full: Then beware lest thou forget the Lorde which brought the out of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage. But feare the Lorde thy God & serue him, and sweare by his name, and se ye walke not after strange goddes of the nations which are aboute you. And the Lorde shewed signes and wondres bothe great and euyll vpon Egypte, Pharao & vpon all his household, before our eyes & brought vs from thence: to bringe vs in, and to gyue vs the land which he sware vnto our fathers. And therfore commaunded vs to do all these ordinaunces and to feare the Lorde our God, for our welthe alwayes, and that he myghte saue vs, as it is come to passe this daye. CAPI. VIII.

ALl the commaundementes whiche I commaunde the this daye, ye shal kepe to do them, that ye maye lyue and multyply and go and possesse the lande which the Lorde sware vnto your fathers. And thinke on all the waye which the Lorde thy God led the this. xl. yere in the wyldernesse, for to humble the and to proue the, to wete what was in thyne hert, whether thou woldest kepe his commaundementes or no, He humbled the & made the honger, and fed the with Manna, which neyther thou nor thy father knewe of, to make the knowe that a man must not lyue by bread only: but by all that proceedeth oute of the mouthe of the Lorde must a man lyue. Thy rayment wared not olde vpon the, neyther dyd thy fete swell this. xl. yere.

Understand therfore in thyne herte that as a man nourtereth his sonne, euen so the Lord thy God nourtereth the. Kepe therfore the commaundemētes of the Lorde thy God that thou walke in his wayes, and that thou feare him. For the Lorde thy God bringeth the into a good lande, a lande of ryuers of water, of fountaynes & of springes that springe out bothe in valeyes and hylles: a land of whete and of barly, of vynes, fygge trees and Pomgranates, a lande of olyue trees of oyle and of ho-

D And beware thou saye not in thyne herte, my power and the myght of myne owne hād hath wne me all these actes: But remembre the Lorde thy God, that it is he which gaue the power to do manfully, for to make good the promyse which he sware vnto thy fathers as it is come to passe this daye.

For yf thou shalt forget the Lorde thy God and shalt walk after straunge goddes & serue them and worshyp them, I testifye vnto you this daye, that ye shall surely perysshe. A HEare Israel, thou goest ouer Iordā this daye, to go and conquere nacions greater and myghtyer then thy selfe, and cyties great and walled vp to heauen, & people great and tall, euen the children of the Enakims, which thou knowest & of whome thou hast herde saye, who is hable to stande before the children of Enack? But vnderstande this daye that the Lorde thy God which goeth before the, a consumynge fyre, he shall destroye them, and shall subdue them before the. Understande therfore that it is not for thy ryghteousnes, that the Lorde thy God wthe gyue the this good lande to possesse, for thou arte a styfenecked people. Remembre and forget not, how thou prouokedst the Lorde thy God in the wyldernesse: for sythens the daye that thou camest out of the lande of Egypte vntyll ye came vnto this place, ye haue rebelled against the Lorde. * Also in Horeb ye angred the Lorde, so that the Lorde was wroth with you, euen to haue destroyed you, after ỹ I was gone vp into the mount, to fet the tables of stone, the tables of appoyntement which the Lord made with you. And now, Israel, what is it that the Lord thy God requireth of the, but to feare the Lorde thy God, & to walke in all his wayes, and to * loue him, and to serue the Lorde thy God with all thyne herte, and with all thy soule, that thou kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde and his ordinaunces whiche I commaunde the this daye, for thy wealth. * D

Circumcyse therfore the foreskynne of your hertes, and be no longer styffenecked. For the Lorde your God, he is God of Goddes, and Lorde of Lordes, a great God, a myghty and a terrible, whiche regardeth no mans person, nor taketh gyftes: but wyth ryghte vnto the fatherlesse and wydowe, and loueth the straunger, to gyue him fode and rayment. Loue therfore the straunger, for ye were straũgers your selues in the lande of Egypte. Thou shalte feare the Lorde thy God, and serue him, and cleaue vnto him, and sweare by his name, for he is thy prayse, and he is thy God that hath wrought these greate and terrible thinges for the, which thyne eyes haue sene. CAPI. XI.

LOue the Lorde thy God, and kepe his obseruaunces, his ordinaũces, his lawes and his commaundmentes alwaye. And call to mynde this daye that which your children haue neyther knowen nor sene: euen the nourture of the Lorde youre God, his greatnesse, his myghty hand, and his stretched out arme: his myracles, and his actes whiche he dyd amonges the Egyptians, euen vnto Pharao the kynge of Egypte, & vnto all his land: and what he dyd vnto the host of the Egyptians, vnto their horses and charettes, howe he

he brought the water of the reed see vpon the as they chased you, and howe the Lorde hath brought them to nought vnto this daye: and what he did vnto you in the wildernesse, vntyll ye came vnto this place: and what he
Num.xvi.e did vnto * Dathan and Abiram the sonnes from. of Eliab the sonne of Ruben, howe the erthe opened her mouth and swalowed them with theyr housholdes and theyr tentes, and all theyr substaunce that was in theyr possession, in the myddes of Israel.

B For youre eyes haue sene all the greate deades of the Lorde which he dyd. Kepe therfore all the commaundementes which I commaunde the this daye that ye maye be stronge and go and conquere the lande whether ye go to possesse it, and that ye may prolonge youre dayes in the lande which the Lorde sware vnto your fathers to gyue vnto them, & to their seed, a lande that floweth with mylke & hony. For the lande whether thou goest to possesse it, is not as the lande of Egypt whence thou camest out, where thou sowedest thy seed and waterdest it with thy fete as a garden of herbes: but the lande whither ye go ouer to possesse, is a lande of hilles and valeyes and drinketh water of the rayne of heauen, and a land which the Lord thy God careth for. The eyes of the Lorde thy God are alwayes vpon it, frome the begynninge of the yere vnto the later ende of the yere.

If you shall herken therfore vnto my commaundmentes which I commaunde you this daye, that ye loue the Lorde youre God and serue him with all your hertes, and with all tis af- youre soules: then he will gyue rayne vnto dethe, your lande in due season, both the first & rayne ne in and the later, and thou shalte gather in thy whi- corne thy wyne and thyne oyle. And he wyll after sende grasse in thy feldes for thy catell: & thou e, and shalt eate and fyll thy selfe. But take hede to time youre selues, that ye be not deceyued that ye turne a syde and serue strange Goddes & worshyp them, & so the wrath of the Lorde ware bote vpon you, and shut vp the heauen that there be no rayne and that youre lande yelde not her encreace and that ye perysshe shortely frome the good lande which the Lorde gyueth
L But vp therfore these my wordes in youre hertes and in your soules, and bynde them for a signe vnto your handes, and let them be as papers of remembraunce betwene your eyes, and * teache them your children: so that thou

For yf ye shall kepe all these commaūdemētes which I commaunde you, so that ye do them, and loue the Lorde your God, and walke in all his wayes and cleaue vnto him: Then will the Lorde cast out all these nations, & ye shall conquere them whiche are both greatter and myghtyer then your selues. * All the places where on the soles of youre fete shall treade, * Iosua.i.a shalbe yours, euen frome the wyldernesse and frome mount Libanon, and frome the ryuer Euphrates, yea vnto the vttermoste see shall your coostes be. There shall no man be able to stande before you: the Lorde your God shal cast the feare and dreade of you vpon all landes whether ye shall come, as he hathe sayde vnto you.

* Beholde I set before you this day, a blessinge and a curse: a blessynge: yf ye herken * Deut.xxx.c vnto the cõmaundementes of the Lorde your Deu.xxviii.a God, which I commaunde you this daye. D And a curse: yf ye will not herken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde your God: but turne out of the waye (which I cõmaund you this daye) to walke after other goddes whome you know not.

When the Lorde thy God hathe brought the into the lande whether thou goest to possesse it, then put the blessinge vpon mounte Garizim, and the curse vpon mounte Ebal, which are beyonde Iordan on the backe syde Deut.xxvii.b of the waye towarde the goynge downe of þ sonne in the lande of the Cananytes whiche dwell in the feldes ouer against Galgall besyde the oke groue of Moreh. For ye shall go ouer to take seasin of þ lande which the Lord your God gyueth you, and shall conquere it, and dwell therin. Take hede, therfore, that ye do all the lawes, both ecclesiasticall & temporall which I set before you this daye.

When the Lord thy God hath destroyed the nations, whose land the Lorde thy God giueth the, and thou hast conquered them and dwellest in their cyties and in their houses: thou shalt appoynte. iij. cyties in the myddes of the lande whiche the Lorde thy God giueth þ to possesse: thou shalt prepare the waye and diuide the costes of thy lãd whiche the Lorde thy God giueth the to enherete, into. iij. partes, that who so euer committeth murther maye flee thither. And this is the cause of the slayer that shall flee thither and be saued: Yf he smyte his neyghboure ignorauntly and hated him not in tyme passed: As when a man goeth vnto the wodde with his neyghboure to hewe wod, & as his hande fetcheth a stroke with the axe, the head slipped frome the helue and smyteth his neyghboure that he dye: the same shall flee vnto one of the same cyties and be saued. Least the reuenger of blood folow after þ slayer whyle his herte is hote & ouertake him, because the waye is longe, and slee him, and yet there is no cause worthy deathe in him, for asmoch as he hated not his neyghboure in tyme passed. Wherfore I commaũde the, se thou appoint out thre cyties.

And yf the Lorde thy God enlarge thy costes as he hath swore vnto thy fathers and giue the all the lande which he sayd he wold giue vnto thy fathers (so that thou kepe all these commaundementes and do them, which I commaunde the this daye, that thou loue the Lorde thy God and walke in his wayes euer) then thou shalt put thre cyties mo vnto those thre that innocente bloude be not shed in thy lande whiche the Lorde thy God giueth the to enherete, and so bloude come vpon the. But yf there be any man that hateth his neyghboure and layeth awayt for him and ryseth against him, and smyteth him that he dye and fleeth vnto any of these cyties: Then let þ elders of his cyte sende & fetche him thence and deliuer him into the handes of the iustice of bloude, & he shall dye. Let thyne eye haue no pitie on him, and so thou shalt put awaye innocent bloude frome Israel, and happy art thou. Thou shalt not remoue thy neighbours marke, whiche they of olde tyme haue set in thyne enheritaũce that thou enhereteest in the lande whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the to enioye it.

One wytnesse shal not aryse against a man in any maner trespace or synne, what so euer synne a man cõmitteth: ✻ But at the mouth of two or of thre wytnesses, shall all maters be tryed.

Yf an vnrighteous wytnes arise vp against a man to accuse him of trespace: then let both the men which stryue together, stande before the Lorde, before the preastes and the iudges which shalbe in those dayes, and let the iuges enquere narowly. And yf the wytnes be found false and that he hathe giuen false wytnesse against his brother then shall ye do vnto him, as he had thought to do vnto his brother, and so thou shalt put euyll awaye frome the. And other shall heare and feare & shall henceforth commit no more any suche wyckednesse amõges you. For the Lorde thy God goeth wt you to fight for you againste your ennemyes and to saue you.

And let the captaynes speake vnto the people, sayenge: Yf any man haue buylt a newe house and haue not dedicate it, let him go and returne to his house least he dye in the battel and an other dedicate. And yf any man haue planted a vynearde and haue not made it comen wherof euery man may eate, let him goo and returne agayne vnto his house, least he dye in the battell and an other make it comē. Whē thou hast besieged a cytie longe tyme in makinge warre against it to take it, destroy not the trees therof, that thou wolest thrust an axe vnto them. And nowe lo, I haue brought the first frutes of the lande whiche the Lorde hath gyuen me. And set it before the Lorde thy God, and worshyp before the Lorde thy God, and reioyce ouer all the good thynges which ỹ Lorde thy God hath gyuen vnto the, and vnto thine house, bothe thou the Leuite, and the straunger that is amonge you.

When thou hast made an ende of tithynge all the tithes of thyne encrease the thirde yere, the yere of tythynge: thou shalte gyue it vnto the Leuyte, the straunger, the fatherlesse & the wydowe, that they maye eate in thy gates, and fyll them selues. Then saye before the Lorde thy God. I haue brought all that is halowed out of thyne house, and haue gyuen them vnto the Leuyte, the straunger, the fatherlesse and the wydowe accordynge to all the comaundementes whiche thou commaundest me: I haue not ouerskypped thy commaundementes, nor forgotten them. I haue not eaten therof in my mournynge nor taken awaye therof vnto any vncleannesse, nor spente therof about any deed corse, but haue herkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde our God, & haue doone after all that he commaunded me, loke downe frome thy holy habitacion of heauen, and blesse thy people Israel, and the lande which thou hast gyuen vs (as thou swarest vnto our fathers) a lande ỹ floweth with mylke and honye.

This daye the Lorde thy God hathe commaunded the to doo these ordynaunces and lawes. Kepe them therfore and do them with all thyne herte, and all thy soule. ✱Thou hast chosen the Lorde this day to be thy God, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his ordynaunces, his commaundementes, & his lawes, and to herken vnto his voyce.

And the Lorde hath chosen the this daye to be a seuerall people vnto hym (as he hathe promysed the) and that thou kepe his commaundementes, and to make the hygher then all nacions whiche hathe made: in prayse, in name and honoure: that thou mayste be an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God, as he hath sayd.

¶ An aultarr muste be buylded. The blessynges in the hyll Garizim. The Curses in the hyll Eball.

CAPI. XXVII.

AND Moses with the elders of Israel commaunded the people, saying: Kepe all the commaundementes whiche I commaunde you this daye. ✱And when ye be come ouer Jordan vnto the lande whiche the Lorde thy God gyueth the, set vp greate stones, and playster them with playster, & wryte vpon them all the wordes of this lawe, when thou arte come ouer: that thou mayste come in to the lande whiche the Lorde thy God gyueth the: a lande that floweth with mylke & honye: as the Lord God of thy fathers hath promysed the.

When ye be come ouer Jordan, se ye set vp these stones whiche I commaunde you this daye vpon mounte Eball, and playster them with playster. And there build vnto the Lord thy God ✱an aulter of stones, and se thou lift vp no yron vpon them. But thou shalte make the aulter of the Lorde thy God of rough stones, and offre burnt offerynges theron vnto ỹ Lorde thy God. And thou shalte offre peaxofferynges, and shalte eate there, and reioyce before the Lorde thy God. And thou shalt wryte vpon the stones all the wordes of this lawe, well and playnly.

And Moses with the preestes the Leuytes spake vnto all Israel, sayinge: take hede and heare Israel / this daye thou arte become the people of the Lorde thy God. Herken therfore vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, and do his commaundementes and his ordinaunces which I commaunde you this daye.

And Moses charged the people the same daye, saying. These shall stande vpon mount Garizim, to bielle the people when ye are come ouer Jordan: Symeon, Leui, Juda, Issachar, Joseph and Benjamin. And these shall stande vpon mount Eball to curse: Ruben, Gad, Aser, Zabulon, Dan, and Nephthali. And the Leuytes shall begynne and saye vnto al the men of Israel with a loude voyce.

¶ The Curses.

✱Cursed be he that maketh anye carued ymage, or ymage of mettall (an abhominacion vnto the Lorde, the worke of the handes of the craftesman) and putteth it in a secrete place. And all the people shall answere and saye Amen.

✱Cursed be he that despyseth his father or his mother. And all the people shall saye. Amen.

Cursed be he that remoueth his neyghbours merestone. And all the people shal saye. Amen.

Cursed be he that maketh the blynde goo oute of his waye. And all the people shall saye. Amen.

✱Cursed be he that hyndreth the ryght of the straunger, fatherlesse and wydow, and all the people shall saye. Amen.

¶ The pꝛomyſes of the bleſſynges vnto them that regarde the commaundementes: and the curſes to the contrary.

CAPI. XXVIII.

A ✻Leu.xxvi.a The bleſſynges.

YF ✻ thou ſhalte herken diligently vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to obſerue and do all his commaundementes whiche I commaunde the this daye, the Lord wyll ſet the aboue all nacions of the earthe. And all theſe bleſſynges ſhall come on the and ouertake the, yͤ thou ſhalte herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God. Bleſſed ſhalte thou be in the towne, and bleſſed in the feldes, bleſſed ſhall be the frute of thy body, the frute of thy grounde, and the frute of they catell, the frute of thyne oxen, and thy flockes of ſhepe, bleſſed ſhal thy barnes be and thy store. Bleſſed ſhalte thou be, bothe when thou goeſt oute, and bleſſed when thou commeſt in.

✻Deute.ii.a. ✻The Lorde ſhal ſmyte thyne ennemyes that ryſe agaynſte the before thy face. They ſhall come out agaynſte the one waye, and flyenke before the ſeuen wayes. The Lorde ſhall commaund the bleſſyng to be with the in thy store houſes, and in al that thou ſetteſt thyne hand to, and wyll bleſſe the in the lande whyche the Lorde thy God gyueth the.

The Lorde ſhall make the an holy people vnto him ſelfe, as he hath ſworne vnto the: yͤ thou ſhalte kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde thy God, and walke in his wayes.

And all nacions of the earthe ſhall ſe that the name of the Lorde is called vpon amongſt you, and they ſhall be afeerde of the. And the Lorde ſhall make the plentious in goodes, in the frute of thy bodye, in the frute of thy catell, and in the frute of thy grounde, in the land which the Lorde ſware vnto thy fathers to gyue the.

✻ Deute.xi.b ✻ The Lorde ſhall open vnto the his good treaſure, euen the heuen, to gyue rayne vnto thy lande in due ſeaſon, and to bleſſe all the labours of thyne hande. And thou ſhalte lende Deuter.xv.a. vnto many nacions, but ſhalt not nede to borowe thy ſelfe. And the Lorde ſhall ſet the, D beſore and not beehynde, and thou ſhalte be aboue onely, and not benethe: yͤ thou herken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde thy God whyche I commaunde the this daye to kepe and to doo. And ſe thou bowe not frome any of theſe wordes which I commaunde the this daye, eyther to the eyght hande or to the lefte, that thou woldeſt goo after ſtraunge goodes to ſerue them. Deu.xxvii.a

But yͤ thou wylte not herken vnto ỹ voyce of the Lorde thy God to kepe and to doo all his commaundementes and ordinaunces wyche I commaunde the this daye: then ✻ all theſe curſes ſhal come vpon the and ouertake the: Curſed ſhalte thou be in the towne, and curſed in the felde / curſed ſhall thy barne be and thy ſtore. Curſed ſhall the frute of thy bodye and the frute of thy land be, and the frute of thyne oxen and the flockes of thy ſhepe. And curſed ſhalte thou be when thou goeſt in, and when thou goeſt out. And the Lorde ſhal ſend vpon the curſynge, deſtruction, and complaynynge in all that thou ſetteſt thyne hande to, what ſo euer thou weſt, vntyl thou be deſtroyed and brought to nought quickely, becauſe of the wyckednes of thyne owne deuiſes in that thou haſt forſaken the Lorde. And the Lorde ſhall make the peſtilence cleaue vnto the, vntyll he hath conſumed the from the land whyther thou goeſt to entoye it. ✻ And the Lorde ſhall ſmyte the with ſmellynge, with feuers, ✻Le heet, burnynge, witherynge, with ſmytynge, and blaſtynge. And they ſhall folowe the tyll thou peryſhe.

✻ And the heuen that is ouer thy heed ſhal be braſſe, and the erthe that is vnder the yron. ✻De And the Lorde ſhall tourne the rayne of the lande vnto pouder and duſte: euen frome heuen aſſhes ſhall come downe vpon the, vntyll thou be brought to nought. And thy carkaſſe ſhall be meate vnto all maner foules of the ayre, and vnto the beaſtes of the erthe, and no man ſhall fraye them awaye.

Thy sonnes and thy doughters shal be gyuen vnto an other nacion, and thyne eyes shall se and dase vpon them all daye longe, but shalte haue no myght in thyne hande. The frute of thy lande and all thy laboures shall a nacion which thou knowest not, eate/ and thou shalt dyll suffre vyolence, and be oppressed alwaye: that thou shalte be cleane beyde thy selfe for the syght of suche thynges as thou shalt se.

The Lorde shall smyte the with a myschevous botche in the knees and legges, so that thou canst not be healed: euen frome the sole of the fote vnto the top of the heed.

* The Lorde shall bryng bothe the, and thy kynge whiche thou hast set ouer the vnto a nacion whiche neyther thou nor thy fathers haue knowen/ and there thou shalte serue straunge Goddes: euen wodde and stone. And thou shalte goo to waste, and be made a prouerbe, and a testynge stocke vnto all nacions whyther the Lorde shal carye the. Thou shalt cary moche seed out in to the feld, and shalt gather but lytle in, for the grethoppers shal destroye it. Thou shalte plante a vyneparde and dresse it, but shalte neyther drynke of the wine ne gather of the grapes, for the wormes shal eate it. Thou shalte haue olyue trees in all thy costes, but shalte not be anoynted with the oyle, for thyne olyue trees shall be rooted oute. Thou shalte gette sonnes and doughters, but shalte not haue theym: for they shall be caryed awaye pysoners. All thy trees and frute of thy lande shall be marred with blastynge.

The straungers that are amonge you shall clymme aboue the, and thou shalte come downe alowe. He shall lende the, and thou shalte not lende hym, he shall be before, and thou behynde.

Moreouer all these curses shall come vpon the, and shall folowe the and imbrace the, tyll thou be destroyed: bicause thou herkenedst not vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe his commaundementes and ordinaunces whi che he commaunded the, and they shal be vpon the as meruayles and wonders, and vpon thy seed for euer. And bicause thou seruedest not the Lorde thy God with ioyfulnesse, and with a good herte for the abundance of all thinges therfore thou shalte serue thyne ennemy whi che the Lorde shall sende vpon the: in hunger and thurste, in nakednesse, and in nede of all thynge. And he shall put a yoke of yron vpon thy necke, tyll he haue brought the to noughte.

And the Lorde shall bryng a nacion vpon the from farre, euen from the ende of ꝑ worlde as swyfte as an Egle fleeth: a nacyon whose tonge thou shalte not vnderstande: a harde herted nacion which shall not regarde the person of the olde, nor haue compassion on the yonge. And he shall eate the frute of thy lande, and the frute of thy cattell vntyll he haue destroyed the: so that he shall leaue the neyther corne, wyne, nor oyle, neyther the encrease of thyne oxen, nor the flockes of thy shepe, vntyll he haue brought the to noughte. And he shall kepe the in, in all thy cuyes, vntyll thy hye and stronge walles be come downe wherin thou trustedest, thorowe all the lande. And he shall besiege the in all thy gates thorowe oute all thy lande whiche the Lorde thy God hath gyuen the. F

* And thou shalt eate of the frute of thyne owne bodye: the flesshe of thy sonnes and of thy doughters whiche the Lorde thy God hathe gyuen the, in that straytnesse and siege wherwith thyne ennemye shall besiege the, so that it shall greue the man that is tender and delycate amonge you, to loke on his brother, and vpon his wyfe that lyeth in his bosome, and on the reste of his children whiche he hath yet left, for feare of gyuynge vnto anye of them of the flesshe of his children, whiche he eateth bycause he hathe nought lefte hym in the straytnesse and siege wherwith thyne ennemyes shall besiege the in all thy cuyes. * iiii. Re. vi. f Thren. iii. b Baruch. ii. a.

Yea and the woman that is so tender and delycate amonges you that she dare not aduenture to set the sole of her foote vpon the grounde for softnesse and tendernesse, shall be greued to loke on the husbande that lyeth in her bosome, euen for the flesshe of her sonne and of her doughter the after byrthe that is come bycause of her children whiche she hath borne, she wolde eate them that same hour for nede of all thynges secretly, in the straytnesse and siege wherwith thyne ennemye shall besiege the in thy cuyes.

Yf thou wylte not be diligent to do all the wordes of this lawe that are wryten in this boke, to feare this glorious & fearefull name of the Lorde thy God: the Lorde wyl smyte bothe the and thy seed with wonderfull plages and with great plages and of longe continuance, and with euyll sycknesses & of longe duraunce. Moreouer he wyll bryng vpon the all the diseases of Egypte whiche thou wast afrayde of, and they shall cleaue vnto the. Therto all maner sycknesses and all maner plages, whiche are not wryten in the boke of this lawe, wyl the Lorde bryng vpon the, tyll thou be brought to noughte. And ye shall be left fewe in nombre, where before ye were as the * sterres of heuen in multitude: bycause thou wouldest not herken vnto the voyce of ꝑ Lorde thy God. * Deute. x. d.

* And as the Lorde reioyced ouer you to do you good, and to multiplye you: euen so he wyll reioyce ouer you, to destroye you, and to bryng you to noughte. And ye shall be walted oute of the lande whyther thou goest to enioye it. And the Lorde shall skatter the amonge all nacions, from the one ende of the worlde vnto the other, and there thou shalte serue straunge Goddes, whiche neyther thou nor thy fathers haue knowen: euen wodde and stone. * Jere. xxxi. e G

And among these nacions thou shalt haue no quyetnes, neyther shal there be any reste to the sole of thy fote. For the Lorde shal gyue the there a tremblyng herte, and dasyng eyes, and sorowe of mynde. And thy lyfe shall hange before the, and thou shalte feare bothe daye and nyghte, and shalte haue no truste in thy thy lyfe. In the mo;ning thou shalt say, wolde God it were nyght. And at nyght thou shalte saye, wolde God it were mo;nyng, fo; feare of thyne hert which thou shalt fear, and fo; the sight of thyne eyes whiche thou shalt se,

CAPI. XXIX.

A Erod.xix.a Numeri.xxi.c THese are the wo;des of the appoyntmẽt whiche the Lo;de commaunded Moses to make with the chyldren of Israel in the lande of Moab, besyde the appoyntment which he made with them in Ho;eb. And Moses called vnto all Israel and sayd vnto them: Ye haue sene all that the Lo;de dyd before youre eyes in the land of Egypt, vnto Pharao Deuter.xxx.b Jerem.xxxi.b and vnto all his seruauntes, and vnto all his lande, and the great temtacions which thyne eyes haue sene, and those great myracles and wonders: and yet the Lo;de hath not gyuen you an hert to perceyue, no; eyes to se, no; eares to heare vnto this daye.

*Deu.viii.a * And he hath conduyted you.xl. yere in the wylderneße, and youre clothes are not waxed olde vpon you. no; are youre shoes waxed olde vpon youre fete. Ye haue eatẽ no bred no; dr̃ke wyne o; stronge drynke, that ye might knowe he is the Lo;de youre God.

B *Num.xxi.f. and.g.Deutr. xxx.a Deutrro.ii.f. * And at laste ye came vnto this place, and Sehon the kynge of Hesbon, and Og kyng of Basan came fo;th agaynst you vnto batayle, & we smote them and toke they; land, and gaue it an enheritaunce vnto the R̃ubenytes, and Deuter.iiii.a Gadites, & to the halfe tribe of Manasse. Kepe therfo;e the wo;des of this appoyntment, & w them, that ye may vnderstand al that ye ought Deuter.iiii.a to do. * Ye stande here this daye euery one of you before the Lo;de youre God: bothe the heedes of your trybes, youre elders, youre offycers, and all the men of Israel: youre chyldren, Iosue.ix.d youre wyues, and the straũger that soiourneth in thyne hoste, from the hewer of thy wod, vn to the drawer of thy water, that thou sholdest come vnder the appoyntment of the Lo;d thy God, and vnder his othe which the Lo;de thy God maketh with the this daye, to make the a people vnto hym selfe, and that he maye be thy God, as he hath sayde vnto the, and as he Genes.xviii.a hath swo;ne vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

C Neyther I make this bonde, and this othe with you onely: but both with hym that standeth here with vs this daye before the Lo;de oure God, and also with him that is not here with vs this daye. fo; ye know how we haue dwelt in the land of Egypt, and how we came thoro;w the myddes of the nations whiche we passed by. And ye haue sene they; abhominacions and they; yddolles: wodde, stone, syluer and golde whiche they wo;shypped.

Leest there be amonge you man o; woman kynred o; tribe that turneth away in his hert this daye from the Lo;de our God, to go and serue the Goddes of these nations: and leest there be amonge you some roote that beareth gall and wo;mewod, so that when he heareth the wo;des of this curse, he bleße him selfe in his hert, saying. I shal haue peax. I wyl therfo;e wo;ke after the lust of myne owne herte, that the dro;nken may perysshe with the thyrste. And so the Lo;de wyl not be mercyful vn to hym, but then the wrathe of the Lo;de and his gelousye smoke agaynst that man, and all the curses that are wrytten in this boke, lyght vpon hym, and the Lo;de do out his name vnder heuen, and separate hym vnto euyll out of all the trybes of Israel, acco;dyng vnto al the curses of the appoyntment that is wrytten in the boke of this lawe.

D So that the generacion to come of youre chyldren that shall ryse vp after you, and the straunger that shall come from ferre saye whe they se the plages of that lande, and the dises wherwith the Lo;de hath smytten ye how all the lande is burnt vp with brymstone and salte, and that it is neyther sowne no; beareth no; anye grasse groweth therin, acco;dynge to the ouerthro;wynge of *Sodome, Gomo;, Adama, and Zeboim: whiche the Lo;de ouerthrewe in his wrath and angre.

And then shal all nations also saye: *wherfo;e hathe the Lo;de doone in this wyse vnto this lande? O how fearse is this great wrath? And men shal saye: bycause they left the testament of the Lo;de, God of they; fathers whi che he made with them when he brought them oute of the lande of Egypte. And they went and serued straunge goddes and wo;shypped them: goddes which they knewe not, & which hadde gyuen them noughte. And therfo;e the wrathe of the Lo;de waxed hoote vpon that land to brynge vpon it all the curses that are wrytten in this boke. And the Lo;de cast them out of they; lande in angre, wrath, and great furyousnesse, and caste them in to a straunge lande, as it is come to passe this daye. The secretes of the Lo;de our God are opened vnto vs and our chyldren fo; euer, that we do al the wo;des of this lawe.

¶ The wo;de of God is not farre frome them that seke fo; it, but in they; mouthes and hertes.

CAPI. XXX.

WHen al these wo;des are come vpon the, whether it be the blessynge o; the curse whiche I haue set before the, yet if thou turne vnto thyne hert among all the nations whyther the Lo;de thy God hathe thrust the, and come agayne vnto the Lo;d thy God and harken vnto his voyce, acco;dynge to all that I commaunde the this daye: bothe thou, and thy chyldren with all thyne herte, and all thy soule: Then the Lo;de thy God wyll tourne thy captiuitie, and haue compassion vpon the, and go and fet the agayne frome all the nations amonges which the Lo;de thy God shal haue haue scatered the. Though thou wast cast vnto the extreme partes of heuen: euen frome thence wyl the Lord thy God gather the, and from thence fet the & bryngе the in to the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt enioye it. And he will shew the kyndnesse & multiply the aboue thy fathers. * And the Lorde thy God will circumcise thyne hert, and ℔ hert of thy seed for to loue the Lord thy God with all thyne hert, & all thy soule, that thou mayst lyue. * And the Lorde thy God will put all these curses vpon thyne enemyes and on them that hate and pursue the.

But thou shalt turne and harken vnto the voyce of the Lorde and do all his commaundementes which I cõmaunde the this daye. And the Lord thy God wyl make the plentious in all the worckes of thyne hand, and in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy catel, and frute of thy lande, and in riches. * For the Lord wil turne agayn and reioyce ouer the, to do ℔ good as he reioyced ouer thy fathers. Yf thou herke vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe his commaundementes and ordinaunces, whi the are written in the boke of this law, if thou turne vnto the Lorde thy God with al thyne hert, and all thy soule.

* For the commaundement whiche I commaunde the this daye, is not hyd from the, ne farre of. It is not in heuen that thou nedest to saye: who shall go vp for vs to heuen, and fet it vs, that we maye heare it and do it. Neither is it beyonde the see: that thou sholdest saye: who shal go ouer see for vs & fet it vs that we maye heare it and do it. But the worde is verye nye vnto the, euen in thy mouth & in thyne hert that thou do it.

Beholde, I haue set before you this daye lyfe and good, deth and euyll: in that I commaunde the this daye to loue the Lorde thy God, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commaundementes, his ordynaunces and his lawes: that thou mayste lyue and multiplye, and that the Lorde thy God maye bleſſe the in the lande whyther thou goest to possesse it.

But if thyne hert turne awaye, so that thou wylt not heare: but shalt go astraye and worshyp straunge goddes, and serue them, I certifie you this daye, that ye shall surely perysshe, and that ye shal not prolong your dayes vpon the land whyther thou passest ouer Iordan to go and possesse it.

* I call to recorde this daye vnto you heuen and erth, that I haue set before you lyfe and death, blessynge and cursynge: but chose lyfe, that thou and thy seed may lyue, in that thou louest thy Lorde thy God, harkenest vnto his voyce, and cleauest vnto hym. For he is thy lyfe and the lengthe of thy dayes, that thou mayste dwell vpon the earth which the Lorde sware vnto thy fathers: Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob to gyue them.

¶ Moses being ready to dye, ordereth Iosue to rule the people in his stede. This boke Deuteronomye is written and layde in the tabernacle beside the arcke The Leuytes are charged to reade it to the people.

CAPI. XXXI.

AND Moses went and spake these wordes vnto al Israel and sayd vnto them. I am an hundred and twentye yere olde this daye, and can no more go out and in. Also the Lorde hath sayd vnto me, thou shalte not goo ouer this Iordan. The Lorde youre God he wyll go ouer before the, and he wyl destroy these nations before the, and thou shalte conquere them. And Iosua shall goo ouer before the, as the Lorde hathe sayde. And the Lorde shall goo vnto them, as he dyd to Seyon and Og kynge of the Amorytes, and vnto their landes, which kynges he destroyed. And when the Lorde hath deliuered them to you, se ye do vnto them according vnto all the commaundementes whiche I haue commaunded you. Plucke vp your hertes and be stronge, drede not, nor be afeerde of them/for the Lorde thy God him selfe will go with the, and will neither let the go, nor forsake the.

And Moses called Iosua and said vnto him in the sight of all Israel, * Be stronge & bolde for thou muste goo with this people vnto the land which the Lorde hath sworne vnto their fathers to gyue them, and thou shalte gyue it them to inheryte. And the Lorde shall goo before the, and he shall be with the, and wyl not let the goo, nor forsake the/feare not therfore, nor be discomforted.

And Moses wrote this lawe and deliuered it vnto the preestes the sonnes of Leui, which * bare the arcke of the testament of the Lorde, and vnto all the elders of Israel, and commaunded them saying, * At the ende of the .vij. yere, in the tyme of the free yere, in the feast of the tabernacles, when al Israel is come to appere before the Lorde thy God, in the place whiche he shal chose: se thou rede this lawe before all Israel in their eares. Gather the people togyther, men, women, and chyldren/and the straũgers that are i thy cityes, that they may heare lerne and feare the Lorde youre God, and be diligent to kepe all the wordes of this lawe, and that their children which knowe nothing may heare, and lerne to feare the Lorde your God, as longe as ye lyue in the lande whither ye go ouer Iordan to possesse it.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses. Beholde, thy dayes are come, that thou muste dye. Call Iosua and stande in the tabernacle of wytnesse, that I may gyue hym a charge. And Moses and Iosua went and stode in the tabernacle of witnesse. And the Lorde appered in the tabernacle, euen in the piller of the cloude. And the pyller of the cloude stode ouer the doore of the tabernacle. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: beholde thou must slepe with thy fathers, and this people wyl ryse vp and go a hoorynge after straunge goddes of the land whither they go, and wil forsake me and breke the appoynt ment which I haue made with them. CAPI. XXXII.

A HEare, o heuen, what I speake, and heare (o earth) the wordes of my mouthe. My Esaye.i.a doctrine drop as doth the rayne, and my Micha.i.a speche floweth as dothe the dewe, as the my-Esaye.lv.a. sellynge vpon the herbes, and as the droppes vpon the grasse. For I wyll call on the name of the Lorde: Magnifye the myghte of oure God.

Genelis.i.d Perfect are Gods dedes, and all his wayes Eccleli.xlii. are rightoulnes/ God is faithful and without wickednes, both rightous an iust is he.

The frowarde and ouerthwarte generacion hathe trespased agaynst him, and are not his sonnes by reason they are disfigured. Doest thou so reward the Lorde? O foolishe nacion and vnwyse. Is not he thy father, and thyne owner? hath he not made the and ordeined the? Remembre the dayes that are paste: consider the yeres from tyme to tyme. Aske thy father and he wyll shewe the thy auncestours, & they shal tel the, when the most highest requested the nacions, and diuided the sonnes of Adam, he put the borders of the nacions fast by the company of the chyldren of Israel.

For the Lordes part is his folke, and Jacob is the portion of his inheritaunce.

He founde him in a deserte land, in a voyde ground and in a wylde wildernes. He led him about and gaue him vnderstanding, and kepte him as the apple of his eye.

As an Egle that stereth vp her nest to flee, and flotereth ouer her yonge, he stretched out his wynges, and toke him vp and bare hym on his shoulders. The Lorde alone was his guyde, and there was no straunge God with him.

He set him vp vpon an hye land, and he ate the encrease of the feldes. And he gaue him hony to sucke out of the rocke, and oyle oute of the harde stone. With butter of kyne, & mylke of the shepe, with fat of the lambes, and fatte rammes of Basan, with gotes & whete floure. And of the bloud of grapes thou dronkest ripe wyne.

And Israel waxed fat, and kycked. Thou wast fat, tycke and smothe. And he let God go that made him, and turned his backe from God that saued him. They stirred vp his displeasure thorow their straunge goddes, & with abhominacions prouoked him.

They offered vnto deuyls, and not to God and to Goddes whiche they knewe not, euen to newe Goddes that came newly vp, whiche their fathers neuer worshypped.

Of the God that begat the thou arte vnmyndfull, and hast forgot God that made the. And when the Lorde sawe it he was angrye/ because of the prouokynge of his sonnes and doughters.

And he said, I will hyde my face from them and wyl se what their ende shall be. For they are a frowarde generacion & children in whom is no faythe. They haue angred me with him that was no God, & prouoked me with their vanities. * And I agayne wyll angre them with them which are no people, and wyl prouoke them with a folysshe nacion. * For fyre is kyndled in my wrath, and shall burne vnto the botome of hell. And shal consume the erth with her encrease, and set a fyre the botomes of the mountaynes. I wyll heape myscheues vpon them, and wyll spende all myne arowes amonges them.

They shall pyne awaye by kampyn, hyrdes shall deuour them with a bytter gnawynge.

* I wyl also sende the teth of beestes vpon them, and poyson serpētes of ỳ erth. Without dores the swerde shal destroye them, and within in the chamber, feare: bothe yonge men and yonge ponge women, and the suckelynges, with the men of grete heedes. I haue determined to scatter them thorowe out the worlde, and to abolysshe theyr name from amonge men, but for theyr enemyes cause I haue forborne the, lest theyr aduersaries wolde take vpon them and saye: our hye hande hathe done all these workes, and not the Lorde.

For it is a nacion that hath no forecast, and hath no vnderstandyng in them: I wolde they were wyse, and vnderstode this, and wolde ponder their latter ende.

Howe it commeth, that one shall chase a thousande, and two put ten thousand of them to flyghte: but that theyr God hathe solde them, and becawse the Lorde hath geuen them ouer.

For our rock is not as their rock, no though our enemyes be iudge. But theyr vynes are of the vynes of Sodom, and of the feldes of Gomorra. Their grapes are grapes of gal, & their clusters be bytter.

Theyr wyne is the poyson of dragons, and the cruell gal of adders. Are not suche thynges layd in store with me, and sealed vp amonges my treasures? *Vengeaunce is myne, and I wyll acquyte: Theyr feete shall slyde when the tyme commeth. For the tyme of theyr destruction is at hande, and the tyme that shall come vpon them maketh haste. *xxxii.d.

For the Lorde wyll do iudgement vnto his people, and haue cõpassion on his seruauntes. For it shall be sene that theyr power shall fayle, & their prisoners be lost, and the reskoue wasted.

And it shal be sayd: where are their goddes wherein they trusted? F

The fat of whose sacrifices they ate, & drake the wyne of their wellayles, let them ryse vp and helpe you, and be your shylde.

Se nowe howe I am alone, and that there is no God but I. I can kyll and make alyue, and what I haue smytten, that can I heale: neyther is there that can rescue any man oute of my hande.

For I wyll lyfte vp myne hande to heuen, and wyll saye, I lyue euer.

Yf I whet the edge of my swerde as it were a thonderbolt, & myne hand goth about to do iustice, I wyl shewe vengeaunce on myne enemyes, and wyl reacquite them that hate me.

I wyll make myne arowes droncken with bloude, and my swerde shall eate flesshe of the bloud of the slayne, and of the captyue, and of myne ennemyes bare heed.

Prayse (ye bethen) his people, for he wyl auenge the bloude of his seruauntes, and wyll reuenge him of his aduersaries, & wil be mercyfull vnto the lande of his people. G

Moses wente and spake all the wordes of this songe in the eares of the people, bothe he and Iosua the sonne of Nun. When Moses had spoken all these wordes vnto the ende to all Israel, he sayd vnto them. Set your hertes vnto all the wordes which I testifie vnto you this day: that ye commaunde them vnto your children to obserue and doo all the wordes of this lawe. For it is not a dayne worde vnto you: but it is your lyfe, & thorowe this worde ye shall prolonge your dayes in the lande whyther ye go ouer Iordan to conquere it.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, the same daye, saying: get the vp in to this mountayne Abarim, vnto mount Nebo, whiche is in the lande of Moab ouer agaynst Iericho. And beholde the lande of Canaan whiche I geue vnto the chyldren of Israel to possesse. And dye in the mounte whiche thou goest vpon, and be thou put vnto thy people: As Aaron thy brother dyed in mounte Hor, and was put vnto his people. For ye trespased against me among the chyldren of Israel at the waters of stryfe, at Cades in the wildernesse of Zin: becawse ye halowed me not amonge the children of Israel. Thou shalt se the land before the, but thou shalte not goo vnto the lande whiche I geue the chyldren of Israel.

A Moses blessynge.

THis is the blessynge wherewith Moses Gods man blessed the chyldren of Israel before his deathe, sayinge: The Lorde came from Sinai, and shewed his beames from Seir vnto them, and appeared gloryously frome mounte Pharan. And he came with thousandes of sayntes, and in his ryght hande a lawe of fyre for them. How loued he the people?

*All his sayntes are in his hande. They that ioyne them selues vnto this fore, shall receyue his wordes. Moses gaue vs a lawe whiche is the enheritaūce of the congregacion of Jacob. And he was in Israel kynge, and gathered the heades of the people and the trybes of Israel togyther. *Sapi.iii.a.

Ruben shall lyue and shal not dye: but his people shall be fewe in nombre. This is the blessynge of Iuda: Heare Lorde the voyce of Iuda, and bynge him vnto his people, lette his handes fight for him, but be thou his help agaynst his enemyes.

That is, this preests seruice be acceptable afore the lord both in prayer & preching as was Moses.

And vnto Leui he said: o thy perfectnes and thy lyght be after thy mercyfull man whome thou temtedst at Masah with whom thou striuedst at the waters of stryfe. He that sayth vnto his father and mother, I saw him not, and vnto his brethren, I knewe not / and to his sonne, I wote not / for they haue obserued thy wordes, and kepte thy testament. They shall teache Jacob thy iudgementes, and Israel thy lawes. They shal put incense before thy nose, and hole sacrifices vpon thyne aulter. Blesse Lorde theyr power, and accepte the workes of theyr handes / smyte the backes of them that ryse agaynst them, and of them that hate the: that they ryse not agayne. C

Vnto Ben Iamin he sayde. The Lordes derlynge shall dwell safely with him / and kepe him safe in the chambre by hym contynually, and shall dwell betwene his shoulders.

And vnto Joseph he sayde: blessed of the Lorde is his lande, with the goodly frutes of heuen, with dewe and with sprynges that

And vnto Gad he sayde: Blessed is the ✠ rowme maker Gad. He dwelleth as a lyon and caughte the arme and also the toppe of the heed. He sawe his dominion that in his part there was a teacher hyd, and came with the heedes of the people, and executed ✠ ryghtousnes of the Lorde, and his iudgementes with Israel.

✠ Rowme maker because ✠ warre he made rowme for he was a valiant warryer.

And vnto Nephthali he sayd: Nephthali be shall haue abundance of pleasure, and shal be filled with the blessyng of the Lorde, and shal haue his possessions in the southwest.

And of Aser he sayde: Aser shall be blessed with chyldren: he shal be acceptable vnto his brethren, and shal dyp his fote in oyle: Yron and brasse shall hange on thy shoes, and thine age shall be as thy youth.

☞ There is none lyke vnto the God of Israel he that sytteth vpon heuen, shal be thyne help whose glory is in the cloudes, that is the dwelyng place of God frome aboue, and vnder the armes of the worlde: he hath casse out thyne ennmyes before the and sayd: destroy. Then Josua commaunded the officers of the people, sayinge. Go thorowe the myddes of the hoste, and commaunde the people, saying: prepare you vitayles: for after thre dayes ye shall passe ouer this Jordan, to go and enioye the lande, which the Lorde your God gyueth you to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses spake Josua, sayinge: Remembre that, whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded you sayinge. the Lorde your God hath gyuen you rest, and all this lande. Let your wyues, your chyldren and your catell remayne in the lande whiche Moses gaue you on this syde Jordan: But go ye before your brethren armed, all that be men of warre, and fyghte for them, tyll the Lorde haue gyuen your brethren reste, as he hathe you, and tyll they also haue obteyned the lande which the Lorde your God gyueth them. And then returne vnto the lande of youre possession and enioye it, whiche Moses the Lordes seruaunte gaue you on this syde Jordan, towarde the sonne ryssynge. And they answered Josua, sayinge: * All that thou byddest vs we wyll doo, and whyther so euer thou sendest vs, we wyll go. Accordyng as we obeyed Moses in all thynges, so we wyll obeye the. Onely the Lorde thy God be with the, as he was with Moses. And who so euer disobeye thy mouthe, and wyll not herken vnto thy wordes in all thou commaundest hym, lette him dye. Onely be stronge and of good courage.

¶ Josua sendeth searchers or spyes to Jericho, whi che were hydde of Rahab and delyuered the handes of the pursuars. Rahab beleueth and confesseth the God of Israel.

CAPI. II.

THen Josua the sonne of Nun sent oute of Setim two spyes secretly, sayinge: Go and vewe the lande, and also Jericho. And they went and came in to a bitelyng house of a woman named Rahab, and lodged there. And it was tolde the kynge of Jericho, sayinge: Beholde there came men in hyther to nyght of the chyldren of Israel, to espye out the countrey. And the kynge of Jericho sente vnto Rahab, saying: bryng forth the me that are come to the, which are entred in to thyne house: they be spyes, for they be come to serche out all the lande.

And the woman toke the two men and hyd them. And sayd, in dede there came men vnto me, but I wote not frome whence they were. And aboute the tyme of the shuttynge of the gate when it was darcke they went out, whyther I wote not: but folowe after them quickly and ye shal ouertake them. And she brought them vp vnto the rofe of the house, and * hyd them vnder flare (yet in the stalkes) which she had lynge abrode vpon the rofe. And the men pursued after them the waye to Jordan euen vnto the ♀ passage, and as sone as they whiche pursued after them were gone forthe, they shut the gates.

And or euer they were a slepe, she came vp vnto them vpon the rofe, and sayde vnto the men. And the men answered her, oure lyues for you to dye, so thou do not betraye vs. And so when the Lorde hath gyuen vs the lande, ✱ we wyll deale mercyfully and truly with the. Iosue. vi. c And then she let theym downe with a coorde thorowe a wyndowe. For her house was annexed to the townes walle. And she sayde vnto them: get you in to the mountaynes, leest the pursuers mete with you, and hyde your selues there thre dayes, vntyll the pursuers be returned, and then maye ye go your wayes.

And the men sayde vnto her, we wyl be discharged of this othe, whiche thou haste made vs sweare, when we come in to the lande, excepte thou bynde this purple threden coorde in the wyndowe, whiche thou lettest vs downe by. And thou shalte bringe thy father, thy mother, thy brethren, and all thy fathers household, euen in to the house to the. And she sayde, accordynge vnto youre wordes, so be it: and so sente them awaye, and they departed. And she bounde the purple coorde in the wyndowe.

And they departed and got them in to the mountaynes, and there abode thre dayes, tyll the pursuers were retourned. And the pursuers soughte thorowe oute all the waye, and founde them not. And the two men returned and descended frome the mountaynes, and passed ouer, and came to Iosua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that hadde chaunsed them. And they sayde vnto Iosua, the Lorde hath delyuered in to oure handes all the lande, for al the inhabitantes of the countrey shrinke for feare of vs.

CAPI. III.

A And Iosua rose early: and they remoued from Sethim, and came to Iordan, both he and the chyldren of Israel, and sojourned there thre dayes before they wēt ouer. And after thre dayes the haroldes went thorowe out the hoste, and commaunded the people, sayinge: when ye se the arcke of the testament of the Lorde your God, and the preestes that are Leuytes bearynge it: then departe ye from your places and folowe after it. So yet that there be a space betwene you and it, aboute a two thousande cubytes by measure. And come not nye vnto it, that ye may knowe B the waye by whiche ye muste goo: for ye haue not gone by it in tymes past. And Iosua sayde vnto the people, ✱ purifye youre selues, for ✱ to morowe the Lorde shall shewe wonders amonges you.

Then Iosua spake vnto the preestes, sayinge. Take vp the arcke of the couenaunt, and goo before the people. And they toke vp the arcke, and went before the people.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua: this daye wyll I begyn to auaunce the in the syghte of all Israel, that they maye knowe that as I was with Moses, so wyll I be with the. And commaunde thou the preestes that beare the arcke of the testament, sayinge: when ye are entred a lytle in to the water of Iordan, stande styll in it.

Then spake Iosua to the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: come hyther, and heare the wordes of the Lord your God. And Iosua sayd: Hereby ye shall knowe that the lyuynge God is amonges you, and that he wyll vndoubtedly caste oute before you the Cananytes, the Hethites, the Heuites, the Pherezites, the Gergesites, the Amorites, and the Iebusytes. Beholde, the arcke of the couenaunt of ℌ Lorde of all the worlde shal go before you in to Iordan. And nowe take you twelue men of the chyldren of Israel, of euery tribe a man. And as soone as the soles of the fete of the preestes that beare the arcke of the ommypotent Lorde of all the worlde, treade in the water of Iordan, the water of Iordan shall deuyde it selfe: and the waters that come frome aboue, shall stande styll vpon an heape.

And when the people were departed frome theyr tentes to go ouer Iordan (✱ the preestes bearyng the arcke of the couenaunt before the people) as soone as they that bare the arcke came vnto Iordan, and the feete of the preestes that bare the arcke were dypped in the brym of the water, ✱ Iordan beynge full ouer al his bankes, al the tyme of haruest: the water that came downe frome aboue dyd stoppe, and stode vpon an heape, a greate waye from Adam, a cytye beside Zarthan. And the water that went downe, vanyshed in to the see of the wyldernesse, called the salte see, as soone as it was diuided: and ℌ people ✱ went right ouer agaynste Iericho. And the preestes that bare the arcke of the appoyntmēt of the Lorde stode styll vpon drye lande in the myddes of Iordan, tyll all the people were cleane ouer Iordan.

¶ Twelue stones are reared vp for a remembraunce that Iordane was dryed, and it retourneth agayne to his course.

CAPI. IIII.

And as sone as the people were al gone J ouer Iordan, ℌ Lord spake vnto Iosua sayinge. Take twelue men oute of the people, of euery tribe a man, and commaunde them, sayinge: Take you hence oute of the myddes of Iordan, euen oute of the place where the preestes stode, twelue harde stones.

And

And take ye theym awaye with you and put them in the place where you pytche your tentes this nyght. And Iosua called vnto the .xij. men which he had prepared of the chyldren of Israel, of euery tribe a man, and sayde vnto them: * get you before the arcke of the Lord your God euen into the myddes of Iordan, & take vp euery man a stone vpon his shoulder, accordinge to the nombre of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, that this maye be a sygne amonges you. And when your chyldren aske you in tyme to come, sayenge: What meane these stones: saye vnto them, that the water of Iordan shronke backe at the commynge of the arcke of the appoyntement of the Lorde: euen whyle it went ouer Iordan. And these stones shalbe a token of remembraunce vnto the chyldren of Israel for euer.

And the chyldren of Israel dyd as Iosua cõmaunded, and toke vp twelue stones forth of the myddes of Iordan, as the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua, accordynge to the nombre of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, and caryed the awaye with them, vnto the place where they lodged, & layde them wyne there. And therto Iosua set vp twelue stones in the myddes of Iordan in the place where the fete of the prestes whiche bare the arcke of the testament, stoode.

And there they be vnto this daye. For the preastes which bare the arcke stoode in ꝑ myddes of Iordan, tyll all was accomplyshed ꝑ the Lorde commaunded Iosua to saye vnto the people, accordyng to all that Moses charged Iosua. And the people hasted and went ouer. When all the people were cleane ouer, then wente ouer the arcke of the Lorde, and also the preestes before the people. And the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses went before the chyldren of Israel armed, as Moses charged theym. Fourtye thousande trymmed for warre, wente before the Lorde vnto batayle vnto the playnes of Jericho. That daye the Lord magnified Iosua in ꝑ sight of al Israel and they feared him as they feared Moses al dayes of his lyfe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Iosua, sayinge: commaunde the preestes that beare the arcke to come forth of Iordan. And Iosua commaũded the preestes, sayinge, Come forthe of Iordan. And when the preestes that bare the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde were ascended out of Iordan: as soone as the soles of the preestes fete were broughte to drye lande, the water of Iordan returned agayne vnto his place, and went ouer all his bankes as he dyd before. And the people came vp out of Iordan the tenthe daye of the first moneth, and pitched in Galgal, euen in the easte borders of Jericho.

And the twelue stones, whiche they toke out of Iordan, Iosua pitched in Galgal. And he spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: when your chyldren aske you in tyme to come what meane these stones? shewe your childrẽ and saye: Israel came ouer this Iordan on drye lande. For the Lord your God dryed vp the water of Iordan before you, tyll ye were ouer, as the Lorde your God dyd vnto the red see, whiche he dryed vp before vs, tyll we were ouer / that all the people of the worlde may know the hand of the Lorde how mighty it is, and that ye myghte feare the Lorde your God for euer.

CAPI. V.

AND when all the kynges of the Amorytes whiche are on this syde Iordan to the seewarde, and all the kynges of the Canaanytes, whiche lye on the see, herde how the Lorde hadde dryed vp the water of Iordan before the chyldren of Israel, tyll they were ouer, theyr hertes faynted in them. And there was no spirite in them any more for feare of the commynge of the chyldre of Israel.

That same tyme the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua: Make the knyues ꝑ of stone, and go to agayne, and circumcise the chyldren of Israel the seconde tyme. And Iosua made hym knyues of stone, and circumcised the chyldren of Israel in the hyll of forescknynnes. And this is the cause why Iosua agayne circumcised. All the people that came out of Egypt that were males, all that were men of warre, dyed in ꝑ wyldernesse, by the waye after they came out of Egypt. Now all the people that came out were circumcised. But all the people ꝑ were borne in the wyldernesse by the waye after they came out of Egypt, they circumcised not. For the chyldren of Israel walked forty yeres in the wyldernesse, tyll all the people of men of warre that came out of Egypte were consumed, which harkened not vnto the voyce of God, so that the Lorde swore, that he wolde not shewe them the lande, whiche he swore vnto theyr fathers that he wolde gyue vs, euẽ a lande * that floweth mylke and honny. And theyr chyldren he set vp in theyr stede: them Iosua circumcised: for they were ꝑ vncircumcised, bycause they circumcised them not by the waye.

And when all the people were circumcised, they abode tyll in theyr places in the hoste, tyll they were hole. And the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua, this daye I haue taken awaye ꝑ shame of Egypte frome you: and called the name of the same place Galgal vnto this day. And the chyldren of Israel pitched theyr tentes in Galgal, and helde the feast of Passeouer the fourtene daye of the moneth at euen in the playne of Jericho. And they ate of the corne of the lande on the seconde daye of Esser, swete cakes and fermenty the same daye. And Manna ceased on the morowe after they had eaten of the corne of the lande, neyther hadde the chyldren of Israel Manna any more, but dyd eate of the frutes of that yere in the lande of Canaan.

And when Iosua was come to Jericho, he lyfte vp his eyes and loked: and behold there stode a man before him with his swerd drawẽ

¶ The walles of Jericho fall, and it is taken.

CAPI. VI.

AND Jericho was shut & kept for feare of the children of Israel, so ꝑ no man was so hardy to go out or in. And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: beholde, I haue gyuen in to thyne hande, Jericho and yet kynge and the men of warre. And ye shall compasse the citye all that be men of warre, and go round about it ones a daye, and so shall you doo sixe dayes. Upon the seuenth day seuen preestes shal beare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes, & shall go before the arcke. And the seuenth daye, ye shall compasse the citye seuen tymes, and the preestes shall blowe with theyr trompettes. And when there is a longe blaste blowen, as sone as ye heare the sounde of the horne, let all the people shoute a myghtye shoute. And then shall the walles of the citye fall downe, and the people shal ascend, euery man streyght before hym.

& After the hebrue the cõmon translatedeth of the yere of imbely

And Josua the sonne of Nun, called the preestes and sayd vnto hym: take vp the arcke of the appoyntment, & let seuen preestes beare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde. And he sayd vnto the people, go and compasse the citye, and let the men of armes go before the arcke of the Lord.

15 And when Josua had spoken vnto the people the seuen preestes that bare the seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde went forthe and blewe the hornes, and the arcke of the testament of the Lorde folowed after them. And the men of armes went before the preestes that blewe with the hornes, and the common people came after the arcke: and as they went, they blewe the hornes. And Josua commaunded the people, sayinge, shoute not, nor let youre voyce be herde, or anye worde procede oute of youre mouthes, tyll the daye I byd you shoute: and then shoute.

And so the arcke of the Lorde compased the citye, and went about it ones: and then they returned in to the hoste and lodged there. And Josua arose earlye in the mornynge, and the preestes toke vp the arcke of the Lorde, and seuen preestes bare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde, and as they went blewe the hornes. And the men of armes went before them and the common people came after the arcke of the Lorde, and as they went, they blewe the hornes. And the seconde daye they compassed the citye ones, and returned agayne in to the hoste, and so they dyd sixe dayes.

And the seuenth daye they rose early: euen with the dawnynge of the daye, and compased the citye after the same maner seuen tymes.

And at the seuenth tyme the preestes blewe the hornes, and Josua sayde vnto the people, shoute, for the Lorde hath gyuen you the citye. But the citye shall be cursed, bothe it and all that is therin vnto the Lorde: onely Rahab the harlot shall lyue, bothe she and all that is with her in the house, because she * hyd the messengers that we sent. And in any wyse beware that ye touche nothynge at all, that is forbyd you, leest ye be founde transgressours, and cause all the hoste of Israel to be vnder curse and myschefe. But the syluer, golde, vessels of brasse and yron, shall be holye vnto the Lorde, and shall go in to his treasury.

And the people cryed, and blewe with hornes: for when the people herde the sounde of the hornes, they shouted a great shoute: and the * walles fell downe, and the people went vp in to the citye, euery man forth ryght, and toke the citye. And they vtterly destroyed all that was in the citye, bothe man and woman, ponge and olde, oxe, shepe and asse, with ꝑ edge of the swerde.

Then Josua sayde vnto the two men that went to espye out the countrey: * go in to the harlottes house, and bringe out thence, bothe the woman, and all that pertayneth to her, * as ye sware to her. And the ponge men that were spyes, wente in and broughte oute Rahab, and her father, and mother, and all her brethren, & all that she had. And they brought out all her housholde, and put them without the hoste of Israel.

And they burnt the citye with fire, and all that was therin. Onely the syluer, the golde, and the thynges of brasse and yron, they put vnto the treasure of the house of the Lorde. * And Josua saued Rahab the harlot, her fathers housholde, and all that pertayned vnto her, and she dwelt in Israel euē vnto this day, because she hyd the messengers whiche Josua sent to espye out Jericho.

And Josua cursed at that tyme, sayinge: Cursed be the man before the Lorde, that ryseth vp, and buyldeth this citye Jericho: so that he laye the foundacion with the dethe of his eldest sonne, and with the deth of his ponggest, set vp the gates. And the Lord was with Josua, and his fame was herde, thorowe out all landes.

¶ It is spyed out. Achan is stoned because he toke of the excommunicate thynges.

CAPI. VII.

BUt yet the chyldren of Israel trespased in the cursed thynges: For * Achan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareh, of the tribe of Juda, toke of the cursed thynges. And the wrathe of the Lorde waxed hoote agaynste the chyldren of Israel.

Then

Then Josua sent men frome Jericho to Ai, whiche is beside Bethauen, on the east side of Bethel, and spake vnto them, sayinge / get you vp, and bewe the countrey. And the men went vp and spyed out Ai, and returned vnto Josua, and sayde vnto hym, let not the people goo vp, but let as it were two or three thousande men goo vp and destroye Ai, and make not all the people to laboure thyther, for they are but fewe.

And so there wente vp thyther aboute a thre thousande men, whiche fledde before the men of Ai. And the men of Ai smote of them vpon a thirty and sixe men, and chased them before the gates, euen vnto Gabarim, and smote them downe the waye. And the herte of the people, were discouraged and melted lyke water. And Josua rente his clothes and fell to the earthe vpon his face before the arcke of the Lorde tyll the euen tyde, bothe he and the elders of Israel, and put erth vpon theyr heedes.

And Josua sayde: Ah, Lorde almyghtye wherfore hast thou brought this people ouer Jordan, to delyuer vs in to the handes of the Amorytes to destroye vs: Wolde God that as we began, so we hadde aduentured and dwelte on the other syde Jordan. Oh Lorde what shall I saye, when Israel turneth their backes before theyr ennemyes. Moreouer the Canaanytes, and all the inhabitantes of the lande, shall heare it / and shall come aboute vs, and destroye the name of vs oute of the worlde. And then what wylte thou doo vnto thy myghtye name.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua, get the vp wherfore lyest thou thus vpon thy face? Israel hathe synned, and also transgressed myne appoyntment whiche I commaunded them, and haue taken of the cursed thinges, & haue stolen and hyd them amonges theyr owne stuffe. And therfore the chyldren of Israel can not stande before theyr ennemyes. They shall tourne theyr backes before theyr ennemyes, bycause they be cursed. Neyther wyll I be with you anye more, excepte ye destroye the cursed amonges you.

Aryse and ✠ sanctifye the people, and bydde them sanctifye them selues agaynste the morowe: for so sayethe the Lorde God of Israel, the curse is amonges you Israel, and therfore ye can not stand before your ennemyes, tyll ye haue put to deathe hym that hathe taken of the damned spoyles, amonges you. To morowe moznynge ye shall come by your tribes. And the tribe whiche the Lorde shall synde giltye, shall come by kynredes. And the kynrede whiche the Lorde shall synde giltye, shal come by householdes. And the household which the Lorde shall synde fautye, shall come man by man. And he that is found in the curse, shal be burnte with fire, bothe he and all his goodes, bicause he hath transgressed the couenant of the Lorde, and bycause he hathe wrought folye in Israel.

And so Josua rose vp early in the moznynge and brought Israel by theyr tribes: and the tribe of Juda was attached. Then he brought the kynredes of Juda, and founde the kynred of the Zarehites gyltie. And he brought the kynred of the Zarehites by households, and Zabdi was caught. And he brought his household mā by man, and Acan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareh, in the tribe of Juda was founde gylty.

And Josua sayd vnto Acan: my sonne, gyue glory to the Lorde God of Israell, and gyue hym prayse, and shew me what thou hast done and hyde it not from me. And Acan answered Josua and sayde: of a truthe I haue synned against the Lorde God of Israell / and so and so haue I done. I sawe amonge the spoyle a goodly skarlet cloke, and two hundred sicles of siluer, and a rule of golde of fyfty sycles weyght: and I coueted them, & I toke them. And beholde they lye hydde in the earth in my tente, and the siluer vnder them.

And then Josua sent messengers which ran vnto the tent. And beholde, it was hyd in his tent, and the siluer vnder it. And they toke them out of the myddest of his tēt, & brought them vnto Josua and vnto all the children of Israell, and powred theym, oute before the Lorde.

And Josua toke Acan the sonne of Zareh, & the siluer, and the garment, and the rule of golde, and his sonnes and his doughters, his oxen, asses, shepe, his tente, and all that he hadde, and all Israell with hym, and brought them vnto the valeye of Acor.

And Josua sayde: forasmoche as thou hast troubled vs: the Lorde shall trouble the this daye. And all Israell stoned hym with stones, and burnt all that he had with fyre. And they cast vpon hym a great heape of stones that remayneth vnto this day. And so the Lorde turned frome his fearce wrathe. Wherfore the name of the place is called the valeye of Acor vnto this daye. Acā is stoned

And he set in order all the hoste on the northy syde of the cytye, and the prayue watche on the weste. And Josua went the same nyght in to the myddes of the valleye.

And when the kynge of Ai sawe that he hasted and rose vp earlye, and with all the hoste of the cytye, wente forwarde agaynste Israel to battayle, euen before the playne/ and wyste not that there were anye that laye in awayte on the backe syde of the city.

Josua and Israel thronke backewarde, as they had ben afrayde, and fledde towarde the wyldernesse. And all the people of the towne cryed to folowe after them/ and they folowed after Josua, tyll they were drawen away from the cytye: So that there was not a man left in Ai, or in Bethel, that went not out after Israel. And they lefte the citye open, and folowed after Israel.

Then the Lorde sayd vnto Josua reache out the speare that is in thyn hande towarde Ai, for I haue gyuē the it. And Josua stretched out the speare that was in his hand, toward the citie. And the prayu watche rose quickelye oute of theyr places, and ranne/ as soone as Josua had shaken his speare, and they entred in to the citye, and toke it, and set it on fyre. And when the men of Ai loked back after the and sawe: Beholde, the smoke of the citye ascended vp to heuen. And they had no place to flee eyther this waye or that, for the people that fleade to the wyldernesse turned backe vpon the folowers and fiersly fought.

And when Josua and all Israel sawe that they that lay awayte had taken the citie and that the smoke of it ascended: They toueried and layed on the men of Ai, And the other issued out of the citye agaynst theym. And so were they in the myddes of Israel, these beynge on the one syde of them, and the reste on the other. And they layde vpon them, so that they let none eyther remayne or escape.

The kyng of Ai they toke a lyue & brought him to Josua. And when Israell hadde made an ende of slayenge all the inhabitours of Ai who chased theym ouer the feldes and ȳ wyldernes. So when they were all slayne in the same place, Israel returned vnto Ai: & smote it. And there was slayne that daye, of men & wemen, twelue thousande, all men of Ai.

For Josua plucked not his hande backe agayne wherwith he held vp his speare, tyll they had vtterly destroyed all the inhabiters of Ai. * Onely the catell & spoyle of the sayd cytie, Israel toke vnto them selues, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, which he cōmaunded Josua. And Josua set Ai on fyre, & made it an heape and a wyldernesse for euer, euen vnto this daye. And the kynge of Ai he hanged on a tree, vntyll euen. And assone as it was sonneset, at the commaundement of Josua they toke the carkas downe of the tree, & cast it in the enterynge of the gate of the citie, and *cast theron a great heape of stones, that remayneth vnto this daye.

Then Josua buylded an aultare vnto the Lord God of Israel, in mount Ebal, as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded ȳ children of Israel, as it is written in the boke * of the law of Moses: an altare of rought stone, ouer which no toole of yron was lyfte. And they sacrificed thereon burntsacrifice, and offred peaxofferinges. And he wrote therupon the stones the * seconde lawe of Moses, whiche he wrote in the presence of the children of Israell.

And all Israell and the elders therof, and their officers and Judges stode parte on this syde the arcke, and parte on that syde, before the preestes: that were Leuytes whiche bare the arcke of the Testament of the Lorde: as well the straunger, as they that were borne amonge them: halfe on the forefronte of the mount of Garizim, and halfe on the forefront of mount Ebal: as Moses the seruaunt of ȳ Lorde commaunded, and Josua first blessed the people Israell. And after that, he red all the wordes of the lawe, both the blessinge & cursinge, accordinge to all that is written in the boke of the lawe: so that there was not one worde of all that Moses commaunded, whyche Josua red not, before all the congregacion of Israell, with wemen and children, and the straungers that were amonge them.

CAPI. IX.

AND when all the kynges that dwell on this syde Jordan, in the hylles and valeyes, and a longe by al the costes of ȳ great see, euen vnto Libanon, the Hethites, the Amorites, the Cananites, the Pherezites the Heuites, and the Jebusytes, herde of this they gathered them selues togither to fight agaynst Josua and Israell, with one accorde.

But

But when the inhabitoures of Gabaon herd what Iosua had done vnto Iericho, and Ai, they played wylylye, and went and sente ambasadours, and toke old sackes vpon their Asses, and wyne bottelles olde and rent and knyt togyther agayne, and olde clouted shoes vpon their fete, and olde rayment vpon them and all their prouysion of bred was dryed vp and hored. And they came vnto Iosua into the hoste, to Galgall and sayde vnto him & vnto the men of Israell: we be come frome a farre countreye, nowe therfore make a peax with vs. And the men of Israell sayde vnto the Heuites, peraduenture you dwell amonge vs, and then howe shulde we make peaxe with you.

And they sayde vnto Iosua, we are thy seruauntes. And Iosua sayde vnto them, what are ye: and whence come ye. And they answered him. Frome a very farre contreye thy seruauntes are come in the name of the Lorde thy God: for we haue herde the fame of him, and all that he dyd in Egypte, and al that he dyd to the two * kynges of the Amorites beyonde Jordan, Sehon kynge of Hesbon, and Og kynge of Basan, which dwelt at Astaroth. Wherfore our elders and all the inhabitours of our countrey spake to vs, sayenge: take vitayles with you to serue by the waye, and go against them, & saye vnto them, we are youre seruauntes. Now therfore make a couenaunt of peax with vs. This our prouision of bread we toke with vs out of our houses, hote, the day we departed to come vnto you. And now beholde, it is dryed vp and hored. And these bottelles of wyne which we fylled were new: and se they be broken. And these our garmentes and shoes are waxen olde by reason of the exceadynge longe Journeye.

* And the men toke of their vitayles, and counseled not with the mouth of the Lorde. And Iosua made peax with them, and * made a leage with them, to saue their lyues: & the chefe lordes of the armye sware vnto them. But three dayes after they hadde made peax with them, they herde that they were neyghboures vnto theym, and that they dwelte amonges them. For the children of Israel toke their journeye, and came vnto their cyties the thirde daye: and their cyties were Gabaon, Caphira, Beeroth, and Kariath Iarim. And the children of Israel slewe them not, because the Lordes of the companye had sworne vnto theym by the Lorde God of Israell. And therfore all the commons murmured against the Lordes. But the Lordes sayde vnto all the congregation: We haue sworne vnto theym by the Lorde God of Israell, and therfore we maye not hurte theym. But this we wyll do to them let them lyue: & so shall no wrath be vpon vs, because of the othe whiche we sware vnto them: but let them haue their lyues, that they maye be * hewers of woode and drawers of water vnto all the congregation.

The Iosua sent for them, and talked with them, and sayde: wherfore haue ye begupled vs whereas in dede ye dwel amonges vs? now therfore cursed be you, & there shall not cease to be of you, bondmen and hewers of woode and drawers of water vnto the howse of my God.

And they aunswered Iosua, and sayde: it was told thy seruauntes, that the Lorde thy God had commaunded his seruaunt Moses to gyue you all the lande, and to destroye all the inhabitoures therof out of youre syghte; and therfore we were sore afrayed of our lyues because of you, and now beholde, we are in thyne hande, as it semeth good, and right in thyne eyes to do vnto vs, so do.

And he dealte as it is sayde, with them, & rydde them out of the handes of the childre of Israel, that they slewe them not. And Iosua made them that same daye hewers of woode and drawers of water vnto the company and vnto the auiter of God vnto this day, in the place which God shulde chose.

¶ The amorittes are ouercome of Iosua it rayneth stones. The sonne standeth styll and the daye is lengthened. The fyue kynges are hanged.

CAPI. X.

AND when Adonizedec kynge of Jerusalem had herde, howe Iosua had taken Ai, and had destroyed it, and howe as * he had done to Iericho and her kynge, euen so he had done to Ai and her kynge, and howe the inhabitours of Gabaon hadde made peax with Israell and dyd remayne amonges the: they feared excedigly, for Gabaō was a great cytie, as any cytie of the kyngdome, and therto greater then Ai, & al her men were mighty. A

* Iosue. vi. & and. viii. a

Wherfore Adonizedec kynge of Jerusalem sent vnto Hoham kynge of Hebron, and vnto Pharam kynge of Jerimoth, and vnto Japhia kynge of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kynge of Eglon, sayenge. Come vp vnto me & helpe me, that we maye smyte Gabaon: for they haue made peax with Iosua and the children of Israel. Then the. v. kynges of the Amorites, the kynge of Jerusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jerimoth, the kynge of Lachis, the kynge of Eglon gathered theym selues togither, both they and all their hostes & went vp and beseged Gabaon, & made warre against it. B

But the men of Gabaon when they were beseged sent vnto Iosua, vnto the host to Galgal, sayenge: withdrawe not thy handes frō thy seruauntes, but come vp to vs: and rescue vs: for all the kynges of the Amorites which dwell in the mountaynes are gathered togyther against vs.

The faythfulnes of Iosua.

And Iosua ascended frome Galgall, he and all the people of warre with him, and all the men of myght, and the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua, feare them not, for I haue delyuered the into thyne hande, there shal not a man of the stande before the. So Iosua came vpon them sodenly, for he had tourneyed frome Galgall all nyght. And the Lorde toke their spyrte awaye before Israel, and slew of them a great slaughter at Gabaon, and chased them a lōg the the waye that goeth vp to Bethoron and slew them, tyll they came to Azeka and Makeda. And as they fledde from Israell, euen in the goynge downe to Bethoron, the Lorde caste downe great stones from heauen vpon them tyll they came vnto Azeka, that they dyed. And there were mo that dyed with hayle stones, then the childzen of Israell slewe with the swerde.

Then spake Iosua vnto the Lorde, the day when the Lorde gaue ouer the Amorites before the childzen of Israell, and sayde in the sight of all Israell: Sonne, stande thou styll vpon Gabaon, and thou Mone, in the valey of Ayalon. And the sonne abode, and the mone stode styll, tyll the people had auenged them selues vpon their ennemyes. Is not this wryten in the booke of the ryghtwyse, howe the sonne abode in the myddes of heauen and hasted not to goo downe by the space of a hole daye. And there was no daye so longe as that before it, or after it, that the Lorde obeyed the voyce of a man: and all because the Lorde fought for Israell.

Eccle. xlviii. a The Sonne & mone stande styll.

And Iosua returned & all Israel with him, vnto the hoste to Galgall: but the fyue kynges fled and hyd them selues in a caue at Makeda. And it was tolde Iosua, sayenge: The fyue kynges are founde hyd in a caue at Makeda. And Iosua sayde, rowle greate stones vnto the mouth of the caue, and appoynt har dy men therto, to kepe theym. And stande ye not styll, but folowe after your ennemyes, & smyte the hyndermost of them. And suffre the not to entre into their cyties, for the Lorde your God hath deliuered them into your handes. And when Iosua and the childzen of Israel had made an ende of slayeng them with a gret slaughter, tyl they were wel nere wasted yet there remayned a certen of them, that had escaped Israels handes and entered into the walled cyties.

D The kynges be hyd

And all the people returned to the hoste, to Iosua at Makeda in peace, hole and without losse of one man so that no man durste moue his tonge against the childzen of Israel. Then sayde Iosua: open the mouth of the caue, and bringe oute these .v. kynges vnto me forth of the caue. And they dyd so, and brought those fyue kynges vnto him, out of the caue? The kynge of Ierusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Ierimoth, the kynge of Lachis, and the kynge of Eglon.

And when they had brought out those kynges vnto Iosua: Iosua called for all the men of Israell, and sayd vnto the captaynes of the men of warre, whiche came with him, come nere and put your fete vpon the neckes of these kynges. And they came nere and put their fete vpon the neckes of them. And Iosua sayde vnto them feare not, ne drede: But be stronge & plucke vp youre hertes, for so shall the Lorde serue al your enemyes against which ye fight.

The fyue kinges be hanged.

And then Iosua smote them and slew them and hanged them on fyue trees tyl euen. And at the goyng downe of the sonne, Iosua gaue commaundement, and they toke them downe of the trees, & caste them into the caue, where they hyd them selues, and layde great stones on the caues mouthe, whiche remayne vnto this daye.

And that same daye Iosua toke Makeda & smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynge therof also, and vtterly destroyed them and al the soules that were therein, & not one escaped. And he dyd to the kynge of Makeda, as he dyd to the kynge of Iericho.

Then Iosua went from Makeda, and all Israell with him vnto Libna, and fought against Libna. And the Lorde delyuered it also in their handes, with the kynge also, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therin, and let nought remayne in it, and dyd vnto the kynge therof as he dyd vnto the kynge of Iericho.

After that Iosua departed from Libna, & all Israell with him, vnto Lachis, and besieged and assaulted it rounde aboute. And the Lord delyuered into the handes of Israel Lachis, that they toke it the second day, & smote it with the edge of the swerde, & al the soules that were therin, according to all that he dyd to Libna.

Then Horam kynge of Geser came vp to helpe Lachis: But Iosua smote him and his people, tyll he left him naught remaynynge.

And from Lachis Iosua departed, vnto Eglon, and all Israell with him, and there besieged, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, & smote it with the edge of the swerde and all the persones that were therin: and vtterly destroyed them the same daye, accordynge to all that he dyd to Lachis.

Then Iosua departed vp from Eglon and all Israell with him, vnto Hebron. And they fought against it, and toke it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynge therof, and all the townes that belonged to it, and all the soules that were therin, so that they left nought remaynynge: but in all thinges as they dyd to Eglon, so they destroyed it vterly.

Then Iosua returned and all Israell with him to Dabir, and they fought against it, and toke it, and the kynge therof and al the townes that appertayned therto. And smote the with the edge of the swerde, and vtterly destroyed all the soules that were therein, & let nought remayne. And as he dyd to Hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and the kynge therof, and as he dyd to Libna and her kynge.

And Iosua smote all the hill countreyes and the southe countreyes, and the valeyes, & the spryinges of water, with all their kynges and let nought remayne, but vtterly destroyed all that * breathed, as the Lorde God of Israell commaunded, from Cades barne, vnto Gasah, and all the countrey of Gosan, euen vnto Gabaon. And all those kynges and their lande, Iosua toke at one tyme: because the Lorde God of Israell fought for Israell. And then Iosua returned and all Israel with him vnto the host to Galgall.

CAPI. XI.

A AND when Jabin kynge of Hazor herde hereof: he sent to Jobab kynge of Mawn, and to the kynge of Someron, and to the kynge of Achaph. And vnto the kynges that are by northe in the mountaynes, and playnes, on the south syde of Cineroth, and in the lowe countreyes, and in the regions of Dor vpon the see, & vnto the Cananites both by East and weste: and vnto the Amorites, Hethites, Pherezites, and Jebusites in the mountaynes: and vnto the Heuites vnder Hermon in the lande of Mazphah: whiche came oute and all theyr hostes with theym a multitude of folke, euen as the sandes of the see in nombre, with horses and charettes a wonderous sorte. And all these kynges mette to gyther, and came and pitched to gyther vpon the water of Merom, to fight with Israell.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: be not afrayde of theym: for to morowe aboute this tyme, I wyll delyuer them all sore wounded, before al Israel: and thou shalt houghe their horses, and burne their charettes with fyre.

And Josua came and all ꝑ men of warre with him against them, vnto the water of Merom sodenly, and fell vpon them. And the Lorde delyuered them into the handes of Israel: & they smote them and chased them, vnto great Sidon, and vnto the * hote waters, and vnto the valeye of Mazphah eastwarde, & smote them tyll they had none lefte of theym. And Josua serued them as the Lorde bad him, houghed their horses, and burnt their charettes with fyre.

Then Josua at that tyme turned backe and toke Hazor and smote her kyng with ꝑ sword for Hazor before tyme was the head of all those kyngdomes. And they smote all the soules that were therin and left not one alyue in it, vtterly destroyenge them, that no breathe was let remayne. And buent Hazor with fire, and all the cyties round about, whose kynges Josua toke and smote them with the edge of the sworde, and vtterly destroyed them * as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded.

But Israell burnt none of the cyties that stode vpon hilles, saue Hazor onely, that Josua burnt: but all the spoyle of the sayde cyties & the catell, the children of Israel caught vnto theym selues: But the men onely they smote with the edge of the sworde vntyll they had destroyed them, and had left no breth remaynynge. As the Lorde commaunded Josua and euen so dyd Josua * and mynyshed no worde of all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And so Josua toke al that lande, the hylles and all the south contreye, and all the lande of Golan, and the lowe countrey, and ꝑ west countrey, the playnes, and the mountayne of Israel, with the lowe countreye of the same, euen frō mount Halak that goeth vp to Seir vnto Baal Gad in the valeye of Libanō, vnder mount Hermon. And all the kynges of ꝑ same he toke and smote them, and slewe thē.

Josua made warre longe tyme with those kynges: for there was no cytie that had not yelded her to the children of Israel, saue those Hethites that enhabited Gabaon: All other they toke with battayle: for it was the Lordes wyll to harden theyr hartes, that they shulde come agaynste Israel in battayle: euen to destroye them vtterly, that they shulde haue no mercy, but to dyng them to nought As the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And that same season, Josua went and destroyed the * Enakites out of the mountaynes, and out of Hebron, Dabir, and Anab, & out of all the mountaynes of Juda, and oute of all the mountaynes of Israell, And Josua destroyed them vtterly with their cyties, So that there was not one Enakite left in ꝑ land of the children of Israel: only in Aiah, Geth and Asdod, there remayned of them. * Jud.i.d

And Josua toke the hole lande, accordynge to all that the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, and gaue it a possession vnto Israell euery mā his parte in their trybes: and the lande ceased frō warre.

And the chyldren of Merari by theyr kynredes, hadde oute of the tryb of Ruben, out of the tryb of Gad, and oute of the tryb of Zabulon, twelue citeyes. And the chyldren of Israel gaue by lot vnto the Leuites these citeyes with their suburbes, as the Lorde commaunded by Moses.

And they gaue oute of the tryb of the chyldren of Juda, and out of the tryb of the chyldren of Symeon, these citeyes by name: whiche the chyldren of Aaron beinge of the kynredes of the Cahathites, & of the chyldren of Leui, obtayned: for theirs was the first lotte. And they gaue them Kariah Arbe of the father of ℣Enacke, whiche is Hebron in the hyll countreye of Juda, with the suburbes of the same rounde aboute it. they gaue to Caleb the sonne of Jephune, to be his possession.

And the kynredes of the children of Cahath that were Leuytes / that is to saye the other chyldren of Cahath had the cities of their lot, oute of the tribe of Ephraim. And they gaue them the free cityes of the stear: Sichem with her suburbes in mounte Ephraim / and Gazer with her suburbes / and Kadzaim with her suburbes / Bethhoron with her suburbes / foure cityes.

And oute of the trybe of Dan: Eltheke with her suburbes, Gibthon with her suburbes, Ataloh with her suburbes, and Bathzemon with her suburbes, foure cityes. And out of the halfe tribe of Manasses: Thanach with her suburbes, Gathzemon with her suburbes, two cityes. So that all the cytyes whiche were gyuen vnto the kynredes of the other chyldren of Cahath, were ten with their suburbes.

And vnto the chyldren of Gerson, whiche were of the kinredes of the Leuites, they gaue out of the other halfe tribe of Manasses, the cityes of refuge for the slear, Golan in Basan and Bostram with her suburbes: Beesthera with her suburbes, two cityes. And oute of the trybe of Jsachar, Kision with her suburbes, Dabcrath with her suburbes, Jarmoth with her suburbes, Enganim with her suburbes, foure cityes. And out of the tribe of Aser Miseal with her suburbes, Abdon with her suburbes, Halakath with her suburbes, Rohob with her suburbes, foure cityes.

And out of the tribe of Gad, they gaue the traunchesed citye of the slear, Romoth in Galaad with her suburbes, Mahanaim with her suburbes, Hesbon with her suburbes, and Jaser with her suburbes, foure cityes in all, so that all the cityes of the chyldren of Merari in their kynredes, whiche were the reste of the kynredes of the Leuites, were by theyr lotte, twelue cityes. And all the cityes that the Leuites had in the possession of the chyldren of Jsrael were fortye and eyght with their suburbes. And these cityes hadde eche their suburbes rounde aboute her thyrowe oute all the sayd cityes.

And the Lorde gaue vnto Jsrael, all the lande whiche he sware to gyue vnto theyr fathers. And they conquered it, and dwelte therin. And the Lorde gaue them reste rounde about, accordynge to all that he sware vnto theyr fathers. So that there stode not a man of all theyr ennemyes before theym. But the Lorde delyuered all theyr ennemyes into theyr handes. There shaped nothynge of all the good thynges whiche the Lorde hadde sayde vnto the house of Jsrael. But all came to passe.

CAPI. XXII.

Then Josua called vnto the Rubenites, the Gaddites, and to the halfe tryb Manasses, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue kepte all that Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde commaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you: Ye haue not lefte your brethren of a longe season vnto this daye, but haue kepte the commaundement of the Lorde your God. And now the Lorde hathe gyuen reste vnto youre brethren, as he promysed them. Wherfore returne and goo vnto youre tentes, and vnto the lande of youre possession, whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

But in anye wyse take exedynge good hede that ye do the commaundement and lawe whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde charged you / whiche is, that ye loue the Lorde youre God, and walke in his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, and cleaue vnto him, and serue him with all your hertes, and all youre soules. And so Josua blessed theym, and sente them awaye. And they wente vnto theyr tentes.

Vnto the one halfe of the trybe of Manasses Moses gaue possession in Basan/and vnto the other halfe therof gaue Josua with theyr brethren on this syde Jordan westwarde. And also when Josua sent them awaye vnto theyr tentes and blessed them, he sayde vnto them, returne with moche rychesse vnto your tentes and with very moche catell, with syluer, golde, brasse, yron, and with rayment aboue measure and diuide the spoyle of youre ennemyes with your brethren.

And the chyldren of Ruben the chyldren of

Gad

Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, returned and departed from the chyldren of Israel out of Siloh, whiche is in the lande of Canaan, to go vnto the countreye of Galaad, and to the lande of theyr possession, wherin they were possessed at the mouthe of the Lorde by the hande of Moses. And when they came vnto the hylles of Jordan that lye in the lande of Canaan: there the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses, buylte an aulter fast by Jordan, and that a great aulter to se to. And when the chyldren of Israel herde saye: beholde, the chyldren of Ruben, the childrē of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses haue buylt an aulter in the lore ffronte of the lande of Canaan in the borders of Jordan on the syde of the chyldren of Israel: the hole congregacion of the chyldren of Israel gathered them togither to Siloh to go vpon them with batayle.

And the chyldren of Israel sente vnto the chyldren of Ruben, to the chyldren of Gad, & to the halfe tribe of Manasses in to the lande of Galaad, Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preeste, and with him tenne lordes, of euerye chefe house a lorde, thorowe oute all the trybes of Israel, whiche heades of theyr fathers housholdes were ouer the thousandes of Israel. And they went vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses, vnto the lande of Galaad, and spake with them sayinge.

D Thus saye the hole congregacion of the Lorde: what trāsgression is this that ye haue transgressed agaynste the God of Israel, to turne awaye this daye from after the Lorde, and to buylde you an aulter for to rebell this daye agaynst the Lorde? Is the wycked dede of Bel Phegor to lytle for vs, wherof we are not clensed vnto this daye, and moche people were slayne, but that ye also sholde tourne awaye this daye frome folowynge the Lorde? Ye shall rebell to daye agaynste the Lorde, & to morowe he shall be wroth with all the congregacion. Notwithstandynge yf the lande of your possession be vnclene, then come ouer vn to the lande of the possession of the Lorde, where the Lordes tabernacle dwelleth, and be possessed amonges vs. But rebell not agaynste the Lorde, nor agaynste vs, to buylde you anye other aulter, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God. Dyd not Acan the sonne of Zareh transgresse the commaundement of the Lorde, and wrath fell on all the congregacion of Israel, so that he alone perysshed not for his wyckednesse?

E Then the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, answered and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israel. The myghtye God, the almyghtye Lorde he knoweth, and Israel shall knowe yf it be to rebell or transgresse agaynst the Lorde, then the Lorde saue vs not this daye.

Or elles yf we haue buylte vs an aulter to turne from folowynge the Lorde, or to offre theron burnt offerynge or meat offerynges, or to offre peax offerynges theron, let the Lorde requyre it: And haue not rather doone it for feare of this, leest in tyme to come youre chyldren shoulde saye vnto oures: What haue ye to doo with the Lorde God of Israel, seynge that the Lorde hathe made Jordan a border betwene vs and you ye chyldren of Ruben and of Gad: ye haue no parte therfore in the Lorde / and so shall youre children make oure chyldren cease frome fearynge the Lorde.

Therfore we thoughte it better, and ff sayde: Lette vs cause an aulter to be made, not for burnt offerynges, nor sacrifyces, but it shall be a token betwene vs and you, and oure generacyons after vs, that we shoulde serue the Lorde, with oure offerynges, sacrifyces, and peace offerynges: and that youre chyldren shoulde not saye to oures in tyme to come: ye haue no parte in the Lorde. Geneſi.xxxi. g Deuter.xxx.d Josue.xxiiii.f.

And we thought, yf they sholde so saye to vs, or to oure generations in tyme to come, that we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the facyon of the aulter whiche oure fathers made, neyther for burnt offerynges, nor sacrifyces, but that it sholde be a wytnesse betwene vs and you. God forbyd that we sholde rebell agaynste the Lorde, and that we sholde turne this daye frome after him, and buylde an aulter for burnt offerynges or sacrifices, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God that is before his tabernacle.

And when Phinehes the Preeste and the Lordes of the congregacyon, and heades ouer the thousandes of Israel whiche were with hym, herde the wordes that the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the chyldren of Manasses spake, they were well content. G

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preeste sayde vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad and of Manasses, this daye we perceyue that the Lorde is amonge vs, bycause ye haue not doone this trespace agaynste the Lorde. And nowe ye haue rydde the chyldrē of Israel oute of the handes of the Lorde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preeste and the Lordes returned frome the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad out of the lande of Galaad vnto the lande of Canaan, to the chyldren of Israel, and broughte them worde agayne. And the answere pleased the chyldren of Israel well, and they praysed God, and dyd not intende to goo agaynste them in battayle, to destroye the lande whiche the chyldren of Ruben and Gad dweite in. And the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad called the aulter ✠En, bycause it is a wytnesse betwene vs, that the Lorde is God.

¶ Iosua exhorteth the people to the keppynge of the law. He dyeth. The bones of Ioseph are buryed. Eleazar dyeth.

CAPI. XXIIII.

AND Iosua gathered all the trybes of Israel to Sichem, and called for the elders of Israel, and for theyr heedes Iudges and officers, whiche presented them selues before God. And Iosua sayde vnto all the people: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel. * Youre fathers dwelte on the other syde of the floude in olde tyme, euen Thareh the father of Abrahaim and Nachor, and serued straunge goddes. But I toke your father Abrahaim frome the other syde of the floude and broughte him in to the lande of Canaan, and multiplyed his seed, and gaue him Isaac. And I gaue vnto Isaac, Iacob, and Esau. And I gaue vnto Esau mounte Seir to possesse it. But Iacob and his chyldren wente downe in to Egypt.

* Then I sente Moses and Aaron. And I stroke Egypte in manye signes and wonders, and after yᵗ I brought you your fathers out of Egypte. And ye came vnto the see, and the Egyptians folowed after your fathers with charettes and horsemen, vnto the redde see. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde. And he put darkenesse betwene you and the Egyptians, and broughte the see vpon them & couered them.

And your eyes haue sene what I haue done in Egypte. And ye dwelte in the wyldernesse a longe season. And I broughte you in to the lande of the Amorites, whiche dwelte on the other syde Iordan. And they foughte agaynste you: and I gaue them in to your handes. And ye conquered theyr countrey, and ye destroyed them.

Then Balak the sonne of Ziphor, kynge of Moab, arose and warred agaynste Israel, and sente and * called Balam the sonne of Beor for to curse you. But I wolde not agree to harken vnto Balam and therfore he blessed you: And so I delyuered you oute of his hande. And when he wente ouer Iordan, and came vnto Iericho, the citysyns of Iericho foughte agaynste you: the Amorytes, Pherezites, Cananites, Hethites, Girgesites, Heuytes, Iebusites, whiche I delyuered in to your handes.

And I sent * hornettes before you and ye caste oute before you: euen the two kynges of the Amorytes, but not with youre owne swerde, or with your owne bowe. And I gaue you a lande in whiche ye dyd no labour, and citees whiche you buylte not, and ye dwelte in them. And vynes, and olyue trees whiche ye planted not.

And now feare the Lorde and serue hym in pureneſſe and truthe. And put awaye the goddes whiche youre fathers serued in Mesopotamia, and in Egypte, and serue the Lorde. But if it seme euyl vnto you to serue the Lord then chose you this day whom you will serue whether the Goddes, whiche youre fathers

serued that were on the other syde of ꝑ floude, eyther the Goddes of the Amorites, in whose lande ye dwelt, and I and my house wyl serue the Lorde.

And the people answered and sayde, God forbyd that we sholde forsake the Lorde and serue straunge goddes. For the Lorde our God he it is that brought vs and our fathers oute of the lande of Egypte, the house of bondage, and whiche dyd those myracles in our syghte, and preserued vs in all the waye we went and amonge all the nacions whiche we came thorowe. And the Lorde dyd cast out before vs all the nacions with the Amorytes whiche dwelt in the lande, wherfore we wyl serue the Lorde for he is our God.

But Josua sayd vnto the people: ye can not E serue the Lorde, for he is an holye God, mighty and gelous, and can not beare your transgression and synne. But when ye haue forsake the Lorde, and haue serued straunge goddes, he wyl turne and do you euyll and consume you, after that he hathe doone you good. And the people answered Josua: not so / but we wyll serue the Lorde.

Then Josua sayd vnto the folke, ye are wit- f nesses vnto your selues that ye haue chosē you the Lorde to serue hym: and they sayd we are witnesses. Then put away, sayd he, ꝑ straunge goddes which are amonge you, and bowe your hertes vnto the Lorde God of Israel. And the people answered Josua: the Lorde oure God we wil serue, and his voyce we wil obeye. And so Josua made a couenaunt with the people the same daye, and set ordinaunces and lawes before them in Sichem.

And Josua wrote these wordes in the boke of the lawe of God, and toke a great ꝑ stone and pytched it on ende in the sayd place / euen vnder an ooke that stode in the sanctuarye of the Lorde. And Josua sayd vnto all ꝑ people: Beholde, this stoone shall be a wytnesse vnto vs, for it hathe herde all the wordes of the Lorde whiche he spake with you. It shall be therfore a wytnesse vnto you, lest ꝑ after this tyme ye wyll denye and lye vnto your God. And so Josua let the people depart euery man vnto his enheritaunce.

And after these thynges the tyme came that G Josua the sonne of Nun and the seruaunte of Jud.ii. the Lorde dyed, being an hundred and ten yeres olde. Whom they buryed in the border of Josue.xix.b his inheritaunce, euen in Thamnath Sarey, which is in mount Ephraim, on the north syde of the hyll of Gaas.

And Israel serued the Lorde all the dayes ii.Paral.xxx. of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that and.xiiii.c. ouer lyued Josua, and which had sene all the workes of the Lorde that he had done to Israel. And Caleb sayde: he that smyteth Kariath Sepher and taketh it, to him wil I gyue Achsah my doughter to wyfe. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenez Calebs younger brother toke it: to whome he gaue Achsah his doughter to wyfe, and as they wente her husbande counseyled her to aske of her father a felde.

And then she lyghted of her asse: and Caleb sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde vnto him: gyue me a blessynge, for thou hast gyuen me a Southwarde and dyre lande gyue me also sprynges of water. And Caleb gaue her sprynges bothe aboue and benethe. And Juda toke Azah with ꝑ coostes therof, & Askalon with the coostes therof, and Akaron with the costes therof. And the Lorde was with Juda that he conquered ꝑ mountaynes, but they coulde not dryue out the inhabiters of the valleys, bicause they hadde charettes of yron. And they gaue Hebron vnto Caleb, as Moses sayd. And he expelled thence the thre sonnes of Enach.

And the chyldren of Ben Jamin dyd not caste oute the Jebusites that enhabited Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwell with ꝑ children of Ben Jamin in Jerusalem, vnto this daye.

And in lyke maner the house of Joseph went vp to Bethel, and the Lord with them, and when they besieged the citye which before tyme was called Lus, and sawe a man come out of the citye, they sayde vnto hym, shewe vs the waye in to the citye, and we wil shewe the mercye. And he shewed them the waye in to the citye, they smote it with the edge of the swerde, but they dyd let the man and all his houshold goo free. And the man went in to the lande of the Hethites, and buylte a citye and called the name therof Lus, which is the name therof vnto this daye.

Neyther dyd Manasses expelle Bethsean with her townes / neyther Thaanach with her townes, neither the inhabitours of Dor, with her townes/ neyther the inhabitours of Jeblaam with her townes / neyther the enhabitours of Magew, with her townes/ and so the Canaanites went to and dwelt amonges them. But as sone as Israel was waxed mighty, they put the Canaanites to tribute, but expelled them not.

In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not the Canaanites that dwelt in Gazer, but the Canaanites dwelt styll in Gazer amonge them.

Neither did Zabulon expel the enhabitours of Ketron, neither the enhabitours of Nahalol. But the Canaanites dwelt amonge them and became tributaryes.

Neither dyd Aser caste out the enhabitours of Acho, neyther the inhabitours of Zidon, of Ahalab, Achzib, Halbah, Aphek, nor of Rohob, but the Aserites dwelte amonge the Canaanites the inhabitoures of the lande, and dyaue them not out.

CAPI. II.

A And the aungell of the Lorde came vp from Galgall to Bocim, and sayde, I broughte you out of Egypte, and haue brought you vnto the lande which I sware vn to your fathers. And when the aungell of the Lorde hadde spoken these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Jsrael, the people cryed oute and wepte. And called the name of the sayd place Bocim, and offered there vnto the Lorde.

And when Josua hadde sente the people awaye, the chyldren of Jsrael went euery man in to his inheritaunce to possesse the lande. And the people serued the Lord all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that out lyued Josua, and hadde sene all the great workes of the Lord that he did to Jsrael. And Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruaunt of the Lorde dyed when he was an hundred and ten yeres olde: whome they buryed in the coostes of his enheritaunce: euen in Thamnath Hares in mount Ephraim, on the northe syde of the hyll Gaas. And euen so al that generacion were put vnto theyr fathers, and there arose an other generacion after them, which neither knewe the Lorde, nor yet the workes which he dyd vnto Jsrael.

And then the chyldren of Jsrael dyd wyckedly in the sight of the Lorde, & serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, which brought them out of the lande of Egypt, and folowed straunge goddes. euen of the goddes of the nations that were rounde about them, and bowed them selues vnto them and angred the Lorde. And so they forsoke the Lorde and serued Baal and Astharoth. Wherfore the Lorde ware angrye with Jsrael, and delyuered them in to the handes of raueners to spoyle them, and solde them in to the handes of their ennemyes rounde aboute them, so that they had no power any longer to stande before theyr ennemyes, but vnto what so euer thynge they wente, the hande of the Lorde was vpon them with euyl lucke, euen as the Lorde promysed them. And as he sware vnto them. And they were sore vexed.

Neuertheleſſe, the Lorde rayſed vp Judges whiche delyuered them out of the handes of their oppressers, and yet for all that they wold not herken vnto theyr Judges: But wente a hoorynge after straunge goddes, and bowed them selues vnto them, and turned quyckly out of the waye whiche theyr fathers walked in obeyinge the commaundementes of the Lorde, and dyd not so.

And when the Lorde rayſed them vp Judges in theyr dayes, he had compassion of them, and herde the lamentacion of the oppressed, and delyuered them out of the handes of their ennemyes, yet for all that, as sone as ꝑ Judge was ded, they tourned and dyd worse then theyr fathers in folowynge straunge goddes, and in seruynge them, and ceased not frome theyr inuencions, nor frome theyr malicious wayes. Exodi.ii.d

Wherfore the Lorde was angrye with Jsrael and sayd: bicause this people hath transgressed my couenaunte whiche I made with theyr fathers, and haue not obeyed my voice, therfore henceforthe I wyll not caste oute one man before them of the nacions which Josua lefte when he dyed, and that to proue Jsrael thrughe them whether they wyll kepe the waye of the Lorde to walke therin as theyr fathers dyd or not. And so the Lorde left those nacyons alone, and droue them not oute immediatly, neyther delyuered them in to the handes of Josua. Deuter.viii.a. and.xii.a ¶ Certayne nations are left among the Jsraelites to the intent to vexe and afflycte them. Othoniel deliuereth Jsrael. Ahud hylleth kyng Eglon. Samgar hylleth the Philistines.

CAPI. III.

A These are the nacions whiche the Lorde lefte to scourge Jsrael: euen as manye of Jsrael as had not knowen warres of Canaan: Onely for the lernynge of the generacion of the chyldren of Jsrael: which before knewe nothyng of warre, ye left the fiue lordes of the Philistines, and all the Cananites, the Sidonites, the Heuites ꝑ dwelt in mounte Libanon, euen frome mounte Baal Hermon vnto Hemath. Those God suffered to remayn to proue Jsrael by, & wete whether they wolde harken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde, whiche he commaunded their fathers by the hande of Moses, or no.

And as the chyldren of Jsrael dwelte amonge the Canaanytes, Hethytes, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuytes, and Jebusites, they toke the doughters of them to be their wyues, and gaue theyr owne doughters to theyr sonnes, and serued theyr goddes. And so the chyldren of Jsrael dyd wyckedly in the syghte of the Lorde, and forgat the Lord theyr God and serued Baalim and Asteroth. Therfore the Lorde was angrye with Jsrael, and delyuered them in to the handes of Chusan Rasathaim kynge of ꝓ Mesopotamia. So that the chyldren of Jsraell serued Chusan Rasathaim eyght yeres. ꝑ And

And then the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde stered them vp Jud.i a sauer, and saued them: one Othoniel the sonne of Kenes, and Calebs yonger brother. And the spirpte of the Lorde came vpon hym/ and he iudged Israell, and wente oute to ii.Para.xv.c. warre. And the Lorde ꝓ solde Chusan Rasathaim kynge of Syrye in to his hand. So that ꝓ That is delyuered. his hande was myghtye ouer Chusan Rasathaim, and the lande hadde reste fourtye yeres. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenes dyed. And then the chyldren of Israel wente to agayne, and commytted wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde. And then the Lorde hardened Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, agaynste the chyldren of Israel, bycause they hadde commytted wickednesse before the Lorde. And this Eglon gathered vnto him the chyldren of Ammon and the Amalekites, and went and smote the chyldren of Israel, and conquered the cytye of palme trees. And the chyldren of Israel Deuter.xxx.c serued Eglon the king of the Moabites.xviij. yeres. And then they cryed vnto the Lorde/ and the Lorde stered them vp a sauer, Ahud the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Jemini, a man that coulde doo nothynge handsomlye with his ryght hande.

¶ By whome the chyldren of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Ahud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte lengthe, and he dyd gyrde it vnder his cote vpon his ryght thygye and caryed the present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Eglon was a verye fatte man. And when he hadde presented the presente, he sente the people that bare it awaye, but he him selfe tourned agayne frome the ydolles by Galgall, and sayde: I haue a secrete vnto the, o kynge: and the kynge commaunded him to holde his peace, vntyll all that stode aboute hym, were gone oute frome hym.

And Ahud came in vnto him in to a sommer
ii.Regū.iii.e chamber, where he sate alone, and sayde: I haue a message vnto the frome God. And he arose out of his seate/ and Ahud put forth his lefte hande, and toke the dagger frome his ryghte thyghe, and thrust it so harde in to his belye, so that the hafte went in after the blade.
D And the hafte stopped in the fat, for he drewe not the dagger out of his bely, but as he stroke him, so lefte he the dagger in the wounde tyll that by the priuye partes of nature the dyrte came out. And Ahud gat him out at a posterne wore, and shut the dores of the parlour vpon him, and locked them. The kynges seruauntes came and loked, and se the wores of the parlour were locked, they sayde: A, he is a doyng of his easement in his sommer chamber. And when they had taried tyl they were ashamed, for no man dyd the wores of the parlour open, then they toke a keye and opened them. And beholde, their Lord was fallen downe dead vn to the erth. But Ahud escaped whyle they taryed, and was gone beyonde the quarryes, and Nume.x.a escaped into Seirath.
Jud.v.g And when he was come, he blewe a trompet in mounte Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israel went down with him, & he before them, and sayd vnto them: folow me/ for the Lorde hathe delyuered your enemyes the Moabites in to youre handes. And they descended after hym, and stopped the ferryes of Jordan frome the Moabites, and suffered not a man to passe ouer. And they slewe of the Moabites ꝓ same tyme vpon a ten thousande men, all fat, and men of myghte: that there scaped not a man, and so the Moabites were subdued that daye vnder the handes of Israel/ and the lande had reste foure score yeres.

And after him came Samgar the sonne of Anath, whiche slewe of the Philistines sixe hundred men with an oxe gode, and delyuered Israel also.

¶ Israel is commytted in to the handes of Jabin, because they were returned to Idolatrye. Debora and Barak delyuer them: Sisara is kylled of Jael.

CAPI. IIII.

AND the chyldren of Israel began again to do wickedly in the syght of the Lord when Ahud was deed. And the Lorde ꝓ solde them in to the handes of Jabin kynge of Canaan, that raygned in Hazor/ whose Capitayne of warre was Sisara, whiche dwelte in Haroseth of the Gentyles. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde/ for he had nyne hundred charettes of yron/ he oppressed the chyldren of Israell with power twentye yeres.

And Debora a Prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israel the same tyme, and dwelte vnder the palme tree of Debora, betwene Ramath and Bethel, in mounte Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Israel came to her for iudgement. And she sent and called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, out of Kedes Nephthalim and sayd vnto him.

The Lorde God of Israel commaundeth the that thou goo and leade an hoofte vnto mounte Thabor, and take with the ten thousande men, of the chyldren of Nephthalim, and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyll bring vnto the at the ryuer of Kison, Sisara the Capitayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his charettes and his people, and wyll delyuer them in to thyne handes. And Barak sayd vnto her, yf thou wylt go with me, I wyll go: but and yf thou wylt not go with me, then I wyll not go. And she answered/ I wyll surely goo with the, but then the prayse shall not be thyne in the waye which thou goest, for the Lorde shal deliuer Sisara in to the handes of a woman. And she arose and went with Barak to Kedes/ and Barak called Zabulon and Nephthalim, wet vp with ten thousande men: & Debora wente with him.

But Haber the Kenyte went oute of kynde from the other Kenites his brethren, the chyldren of ꝓ Hobab who was father to Moses wyfe, and pitched his tent vntyl he was come to the oke of Zaanaim, by Kedes.

And then it was shewed vnto Sisara how that that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mounte Thabor. And Sisara called for all his charettes, euen. ix. hundred charettes of yron, and all for the people that he had frome Haroseth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer of Kison. Then said Debora vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in whiche the Lorde hath delyuered Sisara in to thyne handes/for the Lord is gone oute before the. And so Barak wente downe frome mounte Thabor, and ten thousande men after him.

But the Lorde trounsed Sisara and all his charettes, and all his hoste with the edge of the swerde before Barak. And Sisara lyghted downe of his charet, and fledde a fote. But Barak folowed after the charettes, and after the hoste, euen vnto Haroseth of the Gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man lefte. How be it Sisara fledde a fote to the tent of Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite/ for there was peax betwene Jabin the kynge of Hazor, and the housholde of Haber the Kenyte.

And Jael wente oute agaynste Sisara and sayde vnto hym: tourne in my Lorde, tourne in to me, and feare not. And he turned in to her in to her tent: & she couered him with a mantel. And he sayd vnto her: gyue me a lytel water to drynke, for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottell of mylke, and gaue him drynke and couered him. And he sayd vnto her, stande in ꝑ dore of thy tent, and yf any mā come and aske the, or enquyre of the whether there be anye man here, saye naye.

Then Jael Habers wyfe toke a nayle of the tent, and an hammer in her hande, & went softlye vnto him, and smote the nayle with the hammer thorowe the temples of his heed in to the grounde, and as he slombered beyng wery, he dyed.

And beholde as Barak folowed after Sisara, Jael came oute agaynste him, and sayde vnto him: Come, and I wyll shewe the the man whome thou seketh. And when he came in to her tent: Beholde Sisara laye deed, and the nayle thorowe his temples. And so God broughte Jaben the kynge of Canaan in to subiection that daye before the chyldren of Israel. And the hande of the chyldren of Israel prospered, and was sore vpon Jaben the kynge of Canaan, vntyll they hadde brought him to nought.

CAPI. V.

THen Debora & Barak ꝑ sonne of Abinoam, sang the same daye saying: Bicause he hathe auenged the vengeaunce wone to Israel, the people offering them selues wyllyngly: prayse ye the Lorde. Heare kynges, & harken Lordes, I am the, I am the that wyll synge, and gyue prayse vnto the Lorde God of Israel.

Lorde, when thou departedst out of Seir, & camest thorow the countreys of Edom, ꝑ erth trembled, and the earthe rayned, and the cloudes dropped water: the mountaynes melted before the Lorde, euen mounte Sinai before the Lorde God of Israel.

In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anath, and in the dayes of Jael, the hye wayes were vnoccupied, and they that walked by pathes, wēt by wayes that fet compasses about. The champions of Israel were discouraged & kaynt herted, vntyll I Debora arose, vntyll I arose a mother in Israel.

God chose new facions of warre, for when they had warre at theyr gates/ there was not sene amonge fourtye thousande, eyther shelde or spere in Israel. Myne hert loueth the mainteners of the lawe in Israel, ye that willingly haue put youre selues in aduenture, blesse ye the Lorde, ye that ryde on goodly asses, and dwell beside Middin. And ye ꝑ walke by the wayes, make dities. Where as the charettes were broken a peces, where the hoste of oure aduersaries was choked, there shall they tell of the iustice of the Lorde, & how gracious was the stronge God of Israel: then the people of the Lorde went downe vnto the gates, & wan the maistrye.

Up vp Debora, vp vp and synge a songe, vp Barak and take thy praye, thou sonne of Abinoam. Then they that had escaped, vnder Israel raigned ouer the proudest of the people. The Lorde fought amonges the stronge.

Ephraim was the fyrst that destroyed Amalek. And after hym Ben Jamin, amonge the people.

Of Machir came lerned men in the lawe, and of Zabulon that well coulde conueye an hoste to warre.

The Lordes of Issakar were with Debora. And as Barak, euen so was Issakar sente in to the valeye a fote, and put his life in auenture. But in the diuisions of Ruben were great imaginations of herte.

Wherfore abodest thou amonge the shepe foldes, to heare the bleatynges of the flockes. In the diuysyons of Ruben greate were the ymaginations of herte. Galaad abode on the other syde Jordā, and caryed Dan in shyppes. And Aser sate in the hauens of the see, and abode styll in his owne coostes. But Zabulon is a people that put theyr lyues in leopardye of deathe, and Nephthalim in lyke maner, euen vnto the toppe of the feldes, kynges came and foughte. Then foughte the kynge of Canaan at Thanach, vpon the water of Magedo. But the syluer that they coueted, they caryed not awaye.

Frome heuen came batayle: for the sterres beyng in theyr course, fought agaynst Sisara. The ryuer of Kison caught them awaye: that auncient riuer, the riuer Kison.

My soule, treade thou the myghtye vnder fote. Then theyr horses stombled as they fledde, that theyr mighty coursers lefte prauncynge.

Curse ye Meroz, bad ꝑ aungell of the Lorde curse, curse ꝑ inhabitours therof, bicause they came not forthe to helpe the Lorde, to helpe the Lorde amonge the myghty.

Blessed be Jael the wyfe of Haber the Ke-

nyte, aboue other women: aboue other wome blessed be she in the tente.

Judi.iiii.c He asked water, but she gaue him mylke, and brought butter in a goodly dyshe. She caught a nayle in her lefte hande, and a worckynge hammer in her ryghte, and nayled Sisara and wounded his heed, and perced and went thorowe his temples. Betwene her fete he bowed him selfe, fell downe and laye styll: Betwene her fete he spradled and laye deed lyke a wretche.

Thorow a wyndow loked Sisaras mother and houled out of her chambre, why abideth his charet so longe that it commeth not, why tary the wheles of his waggans? The wysest of his wiues answered her: yea, and she answered her owne wordes her selfe, haplye they haue founde, and diuyde the spoyle. A mayde, ye two maydes for a pece / a spoyle of dyuers colours for Sisara, a spoyle of dyuers colours with broudered workes, dyuers coloured, broudered workes for the necke for a praye. So perysshe all thyne ennemyes Lorde / but they that loue the, let them be as the sonne ryssynge in his myght.

And the lande had rest fourtye yeres.

¶ Israel is oppressed of the Madianites, because he returned agayne into Idolatrye. Gedeon is sent of God to be theyr deliuerer. The aulter of Baal is ouerthrowen.

CAPI. VI.

A AND the chyldren of Israel committed wyckednes in the syghte of the Lorde. And the Lorde deliuered theym in to the handes of the Madianites seuen yeres. And when the hande of the Madianites was sore vpon Israel, the chyldren of Israel made them dennes in the mountaynes, and caues, and stronge holdes. For when Israell had sowen, thē came the Madianites, the Amalekites, and they of the Easte countreye vpon them, and pitched their tentes agaynste them, and destroyed the encrease of the erth euen vn to Azah, and left no sustinaunce in Israel, neither shepe, oxe, or asse / for they came with their cattell and houssholdes, euen as grashoppers in multitude / so that bothe they and also their camels were without nombre, and wasted all that euer they layde handes on. And they entred the lande to destroy it. And so was Israel exceedyngly impouerisshed by the Madianites, and cryed vnto the Lorde. And when the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde bycause of B the Madianites, the Lorde sent a prophet vnto them, and sayd vnto them. Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, I fet you from Egypte and brought you out of the house of bondage, and I ryd you out of ꝑ hand of the Egyptiās, and out of the handes of al that oppressed you, and cast them out before you, & gaue you theyr landes. And I sayd vnto you, I am the Lorde your God, and therfore feare not the Goddes iiii.Re.xvii.g. of the Amorites, in whose land you dwel. But Jere.x.a you wolde not obeye my voyce. And the aungell of the Lorde came and sate vnder an oke in Ephrah that pertayned vnto Joas the father of the Eserites. And his sonne Gedeon preselled out whete oute of the eares in a presse, for to flee from the Madianites. And the aungell of the Lorde appeared vnto him, and sayd: C the Lorde is with the, thou man of myght. And Gedeon answered him: Oh my Lorde, if the Lorde be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs: ye and where be his myracles which our fathers tolde vs of, and sayde: the Lorde brought vs out of Egypt. But now the Lord hathe forsaken vs, and deliuered vs in to the handes of the Madianites. And the Lorde loked vpon him, and sayd: Go hence in this thy myght, and deliuer Israel out of the handes of the Madianites: Behold, I haue sent the. And he answered him. Oh Lorde, wherwith shulde I saue Israel? Beholde my kynred is the poorest in Manasses, and I am the least in my fathers house. But then the Lorde sayde vnto hym: I wyl be with the / and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he answered him, yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, then shewe me a signe, that thou art the Lorde that talketh with me. Departe not hence, vntyll I come agayne vn D to the, and bryngе myne offeryngе, and haue set it before the.

And he sayd, I wyll tarye vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon wente and made redye a kydde, and swete cakes of an Epha of flour, & put the flesshe in a basket, and the brothe in a pot, and brought it out vnto him vnder ꝑ oke and presented it. And the aungell of God sayd
J vnto him: take the fleth and the swete cakes and put them vpon this rocke, and poure out the brothe. And he dyd so. Then the aungel of the Lorde put forth the ende of the staffe that was in his hande, and touched the flesshe and the cakes. And there arose vp fyre oute of the E rocke and consumed the flesshe and the cakes, and the aungell of the Lorde vanysshed oute of his syght. And whē Gedeon perceyued that it was an aungell, he sayd: alas my Lorde almightye, that I haue sene an aungell of the E Lorde face to face. And the Lorde sayde vnto him, peax be with the, and feare not / for thou
F shalte not dye. Then Gedeon made an aulter there vnto the Lorde, and called it ꝑ Jehouah, Salom, which vnto this day is yet in Ephrah
O that pertayneth vnto the father of the Eserites. And the same nyght the Lorde sayd vnto him, take an oxe of thy fathers, and an other of seuen yeres olde, and destroye the aulter of Baal that belongeth vnto thy father, and cut downe the groue that is aboute it, and make an aulter vnto the Lorde thy God vpon the top of this rocke and furnisshe it. And take the seconde oxe and offre burnte sacrifyce with the wodde of the groue whiche thou shalte haue cut downe. Then Gedeon toke ten men of his seruauntes, & dyd as the Lorde bad him. But bycause he durste not do it by daye, for feare of his fathers housholde, and of the men of the citye, he dyd it by nyghte.

When the men of the citye were vp erly in the mornynge: Beholde, the aulter of Baal J was broken, and the groue that stode about it cut

it cut downe. And the seconde oxe offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they sayd one to an other: Who hathe done this thing, and they enquyred and asked for him that shoulde haue wone ꝑ dede. It was tolde them that Gedeon the sonne of Joas hadde doone it. Then the men of the citye sayde vnto Joas, bringe oute thy sonne that he maye dye, bycause he hath broken the aulter of Baal, and cut down the groue that was aboute it. And Joas sayde vnto all ꝑ stode by him: will ye fight for Baal, or wil ye be his defenders? he that fyrsteth for him, shall dye afore to morow. Yf he be a God let him reuenge his quarel vpon him that cast downe his aulter. And he called Gedeon Jerobaal the same time saying: let Baal reacquyte him, bicause he hath broken downe his aulter.

G When all the Madianites, the Amalekites and they of the East were gathered togyther, and had gone and pitched in the valeye of Jezrael, the spirite of the Lorde entred in to Gedeon. And he blewe a trompet and called togyther the house of ✳Abiezer to folowe him, and sent messengers thorow out al Manasses, and called them vp to folow him also. And he sent other messengers vnto Aser, Zabulon & Nephthalim, whiche came also to mete him.

And Gedeon sayd vnto God: yf thou wilt saue Jsrael by my hande, as thou haste sayde. Beholde, I wyll put a fleece of wolle in the threshynge place. And yf the dewe be on the fleece onely, and drye vpon all the earth beside: then I shal be sure that thou wylt saue Jsrael by my hande, as thou saydest. And it came so to passe. And he rose vp early on the morowe, and he pressed the fleece togither, & wrong the dewe therout, and filled a dysche full of water. And Gedeon sayd vnto God, be not angry with me that I ✳speake ones more, let me proue onely ones agayne with the fleece. Let it be drye only vpon the fleece, and dew vpon al the ground aboute. And God dyd so that same nyght: so that it was drye vpon the fleece onely, and on all the grounde aboute, dewe.

¶ The souldyars that shulde goo with Gedeon to battayle are proued by takinge them vp water. Gedeon with three hundred men ouercōmeth the Madianites. Oreb and Zeb are slayne.

CAPI. VII.

A THen Jerobaal, otherwise called Gedeon rose erlye, and all the people that were with him & pitched beside the wel of Harad, so that the hoste of the Madianites were in a valey on the north syde of the hyll Hamoreh. And the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon, the people that are with the, are to manye for me to gyue the Madianites in to their handes, leest Jsrael make their vaunt to my dishonour, and say: our owne hande hath saued vs. Now therfore make a proclamacion in the eares of the people, and saye: ✳yf anye man drede or be afrede, let him returne, and get him sone frome mounte Galaad / and there departed and returned of the people .xxij. thousande, and there abode ten thousande.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon the people are yet to many, bringe them downe vnto the water, and I wyll trye them vnto the there. And of whome I saye vnto the, this shall goo with the, the same shall goo with the. And who so euer I saye vnto the, this shal not go with the / the same shall not goo. And when he hadde broughte downe the people vnto the water. The Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: as manye as lappe the water with their tonges, as dogges do, them put by them selues / and so do them that knele downe vpon their knees to drynke. And the nombre of them that put their handes to their mouthes and lapped, were three hundred men / and all the remnaunt of the people kneled downe vpon their knees to drynke water. And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon, with the three hundred men that lapped water wyl I saue you, and deliuer the Madianites in to thyne hande / and all the other people shall goo euery man to his owne home.

And they toke vitayles with them for the folke, and their trompettes / and he sente all the reste of Jsrael, euery man vnto his tente, and kept the three hundred with him / and the hoste of Madian was benethe him in a valey. And the same nyght the Lorde sayd vnto him vp, and goo downe vnto the hoste, for I haue deliuered it in to thyne hande. But ꝑ yf thou feare to go downe alone, then go thou downe vnto the hoste, and Pharah thy lad, and herke what they saye, and so shall thyne handes be stronge, and then thou shalte safely go downe vnto the hoste.

Then he went downe with Pharah his lad euen hard vnto the watche me of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalekites, and all they of the East, laye alonge in the valeye lyke vnto grethoppers in multitude, and their camels were without nombre, euen as the sande by the see syde. And when Gedeon was come. Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, and sayd on this maner. Beholde I dreamed a dreame, and me thoughte that an harthdabte lofe of barleye breed tombled in to the host of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and smote it that it fel, and ouerturned it, that the tent lay alonge. And his felowe answered and sayde, this is nothing els saue the swerde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Jsrael, in to whose hande the Lorde hathe deliuered Madian and all the hoste.

When Gedeon herde the tellynge of the dreame, and the meanynge therof, he bowed him selfe to the erthe, and returned vnto the hoste of Jsrael, and sayde: vp, for ꝑ Lorde hathe deliuered in to youre handes the hoste of the Madianites. And he diuyded the three hundred men in to three companyes, and gaue euerye man a trompet in his hande, with an emptye pytcher, and lampes therin, and sayde vnto theym: loke on me, and doo lykewyse / and beholde, when I come to the syde of the hoste / euen as I doo, so do you. And when I blowe with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes also on euerye

And then the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde stered them vp a sauer, and saued them: one Othoniel the sonne of Kenes, and Calebs yonger brother. And the spirryte of the Lorde came vpon hym/ and he iudged Israell, and wente oute to warre. And the Lorde ꝑ solde Chusan Rasathaim kynge of Syrye in to his hand. So that his hande was myghtye ouer Chusan Rasathaim, and the lande hadde reste fourtye yeres. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenes dyed. And then the chyldren of Israel wente to agayne, and commytted wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde. And then the Lorde hardened Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, agaynste the chyldren of Israel, bycause they hadde commytted wickednesse before the Lorde. And this Eglon gathered vnto him the children of Ammon and the Amalekites, and went and smote the chyldren of Israel, and conquered the cytye of palme trees. And the chyldren of Israel serued Eglon the king of the Moabites. xviij. yeres. And then they cryed vnto the Lorde/ and the Lorde stered them vp a sauer, Ahud the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Jemini, a man that coulde doo nothynge handsomlye with his syght hande.

ii. Para. xv. c.

ꝑ That is delyuered.

Deuter. xxx. c

By whome the chyldren of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Ahud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte lengthe, and he dyd gyrde it vnder his cote vpon his ryght thygye and caryed the present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Eglon was a verye fatte man. And when he hadde presented the presente, he sente the people that bare it awaye, but he him selfe tourned agayne frome the ydolles by Galgall, and sayde: I haue a secrete vnto the, o kynge: and the kynge commaunded him to holde his peace, vntyll all that stode aboute hym, were gone oute frome hym.

And Ahud came in vnto him in to a sommer chamber, where he sate alone, and sayde: I haue a message vnto the frome God. And he arose out of his seate/ and Ahud put forth his lefte hande, and toke the dagger frome his ryghte thyghe, and thrust it so harde in to his belye, so that the hafte went in after the blade. And the hafte stopped in the fat, for he drewe not the dagger out of his bely, but as he stroke him, so lefte he the dagger in the wounde tyll that by the priuye partes of nature the dyrte came out. And Ahud gat him out at a posterne wore, and shut the dores of the parlour vpon him, and locked them. The kynges seruauntes came and loked, and se the wores of the parlour were locked, they sayde: A, he is a doyng of his easement in his sommer chamber. And when they had taried tyl they were ashamed, for no man dyd the wores of the parlour open, then they toke a keye and opened them. And beholde, their Lord was fallen downe dead vn to the erth. But Ahud escaped whyle they taryed, and was gone beyone the quarryes, and escaped into Seirath.

Iud. x. g

And when he was come, he blewe a trompet in mounte Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israel went down with him, & he before them, and sayd vnto them: folo w me/ for the Lorde hathe delyuered your enemyes the Moabites in to youre handes. And they descended after hym, and stopped the ferryes of Jordan frome the Moabites, and suffered not a man to passe ouer. And they slewe of the Moabites ꝑ same tyme vpon a ten thousande men, all fat, and men of myghte: that there escaped not a man, and so the Moabites were subdued that daye vnder the handes of Israel/ and the lande had reste foure score yeres.

And after him came Samgar the sonne of Anath, whiche slewe of the Philistines sixe hundred men with an oxe gode, and delyuered Israel also.

¶ Israel is commyted in to the handes of Jabin, because they were returned to Idolatrye. Debora and Barak delyuer them: Sisara is kylled of Jael.

CAPI. IIII.

AND the chyldren of Israel began again to do wickedly in the syght of the Lord when Ahud was deed. And the Lorde ꝑ solde them in to the handes of Jabin kynge of Canaan, that raygned in Hazor/ whose Capitayne of warre was Sisara, whiche dwelte in Haroseth of the Gentyles. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde/ for he had nyne hundred charettes of yron/ he oppressed the chyldren of Israell with power twentye yeres.

And Debora a Prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israel the same tyme, and dwelte vnder the palme tree of Debora, bytwene Ramath and Bethel, in mounte Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Israel came to her for iudgement. And she sent and called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, out of Kedes Nephthalim and sayd vnto him.

The Lorde God of Israel commaundeth the that thou goo and leade an hoost vnto mounte Thabor, and take with the ten thousande men, of the chyldren of Nephthalim, and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyl bring vnto the at the ryuer of Kison, Sisara the Capitayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his charettes and his people, and wyll delyuer them in to thyne handes. And Barak sayd vnto her, yf thou wylt go with me, I wyll go: but and yf thou wylt not go with me, then I wyll not go. And she answered/ I wyll surely goo with the, but then the prayse shall not be thyne in ꝑ waye which thou goest, for the Lorde shal delyuer Sisara in to the handes of a woman. And she arose and went with Barak to Kedes/ and Barak called Zabulon and Nephthalim, wēt vp with ten thousande men: & Debora wente with him.

But Haber the Kenyte went oute of kynde frome the other Kenites his brethren, the chyldren of ꝑ Hobab who was father to Moses wyfe, and pitched his tent vntyl he was come to the oke of Zaanaim, by Kedes.

And then it was shewed vnto Sisara how that

that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mounte Thabor. And Sisara called for all his charettes, euen. ix. hundred charettes of yron, and all for the people that he had frome Haroseth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer of Kison. Then said Debora vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in whiche the Lorde hath delyuered Sisara in to thyne handes/for the Lord is gone oute before the. And so Barak went downe frome mounte Thabor, and ten thousande men after him.

But the Lorde trounsed Sisara and all his charettes, and all his hoste with the edge of the swerde before Barak. And Sisara lyghted downe of his charet, and fledde a fote. But Barak folowed after the charettes, and after the hoste, euen vnto Haroseth of the Gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man lefte. How be it Sisara fledde a fote to the tent of Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite/ for there was peax betwene Jabin the kynge of Hazor, and the housholde of Haber the Kenyte.

And Jael wente oute agaynste Sisara and sayde vnto hym: tourne in my Lorde, tourne in to me, and feare not. And he turned in to her in to her tent: & she couered him with a mantel. And he sayd vnto her: gyue me a lytel water to drynke, for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottell of mylke, and gaue him drynke and couered him. And he sayd vnto her, stande in ꝑ wore of thy tent, and yf any mā come and aske the, or enquyre of the whether there be anye man here, saye naye.

Then Jael Habers wyfe toke a nayle of the tent, and an hammer in her hande, & went softlye vnto him, and smote the nayle with the hammer thorowe the temples of his heed in to the grounde, and as he slombered beyng wery, he dyed.

And beholde as Barak folowed after Sisara, Jael came oute agaynste him, and sayde vnto him: Come, and I wyll shewe the the man whome thou sekest. And when he came in to her tent: Beholde Sisara laye deed, and the nayle thorowe his temples. And so God brought Jaben the kynge of Canaan in to subiection that daye before the chyldren of Israel. And the hande of the chyldren of Israel prospered, and was sore vpon Jaben the kynge of Canaan, vntyll they hadde brought him to nought.

CAPI. V.

THen Debora & Barak ꝑ sonne of Abinoam, sang the same daye saying: Bicause he hathe auenged the vengeaunce wone to Israel, the people offering them selues wyllyngly: prayse ye the Lorde. Heare kynges, & harken Lordes, I am she, I am she that wyll synge, and gyue prayse vnto the Lorde God of Israel.

Lorde, when thou departedst out of Seir, & camest thorow the countreys of Edom, ꝑ erth trembled, and the earthe rayned, and the cloudes dropped water: the mountaynes melted before the Lorde, euen mounte Sinai before the Lorde God of Israel. Deuter.xxxiii.b Psalm.xcviii.a

In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anath, and in the dayes of Jael, the hye wayes were vnoccupied, and they that walked by pathes, wēt by wayes that fet compasses about. The champions of Israel were discouraged & kaynt herted, vntyll I Debora arose, vntyll I arose a mother in Israel. Judi.iii.d Jud.iiii.c

God chose new factions of warre, for when they had warre at theyr gates/ there was not sene amonge fourtye thousande, eyther shelde or spere in Israel. Myne hert loueth the maintayners of the lawe in Israel, ye that willingly haue put youre selues in aduenture, blesse ye the Lorde, ye that ryde on goodly asses, and dwell besyde Middin. And ye ꝑ walke by the wayes, make ditties. Where as the charettes were broken a peces, where the hoste of oure aduersaries was choked, there shall they tell of the iustice of the Lorde, & how gracious was the stronge God of Israel: then the people of the Lorde went downe vnto the gates, & wan the maistrye. B

Up vp Debora, vp vp and synge a songe, vp Barak and take thy prayse, thou sonne of Abinoam. Then they that had escaped, vnder Israel raigned ouer the proudest of the people. The Lorde fought amonges the stronge.

Ephraim was the fyrst that destroyed Amalek. And after hym Ben Jamin, amonge the people. D

Of Machir came lerned men in the lawe, and of Zabulon that well coulde conueye an hoste to warre. Judi.iii.b

The Lordes of Issakar were with Debora. And as Barak, euen so was Issakar sente in to the valeye a fote, and put his life in auenture. But in the diuisions of Ruben were great imaginations of herte. E

Wherfore abodest thou amonge the shepe folde, to heare the bleatynges of the flockes. In the diuysyons of Ruben greate were the ymaginations of herte. Galaad abode on the other syde Jordā, and taryed Dan in shyppes. And Aser sate in the hauens of the see, and abode styll in his owne coostes. But Zabulon is a people that put theyr lyues in ieopardye of deathe, and Nephthalim in lyke maner, euen vnto the toppe of the feldes, kynges came and foughte. Then foughte the kynge of Canaan at Thanach, vpon the water of Magedo. But the syluer that they coueted, they caryed not awaye.

Frome heuen came batayle: for the sterres beyng in theyr course, fought agaynst Sisara. The ryuer of Kison caught them awaye: that auncient riuer, the riuer Kison.

My soule, treade thou the myghtye vnder fote. Then theyr horses slombled as they fledde, that theyr mighty coursers lefte prauncynge.

Curse ye Meroz, bad ꝑ aungell of the Lorde curse, curse ꝑ inhabitours therof, bicause they came not forthe to helpe the Lorde, to helpe the Lorde amonge the myghty. F

nyte, aboue other women: aboue other wome blessed be she in the tente.

Judi.iiii.c He asked water, but she gaue him mylke, and broughte butter in a goodly dyshe. She caught a nayle in her lefte hande, and a worckynge hammer in her ryghte, and nayled Sisara and wounded his heed, and persed and went thorowe his temples. Betwene her fete he bowed him selfe, fell downe and laye styll: Betwene her fete he spranled and laye deed lyke a wretche.

Thorow a wyndow loked Sisaras mother and houled out of her chambre, why abideth his charet so longe that it commeth not, why tary the wheles of his waggans? The wysest of his wiues answered her: yea, and she answered her owne wordes her selfe, haplye they haue founde, and diuyde the spoyle. A mayde, ye two maydes for a pece / a spoyle of dyuers colours for Sisara, a spoyle of dyuers colours with broudered workes, dyuers coloured, broudered workes for the necke for a prape. So perysshe all thyne ennempes Lorde / but they that loue the, let them be as the sonne ryse in his myght.

And the lande had rest fourtye yeres.

¶ Israel is oppressed of the Madianites, because he returned agayne into Idolatrye. Gedeon is sent of God to be theyr delyuerer. The aulter of Baal is ouerthrowen.

CAPI. VI.

A Nd the chyldren of Israel committed wyckednes in the syghte of the Lorde. And the Lorde delyuered theym in to the handes of the Madianites seuen yeres. And when the hande of the Madianites was sore vpon Israel, the chyldren of Israel made them dennes in the mountaynes, and caues, and stronge holdes. For when Israell hadde sowen, the came the Madianites, the Amalekites, and they of the Easte countreye vpon them, and pitched their tentes agaynste them, and destroyed the encrease of the erth euen vn to Azah, and left no sustinaunce in Israel, neither shepe, ore, or asse / for they came with their cattell and housholdes, euen as grashoppers in multitude / so that bothe they and also their camels were without nombre, and wasted all that euer they layde handes on. And they entred the lande to destroy it. And so was Israel excedyngly impouerisshed by the Madianites, and cryed vnto the Lorde. And when the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde bycause of the Madianites, the Lorde sent a prophet vnto them, and sayd vnto them. Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, I fet you from Egypte and brought you out of the house of bondage, and I ryd you out of ꝑ hand of the Egyptiās, and out of the handes of al that oppressed you, and cast them out before you, & gaue you theyr landes. And I sayd vnto you, I am the Lorde your God, and therfore feare not the Goddes of the Amorites in whose land you dwel. But you wolde not obeye my voyce. And the aungell of the Lorde came and sate vnder an oke in Ephrah that pertayned vnto Joas the father of the Eserites. And his sonne Gedeon prelled out whete oute of the eares in a prelle, for to flee from the Madianites. And the aungell of the Lorde appeared vnto him, and sayd: the Lorde is with the, thou man of myght. And Gedeon answered him: Oh my Lorde, if the Lorde be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs: ye and where be his myracles which our fathers tolde vs of, and sayde: the Lorde brought vs out of Egypt. But now the Lord hathe forsaken vs, and delyuered vs in to the handes of the Madianites. And the Lorde loked vpon hym, and sayd: Go hence in this thy myght, and delyuer Israel out of the handes of the Madianites: Behold, I haue sent the. And he answered him. Oh Lorde, wherwith shalde I saue Israel? Beholde my kynred is the poorest in Manalles, and I am the least in my fathers house. But then the Lorde sayde vnto hym: I wyl be with the / and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he answered him, yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, then shewe me a sygne, that thou art the Lorde that talketh with me. Departe not hence, vntyll I come agayne vn to the, and bryngе myne offerynge, and haue set it before the.

And he sayd, I wyll tarye vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon wente and made redye a kydde, and swete cakes of an Epha of floure, & put the flesshe in a basket, and the brothe in a pot, and brought it out vnto him vnder ꝑ oke and presented it. And the aungell of God said vnto him: take the flesh and the swete cakes and put them vpon this rocke, and poure out the brothe. And he dyd so. Then the aungel of the Lorde put forth the ende of the staffe that was in his hande, and touched the flesshe and the cakes. And there arose vp fyre oute of the rocke and consumed the flesshe and the cakes, and the aungell of the Lorde vanysshed oute of his syght. And whē Gedeon perceyued that it was an aungell, he sayd: alas my Lorde almighty, that I haue sene an aungell of the Lorde face to face. And the Lorde sayde vnto him, peax be with the, and feare not / for thou shalte not dye. Then Gedeon made an aulter there vnto the Lorde, and called it ꝑ Jehouah Salom, which vnto this day is yet in Ephrah that pertayneth vnto the father of the Eserites. And the same nyght the Lord sayd vnto him, take an ore of thy fathers, and an other of seuen yeres olde, and destroye the aulter of Baal that belongeth vnto thy father, and cut downe the groue that is aboute it, and make an aulter vnto the Lorde thy God vpon the top of this rocke and furnisshe it. And take the seconde ore and offre burnte sacrifyce with the wodde of the groue whiche thou shalte haue cut downe. Then Gedeon toke ten men of his seruauntes, & dyd as the Lorde bad him. But bycause he durste not do it by daye, for feare of his fathers housholde, and of the men of the citye, he dyd it by nyghte.

iiii.Re.xvii.g. Jere.x.a

When the men of the citye were vp erly in the mornynge: Beholde, the aulter of Baal was broken, and the groue that stode about it cut it cut downe. And the seconde oxe offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they sayd one to an other: Who hathe done this thing, and they enquyred and asked for him that shoulde haue wone ꝑ dede. It was tolde them that Gedeon the sonne of Joas hadde doone it. Then the men of the citye sayde vnto Joas, bringe oute thy sonne that he maye dye, bycause he hath broken the aulter of Baal, and cut down the groue that was aboute it. And Joas sayde vnto all ꝑ stode by him/will ye fight for Baal, or wil ye be his defenders? he that stryueth for him, shall dye afore to morowe. Yf he be a God let him reuenge his quarel vpon him that cast downe his aulter. And he called Gedeon Jerobaal the same time saying: let Baal reacquyte him, bicause he hath broken downe his aulter.

G When all the Madianites, the Amalekites and they of the East were gathered togyther, and had gone and pitched in the valeye of Jezrael, the spirite of the Lorde entred in to Gedeon. And he blewe a trompet and called togyther the house of ✠Abiezer to folowe him, and sent messengers thorow out al Manasses, and called them vp to folow him also. And he sent other messengers vnto Aser, Zabulon & Nephthalim, whiche came also to mete him.

And Gedeon sayd vnto God: yf thou wilt saue Jsrael by my hande, as thou haste sayde. Beholde, I wyll put a flece of wolle in the threshynge place. And yf the dewe be on the flece onely, and drye vpon all the earth beside: then I shal be sure that thou wylt saue Jsrael by my hande, as thou saydest. And it came so to passe. And he rose vp erly on the morowe, and he prested the flece togither, & wrong the dewe therout, and filled a dysche full of water. And Gedeon sayd vnto God, be not angry with me that I ✠speake ones more, let me proue onely ones agayne with the flece. Let it be drye onely vpon the flece, and dew vpon al the ground aboute. And God dyd so that same nyghte: so that it was drye vpon the flece onely, and on all the grounde aboute, dewe.

CAPI. VII.

THen Jerobaal, otherwise called Gedeon rose erlye, and all the people that were with him & pitched beside the wel of Harad, so that the hoste of the Madianites were in a valey on the north syde of the hyll Hamoreh. And the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon, the people that are with the, are to manye for me to giue the Madianites in to their handes, leest Jsrael make their baunt to my dishonour, and say/our owne hande hath saued vs. Now ther fore make a proclamation in the eares of the people, and saye: ✠ yf anye man drede or be afrede, let him returne, and get him sone frome mounte Galaad/ and there departed and returned of the people .xxij. thousande, and there abode ten thousande.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon the people are yet to many, bringe them downe vnto the water, and I wyll trye them vnto the there. And of whome I saye vnto the, this shall goo with the, the same shall goo with the. And who so euer I saye vnto the, this shal not go with the/ the same shall not goo. And when he hadde broughte downe the people vnto the water. The Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: as manye as lappe the water with theyr tonges, as dogges do, them put by them selues/ and so do them that knele downe vpon theyr knees to drynke. And the nombre of them that put their handes to their mouthes and lapped, were thre hundred men/ and all the remnaunt of the people kneled downe vpon their knees to drynke water. And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon, with the thre hundred men that lapped water wyl I saue you, and delyuer the Madianites in to thyne hande/ and all the other people shall goo euery man to his owne home.

And they toke vitayles with them for the folke, and theyr trompettes/ and he sente all the reste of Jsrael, euery man vnto his tente, and kept the thre hundred with him/ and the hoste of Madian was benethe him in a valey. And the same nyght the Lorde sayd vnto him vp, and goo downe vnto the hoste, for I haue delyuered it in to thyne hande. But & yf thou feare to go downe alone, then go thou downe vnto the hoste, and Pharah thy lad, and herke what they saye, and so shall thyne handes be stronge, and then thou shalte safely go downe vnto the hoste.

Then he went downe with Pharah his lad euen hard vnto the watche mē of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalekites, and all they of the Easte, laye alonge in the valeye lyke vnto grashoppers in multitude, and theyr camels were withoute nombre, euen as the sande by the see syde. And when Gedeon was come. Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, and sayd on this maner. Beholde I dreamed a dreame, and me thoughte that an harthbakte lofe of barleye breed tombled in to the host of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and smote it that it fel, and ouerturned it, that the tent lay alonge. And his felowe answered and sayde, this is nothing els saue the swerde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Jsrael, in to whose hande the Lorde hathe delyuered Madian and all the hoste.

When Gedeon herde the tellynge of the dreame, and the meanynge therof, he bowed him selfe to the erthe, and returned vnto the hoste of Jsrael, and sayde: vp, for ꝑ Lorde hathe delyuered in to youre handes the hoste of the Madianites. And he diuyded the thre hundred men in to thre companyes, and gaue euerye man a trompet in his hande, with an emptye pytcher, and lampes therin, and sayde vnto theym: loke on me, and doo lykewyse/ and beholde, when I come to the syde of the hoste/ euen as I doo, so do you. And when I blowe with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes also on euerye lyde the hoste and saye: here be the Lorde and Gedeon.

And so Gedeon and the thre hundred men that were with him, came vnto the lyde of the hoste in the begynnyng of the myddell watche and rayled vp the watche men. And they blew with their trompettes, and brake the pitchers
F that were in theyr handes. And all thre companyes blewe with trompettes and brake the pytchers, and helde the lampes in theyr lefte handes, and the trompettes in theyr ryght, to blowe with all. And they cryed, the swerde of the Lorde and of Gedeon. And they stode styll euerye man in his place rounde aboute the hoste / and all the hoste ranne and cryed and fledde.

And as the thre hundred blewe with tromvi.Para.xx.d. the hoste, so that euerye one slewe other. And the hoste fled, vntyll they came to Bethsitah, to Zereath, and to the edge of Abelmeholah G beside Tabath. And the men of Israel gathered togyther of the tribe of Nephthalim, of Aser, and of all Manasses, and folowed after the Madianites. For Gedeon had sent messengers thorowe out all mount Ephraim, saying: come downe against the Madianites, and take from them the waters bothe of Bethbaroth and also of Jordan.

Then all the men of Ephraim gathered togyther, and came downe and toke the waters bothe of Bethbarath, and also of Jordan. And they toke two capitaynes of the Madianites, Horeb, and Zeb, and slewe Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and Zeb at the presse Zeb, and folowed after Madian / and brought the heedes of Oreb and Zeb to Gedeon on the other syde Jordan.

¶ Ephraim maketh insurrection agaynst Gedeon, but is sone pacifyed. The inhabiters of Socoth refuse to gyue Gedeon and his armye breed. The towre Phanuel is destroyed. Gedeon is constitute rular ouer the Israelites. He hathe thre score and t en sonnes. He dyeth.

CAPI. VIII.

A AND the men of Ephraim said vnto him. Why hast thou serued vs thus, þ thou calledst vs not when thou wentest to fyghte with the Madianites / and they chode with him a good, and were welnygh at daggers drawyng. And he said vnto them: What dede haue I doone lyke vnto you: are not the clusters of Ephraim better then the wyne harueste of Abiezer? God hathe delyuered in to your handes the Lordes of Madian, Oreb, & Zeb. And what was I able to doo lyke as Judi.vii.f you haue doone? And then their spirites were pacified, and they well content with him, whē he hadde said that. And then Gedeon came to Jordan and passed ouer bothe he and the thre hundred men that were with hym very faynt and yet folowed the chase.

And he sayd vnto the men of Socoth: giue
B I praye you cakes of breede vnto the people that folow me: for they be faynty, that I may folowe after Zebah and Zalmona kynges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth sayd, are the hādes of Zebah and Zalmona now in thyne handes that we shulde gyue breed vnto thy companye? And Gedeon sayde, therfore when the Lorde hath delyuered Zebah and Zalmona in to myne hande, I wyll teare the fleshe of you with the thornes of the wyldernesse and with brieres. And he went thence to Phanuel, and spake vnto them lykewise. And the men of Phanuel answered, as dyd þ men of Socoth. And he sayde also vnto the men of C Phanuel, when I come agayne in peace I will breake down this towre. Zebah and Zalmona were in Arkar, and theyr hoostes with them, vpon a fyftene thousande, whiche were all that were lefte of all the hoostes of them of the East. And they that were slayne, were a hūdred and twentye thousande men that drewe swerde.

And Gedeon went thorow them that dwel in tabernacles on the East side of Nobah and Jebahah, and smote the hoste: for the host dyd cast no perpls. Zebah and Zalmona fled. But he folowed after them, and toke the two kinges of the Madianites, Zebah and Zalmona, and discomforted all the hoste.

And Gedeon the sonne of Joas retourned frome batayle, the sonne beynge yet vp, and caught a lad of the men of Socoth, and enquyred of him the names of the chiefe lordes and elders of Socoth. And he wrote the lordes and elders of Socoth, thre score and seuētene men. Then he came vnto the men of So-
D coth and sayde: Beholde Zebah and Zalmona, with whiche he caste me in the tethe, saynge: are the handes of Zebah, and Zalmona alredye in thyne hande, that we shoulde gyue breed vnto thy fayntye men. And he toke the elders of the cytye, and thornes of the wyldernesse and brpers, and all to rate theym therwith. And he brake downe the towre of Phanuel, and slewe the men of the cytye.

And then sayd vnto Zebah and Zalmona, iii.R
what maner men were they which ye slewe at Thabor? & they answered: they were moche lyke the in fauoure / and one of them eyen as he were a kynges sonne. And he sayde: They
E were my brethren, euen my mothers chyldren, and as truly as the Lorde lyueth, yf ye had saued their lyues, I wolde not slee you. And he sayd vnto Jether his eldest sonne, vp and slee them, but the ladde drewe not his swerde / for he feared, bycause he was yet ponge. Then Zebah and Zalmona sayd. Ryse thou, and fall vpon vs, for as the man is, so is his strengthe. and Gedeon arose and slewe them: & he toke awaye the trapperry and chaynes that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel sayde vnto Gedeon. Raynge ouer vs, bothe thou, thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne / for thou hast delyuered vs oute of the handes of the Madianites. And Gedeon sayde vnto theym / I wyll not raygne ouer you, neyther shall my chyldren raygne ouer you, but the Lorde shall raigne ouer you.

Neuerthelater Gedeon sayde vnto them / I wolde desire a certayne requeste of you, euen that you wolde gyue me euery mā the earrynges of his prayе. For they had golden earringes, because they were Ismaelites. And they sayde we will do it. And they spred a mantell and dyd cast there into euery man the earrynges of his prayе. And the weyght of the golden earrynges was a thousand and seuen hundred sycles of golde, besydes brouches, ouches and garmentes of scarlet that were of ỹ kynges of Madian, and besyde the chaynes, that were about their camels neckes. And Gedeon made an Ephod therof, and put it in his cytie Ephrah. And all Israel went a horynge after him there, which thinge was the ruyne of Gedeons house. Thus were the Madianites brought lowe before the children of Israell, so that they lyft vp their heddes no more. And the contreye was in quyetnesse fourty yeres in the dayes of Gedeon.

And Jerobaal the sonne of Joas went and dwelte in his owne house. And Gedeon had. lxx. sonnes of his body begotten, for he had many wyues. And his concubyne that dwelt in Sichē bare him a sonne also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, when he was of a good age, & was buryed in the burial of Joas his father, euen in Ephrah that pertayned vnto the father of the Ezrites.

But as sone as Gedeon was deed, ỹ children of Israell turned awaye and went a horynge after Baal, and made Baal a promyse that he shulde be their God, and thought not on the Lorde their God which had delyuered them out of the handes of all their enempes on euery syde. Neyther shewed they mercy on the house of Jerobaal, otherwyse called Gedeon, accordinge to all the goodnesse whiche he shewed them.

CAPI. IX.

FOr Abimelech the sonne of Jerobaal wēt to Sichem, vnto his mothers brethren, & comuned with them and with al the hole kynred both of his fathers syde and mothers also, sayenge: saye I prayе you, in the eares of all the enhabitoures of Sichem: whether is better for you that all the sonnes of Jerobaal whiche are. lxx. personnes raygne ouer you, eyther that one raygne ouer you. And remember therto, that I am your bones & your flesshe And his mothers brethren rehersed of him in the audience of all the Cytezens of Sichem, all these wordes, and moued their hertes to folowe Abimelech, in that they sayde how he was their brother. And they gaue him lxx. peces of syluer out of the temple of Baal Berith, wherwith Abimelech hyred Jehel & lyght personnes whiche went with him. And they went vnto his fathers house at Ephrah and slewe all his brethren, the sonnes of Jerobaal, euen. lxx. personnes vpon one stone.

Notwithstandinge yet Joatham the yongest sonne of Jerobaal escaped, for he hyd hym selfe. And all the cytezēs of Sichem gathered togither with all the house of Mello, & went and made Abimelech kynge * at a certen oke that was by Sichem. * Some in the playne.

And when it was tolde Joatham, he went and stode in the toppe of moūt Garizim, and lyfte vp his voyce and called, and sayde vnto them: Herken vnto me you cytezens of Sichem, that God maye herken vnto you. The trees went to annoynt a kynge ouer them, & sayde vnto the olyue tree, rayne ouer vs. But the olyue tree sayde vnto theym: shoulde I leaue my fatnesse whiche both God and man prayseth in me, and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayde the trees to the fygge tree, come thou and be kynge ouer vs. And the fygge tree answered them, shoulde I forsake my swetnes and my good frute, & shulde go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayd the trees vnto the vyne, come thou & be kyng ouer vs. And the vyne aunswered, shoulde I leaue my wyne that cheereth both God & man and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayde all the trees vnto the * thorne bushe: come thou and raygne ouer vs. And the thorn bushe sayde vnto the trees: yf it be true that ye will annoynt me kynge ouer you, thē come and rest vnder my shawwe, and yf ye wyl not ye shall se that a fyre shall come oute of the thorne bushe and waste the Cyper trees of Libanon. * In som places it is called Gozle.

And euen so now, yf ye haue wone truly and vncorruptlye to make Abimelech kynge. And yf ye haue dealt well with Jerobaal and his house, and haue wone vnto him accordinge to the deserupnge of his handes, for as moche as my father fought for you, and aduentured his lyfe, And ryd you out of the handes of the Madianites. And ye are rysen vp against my fathers house this daye. And haue slayne his children, euen. lxx. personnes * with one stone and haue made Abimelech the sonne of his mayde seruaunt kynge ouer the cytezēs of Sichem, because he is youre brother, yf then ye haue dealt dewe and truely with Jerobaal & with his house this daye: then reioyse ye in Abimelech, and let him also reioyse in you. But yf you haue not dealt truly, then I prayе God a fyre maye come out of Abimelech and consume the lordes of Sichem and the house of Mello. And that there come a fyre oute of the cytezens of Sichem, and out of the house of Mello and consume Abimelech. And Joatham when he had sayde thus, ran away and fled and wente to Beer and dwelte there, for feare of Abimelech his brother. When Abimelech had raygned thre yere, God sent a spytefull malyce betwene Abimelech and the cytezens of Sichem. And the cytezens of Sichē began to defye Abimelech, and wysshed that the wyckednes wone to the. lxx. sonnes of Jerobaal myghte come on him, and layde the bloude of them vnto Abimelech their brother which slewe theym, and vnto the other cytezens of Sichem whiche ayded him in the kyllynge of his brethren. them set men to laye awayte for him in the toppe of the mountaynes and whiles they awayted his commynge they robbed all that came a longe the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimelech.

D And Gaal the sonne of Obed and his brethren went and gat them to Sichem. And the men of Sichem put theyr confidence in him. And they went oute in to the feldes and gathered in theyr grapes and troade them, and made merye: and went in to the house of their God, and dyd eat and drynke and cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Obed sayd: what is Abimelech? and what is Sichem? ꝙ we shulde serue him, is he not the sonne of Jerobaal? and Zebul is his officer? serue suche as come of Hemor the father of Sichem, for what reason is it that we shulde serue hym? wolde God this people were vnder my hãde then I wolde put downe Abimelech. And one sayde vnto Abimelech, make thyne hoste greater and goo out. And when Zebul the ruler of the cytie herde the wordes of Gaal the son of Obed, he was wroth and sent messengers vnto Abimelech priuelye, sayenge: Beholde Gaal the sonne of Obed and his brethren be come to Sichem: and beholde they set the cytie against the. Now therfore aryse by nyght both thou and all the people that is with the and lye in wayte in the feldes. And ryse early in the mornynge as sone as the sonne is vp, & come vpon the cytie. And when he and the people that is with him come forth against the, do to him what thyne handes shalbe able. And

E Abimelech rose vp, and all the people with him, by nyght. And they layde awayte to the cytie in foure companyes. And Gaal the son of Obed went out and stode in the enterye of the gate of the cytie. And Abimelech rose vp, and the folke that were with him, frome lyenge awayte. Now when Gaal sawe the people, he sayde to Zebul: Beholde, there come people downe frome the toppe of the mountaynes. And Zebul sayde vnto him: the shawe of the hylles seme men vnto the, and so thou arte deceyued. And Gaal answered agayn and sayd: Se, there come folcke downe by the myddle of the lande and an other companye come a longe by the Witchoke. Then sayde Zebul vnto him: Where is nowe thy mouthe that sayde, what felow is Abimelech that we shulde serue him? These are the people that thou so despysedest. Go out now and fight with theym. And Gaal went forthe before the eytezẽs of Sichem, and fought with Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him so that he fled before him, and many were ouerthrowen and slayne, euen vntyll they came vnto the enterynge of the gate. And then Abimelech wente and dwelte at Arumah. And then Zebul thrust out Gaal and his brethren, and wolde not suffer them to dwell in Sichem.

F And on the morowe the people went forth in to the felde. And it was tolde Abimelech. And he toke his people & diuyded them into three companies, and laye awayte in the feldes. And when he sawe that the people were come out of the cytie, he ran vpon theym and layde vpon them.

And Abimelech & the companyes that were with him, ran and stode in the entringe of the gate of the cytie. And the twoo other companyes ran vpon all the people that were in the feldes and slue theym. And then Abimelech fought against the cytie all that daye, & toke it, and slewe the people that was therin, and destroyed the cytie & sowed salt in the place. And when all the men of the towre of Sichē herde that, they entered in to a stronge holde of the house of their God Baal Berith, when they made a conuenaunt to him and the place had Berythes name and was strongly fensed.

And when it was tolde Abimelech, that all the men of the towre of Sichem, were gathered togither, he gat him to mount Zelmon, bothe he and all that were with him, & toke axes with him and cut downe an arme of a tree, and toke it vp, & put it on his shoulder, and sayde vnto the folcke that were with him, what so euer ye se me do: spede your selues and do lykewyse. And all the people cut G downe also euery man a bough, and folowed Abimelech, and put them into the holde, and set the holde a fyre vpon them: so that all the men of the towre of Sichem were slayne, about a thousand personnes what of men and wemen.

Then went Abimelech to Thebez and besieged it, and toke it. But there was a strong towre in the myddes of the cytie, and thither ran all the men and wemen, and all the eytezens of the cytie, and shut it to them, and got them vpon the toppe of the towre, and stode vpon the battelmentes. Then came Abimelech vnto the towre and fought against it, & went harde vnto the enteringe of the gate, to set it on fire. But a woman cast a pece of a mill stone vpõ his heed and al to brake his brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto the younge man that bare his harneys, and sayd vnto him: drawe thy swerde and slee me, that men saye not of me, a woman slewe him. And his lad thrust him thorow and he dyed.

And when the men of Israel sawe that Abimelech was deed, they departed, euery man vnto his owne house. And thus all the wyckednesse of Abimelech which he dyd vnto his father, in sleynge his. lxx. brethren, & thereto all the wyckednes of the men of Sichem, god dyd brynge vpon their heddes: And vpon them came the curse of Joathan the sonne of Jerobaal.

¶ Thola and Jair Judges of Israel. Israel sinneth and after cryeth on God for remission.

CAPI. X.

A Fter Abimelech, arose to defende Israel one Thola, the sonne of Phuah, the sonne of Dodo, a man of Issakar, whiche dwelt in Samir, in mount Ephraim, who iudged Israel. xxiij. yere, and then dyed and was buryed in Samir. And after him arose Jair a Galaadite, who iudged Israell. xxij. yere pere. And he had thirtye sonnes that ✶ rode on thirtye Asse colttes, and hadde thirty cities for thē, which are called the townes of Jair vnto this daye, and are in the lande of Galaad. And Jair dyed, & was buryed in Kamon.

✶ And the childzen of Israel wrought wickednesse yet agayne, in the syght of the Lorde and serued Baalim and Astaroth, and the goddes of Syria, and the goddes of Sidon, the goddes of Moab, the goddes of the childzen of Ammō, and the goddes of the Philistines, & forsoke the Lord and serued him not, wherfore the Lorde was wroth with Israel, and gaue them vp into the handes of the Philistines, and in to the handes of the childzen of Ammon: whiche pylled and oppressed ꝑ childzen of Israell in those dayes. xviij. yere, all that were on thother syde Jordan in the land of the Amorites in Galaad. Moreouer ꝑ childzen of Ammon went ouer Jordan to fyghte against Juda, Ben Jamin, and the house of Ephraim: so that Israel was sore encombred. Then the childzen of Israell, cryed vnto the Lorde, sayenge: We haue synned against the: for we haue forsaken our owne God, & haue serued Baalim. And the Lorde sayde vnto the childzen of Israel: dyd not the Egyptiās, the Amorites, the childzen of Ammon, the Philistines, the Sidonites, the Amalekites, and the Maonites, oppresse you? And ye cryed to me, and I delyuered you forth of their handes. And this notwithstandinge ye haue forsaken me, and serue straunge goddes, wherfore I will helpe you no more. But go and crye vnto the goddes which ye haue chosen, and let them helpe you in the tyme of your affliction. But the childzen of Israel sayde vnto ꝑ Lord we haue synned: do thou vnto vs whatsoeuer please the, and delyuer vs onely at this tyme. And they put awaye the straunge goddes frō them, and serued the Lorde. And he was sorowfull for the myserye of Israel.

Then the childzen of Ammon assembled & pytched in Galaad. And the childzen of Israel gathered them togither and pytched in Maspha. And the company of the Lordes of Galaad sayde one to an other, who so euer will begynne the battel against the childzen of Ammon, shalbe heed ouer all the inhabitauntes of Galaad.

¶ Iephthah the sonne of a harlot delyuereth Israel frome the Ammonites after they asked forgyuenes, of the vowe of Iephthah.

CAPI. XI.

A ✶ And there was one Iephthah a Galaadite, a stronge man, who was the son of an harlot: How be it Galaad begat Iephthah. But Galaades wyfe bare him sonnes, which whē they were come to age, thrust out Iephthah, & sayde vnto him: Thou shalt not enheret in our fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a straunge woman. Then Iephthah fled frome his brethren and dwelt in the lande of Tob. And ydle people and robbars assembled them selues to Iephthah, and wēt out with him. But it chaunced in processe of tyme, that the childrē of Ammon made warre against Israel, then the elders of Galaad wēt and set Iephthah out of the lande of Tob, & sayde vnto him: come and be our capitayne, & let vs fight with the childzen of Ammon. And Iephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad. Dyd not ye hate me, and chased me oute of my fathers house? howe happeneth it then that you come vnto me now in tyme of youre tribulacion? And the elders of Galaad answered Iephthah. Therfore we turne agayne to the now, that thou go with vs, and fighte against the childzen of Ammon, and be our hed ouer all the enhabitauntes of Galaad. And Iephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad: Yf ye bryng me home agayne, to fight with the childzen of Ammon, then yf the Lord delyuer them before me, I shalbe your heed. And the elders of Galaad sayde to Iephthah, the Lorde that heareth these wordes be wytnesse betwene vs, yf we do not accordynge to thy wordes. Then Iephthah went with the elders of Galaad. And the people made him heed and ruler ouer them. And Iephthah rehersed all his wordes before the Lorde, in Maspha.

Then Iephthah sent messengers vnto the kynge of the childzen of Ammon, sayenge: What ayleth the with me, that thou comest vpon me to fight against my lande? And the kynge of the childzen of Ammon answered the messengers of Iephthah, because Israell toke awaye my lande, when they came forthe of Egypte: euen frome Arnon vnto Jabok, & frome thence vnto Jordan: Now therfore restore these landes agayne by faire meanes. And Iephthah sent messengers agayne vnto the childzen of Ammon, and sayde vnto hym: thus sayth Iephthah. Israel toke not awaye the lande of Moab, nor the lande of the childzen of Ammon. But when Israel came forth of Egypte, they walked thorow the wyldernesse, euen vnto the red see, and came to Cades, and sent messengers vnto the kynge of Edom, sayenge: let vs (we praye the) go thorow thy lande. But the kynge of Edom wold not assent therto. And in lyke maner they sent vnto the kynge of Moab, but he wolde not consent. And so Israell abode styll in Cades. And then they went a longe thorow the wyldernesse, and compased the lande of Edom, & the lande of Moab, and came a longe by the East syde of the lande of Moab, and pytched their tentes on thother syde the ryuer of Arnon, and came not within the coostes of the Moabites: for Arnon was their furthest border. And then Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and kyng of Helbon, and sayd vnto him: Let vs haue passage thorow thy lande vnto our countreye. But Sehon trusted not Israel, to go thorowe his coostes: but gathered all his people togither & pytched in Jazah, and fought with Israel. But the Lorde God of Israel delyuered Sehon and all his folke into the handes of Israel. And so Israel smote theym, and conquered all the lande of the Amorites, the inhabitauntauntes of the lande contrey. And they conquered all the costes of the Amorites, frome Arnō vnto Jabok, & frō the wyldernes vnto Jordā. So now forasmoche as the Lorde God of Israel hath caste out the Amorites before his people, shuldest thou enioye the lande? Naye, but what people Camos thy God dryuety out, that lande possesse thou. But whatsoeuer nations the Lorde oure God chaseth oute, ỹ lande oughte we to enioye. And therto, arte thou better then Balack the sonne of Zephor kynge of Moab? or canst thou shewe vs, that he dyd stryue with Israel, or fyghte agaynste them? all the whyle Israel dwelt in Hesbon and her townes, and in Aroer and her townes and in all the cityes that be a longe by the costes of Arnon three hundred yeres? why dydest thou not recouer them in al that space? wherfore I haue not offended against the, but thou west me wronge, to warre vpon me. The Lorde therfore be iudge this daye, betwene the childzen of Israell, and the childzen of Ammon. Neuertheles the kynge of ỹ childzen of Ammon harkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah which he sent him.

Then the spirite of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer Galaad & Manasses, and came to Maspha, that lyeth in Galaad, and frome thence vnto the childzen of Ammon. And Jephthah vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Yf thou shalt delyuer the childzen of Ammon into my handes, then that thinge that commeth out of the wores of my house against me, whē I come home in peace, frome the childzen of Ammon, shalbe the Lordes, and I wyll offer it vp for a burnt offeringe. And so Jephthah went vnto the childzen of Ammon to fight with theym. And the Lorde delyuered them into his handes. And he smoote theym frome Aroer vnto Menith, twenty cyties. And so forthe to the playne of the vyneyardes, and made an exceadinge great slaughter. And thus the childzen of Ammon were brought vnder, before the childzen of Israell.

Then Jephthah came to Maspha vnto his house. And beholde his doughter came out against him, with tymberelles and daunses, whiche was his onely childe: so that beside her, he had neyther sonne nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his clothes & sayd: Alas my doughter, thou hast made me stoupe and art one of them that vexe me: for I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lorde, and cā not go backe. And she sayde vnto him: my father, yf thou haue opened thy mouth vnto ỹ Lord, then do with me accordynge to that proceded out of thy mouth, for as moche as the Lorde hath aduenged the of thyne ennemyes ỹ childzen of Ammon. And she sayde vnto her father, do this moche for me: let me alone for the space of two monethes, that I maye goo downe to the mountaynes, and bewayle my virginite with my felowes. And he sayd: go, and so she sent her awaye for two monethes. And she went with her companyons and lamented her maydenhed vpō the mountaynes. And after the twoo monethes, she turned agayne vnto her father, which dyd vnto her according to his vow which he had vowed, & so she knewe no man. And it became a custome in Israel yere by yere, that the doughters of Israell shoulde goo, and lamente the doughter of Jephthah, the Galaadyte, foure dayes in a yere.

AND the men of Ephraim made an insurrection, and went Northwarde, & sayd vnto Jephthah: Wherfore wentest thou to fight with the childzen of Ammon, & dyddest not call vs to goo with the? we wyll therfore burne thyn house vpon the, with fire. And Jephthah sayde vnto theym: I and my people were at great stryfe with the childzen of Ammon. And I called you to haue ayded me, but ye wolde not come. And when I saw that ye delyuered me not, I put my lyfe in my handes, and wente vpon the childzen of Ammon. And the Lorde delyuered them into my handes. Wherfore then are ye come vpon me to fyght with me?

And Jephthah gathered togither all ỹ men of Galaad, and fought with the Ephraites. And the men of Galaad smote the Ephraites because they sayde: Ye Galaadites are but runagates of Ephraim amonges the Ephraites and the Manassites. Forcouē the men of Galaad toke the passages of Jordan where the Ephraites shulde come homewarde. And when those Ephraites that were escaped, sayd let vs go ouer: then the men of Galaad sayd vnto them: Ye are Ephraites, and they sayd, naye. Then the other aunswered: Then saye Sciboleth. And they sayde Siboleth, & could not so pronounce, wherevpon the other toke them and slewe them at the passages of Jordan. And there were ouerthrowen at that tyme of the Ephraites. xlij. thousande. And when Jephthah had iudged Israell sixe yere, he dyed, and was buryed in one of the cyties of Galaad After this man, iuged Israell one Abezan of Bethlehem, who had thirty sonnes and thirty doughters, and sent also his thirty doughters out to mariage, and toke thirty other in, for his sonnes. And when Abezā had iudged Israell. vi. yeres he dyed, & was buryed at Bethlehem.

And after him, Elon a Zabulonite iudged Israell ten yeres, and he dyed and was buryed in Ialon, in the countreye of Zabulon.

And after him, Abdon the sonne of Hellel, a Pharathonite iudged Israell. And he hadde fourtye sonnes, and thirty neuewes, that rode on threscore and ten asse coltes. And whē Abdon the sonne of Hellel the Pharathonite hadde iudged Israel eyght yere, he dyed, and was buryed in Pharthon, the lande of Ephraim, in the mount of the Amalekites.

AND the chyldren of Israel beganne agayne to do wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde. And the Lorde delyuered theym in to the handes of the Philistines. xl. yere. And there was a man in Zaraah of the kynrede of the Dannites, named Manoah, whose wife was barre and bare not. And the Angell of the Lorde appeared vnto his wyfe, and sayde vnto her: Beholde, thou art barren and bearest not: But thou shalt conceyue and beare a sonne. And now beware, and drynke no wyne, ne stronge drynke, neyther eate any vncleane thinge: for lo, thou shalt conceyue, and beare a sonne. And there maye no ✝ rasor ouer theres come on his heed: For the childe shal be a ✠ Nazare vnto God, euen from the tyme of his byrth. And he shall begyn to delyuer Israel out of the handes of the Philistines. The the wyfe went and tolde her husbande, saying A man of God came vnto me, and the facyon of him was lyke the facyon of an aungell of God excedynge fearefull. Then Manoah made intercession to the Lorde, and sayde: I praye the (my Lorde) let the man of God which thou sendest come ones more vnto vs, and teache vs what we shall do vnto the childe, whe he is borne. And God herde the voyce of Manoah, and the aungell of God came agayne vnto the wyfe as she sat in the feldes: But Manoah her husband was not with her. Then the wyfe made haste, and ran and shewed her husband and sayd to him: Beholde, the man hathe appeared vnto me, that came the other daye vnto me.

Then Manoah arose, and wente after his wyfe and came to the man and sayd vnto him Art thou the man that spakest vnto my wyfe? And he sayde, yea. Then Manoah sayd, now when thy worde is come to passe: what shall be the maner of the childe, and what shall he do? And the aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto Manoah: thy wyfe must abstayne from al that I sayde vnto her: she maye eate of nothinge that cometh of the vyne tree, ne drinke wyne or stronge drynke, nor eate any vnclene thinge: but must obserue all that I bad her. Then sayde Manoah vnto the aungel of the Lorde: Graunt vs to tary tyll we haue made redy a kyd, and haue set it before the. And the Aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto Manoah: thoughe thou make me abyde I will not eate of thy meat. And moreouer yf thou wilt prepare a burntoffringe, that thou must offer vnto the Lorde. For Manoah wist not that it was an aungell of the Lorde. And Manoah sayde vnto the aungell of the Lorde: What is thy name, that when thy sayenge is come to passe, we maye do the some worshyp? And Manoah toke a kydde with a meatoffringe, and offred it vpon a rocke vnto the Lorde which worketh wōders, Manoah & his wyfe loked vpon. And when the flame came vp out of the aultare, the angell of the Lord ascended vp in the flame of the aultare. And Manoah and his wyfe loked theron, and fell flat on their faces vnto the grounde: But the aungell of the Lord dyd no more appeare vnto Manoah and his wyfe. And then Manoah knewe that it was aungell of the Lorde: and sayde vnto his wyfe: We shal surely dye because we haue sene God. But his wyfe said vnto him: Yf the Lorde wolde kyll vs, he wolde not haue receyued a burntoffringe and a meatoffringe of our handes, neyther wolde he haue shewed vs al these thinges, nor wold haue tolde vs as he hath of thinges to come. CAPI. XIIII.

SAmson went downe to Thamnath, and sawe a woman in Thānath of the doughters of the Philistines, and came & tolde his father and mother, and sayd: I haue sene a woman in Thamnath of the doughters of the Philistines. And now gyue her me to wyfe Then his father and mother sayde vnto him, is there neuer a woman of the doughters of thy brethren, amonge all my people: but that thou must go and fet a wyfe of the vncircumcysed Philistines? And Samson sayde vnto his father, gyue me this woman, for she pleaseth me well. Now his father & mother wist not that it was the Lordes worckynge, & that he sought an occasion vpon the Philistines, which at that tyme raygned ouer Israel. The wente Samson, and his father and mother, downe to Thamnath. So when they came to the vyneyardes of Thamnath: Beholde, a younge Lyon rored vpon him. And the spyryte of the Lord came vpon Samson. And he tare him, as a man wolde rent a kyd, and yet had nothinge in his hande. Neuertheles he told not his father and mother what he had done, but went downe and talked with the woma whiche semed beautyful in the syght of Samson. Deuter. vii. a

And within short space after, as he repayred thyther agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned out of the waye, to se the carkalle of the Lyon. And beholde, there was a swarme of bees in the carkalle of the Lyon, and hony: & he

he toke of the honye in his handes, and went eatynge, and came to his father and mother & gaue them of the same. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honye forth of the carkalle of the Lyon. And c when his father was come vnto the woman: Samson made there a feast, for so vsed the young men to do. And when her frendes saw him, they broughte thirtye companyons to beare him companye. And Samson sayde vnto them: I wyl put forth a ryddle vnto you. And yf ye can declare it within seuen dayes of the feaste and fynde it oute, I wyll gyue you thyrtye shertes and thirtye chaunge of garmentes. But yf ye cannot declare it me, then shall ye gyue me thyrty shertes and thirtye chaunge of garmentes. And they answered him, put forth thy ryddle and let vs heare it. And he sayde vnto them. Oute of the eater ☞ came meate: and out of the strong came swetnesse. And they couldе not in thre dayes expounde the ryddle. So when the seuenth day
D was come, they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe. Flatter thyne husbande, that he maye declare vs thy ryddle, or elles we wyll burne the and thy fathers house with fyre, haue ye called vs to make vs beggers? Then Samsons wyfe wept vnto him and sayd, it cānot be but that thou hatest me and louest me not, sythe thou hast purposed a ryddle vnto the children of my folke and wylt not tell me what it meaneth. And he sayde: Beholde, I haue Iud.xiiii.b not tolde it my father ne yet my mother, and shulde I tell it the? And she wepte vnto him seuen dayes, whyle the feaste lasted. So the seuenth daye he tolde her, because she laye so sore vpon him. And she agayn tolde it to the children of her folke. And then the men of the Solucion. citye sayde vnto him the seuenth daye before the sonne went downe. What is sweter then hony, and what is stronger then a Lyon? the sayde he vnto them: Yf ye had not plowed wt my heffer, ye had not founde out my ryddle. Then the spryte of the Lorde came vpon him. And he went wnne to Askalon, and slew.xxx men of them, and dispoyled them, and gaue their garmentes vnto them which expounded the ryddle. And he was wrothe, and wente vp to his fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was gyuen in mariage to one of his companyons that accompanyed him.

¶ Samson tyeth fyrebrandes to fox tayles, and letteth them runne into the corne. with the Jawebone of an Asse he killeth a thousande. Oute of a greate tothe in the Jawe, God gyueth him water.

CAPI. XV.

A But it chaunced within a whyle after, in the tyme of whete heruest, that Samson visited his wyfe with a kydde. And whē he thought to haue gone in vnto his wyfe into the chamber, her father wolde not suffre him to go in: But sayde: I thought thou had dest hated her, and therfore gaue I her to one of thy companyons. Now be it, her younger sister is fayrer then she. Take her in stede of the other. Then sayde Samson vnto them: Now I am blameles concernynge the Philistines, though I wo them displeasures. And Samson went forth and caught thre hundred Foxes, and toke fyrebrandes, & fastened tayle to tayle, and put a fyre brande in the myddes betwene two tayles. And he set the fire brandes on fyre, and put them into the corne of the Philistines, & burnt vp bothe the reped corne and also the standinge, with vynes and olyues. Then the Philistines asked, who hadde wne that dede. And it was tolde them that Samson the sonne in lawe of the Thamnite, because he had bereued him of his wyfe & gyuen her to one of his companyons. And the Philistines came and burnt bothe her and her father with fyre.

And Samson sayde vnto them: shoulde ye so? I will surely be auenged of you, & then I will cease. And he smote them legge & thygh with a myghty plage. And then he went and dwelt in the toppe of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vp and pitched against Juda and laye in Lehi. And the men of Juda sayde. Why are ye come against vs? And they answered to bynde Samson are we come, euen to wo vnto him, as he hathe wne to vs. Then thre thousande men of Juda went vp to the toppe of the rocke Etam, and sayde to Samson: wottest thou not, that the Philistines are rulers ouer vs? Wherfore thē hast thou handled vs thus? And he answered thē, as they serued me, so haue I serued them.

Then sayde they vnto him, we are come to bynde the, and to delyuer the into the handes of the Philistines. And Samson sayde vnto them: swere vnto me, that ye shall not hurte me your selues. And they sayde, we will not hurte the, saue onely bynde the, and delyuer the vnto their handes: But we will not kyll the. And so they bounde him with two newe cordes and brought him downe from the rocke. And whē he cam to Lehi, the Philistins showted against him. And the spryte of the Lorde came vpon him, and the cordes that were vpō his armes, became as flaxe that was burnt wt fire, and the bandes lowsed from his handes And he founde a Jaw bone of a rotten asse, & put forth his hande and caught it, and slew a thousande men therwith. And Samson sayd: with the Jawe of an asse, haue I put them backe: with the Jaw of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And when he had left preakynge, he cast awaye the Jaw out of his hād and called the place Ramath Lehi. But he was sore a thirste, and called on the Lorde, & sayde. Thou Lorde hast gyuen this great victory, thorow the hande of thy seruaunt. And now I must dye for thirst, and fall into the handes of the vncircumcysed. But God brake a great tothe that was in the Jawe, and there came water forth of it. And when he had dronken, his spryte came agayne, and he was refreshed, wherfore the name thereof was called, * the well of the caller on, whyche is in Lehi, vnto this daye. And he iudged Israell in the dayes of the Philistines twenty yeres.

¶ Sam-

¶ Samson lyfteth vp the gates of Gaza and careyeth them vp in to the mountayne. He was deceyued by Dalilah and made blynde. He pulleth downe the house vpon the Philistines and dyeth with them.

CAPI. XVI.

THen went Samson to Gaza, and sawe there an harlot & lay wyth her. And it was tolde the Gazites, that Samson was come thither. And they went about, and layd awayt for him all nyght in the gate of the cytye, and were still abydynge for him all the nyght sayinge: tarye tyll the morynge that it be daye, and then let vs kyll hym as he cōmeth forth of the cytye. And Samson toke his rest tyll midnight, and arose at mydnight and toke the dores of the gate of the cytye, and the two syde postes, and rent theym of, barres and all, and put them vpon his shoulders, and caryed them vp to the toppe of an hyll that lyeth before Hebron.

And after that, he loued a woman, vpon ✠ ryuer of Sorek, called Dalilah, vnto whom came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayde vnto her. Flatter him and se wherin his great strength lyeth, and by what meanes we may haue power ouer him, that we may bynde him and dynge hym vnder, and eche of vs shall gyue the .xi. hundred syluerlinges.

And Dalilah sayde to Samson. Oh, tel me where thy great strength lyeth, and what it is wherwith men myght bynde the and beate the. And Samson sayde vnto her. Yf men bounde me, with seuen grene withythes, that were neuer dryed, I shulde be weake, and as an other man. And the the Lordes of the Philistines brought her seuē withythes that were yet grene and neuer dryed, and she bound him with theym. Notwithstandinge she had men lyenge in wayte with her in the chambre. And she sayde vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he brake the cordes as a threde of towe breaketh, when it feleth fyre. And so it was not knowen wherin his strēgth laye.

Then sayde Dalilah to Samson: Se, thou hast mocked me and tolde me lyes. Now yet tell me I praye the, wherwith thou myghtest be bounde. And he sayde: Yf I were bounde with newe ropes, that neuer were occupyed, then shulde I be weake, and as an other mā. And Dalilah toke newe ropes and bounde him therwith, and sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyers awayte in the chaumber, and he brake them from of his armes, as they hadde bene but a threde. And Dalilah sayde vnto Samson, hytherto thou hast mocked me and tolde me lyes: I praye the yet tell me wherewith men maye bynde the. And he sayde vnto her. Yf thou bynde seuen lockes of my heed with an heaere lace and fasten them with a nayle, I shall be weake. And Dalila dyd so, and sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. But he awaked out of his slepe, & plucked and went away with the nayle that was in the plattynge, and with the heaere lace. Then she sayde vnto him: Howe canste thou saye thou louest me, when thyne herte is not with me: for thou hast mocked me this three tymes, and haste not tolde wherein thy chiefe strength lyeth. And as she lay vpon him with her wordes continually vexinge of him, his soule was encombred euen vnto the deathe. And he tolde her all his herte, and sayde vnto her: there neuer came raser nor sheres vpon myne heed, for I haue bene a Nazare te God euen frome my mothers wombe. Yf myne heaere were cut of, my strength wolde go frō me, and I shuld become, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalilah sawe he had vttered vnto her all his hert, she sent for the Philistines, sayenge: come vp yet this ones, for he hath shewed me all his hert. Numeri vi.a. Judi.xiii.a

Then the lordes of the Philistines came & brought the moneye in their handes. And she made him slepe vpon her lappe, & sente for a barbar, & cut of the seuen lockes of his heed and began to vexe him, and to thrust him frō her, for by and by his strength was gone from him. And she sayde, the Philistines vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, and thought to go out as at other tymes before & shake him selfe, and wiste not that the Lorde was departed frome him. Then the Philistines toke him and put out his eyen, & brought him downe to Gaza, and bounde him with fetters. And he was made to grynde in the prison house, all be it the heaere of his hed began to growe agayne after that he was shorne. The the lordes of the Philistines gathered theym togither, to offer a solemne offringe vnto Dagon their God, and to reioyse: for they sayde our God hath betaken Samson our ennemy into our handes. And when the people sawe him, they magnified their God: for they sayd, our god hath gyuen into our handes our ennemy, which destroyed our countrey and slew many of vs. And when their hertes were mery, they sayde: sende for Samson and let him playe before vs. So they set Samson oute of the prysonhouse, who played before theym, & they set him betwene the pyllers. And Samson sayde vnto the ladde that led him by the hande: set me that I may touche the pyllers that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leane to the. And the house was ful furnished with men and women. And there were all the lordes of the Philistines, and vpon the rouffe there were about thre thousand men and wemen, that beheelde how Samson played. Samson is taken.

Then Samson called vnto the Lorde, and sayde my Lorde almyghty thinke on me, and restore me myne olde strength, at this tyme O God, that I maye be auenged of the Philistines for my two eyen. And Samson caught the two myddell pyllers on whiche the house stode, the one in his ryghte hande, and the other in his lefte, and sayde: my lyfe perisshe with the Philistines, and bowed them with myght. And ✠ house fell vpon ✠ lordes, & vpō all the people ✠ were therein. And so the deed which he slew at his deth, were mo then they which he slew in his life. And then his brethre & all ✠ house of his father came downe, & toke him vp, & brought, and buryed him, betwene Zarah and Eſthaol, in the buryenge place of Manoah his father. And he iudged Iſraell twenty yeres.

¶ Of Michas whoſe mother made him an Idoll of ſyluer. Of the younge preeſt of the lynage of Leui of Bethlehem.

CAPI. XVII.

A THere was a man in mounte Ephraim, named Michas, whiche ſayde vnto his mother: the .xi. hundred ſyluerlynges that were taken from the, about which thou curſedſt in myne eares: Beholde the ſyluer is with me, for I toke it awaye. Then ſayd his mother, bleſſed be thou my ſon in the Lorde. And ſo he reſtored .xi. hundred ſyluerlynges to his mother agayne. And his mother ſayde: I vowed the ſyluer vnto the Lorde that my ſonne ſhulde take it, of myne hande: to make a grauen Image and an Image of metall. Nowe therfore I render it the agayne. And he reſtored the moneye agayne vnto his mother.

B Then his mother toke two hundred ſyluerlynges and put them to a goldſmith, to make therof a grauen ymage and a molten ymage, which remayned in the houſe of Michas, who alſo made a chapell of gods, and made an Ephod and ymages, and filled the hand of one of his ſonnes which became his preeſt. For in thoſe dayes there was no kynge in Iſraell, but euery man dyd as he thought beſt.

Iudi.xviii.a and.xxi.d

And there was alſo an other a younge man of Bethlehem Juda, amonges the kynredes of Juda: and he was a Leuite and ſoiourned there. And the ponge man departed out of the cytie of Bethlehem Juda, to go dwell where myght be moſt commodyous for him. And he came to mount Ephraim, and to the houſe of Michas as he iourneyed. And Michas ſayde vnto him, Whence comeſt thou? and the Leuite anſwered him: I am of Bethlehē Juda and go to dwell where I maye fynde a mooſte mete place. And Michas ſayde vnto him: dwell with me, and be vnto me a father and a preeſt. And I wyll gyue the ten ſiluerlynges by yere and double apparell and meat and drinke.

So the Leuite went and dwelled with the man, and was vnto him as dere as one of his owne ſonnes. And Michas fylled the hande of the Leuite, and the younge man became his preeſte, and contynued in his houſe, and ſayde now I am ſure that the Lorde wyll be good vnto me, ſythens I haue a Leuite to my preeſt.

¶ The childzen of Dan take the goddes & the preeſt of Michas awaye. They deſtroye Lais, and buylde it agayne, and name it Dan.

CAPI. XVIII.

A IN thoſe dayes there was no kynge in Iſraell. And in thoſe dayes the tribe of Dan ſought them an enheritaunce to dwell in, for tyll that tyme there fell none enheritaūce vnto them amonges the tribe of Iſraell. And the childzen of Dan ſent forthe of their kynredes fyue men of actiuite, out of their coaſtes euen out of Zarah and Eſthaol, to bewe the lande and ſearche it out, and ſayde vnto the: go and ſearche out the lande. And they came to moūt Ephraim, vnto the houſe of Michas and lodged there. And when they were come vnto his houſe, they knewe the voyce of the younge man the Leuite, whoſe lodgyng they vſed, and ſayde vnto him: Who brought the hyther? what makeſt thou in this place? why arte thou come hyther? And he ſayd vnto the, thus and thus dealeth Michas with me, and hath hyred me to be his preeſt. And they ſayd vnto him: Aſke of God we praye the, that we maye knowe whether the waye we goo, ſhalbe proſperous, & whether the thinge ſhall take effecte. And the preeſt ſayde vnto them: go in peax, the Lorde regardeth your waye & the iourney whiche ye go.

Then the fyue men departed and came to Lais, and ſawe the people there dwellynge careleſſe, and after the maner of the Sidons, ſtille, and without caſtinge of parelles, & that no man made any trouble in the lande or diſtroyed any dominion, and howe they were farre from the Sidons and had no medlynge with any nacion. And they came vnto their brethre to Zarah, and Eſthaol. And their brethren ſayde vnto them: what tydinges bring you?

And they ſayde, aryſe and let vs goo vnto them, * for we haue ſene the lande, and it is verye good. Haſten you therfore, and be not ſlouthfull to departe, and to come & conquere the lande: ye ſhall come vnto a people that miſſeth no parels, and vnto a large countrey: for God hath gyuē into your hādes a place where in is no lacke of any thinge in the worlde.

Then departed thence of the kynred of the Danites, out of Zarah and Eſthaol. vi. hundred men appointed vñ habilimētes of warre. And they went and pytched in Kariath Jarim in Juda. Wherfore the place is called Mahanay Dan vnto this daye, which is on ẏ backſyde of Kariath Jarim. So they wente thence vnto mounte Ephraim, and came to Michas houſe. Then anſwered the fyue men that went to eſpye out the countrey of Lais, and ſayde vnto their brethren: wot ye not that there is in theſe houſes an Ephod and Images, and a grauen Image, and a molten Image? Now therfore conſydre, what ye haue to do.

And they turned thytherward and came to the houſe of the young man the Leuite in the houſe of Michas, and ſalued him peaſably. And the. vi. hundred men wel kenſed with weapons of warre which were of the childzen of Dan, ſtode in the enteringe of the gate. And the fyue men that went to eſpye out the land went in thyther and toke the kerued Image, & the Ephod, and the molten Image. And the preeſt ſtode in the enterynge of the gate with the ſixe hundred men, that were armed vnto battayle, whyle the other went to Michas houſe, and fet the kerued Image, the Ephod the kerued Image, and the Image of metall. Then ſayde the preeſt vnto them: what doo ye? and they aunſwered him, kepe ſylence, & * put thyne hande vpon thy mouthe, and come come with vs, and be vnto vs a father and a preast, whether is it better for the to be a preest vnto the house of one man, or to be preast vnto a tribe or kynred in Israell? And the preest was glad and toke the Ephod and the Images, and the grauen Image, and wente with the people And they turned and departed, & put the childzen, the cattell and their costlye thinges before them.

When they were a good waye frome the house of Michas, the men that were in the houses that were by Michas house, made an outcrye, and pursued after the childzen of Dā and called vnto theym. And they turned their faces, and sayde vnto Michas, what ayleth the, that thou makeste this outcrye? And he sayde, ye haue taken awaye my goddes which I made and also the preast, and go your wayes with theym: And what haue I more, howe then saye ye vnto me, what ayleth the? And the childzen of Dan sayde vnto him, let not thy voyce be herde amonges vs, lest angry fellowes run vpon the, and thou lose thy lyfe, with the lyues of all thyne houshoide also. And so the childzen of Dan wēt their wayes. And when Michas sawe they were to strong for him, he returned vnto his house agayne. And they toke the thinges which Michas had made, and the preast which he had, and went vnto Lais, euen vnto a people that were at rest and without mystrust, and smote them w the edge of the swerde, & burnt the cytie with fyre. And there was no man to helpe, because it was farre frome Sidon, and they had none affaires with any other nacyon. And the cytie stode in the valleye that lyeth by Bethzehob. And they buylt the cytie and dwelt therin. And called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father which was sonne vnto Israell. Howe be it in dede the name of the cytie was Lais at the begynninge.

And the childzen of Dan set theym vp the grauen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses and his sonnes were the prestes vnto the trybe of the Danites, tyll they were caried awaye out of the lande pyslonners. And they set theym vp the kerued Image whiche Michas made, all the whyle that the house of God was in Silob. In those dayes was no kynge in Israell.

¶ Of the Leuite whose wyfe was vyllanously kylled in Gabaah. She is diuyded in to.xij. partes and of her sent to euery trybe of Israel a pece.

CAPI. XIX.

AND a certen Leuyte dwellynge on the syde of mount Ephraim, toke to wyfe a concubyne out of Bethlehem Juda: which concubine played the hore in his house and went awaye frome him, vnto her fathers house to Bethlehem Juda, and there continued foure moncthes. And her husband arose and went after her, to speke frendly vnto her and to bringe her home agayne, and his ladde with him & a couple of Asses. And she brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosell sawe him, he reioyced of his comminge. And the Leuite abode with his father in lawe thre dayes and so they ate and dranke and lodged there.

The fourth daye the younge man arose early in the morning, and wolde haue departed. But the damoselles father sayd vnto his son in lawe, comforte thyne herte with a morsell of breed, and then goo youre waye. And they sate downe and dyd eate and drinke bothe of them togyther. Then sayde the damoselles father vnto the man, goo to, I praye the and tary all nyght and let thyne hert be mery. Howe be it the man stode vp to departe: but his father in lawe compelled him to turne agayne and to tarye all nyght there. And he arose vp early the fyfth daye to departe. Then sayde the damselles father, comforte thyne herte: and so made him tarye tyll after mydday: & they dyd eate both of theym togither.

And then the mā arose to departe with his wyfe and his ladde. But his father in lawe the damoselles father sayde vnto him, behold the daye goeth fast awaye and draweth towarde nyghte, tary all nyghte: at least tarye this daye here, and let thyne hert be mery. And to morowe get you early on your waye and get þ to thy tent. Neuertheles the man wolde not tary, but arose and departed, and came as ferre as Jebus, which is Jerusalem and his two asses laden, and his concubyne, and his lad with him. And when they were fast by Jebus, the daye was sore spent and þ younge man sayde vnto his master, come I praye the and let vs turne into this cytie of þ Jebusytes and lodge all nyght there. But his master sayde vnto him, we will not turne into a straunge cytie that are not of the childzen of Israell: we wyll go forth to Gabaah, and we shall come to one place or other, and shall lodge all nyghte in Gabaah or in Ramah. And they went forth on their iourney, and the Sonne wente downe vpon theym when they were fast by Gabaah which is in Ben Jamin. So they turned thitherward to go and lodge all nyght in Gabaah. And when they came in they sat them downe in a strete of the cytie, for no man wolde take theym in, to lodge. But beholde, there came an olde man frome his worke, out of the feldes at euen whiche was also of mount Ephraim, and but a straunger in Gabaah, for the men of the place, were of the childzen of Jemini. And when he had lift vp his eyen, and sawe a wayefaringe man in the stretes of the cytie, he sayd: whether goest thou? And whence commeste thou? And the other answered him, we come frome Bethlehem Juda towarde the syde of mount Ephraim: frome thence am I, and went to Bethell Juda, and go now to the house of God. But there is no man that receyueth me to house: & yet I haue strawe and prouender for our asses and bred and wyne for me and thy handmayd and thy lad that are with thy seruaunte, and lacke nothinge but lodgynge.

The olde man sayde, peax be with the, all that thou lackest shalte thou fynde with me:

F only remayne not in ꝑ ſtreates all nyght, and he brought him into his houſe, and gaue fodder vnto his aſſes, And they waſched theyr fete, and dyd eate and drynke. And as they were makynge good chere, the men of the cytye whiche were wycked, ſet the houſe rounde aboute, and thruſt at the dore, and ſpake to the good man of the houſe, ſayinge: bryngе forthe the man that came in to thyne houſe, that we maye playe buggery with him.

But the man of the houſe went out to the, and ſayde vnto them: Oh, naye my brethren Gene.xix.b
do not ſo wyckedly, ſythens this man is come into myne houſe: do not this abhominacion. Beholde, my doughter a mayden and this mās concubyne, them I wyll bringe out vnto you, and throw them downe, and take your pleaſure of them, but vnto this man, do not this folye againſt nature, I beſeche you. But the men wolde not herken to him. Neuertheleſſe the man toke his concubyne and brought her forth vnto them, and they had to do with her and entreated her ſhamefully, all the nyght euen vnto the morninge. And when the daye began to ſpringe, they let her go.

G And then came the woman in the dawninge of the daye, and fell downe at the dore of the mans houſe, where her Lorde was. And her Lorde arose vp in the morninge and opened the dores of the houſe, and came forthe to go his waye. And beholde, his concubyne laye a longe before the dore of the houſe, & her hand vpon the threſſholde. And he ſayde vnto her: aryſe and let vs be goynge. But ſhe anſwered not. Then he toke her vp vpon an Aſſe & rode vp, and gat him vnto his owne home. And when he was come vnto his houſe, he toke a threſſinge knyfe, and caught his concubine & dyuided her thorowe the bones into twelue peces, and ſent her into all quarters of Iſrael. And all that ſawe it ſayd: there was no ſuche dede done or ſene ſythens the childzen of Iſrael came out of Egypte vnto this daye, conſider the matter, gyue counſell and ſaye youre aduyſes.

CAPI. XX.

A Then all the chyldzen of Iſraell wente out, and there gathered a company to-gyther, as it hadde ben but one man, e-uen frome Dan to Berſeba, and oute of the lande of Galaad, vnto the lande of Marphah / and there rode folke oute of all quarters of all the tribes of Iſrael in the aſſem-ble of the people of God, four hundred thou-ſande foote men that drewe ſwerdes. And the chyldren of Beniamin herde that the chyl-dren of Iſrael were gone vp to Marphah. Then ſayd the chyldren of Iſrael, tell vs how this wickednelle happened. And the Leuyte the ſlayne womans huſbande anſwered and ſayd: I came in to Gabaah in Beniamin wt my concubyne to lodge all nyght. And the cy-tezens of Gabaah aroſe againſt me, and beſet the houſe rounde about me by nyght, & thought to haue ſlayne me: but they caught my concu-bine and forced her, that ſhe dyed. Wherfore I toke my concubyne and cut her in peces, and ſent her thorow out all the landes of the en-heritaunce of Iſrael. For they haue done ab-ominacion and folly in Iſrael. Beholde, ye are all childzen of Iſrael. Conſyder therfore, and gyue youre aduyſe in the cale. Then all the people aroſe, as it had bene one man, ſay-enge: there ſhall not one of vs go to his tent, ne turne in to his houſe. And now this is it B we wil do to Gabaah and caſt lottes againſt it. And we will take ten men of the hundred thorow out all the trybes of Iſraell, and an hundred of the thouſande, and a thouſande of the ten thouſande, to fet vitayle for the peo-ple, to make that they maye goo againſt Ga-baah Ben Jamin, accordinge to all the folye, that they haue wrought in Iſraell. And ſo all the men of Iſraell aſſembled vnto Gabaah, as it had bene but one man. And the trybes of Iſraell ſent men thorow al the tribe of Ben Jamin, ſayenge: What wyckednelle is this, that is happened amonges you? Now ther-fore delyuer vs the men, thoſe wycked wret-ches of Gabaah to thintent we maye ſley the and put awaye euell frome Iſraell.

Neuertheleſſe the childzen of Ben Jamin wolde not herken vnto the voyce of their bre-thren the childzen of Iſraell: but muſtered out of the cytes vnto Gabaah, to come oute in batayle againſt the childzen of Iſrael. And the childzen of Ben Jamin were recounted at that tyme, oute of the cytes. xxvi. thouſande men that drewe ſwerdes beſyde the inhabi-tauntes of Gabaah, which were nombred ſe-uen hundred pyked men. And amonges all theſe folkes were ſeuen hundred nymble han-ded men, which euery one could ſlynge ſtones at an heare breadth, and not myſſe. And the childzen of Iſraell beſyde the childzen of Ben C Jamin, were nombred at foure hundred thou-ſande men that drew ſwerdes, and all men of warre.

And the childzen of Iſraell aroſe and went vp to Bethell, and aſked of God, who ſhuld begyn the battell againſt the childzen of Ben Jamin, and the Lorde ſayd Juda ſhalbe your capitayne. And the childzen of Iſrael rode vp early and beſeged Gabaah. And the mē of Iſrael went out to battell againſt Ben Ja-min, and put theym ſelues in araye againſte them, to fight againſt Gabaah. And the chil-dren of Ben Jamin came out of Gabaah and deſtroyed in Iſrael that daye. xxij. thouſande men, and brought them to the grounde. And the folke of the childzen of Iſrael pluckt vp their hertes, and yet eftſones made battell in the ſame place where they dyd the firſt daye: but they went furſte vp and wepte before the Lorde vnto euen, and aſked of the Lorde, ſay- D enge: ſhall we go agayne to battell againſt ꝑ childzen of Ben Jamin our brethren? And the Lorde ſayde: go vp vnto them, when the chil-dren of Iſrael were come to the childzen of E Ben Jamin the ſeconde daye, the childzen of Beniamin went agaynſte theym out of Gabaah, the second day, and destroyed to the erth of the chyldren of Israel ones agayne, xbuj. thousande men that drewe swerdes euerye man of theym.

Then the chyldren of Israel and all the people went vp and came vnto goddes house and wept and sat there before the Lorde, and fasted the same daye vnto euen, and offered burnt offerynges and peax offerynges before the Lord. And they asked the Lord: for there was the arcke of the apoyntment of God, in those dayes. And Phinches the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron attendinge vpon it at that tyme: and they sayde, shall we go out any more to battel against the chyldren of Benjamin our brethren, or shall we cease? And the Lorde sayde go: for to morowe I wyll deliuer them into your handes. And Israell set a pryuy watche against Gabaah roundabout And the chyldren of Israell went against the chyldren of Benjamin the thirde tyme, and put them selues in araye agaynst Gabaah, as they hadde done twyse before. Then came the chyldren of Benjamin against the people of Israell, tyll they were drawen a great waye frome the cytie. And they began to smyte of the people and wounded theym (as they dyd twyse before, so that Israell fled by two bye wayes of which one goeth vp to Bethell and the other to Gabaah thorowe the feilde) and slewe vpon a thirtye men of Israell. For the childre of Benjamin thought that the other had bene beaten before theym, as at the firste tyme. But the chyldren of Israell sayde, let vs flee and plucke theym awaye frome the cytie, vnto the byghe wayes.

And then all the men of Israel rose vp out of theyr standynge, and put them selues in aray at Baal Thamar. And lykewise the lyers in awayte of Israel came forth oute of their places, out of the medowes of Gabaah, and came before Gabaah: ten thousande chosen men out of al Israel, & there was a strong bat tayle. But the other wyst not that euyll was so nygh theym. And the Lorde plaged Benjamin before Israel, so that the chyldren of Israel destroyed in Beniamin the same daye xxb. thousande and a hundred men, that drew swerdes euery one of theym. The chyldren of Beniamin when they did se that they shulde be beaten downe began to flee. And the men of Israel gaue rome to Benjamen, because they trusted vnto the layers in wayte whiche they had layd agaynst Gabaah. And the layers in wayte hasted and ran out of their holes vpon Gabaah, and went and smote al the cytye with the edge of the swerde. And they of Israel gaue the preuye watche theyr watchewerde that as sone as they hadde taken the cytye they shulde fyre it, that by the smoke they shulde shew that the cytye was wonne. And the men of Israel fled in the battayle. And Benjamin begā to smyte deed of the chyldren of Israell, aboute thirtye personnes, for they supposed that the other had ben put to flight before them. as in the first battell. The began to aryse out of ỹ cytie a pyller of smoke And the Benjamites lokyd backe: & beholde the wastynge of the hole citye began to ascende to heuen.

Then the men of Israel turned agayne, and the men of Benjamin were abasshed/ for they sawe that euyl approched them. And they fled before the men of Israel vnto the way that leadeth to the wylderne, the other folowing the at the harde heles. And beside that their partakers of their cities aboute them were slayne in the same place. And they compassed Benjami and chased them to Menuah/ and ouerranne them before Gabaah on the east side/ and there were slayne of Benjamin. xbiij. thousande, and all men of might. And they turned and fledde towardes the wylderneſſe, and vnto the rocke ỹ of pomegarnettes. And the other slewe by the waye of the reste of them, fyue thousande men/ and stycked vnto them vntyll they came to Gadaam, and slewe two thousande moo of them/ so that al that were slayne that same daye of Benjamin, were. xxb. thousande men that drewe swerdes/ and all men of myghte; onely fyre hundred men tourned and fledde to the wylderneſſe, vnto the rocke of pomegarnettes, and abode there foure monethes. And then the men of Israel tourned backe agayne vnto the chyldren of Benjamin/ and smote them with the edge of the swerde in the cities bothe man and beaste, and all that came to hande/ and moreouer sette all the cityes they coulde come by on fire.

¶ The tribe of Benjamin whiche was destroyed for theyr fornication with the Leuites wyfe: is restored agayne.

CAPI. XXI.

AND the men of Israell sware in Maspha, saying/ there shal none of vs giue his doughter vnto any of Benjamin to wyfe. And the people came to Bethel & abode there tyll euen before God/ and lyfte vp their voyces, and wepte lore, and sayd. O Lord God of Israel, why is this chaunced in Israel, that there shulde be this daye one tribe lackynge in Israell? And on the morowe the people arose erly, and made there an aulter, & offered burnt offerynges and peaxofferinges.

The prayers of the people.

And ỹ children of Israel asked who are they amonges al the tribes of Israel that came not with the congregacion vnto the Lord/ for they had made a great othe concernynge them that came not vp to the Lord to Maspha, saynge they shulde surely dye. And the chyldren of Israel had pitye on Benjamin their brethre, and sayd/ there is one tribe cut of from Israel this day: what shal we do vnto the rest of them, to get thē wiues, for as moch as we haue swore by the Lorde, that we wil not gyue them any of our doughters to wyues. Then they sayde/ what are they of the tribes of Israel that came not vp to Maspha to the Lord? And beholde there came none of thinhabitantes of Jabes Galaad vnto the cōgregacion. So when ỹ people were vewed/ beholde there were none of thinhabitantes of Jabes Galaad there. And the congregacion sent thyther. xij. thousande men of the strongest of them, and commaunded thē, sayenge: Go and smyte the enhabitauntes of Jabes Galaad, with the edge of the swerde as well women as chyldren, * And this is that ye shall do: vtterlye destroye all the males and al the women that haue lyen by men. And they founde amonge the inhabitantes of Jabes Galaad foure hundred damselles virgynes that hadde knowen no man by lyinge with any male. And they brought them vnto the host to Silob which is in the lande of Canaan. And the hole congregacion sent & spake with the chyldren of Ben Jamin that were in the rocke of Pomgarnettes, and called peasably vnto them, and Ben Jamin came agayne at that tyme, and they gaue them the wemen which they had saued a lyue of the wemen of Jabes Galaad. But they so sufficed them not. And the people had compassion on Ben Jamin because that God had made a gappe in the trybes of Jsraell. And then the elders of the congregacion sayde: What shall we do to the remnaunt of them, to get them wyues, seing all the wyues of Ben Jamin are destroyed? And they sayde there must be an enheritaunce for them that be escaped of Ben Jamin that a tryde be not destroyed oute of Jsraell: howbe it, we maye not gyue theym wyues of our doughters. For the chyldren of Jsraell hadde made an adiuracion, sayeng: cursed be he that gyueth a wyfe to Ben Jamin. Then they said Beholde, there is a feaste of the Lorde yerely in Silob which is on the northsyde of Bethel and on the eastsyde of the waye that goeth frome Bethel to Sichem, and south frome Libanon. And they commaunded the chyldre of Ben Jamin, sayenge: go and lye in awayt in the vyneyardes. And when ye se the doughters of Silob come forth to daunce in a rewe, then come ye out of the vyneyardes, & catche you euery man a wyfe of the doughters of Silob, and get you vnto the land of Ben Jamin. And yf their fathers or brethren come vnto vs to complayne, we will saye vnto them, haue pytie on theym, because we reserued not to eche man his wyfe in tyme of warre, & moreouer because ye gaue them none in due tyme, ye were to blame. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin dyd accordyngly: and toke them wyues after the nombre of the daunceers whiche they caught. And that done they went and returned vnto their enheritaunce, and buylte there cyties and dwelt in them.

And the chyldren of Jsraell went thence at that tyme euery one to his trybe, and to his kynred, and departed thence euery man to his enheritaunce. In those dayes there was no kynge in Jsraell: but euery man dyd what semed hym good.

THE BOOKE OF RVTH.

¶ Elimelec goth with his wyfe and chyldren in to the lande of Moab. After his death his wyfe Noemi returneth agayn in to her countrey, and with her Ruth her daughter in lawe.

CAPI. I.

A IN the tyme when the Iudges iudged, there felle a derth in the lande. Wherfore a certayne man of Bethlehem Iuda went to soiourne in the countreye of Moab with his wyfe and two sonnes. The name of the man was Elimelec, and his wyfe Noemi / and the names of his two sonnes were Mahalon and Chilion, and were Ephrates of Bethlehem Iuda. And when they came in to the lande of Moab, they abode there. And Elimelec Noemies husbande dyed, and she remayned with her two sonnes, whiche toke them wyues of the nacions of the Moabites: the ones name Orphah, and thothers Ruth. And when they had dwelled there aboute the space of ten yeres, Mahalon and Chilion dyed, so that the wyfe was bereued of her two sonnes, and of her husbande also. Then she stode vp with her B doughters in lawe, and returned frome the countrey of Moab / for she had herde saye, beyng in the countrey of Moab, how the Lorde had visited his people, and gyuen them fode. Wherfore she departed forthe of the place where she was and her two doughters togyther with her. And as they wente by the waye returnynge vnto the lande of Iuda, Noemi sayd vnto her two doughters in lawe: Goo and returne eyther of you vnto your mothers house, the Lorde deale as kyndlye with you, as ye haue dealte with the dead, and with me. And the Lorde graunte you maye fynde reste eyther of you in the house of youre husbande: and so she kyssed them.

Then they cryed and wepte, and sayd vnto her, we wyll go with the vnto thy folke. But Noemi sayd, turne agayne my doughters / for what cause wolde ye goo with me? thynke you there be any more chyldren in my bowels C to be your husbandes? Tourne agayne (my doughters) and go: for I am to olde to haue an husbande / also yf I toke a man this night: yea, thoughe I hadde alredye borne sonnes / wolde ye tarye for them, tyll they were of age? or wolde ye for them so longe refrayne frome takynge of husbandes? Not so, my doughters: for then ye shoulde be to olde to marye, and it greueth me moche for youre sakes, that the hande of the Lorde is gone oute agaynste me.

Therewith they cryed and wepte agayne / how be it, Orphah kyssed her mother in lawe and departed / but Ruth abode styll by her, then she sayde / se, thy syster in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people, and vnto her God: returne thou after her. But Ruth sayde: entreate me not to leaue the, and to returne frome the / for whyther thou goest, I wyll goo / and where thou dwellest, there I wyll dwell: thy people are my people, and thy God is my God. Where thou dyest, I will dye, and there wyll be buryed. The Lorde do so and so to me / excepte that deathe onely departe the and me asonder.

When she sawe she wolde nedes goo with D her, she lefte speakynge vnto her / and so they went bothe togyther, tyll they came to Bethlehem. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it was noysed thorow all the cytye, and the women sayde: is not this Noemi? But she sayd vnto them / call me not ✠ Noemi / call ✠ Noemi is me ✠ Mara, for the almyghtye hath made me fayre. verye bytter. I wente oute full, but the Lorde ✠ Mara bytter. hathe brought me home emptye. Why sholde ye then call me Noemi, seinge the Lorde hath brought me low, & the almighty hath brought me vnto aduersitie. And the tyme when Noemi with Ruth the Moabitesse her doughter Tobye.ii.a in lawe returned oute of the countrey of Moab and came to Bethlehem, was in the begynnynge of barley haruest.

CAPI. II.

AND Noemi had a kynsman of her husG bandes, a man of mygthe, of the kynred of Elimelec, named Booz. And Ruth the Moabitesse sayd vnto Noemi / let me goo to the felde and lease and gather eares, after whome so euer I fynde grace in his syghte. And she sayde vnto her: goo my doughter And she wente, and came and gathered after the haruest men, and her chaunce was to gather in the felde that pertayned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelec. And beholde, Booz came from Bethlehem and sayde vnto the haruest men, the Lorde be with you. And they answered him, the Lorde blesse the. Then sayd Booz vnto the yong man that had the ouersyght of the haruest men. Whose damosell is this? And the yonge man that was set to ouerse the haruest men answered & sayd: H It is the Moabityth damosel that came with Noemi oute of the countreye of Moab / and she sayde: lette me I praye the, lease and gather after the haruest men the eares that remayne. And so she came and hathe contynued euen from the mornynge vnto nowe / & wente not ones home.

Then sayd Booz vnto Ruth: hearest thou my doughter: goo to none other felde to gather, neyther go frome hence, but abyde by my maydes. Thyne eyes ate on a felde that shall be reped: goo after the maydens therfore / for I haue charged the younge men that they touche the not. Moreouer when thou arte a thyrst, go vnto thy vessels and drynke of that whiche the laddes haue drawen. Then she fell on her face, and ✠ bowed her selfe to ỹ ground Gene.xxxiii.a and sayde vnto him: howe is it that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, to knowe me, sythens I am an alien.

C And Booz answered and sayd vnto her: all is tolde me that thou hast done to thy mother in lawe sence the deathe of thyne husbande, howe thou haste lefte thy father and thy mother, and the land where thou wast borne, and arte come vnto a nation whiche thou knewest not in tyme passed. The Lorde reacquyte thy worke, and a full rewarde be gyuen the of the Lorde God of Israel, vnto whome thou arte come, to trust vnder his wynges. Then she sayde vnto hym/ lette me fynde fauoure in thy syght (my Lorde) for thou hast comforted me, and hast spoken iertely vnto thy mayde, whiche yet can not be lyke vnto one of thy maydes. And Booz when tyme of repaste was come, sayde vnto her: come hyther and eate of the breed, and dyppe thy soppe in the vynegre. And she sate downe by the reapers, and he raught her * parched corne. And so she dyd eate and was fylled, and lefte parte. And when she was rysen vp to gather, Booz sayde to the ponge men, sayinge: let her gather the eares that remayne, and do her no despyte. And therto pull out of the sheues for her, and let it lye, that she may gather it vp, and rebuke her not. And so she gathered tyll euen, and then threshed that she hadde gathered, and it was vpon an Epha of barleye. And she toke it vp and went to the cite, and shewed her mother in lawe what she hadde gathered. And therto she plucked oute and gaue to her that she had reserued when she had eaten ynough. Then sayd her mother in law vnto her, where gatheredst thou to daye? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he that knewe the. And she shewed her mother in lawe with whome she hadde wrought, and sayde: the mans name with whome I wroughte to daye, is Booz. Then sayd Noemi vnto her doughter in law, blessed be he, for he ceaseth not to do the same goodnesse to the dead, that he did to the liuing. And Noemi sayd vnto her: the man is nye vnto vs, euen of our nexte kynne. And Ruth the Moabyte sayd: he bad me also that I shold continue with his ponge men, vntyl they had ended all the haruest he hath. Then sayd Noemi vnto Ruth her doughter in lawe, it is best my doughter that thou goo oute with his maydens, and that no man mete the in anye other felde. And so she kepte her by the maydens of Booz, to gather vnto the ende of barleye haruest and of whete haruest also, and retourned to her mother in lawe.

CAPI. III.

A Then Noemi her mother in lawe sayde vnto her: my doughter I wyll seke reste for the, that thou mayste be in better state. For nowe this Booz our kynsman, with whose maydens thou waste, wynoweth his barleye to nyghte in the threshynge floure: washe thy selfe therfore and anoynte the, and put thy rayment vpon the, and get the to the threshynge floure. But lette not the man be ware of the, tyll he haue lefte eatynge and drynkynge. And when he goeth to slepe, marke the place where he layeth hym downe, and then goo and lyfte vp the clothes that are on his fete, and laye the downe/ and so shal he tel the what thou shalt do. And she answered her/ all that thou byddest me, I wyll doo. So she went vnto the floure, and dyd all that her mother in lawe bad her. And when Booz hadde eaten and dronken, and made hym merye, he went and lay downe by the syde of the heape, and she came softlye and lyfte vp the clothes of his fete, and layde her downe/ and at midnyght the man was afrayde and groped/ and beholde, a woman laye at his feete. Then he sayd, what art thou? and she answered, I am Ruth thyne handmayde/ spreade thy mantell ouer thyne handmayde, for thou arte the nexte of the kynne. And then he said, blessed be thou in ꝑ Lorde (my doughter) for thou hast shewed more goodnesse in the latter ende, then at the begynnynge/ in as moche as thou folowedst not ponge men, whether they were poore or ryche. And now (my doughter feare not, I wyll do to the all that thou requyrest/ for al within the gates of this cite knowe that thou arte a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy nexte kynne/ how be it, there is one nere then I. Tarye all nyght, and when morowe is come, yf he wil mary the, wel and good/ let him so do. But if he wil not haue the, as sure as the Lord lyueth, I wil haue the/ lye styl tyl the morowe/ and so she laye at his fete tyll ꝑ morowe. And she arose vp before one could know an other. And he said/ let no man know that there came any woman in to ꝑ threshing floure. And he sayd bringe the mantell ꝑ thou hast vpon the, and holde it vp/ and she helde it vp. And he met in sixe measures of barleye and layde it on her. And she gat her in to the cite, and came to her mother in lawe whiche sayd/ what tydynges, my doughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And said moreouer, these sixe measures of barleye gaue he me, and sayd: thou shalt not go emptye vn to thy mother in law. The said she, my doughter syt styll, vntyll thou knowe how the matter wyl procede. For the man wil not be in rest tyl he haue ended the mater this same daye.

¶ Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whome he begetteth Obed.

CAPI. IIII.

Then went Booz vnto the gate, and sat him downe there: and beholde, the kinsman of whiche Booz spake came by. Vnto whome he sayd: come and syt downe here, and called him by his name. And he turned in and sate downe. Then he toke tenne men of the elders of the cite, and sayd/ syt ye downe here. And they sat downe. Then he sayd vnto the kynsman: Noemi that is come agayn out of the countreye of Moab, wyll sell a parcell of lande whiche was our brother Elimelecs. And I thought to doo the to wete, and bydde the bye it before the inhabytoures and elders of my people/ yf thou be disposed to calenge it, for thou arte nexte of kynred: but yf thou wylt not purchase it, then tell me, that I may wete it. For there is none to calenge it, saue thou, and I next the. And the other answered I wyll purchase it.

B Then sayd Booz/what daye thou byest the felde of the hande of Noemi, thou muste take also Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of the deed, to stere vp the name of thy deed kynsman vpon his inheritaunce. Then sayd the kynsman/ I can not purchase it for mareynge of my owne name: take thou my ryghte to the, for I am content to lese my ryght here. Now this was the maner of olde tyme in Israel concernynge iiij.b. purches and chaungynge, for to stablysshe all thynge: that a man muste plucke of his shoo and gyue it his neyghboure, and this was a wytnesse in Israel.

And the kynsman said to Booz/bye it thou: L and so drewe of his shoo. Then sayd Booz vn to the elders, and vnto all the people, ye are wytnesses this daye, that I haue boughte all that was Elimelecs, and all that was Chilions and Mahelons, of the hande of Noemi. And moreouer Ruth the Moabyte the wyfe of Mahelon, doo I take vnto me to wyfe, to stere vp the name of the deed vpon his inheritaunce, that his name be not put forth among his brethren, and frome the gate of his citye: ye are wytnesses this daye.

And all the people that were in the gate, & the elders sayd, we are wytnesses: the Lorde make ȝ woman that is come in to thyne house lyke Rachel & Lea, whiche twayne did buylde the house of Israel, that thou maye wo vertuously in Ephrathah, and be famous in Bethlehem, and that thyne house be lyke the house of Pharez, whome Thamar bare vnto Juda, Gene.xxxviii euen of the seed whiche the Lorde shall gyue the of this ponge woman. And so Booz toke Ruth, and she was his wyfe. And he lay with D her, and the Lord gaue that she conceyued and bare a sonne. And the women sayd vnto Noemi: blessed be the Lorde, whiche hath not left the without an heyre this daye, that shal haue a name in Israel, and that shall bryng thy lyfe agayne, and cherysshe thyne olde age. For thy doughter in law which loueth the, hath borne him that is better to the then seuen sonnes. And Noemi toke the chylde and layde it in her lappe, and became nourse vnto it. And her neyghboures gaue her a name, sayinge/ there is a chylde borne to Noemi, & called it Obed: he is the father of Jsai, the father of Dauid.

THere was a man of Ramathaim Zophim, of mount Ephraim named Elkanah, the son of Jeroham, the sonne of Elihu, the sonne of Thohu, the sonne of Zuph an Ephrathyte, which had two wiues, thone called Hannah, thother Phenenah. And the sayd man went out of his cite euery feast daye, to praye and to offre vnto the Lord of hostes: where ꝑ two sonnes of Eli (Hophni and Phinehes) were the Lordes Preestes. And it fell on a daye as Elkanah had offered that he gaue to Phenennah his wyfe, and to all her sonnes and doughters portions. But vnto Hannah he gaue an honourable portion with a heuye chere, for he loued her/ neuertheles the Lorde had made her bareyn. And ther to her ennempe Phenennah vexed her sore, casting her in the tethe how the Lorde had made her bareyn. And so dyd she yere by yere as ofte as she went vp to the house of the Lorde. And so chafed her, wherfore Hannah wept, and ate not. Then sayd Elkanah her husbande to her.

b Hannah, why wepest thou? and why eatest thou not? and why is thyne hert so troubled? am not I better to the then ten sonnes? Then Hannah rose vp after that they had eate, and dronke in Siloh. And Eli the Preest sate vpon a stole by one of the syde postes of the temple of the Lorde. And she was troubled in her spirites, and prayed vnto the Lorde & wept sore/ and vowed a vowe and sayd. And she continued prayinge before the Lorde, Eli marked her mouthe. For Hannah she spake in her herte, and her lyppes dyd but moue only, but her voyce was not herde. c myne herte, and haue dronke neyther wyne nor anye stronge drynke/ but I haue poured out my soule before the Lorde. Counte not thyne handemayde to be lyke a doughter of vnthryftynesse/ for oute of the aboundaunce of my meditacion and grefe haue I spoken hitherto.

Eli answered and said: go in peace, the God of Israel shall graunt ꝑ thy peticion that thou hast asked of hym. Then she sayde/ lette thyne handemayde fynde grace in thy syght. And so the woman went her waye, and dyd eat and loked no more so sadde. And they rose vp early and bowed them selues before the Lord, and then returned and went to their house to Ramath. And Elkanah laye by his wyfe Hannah, and the Lorde remembred her. And in processe of time she conceyued and bare a son, and called his name ✳ Samuel: because she hadde asked hym of the Lorde. And Elkanah and all his house wente vp to offer vnto the Lorde bothe the offerynges due for the feaste and also his vowes: but Hannah went not vp for she sayde vnto her husbande: I wyll tarye vntyll the chylde be wened, and then I wyll bryngе him, that he may appeare before the Lorde, and there abyde for euer. And Elkanah her husbande sayd to her: do what semeth the beste: tarye tyl thou hast wened him, onely the Lorde make good his sayinge. And so the women abode and gaue her sonne suck, tyll she wened hym. And then she toke hym with her, when she had wened him, with thre bullockes and an Epha of floure and a bottel of wyne, and brought hym vnto the house of the Lorde in Siloh howbeit the chylde was yet younge. And they slewe the bullockes and brought vnthe chylde to Eli, & then she sayd: Oh my Lorde: as trulye as thy soule lyueth my Lorde: I am the woman that stode by the here, prayinge vnto the Lorde and for this chylde I prayed, and the Lorde hath gyuē me my desyre whiche I asked of hym: and therfore I also lend him the Lorde, as long as he maye be lent the Lorde. And so they prayed there vnto the Lorde.

CAPI. II.

AND Hannah prayed and sayde: myne hert reioyseth in the Lord, myne horne is hyghe in the Lorde, and my mouthe is wyde open ouer myne ennempes/ for I reioyce in that thou hast deliuered me. There is none so holye as the Lorde: no there is none saue thou. Neither is there any strengthe like vnto our God. Talke not to mocke proudlye, let olde thynges depart out of your mouthes, for the Lorde is a God of knowlege, and by hym are the workes. The bowes of the stronge are broken: and the weake are enbued with strengthe. They that were full haue ben glad to serue for breed, and they that were hūgrye be satisfied/ in so moche that the bareyn hathe borne seuen/ and she that hadde many chyldren is waxed feble. The Lorde kylleth and maketh alyue/ bryngeth downe to helle, and fetcheth vp agayne. The Lorde maketh poore, and maketh ryche/ bryngeth lowe, and heaueth heaueth vp on hye. He rayseth vp the poore out of the dust, and lyfteth vp the begger from the donge hylle, to set them amonge prynces, and to enherite them with the seate of glory. For the pylers of the erthe are the Lordes, & he hathe sette the rounde worlde vpon them. He wyll kepe the feete of his holye, but the wycked shall kepe silence in darknesse. For in his owne myghte shall no man be stronge.

The Lordes aduersaryes shall be made to feare him / and oute of heuen he shall thunder vpon them. The Lorde shall iudge the borders of the worlde, and shall gyue myght vnto his kyng, and exalte the horne of his anoynted. And Elkanah wente to Ramath to his house, & the childe did ministre vnto the Lord before Ely the preest.

But the sonnes of Ely were the sonnes of Belial, and knewe not the Lorde. For the maner of the preestes with the people was / when so euer anye man offered anye offerynges, the preestes lad came whyle the flesh was sething, and a flesshe hoke with thre teethe in his hande, and thruste it in to the panne, kettle, caldren, or potte. And all that the flesshe hoke brought vp, the preest toke awaye. And so they dyd vnto all Israel that came thyther to Silo. Yea and moreouer before they had offered the fat, the preestes lad came and sayd to the man that offered: gyue flesshe to rost for the preest / for he wyl not haue sodden flesh of the but rawe. And yf any man sayd vnto hym, let the fat be offered accordynge to the custome of the daye, and then take as moche as thyne herte desyreth. The lad wolde answere him, thou shalte gyue it me now, or els I wil take it perforce. And the synne of the yonge men was verye greate before the Lorde. For they hyndred the peoples deuotion from offeryng vnto the Lorde.

But the chyld Samuel ministred before the Lorde gyrded about with a lynnen Ephod. Moreouer his mother made him a lytle cote, and broughte it to him from yeaste to yeaste when she came vp with her husbande to offre the offerynge of the yayde feast. And Eli blessed Elkanah and his wyfe, and sayde: the Lorde gyue the seed of this woman, for that she hathe lente the Lorde. And they went vnto theyr owne house. And the Lorde visyted Hannah, so that she conceyued and bare thre sonnes and two doughters. But the chylde Samuel grewe, dwellynge styll with the Lorde.

Eli was verye olde and herde all that his sonnes dyd vnto al Israel, and how they slept with the women that wayted in the doore of ꝑ tabernacle of witnesse, & sayd vnto them / why do ye suche thynges? For I heare youre wycked dedes of al these people. Oh naye my sonnes, for it is no good reapporte that I heare, howe ye make the Lordes people to trespace. If one man synne agaynst an other, dayseimen maye make his peax: but yf a man synne agaynste the Lorde, who can be his dayseman? Notwithstandynge they hearkened not vnto the voyce of theyr father, bycause the Lorde wolde slee them. The chylde Samuel prosited and grewe, and was in fauour bothe with the Lorde, and also with men.

And there came a man of God vnto Eli, and sayd vnto hym / thus sayth the Lorde. I appeared vnto the house of thy father, when they were in Egypte in Pharaos house. And I chose thy father for the of all the trybes of Israel, to be my preest for to offre vpon myne auiter, and to burne incense, and to were an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto the house of thy father all the offerynges of the childzen of Israel. Wherfore kycke ye agaynste my sacrifyce and agaynste myne offerynge whiche I commaunde in the tabernacle, and honourest thy chyldzen aboue me / and make youre selues fatte of the fyrste frutes of all the offerynges of Israel my people? Wherfore the Lord God of Israel sayth: I sayd that thyne house and the house of thy father shulde haue walked before me for euer. But nowe the Lorde sayth that be farre from me / for them that worshyp me, I wyll worshyp / and they that despyse me, shall be despysed. Behoulde the dayes wyll come that I wyll cut of thyne arme, and the arme of thy fathers house / that there shall not be an elder in thyne house. And thou shalte se thyne ennempe in the tabernacle, in all that shall please Israel / and there shall not be an elder in thyne house whyle the worlde standeth. Neuertheles I wyll not destroye all thy males from my auiter, to dase thy syghte with all, and to make thyne herte melte. And all the multitude of thyne house shall dye yonge.

And this shall be a sygne vnto the, that shall come vpon thy two sonnes, Hophni and Phinehes: euen in one daye eyther of theym shall dye. And I wyll stere me vp a faythfull preest, that shall do after myne herte, and in my mynde / and I wyll buylde hym a sure house, and he shall walke before myne anoynted for euer. And they that are lefte in thyne house, shall come and crouche to hym for a lytle pece of syluer, and a cake of broed / and shal saye: put me I praye the in one office or other amonge the preestes, that I maye eate a morsell of broed.

¶ After the Lord had left to appeare by open vision in Siloh for a loge seaso: he per calleth Samuel. iii. tymes, and sheweth him what shulde befall on Heli.

CAPI. III.

AND the chylde Samuel ministred vnto the Lorde before Hely / and the worde of the Lorde was deyre in those dayes, for there was none open vision. And it chaunced at that tyme that Hely laye in his place, and his eyen beganne to waxe dymme that he coulde not se. And er the lampe of God went out, Samuel layde hym downe to slepe in the temple of the Lorde, where the arcke of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel / and he sayd, here am I / and he ran vnto Hely & sayd / here am I, for thou calledst me. But he sayde I called the not: goo agayne and slepe. And he went and layde him downe to slepe. And the Lorde called ones agayne Samuel / and Samuel

Samuel arose and went to Heli and said: I am here, thou diddest call me. And he answered I called the not, my sonne/go agayn and take thy rest/but as yet Samuel knew not ꝑ Lorde neither was the worde of the Lord opened vn to him. And the Lord proceded and called Samuel the third time. And he arose and went to Heli and saide: I am here, for thou hast called me. Then Heli perceyued that the Lorde had called the chylde, and sayd vnto him/go & lye downe, and yf he call the agayne, then say speake on Lord, for thy seruaunt heareth. And Samuel went & layd him downe in his place. And the Lord came and stode and called as afore, Samuel Samuel. And Samuel sayde/ speke on, for thy seruaũt heareth the. And the Lorde sayd to Samuel: beholde, I wyll do a thyng in Israel, that the eares of as many as heareth it, shall tingle. In that daye I wil per i.Regum.ii.g. forme to Heli all that I haue spoken concernynge his house: I wyll begyn it and ende it. For I haue tolde him that I wyll iudge his house for euer. For the wyckednes whiche he knoweth howe his sonnes are vngracyous/ and he chastised theym not. And therfore I C haue sworne vnto the house of Heli, that the wyckednesse of his house shall not be purged with sacrifyce nor offerynge, whyle the worlde standeth. And Samuel laye tyll the mornynge, and then opened the wores of the house of the Lorde.

But Samuel feared to shewe Heli the vysyon. Then Heli called Samuel and sayde: Samuel my sonne. And he answered, here I am. And he sayd what is it that the Lord said
*Ruth.i.c vnto the? Se thou hide it not from me. * The Lorde do so and so to the, yf thou hyde anye thyng frõ me of all that he sayd vnto the. And D Samuel tolde him euery whyt, and hid it not from him. And he answered: it is the Lord, let him do what semeth him good.

And Samuel grewe, and the Lorde was with him, and left none of his wordes vnperformed. And all Israel from Dan to Berlabe wyst that the faythfull Samuel was truely made the Lordes Prophete. And the Lorde appeared agayne in Siloh/for the Lorde opened him selfe to Samuel in Siloh, throrow the worde of the Lorde.

¶ The battel of the Philistines. Israel fleeth. The Arcke of the Lorde is taken. Elies children dye and he him self also.

CAPI. IIII.

A AND Samuel spake vnto al Israel. And Israel wente oute agaynste the Philistines to battayle, and pytched beside i.Regũ.vii.e. the helpe stone. But the Philistines pytched in Aphek, and put them selues in aray agaynst Israel. And in the battayle Israel was put to the worse before the Philistines. For the Philistines slewe alonge by the feldes, about four thousande men.

And when the people were come in to their tentes, the elders of Israel sayde: wherfore hath the Lorde beaten vs this daye before the Philistines? let vs fetche the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde oute of Siloh vnto vs, and let it come amonge vs and saue vs out of the handes of our ennemyes. And ꝑ people sent to Siloh, and fet from thence the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lord of hostes which dwelleth betwene the Cherubyns. And there were the two sonnes of Heli, Hophni, & Phinehes, wt the arcke of the appoyntmẽt of God. And when the arcke of the appoyntmẽt of the Lord came in to the hoste, all Israel shouted a mighty shout, so that the erth rang agayne.

When the Philistines herde the noyse of the shout, they sayd: What meaneth the soũd of this mightye shout in the hoste of the Hebrues? And they vnderstode that the arcke of the Lorde was come in to the hoste. And the Philistines were afrayde/ when it was tolde that God was come in to the hoste, and sayd. Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before this. Wo vnto vs, who shall delyuer vs out of the hande of this myghtye God? this is the God that smote the Egyptians with all maner plages in the wylderneſſe. Be stronge and quyte your selues lyke men ye Philistines, that ye be not seruantes vnto the Hebrues, * as they haue bene to you. Be men therfore and fyght. And the Philistines foughte, and Israel was put to the worse and fled euerye man in to his tent. And there was a mighty great slaughter, so that there were ouerthrowe of Israel thirtye thousande fotemen. And the arcke of God was taken, & the two sonnes of Heli, Hophni and Phinehes were ded. And there ran a man of Benjamin out of the araye and came to Siloh the same daye, with his clothes rente and erthe vpon his heed. And when the man came in, Heli sate vpon a stole by the wayes syde lokynge: for his herte feared for the arcke of God. And the man came in and tolde it in the citye. And all the city cryed.

When Heli herd the noyse of the crying, he asked what the noyse of ꝑ rumoure ment. And the man hasted, and came in and tolde Heli. Heli was foure score and eyghtene yere olde, & * his sight fayled him that he could not se. And the man said vnto Heli, I am he that ran forth from the araye, and fled oute of the hoste this day. And he said, how is it forstuned my sonne? And the messenger answered and sayd: Israel is fledde before the Philistines / and there is a great slaughter chaunsed among the people/ and thy two sonnes, Hophni and Phinehes are ded/and therto the arcke of God is take. And when he hadde ones named the arcke of God, Heli fell frome his stole backwarde towarde the gate / and his necke brake, and he dyed / for he was olde and vnweldye, and he iudged Israel fourtye yeres.

And his doughter in lawe Phinehes wyfe was with childe, and nye the byrth. And when she herde these tidynges of the takynge of the arcke of God/and that her father in lawe and her husbande were ded, she bowed her selfe and trauayled, for her paynes came vpon her. And aboute the tyme of her deathe / the women that stode aboute her, sayd vnto her/feare not, for thou hast borne a sonne. But she answered swerd not, nor regarded it. And she named the chylde Ichabod, sayinge: honoure is departed from Israel. Bicause the arcke of God was taken, and her father in lawe and her husbande were deed. And therfore she sayd: Israel hathe lost his honour, bycause the arcke of God was taken.

¶ Dagon the God of the Philistines is cast flat before the arcke. The Philistines are plaged in the secrete places. The inhabitantes of Azaron refuse to receyue the arcke.

CAPI. V.

A And the Philistines toke ꝑ arke of God and caryed it from the helpe stone vnto Asdod, and brought it in to the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon. And whē they of Asdod were risen in the morninge, beholde Dagon laye grouelynge vpon the erthe before the arcke of the Lorde. And they toke Dagon and set him in his place agayne. And whē they rose vp erlye in the next mornyng, beholde Dagon laye grouelynge vpon the grounde before the arcke of the Lorde, and his heed & his two handes cut of vpon the threshold, that ꝑ body onely was left on him. Wherfore neither the B priestes of Dagon, ne any man that commeth in to Dagons house might trede on ꝑ threshold of Dagon in Asdod, vnto this daye.

But the hand of the Lorde was heuy vpon them of Asdod, and he destroyed them & smote them with Emerodes, both Asdod and al the costes therof. And when the men of Asdod saw that so, they sayd: the arke of the God of Israel shal not abyde here with vs, for his hand C is sore vpon vs, & vpon Dagon our God. And so they sente and gathered all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them and said: what shal we do with ꝑ arcke of the God of Israel. Then sayd they of Geth, let the arcke of the God of Israel be caryed about. And they caryed ꝑ arck of the God of Israel aboute. And when they hadde caryed it aboute, the hande of the Lorde was in the citye with a mighty great plage, & he smote the men of the citye both smal and great, and they were smytten in theyr secrete D places with the Emerodes. Then they sent the arcke of God to Akaron. And as soone as the arcke of God came to Akaron, the Akaronites cryed oute, sayinge: they haue brought the arcke of the God of Israel to vs: to slee vs and oure people.

Then they sente and set all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them and sayde: sende awaye the arcke of the God of Israel, and let it goo home agayne vnto his owne place, that it slee vs not with oure people. For there was a plage of deth throwe oute all the citye, and the hande of God was exceedyng sore there, in so moche that they which died not, were smitten with the Emerodes: so that the crye of the citye reached vp to heuen.

¶ The heyfers bringe home the arcke with the rewardes. The Bethshamites were plaged after they had sene the arcke.

CAPI. VI.

A And so when the arcke of the Lord had ben in the countreye of the Philistines A seuen monethes, the Philistines called for the preestes and the sothe sayers, sayinge: what shall we do with the arcke of the Lord? tell vs wherwith we shall sende it home agayne. They answered, yf you send the arcke of the God of Israel home agayne, sende it not emptye: But rewarde it with a trespace offerynge, and then ye shall be hole, and it shall be knowen to you why his hande departeth not from you.

Then sayd they, what shall be the trespace offeryng, whiche we shall rewarde him with? And they answered: fyue golden arses with Emerodes, and fyue golden myce, accordynge to the nombre of ꝑ Lordes of the Philistines. For it was one maner of plage ꝑ was on you all, and on your Lordes to. Wherfore ye shall make ymages lyke to youre arses with Emerodes, and ymages like to youre myce that destroyed your lande, and shall gyue glorye vnto the God of Israel: that he may take his hand from you, and from youre goddes, and from your lande. Wherfore sholde ye harden youre B hertes, as the Egyptians and Pharao hardened theyr hertes, whiche for all that (when he Exod. xii. d was well scourged) was fayne to let the people goo and depart.

Now therfore make a newe carte and take two mylche kyne, on whose necke neuer came yoke. And tye the kyne in the carte, and kepe theyr calues at home from them. Then take the arcke of the Lorde, and put it in the carte, and put the Jewels of golde (which ye reward him with, for a trespace offerynge) in a forcer by the syde therof, and sende it awaye and let it go. And marke, yf he goeth vp by the waye that leadeth vnto his own coste to Bethshames, then it is he that dyd vs this great euyll. But yf he do not, then it is not his hand that smote vs, but it was a chaūce that happened vs. And the men did euen so: they toke two kyne that gaue mylke and tied them in the carte, & kepte the calues at home; and they layde the arcke of the Lorde vpon the carte, and the forcer with C the myce of golde, & the ymages of their arses with Emerodes. And the kyne toke ꝑ streyght waye to Bethshames, both one waye, and as they went, cryed, turnyng neyther to the right hande ne to the lefte. And the Lordes of the Philistines went after them, tyll they came to the borders of Bethshames.

And they of Bethshames were reppynge their whete in the valey. So they lyft vp their eyes and espied the arcke, and reioyced when they saw it. And the cart came into the grone of one Josua a Bethshamite, and stode stil there. There was there also a greate stone. And they claue the wodde of the carte, and offered the kyne a burnt offerynge vnto the Lorde. And the Leuites toke downe the arcke of the Lorde, & the forcer that was therby, wherin the Jewels of golde were, and put them on the greate stone. And the men of Bethshames sacrificed burnt sacrifice, and offered offerynges that same daye D vnto the Lorde. And when the fyue Lordes of the Philistines had sene it, they retourned to Akaron the same daye. These are the golden artes with Emerodes, whiche the Philistines gaue to amendes for a trespace offeryng, to the Lorde / for Asdod one / for Gaza one / for Askalon one / for Geth one / and for Akaron one. And the golden myce were accordyng to the nombre of all the citees of the Philistines thorowe the fyue lordshyppes / bothe of walled townes, and of townes vnwalled, euen vnto the great stone wheron they sette downe the arcke of the Lorde: whiche remayneth vn to this daye in the feld of Josua the Bethsampyte. And the Lorde plaged the men of Bethsames, bycause they hadde sene the iewels that were in the arcke of the Lorde. And he slewe of the people fyfty thousande, and thre score & ten persons. And the people lamẽted bycause the Lord had made so great a slaughter of thẽ. And the men of Bethsames said, who is hable to stande before the Lorde so holy a God, and to whom shall he go from vs? And they sente messengers to the inhabitantes of Kariath Jarim, sayinge: The Philistines haue broughte home agayne the arcke of the Lorde: come downe and fet it vp to you.

¶ The arcke is brought to kariathiarim. The people wepe, for whiche Samuel maketh intercession to the Lorde. The Philistines are smytten.

And as Samuel offered the burnt offeryng / the Philistines came to fyght agaynst Israel. But the Lorde thondred a greate thunder that same daye vpon the Philistines, and turmoyled them, that they were beaten before Israel. And the men of Israel issued oute of Mazphah, and pursued the Philistines, and slewe them tyl they came vnder Bethcar. And so the Philistines were broughte vnder þ they came no more in to the costes of Israel / for the hand of the Lorde was vpon the Philistines al the dayes of Samuel. Then the citees whiche the Philistines hadde taken frome Israel, came agayne to Israel, from Akaron to Geth, with the costes of the same, whiche Israel plucked out of the handes of the Philistines. For there was peax betwene Israel and the Amorites. And Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and went about e yere by yere to Bethel, Galgal, and Mazphah, and iudged Israell in all those places / and came agayne to Ramath, for there was his house / and there he iudged Israel / and there he buylte an aulter vnto the Lorde.

WHen Samuel was olde, he made his sonnes Judges ouer Israell. The name of his eldest sonne was Joel, and the name of the seconde Abiath, whiche were Judges in Bersabe. ¶ Saul the ſonne of Cis ſeketh his fathers aſſes and is choſen kynge.

And they went thorow mount Ephraim, & thorow the lande of Saliſa, and founde them not. Then they went thorowe the lande of Salim, and there they were not. Then they went alſo thorowe the land of Jemini, and they found them not. Then when they were come to the lande of Zuph, Saul ſayd to the yonge man that was with him: come let vs returne, leſt my father leaue carynge for the aſſes, and take thought for vs. And he anſwered him / behold, there is in this citye a worſhypfull man of God, and all that he ſayth, commeth to paſſe. Now then let vs go thither / peraduenture he ſhal ſhewe vs what waye we may goo. Then ſayd Saul to his ſeruaunt, yf we go, what ſhal we bring the man? for our breed is all ſpent out of our hampers, and there is none other preſente to brynge the man of God, what haue we? And the yonge man anſwered to Saul agayne and ſayde: I haue founde about me the fourthe parte of a ſicle, that wyll we gyue the man of God to tell vs the waye.

Before tyme in Iſrael when a man went to ſeke an anſwere of God, thus wyſe he ſpake / come and let vs go to the Sear. For he that is now called a Prophet, was in ỹ olde time called a Sear. Then ſaid Saul to his yong man, well ſaid of the / come let vs goo. And ſo they went vnto ỹ city where the man of God was. And as they were going vp in to the city, they met with damoſels that came oute to drawe water, & ſaid vnto them: is there here a Sear? And the maydens anſwered them / yea, beholde he goeth before you. Make haſte now, for he came this day to the city, for the people muſt offre this day in ỹ hye place. When ye be come into the city, incontinent ye ſhal fynde him, er he go vp to the hyl to eate / for the people wil not eate vntyll he come, bicauſe he muſt bleſſe the offerynge. And then eate they that be redye to the feaſt. Now therfore get you vp, for euen nowe ſhall ye fynde hym. And they wente vp in to the citye / and when they were come in to the myddes of the citye / behold Samuel came out agaynſt thē, to go vp to the hye place. But the Lorde had tolde Samuel the daye before Saul came, ſaynge: to morowe this tyme I wyll ſende the a man out of the lande of Ben-Jamin, hym ſhalte thou annoynte capitayne ouer my people Iſrael, that he maye ſaue my people from the hande of the Philiſtines / for I haue loked vpon my people / and their crys is come vnto me. When Samuel ſawe Saul, the Lorde ſayde to him: ſe, this is the man whom I ſpake to ỹ of. This ſame ſhal raygne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the middle of the gate, and ſaid / tell me I pray the where is the Sears houſe? And Samuel anſwered Saul, and ſayd: I am the Sear, go vp before me vnto the hyll, for ye ſhall eate with me to daye. And to morow I wil let the go erly / and wil tel the all that is in thyne hert / and as concerning thyne aſſes that were loſt thre dayes a go, care not for them, for they are found. And moreouer who ſhall haue the beautifull thinges of Iſrael? belonge they not to the, and vnto all thy fathers houſe? But Saul anſwered and ſaid: am not I the ſonne of a Jemynite of the ſmalleſt tribe of Iſrael, and my kinred the leeſt of all the kinredes of the tribe of Ben Jamin? wherfore then ſpeakeſt thou ſo to me?

And Samuel toke Saul and his ſeruaunt and brought them in to the parlour and made them ſytte in the chyefe place amonges them that were bydden / whiche were vpon a thirtye perſonnes. Then ſayde Samuel vnto the cooke: Bryng for the that meaſe whiche I gaue the, and of whiche I ſayde, reſerue this to an other tyme. And the cooke toke vp the ſhoulder and brought it, and ſet it before Saul. And Samuel ſayd: Behold, that is left ſet it before the, and eate / for I kepte it for the vnto this tyme, when I called the people. And ſo Saul did eate with Samuel that daye. And whē they were come downe from ỹ hyll in to the citye, Samuel communed with Saul in the gallerye: and they aroſe erly. And about the ſpryngе of the daye Samuel called Saul in the galerye, ſaying / aryſe that I may ſende the awaye. And Saul aroſe. And they went out at the wyes, bothe he and Samuel. And when they were come almoſt to the townes ende / Samuel ſayd to Saul: byd thy ſeruaunt go before vs, and he went / but ſtande thou ſtyll a lytle ſpace, that I maye ſhewe the what God ſayth.

¶ Saul is anoynted kynge, and Prophecieth. Samuel declareth the people theyr faute, in that they aſked a kynge. God lende the kynge lyfe.

AND then Samuel toke a boxe of oyle, and poured it vpon his heed, and kyſſed hym and ſayd: the Lorde hath annoynted the to be ruler ouer his inheritaunce. And now when thou arte departed frome me, thou ſhalte mete two men by ✳ Rachels ſepulchre in the borders of Benjamin / euen at Zalezah. And they ſhal ſaye vnto the, the aſſes whiche thou wenteſt to ſeke, are founde / but beholde thy father hathe lefte the care of the aſſes, and ſorroweth for you, ſaying: what ſhal I do for my ſonne? Then thou ſhalt go forth thence and come to the oke of Thabor. And there ſhalt thou mete thre men going to God to Bethel / one carynge thre kyddes, an other thre loues of breed / and the thyrde a bottel of wyne. And they ſhall greete the, and giue the two loues of breed whiche thou ſhalte receyue of theyr handes. After this thou ſhalte come to the hylle of God, where the Philiſtines kepe theyr watche. And when thou arte come thyther to the cirye, thou ſhalte mete a companye of Prophetes commynge downe frome the hylle, with a plaiter, a tymbrell, a pype, and a harpe before them / and they prophecienge. And the ſpirite of the Lorde ſhall reſt vpon the, and thou ſhalte prophecie with theym, and ſhalte be tourned in to an other man. And when theſe ſignes are chaunſed the, then do what thou haſt to do / for God is with the. And thou ſhalt alſo go before me to Galgal. And as ſone as he had turned his ſhoulder to goo from Samuel, God gaue him an other maner of herte, and all thoſe tokens toke effecte that ſame day. When they came to the hyl, beholde the companye of Prophetes met him, and the ✳ ſpirite of God came vpon him, and he prophecied amonges them. And al that knew him before, when they ſawe he prophecied among the prophetes, ſaid eche to other: what is happened vnto the ſonne of Cis? Is Saul alſo amonge the Prophetes? And one of the ſame place anſwered and ſayde: who is theyr father? And therof ſprange a prouerbe: is Saul alſo among the Prophetes? And whē he had made an ende of prophecienge, he came to the hyll. Saules vncle ſayd vnto him and his ſeruaunt: whyther wente ye? And he anſwered:

to ſeke the aſſes, and when we ſawe them no where, we went to Samuel. Then ſaid Saules vncle: tell me what Samuel ſayde vnto you. And Saul anſwered his vncle: he tolde vs the aſſes were founde. But of the kyngdome wherof Samuel ſpake, told he him not. After that Samuel called the people togither vnto the Lorde to Maſphah, and ſayde vnto the chyldren of Iſrael: thus ſayth the Lorde God of Iſrael: I brought you out of Egypt, and deliuered you forth of the hande of the Egyptians, and forth of the handes of all kingdomes ꝑ oppreſſed you. And ye haue this daye caſt awaye your Lorde God that by him ſelf holpe you out of al your aduerſittes and tribulacions / and ye haue ſaid vnto him: ✳ make a kyng ouer vs. Now therfore ſtande before the Lorde by youre tribes and youre houſes. And when Samuel had brought all the trybes of Iſrael, the tribe of Benjamin was take forth by lot. When he had brought the tribe of Benjamin by their kinredes, the lot fel vpon ꝑ kinrede of Metri / and ſo went ꝑ lot thorow vnto it came to Saul ꝑ ſon of Cis. And they ſought him, but he could not be found. Then they aſked the Lorde further, whether the man ſhold come thither or no. And the Lorde anſwered / beholde, he hath hid him ſelf among the ſtuffe. And they ran and fet him thence. And when he ſtode among the people, he was hyer then any of the people, frome the ſhoulders vpwarde. And Samuel ſayde to all the people: ſeye, whome the Lorde hathe choſen, and howe there is none lyke hym among all the compenye. And the people ſhouted and ſayde: God lende the kynge lyfe.

Then Samuel tolde the people the law of the realme, and wrote it in a boke / and layd it vp before the Lorde / and ſo ſent all the people awaye, euery man to his houſe. And Saul alſo went home to Gabaah. And there went with him an hoſte, ſuche as God had touched their hertes. But the chyldren of vnthriftynelle ſaid: how ſhall he ſaue vs? and deſpyſed hym, and brought hym not preſentes. And he made as though he had not herde it.

¶ The people beinge delyuered frome the tyranny of Nahas, renueth the kyngdome of Saul.

CAPI. XI.

THen Nahas the Ammonyte came and beſieged Jabes in Galaad. And all the people of Jabes ſayde vnto Nahas: make a couenaunt with vs, and we wyll be thy ſeruauntes. And Nahas the Ammonyte ſayde: to this wyll I make a couenaunt with you, euen to thruſte oute all your ryght eyes, that I maye make all Iſrael aſhamed of you. Then ſayde the elders of Jabes: Gyue vs ſeuen dayes reſpyte, that we maye ſende meſſengers vnto all the coſtes of Iſrael. And then yf there come no man to helpe vs, we wyll come oute to the. Then came the meſſengers to Gabaah where Saul dwelte, and tolde this tidynges in the eares of the people. And all the people lyfte vp their voyces and wept.

And

And beholde Saul came folowynge his oxen from the felde, and asked what ayled the people to wepe. And they tolde him the tidynges of the men of Jabes. Then came the spirite of God vpon Saul, when he herde those tydynges, and he was exceadyng angry. And toke a yoke of oxen and hewed them in peces, and sent them thorowe oute all the coostes of Israel by the handes of messengers, saying: who so euer commeth not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall his oxen be serued. Then the feare of the Lorde fell on the people, and they came out as it had ben but one man. And when they were nombred in Bezek, the chyldren of Israel were thre hundred thousande/ and the men of Juda thirtye thousande. And they sayde vnto the messengers that came: so saye vnto the men of Jabes in Galaad: to morowe by that tyme the sonne be hoote, ye shal haue helpe. And the messengers came and shewed the men of Jabes, and they were glad. And then the men of Jabes said/ to morow we wil come out vnto you, that ye may doo with vs al ✠ pleaseth you. And on the morow Saul put the people in thre partes. And they came in vpon the hoste in the morning watche, & slewe the Ammonites tyll the heat of the daye. And they that remayned, scattered: so that two of them were not lefte together. Then sayde the people to Samuel: what are they that sayde, shall Saul raygne ouer vs? bryng them that we maye slee them. But Saul sayd there shal no man dye this daye / for to daye the Lorde hath saued Israel.

Then sayd Samuel vnto his people: come and lette vs goo to Galgall, and renewe the kyngdome there. And the people went to Galgall, and made Saul kynge there before the Lorde in Galgall. And there they offred peax offrynges before the Lorde. And there Saul and all the people reioysed hyghly.

¶ Samuel being an innocēt Judge (the people them selues to witnesse) argueth the people of vnkyndnes because they demaunded a kynge. Him that repenteth and beleueth, God forgyueth, because of his promyse.

CAPI. XII.

THen sayd Samuel vnto all Israel / beholde, I haue obeyed youre voyce in all ye sayd vnto me, and haue made you a kynge. And loo, youre kynge goeth before you. But I am olde and greye headed: and beholde, my sonnes are with you, and I haue lyued amonges you from my chyldhode vnto this daye. Beholde, here I am: answere me before the Lorde, and before his annoynted/ whose oxe haue I taken? or whose asse haue I taken? whome haue I wone wronge to? or whome haue I pylled? And of whose hande haue I receyued anye bribe to blynde myne eyes therwith? and I wyll restore it you agayne. And they sayde, thou haste wone vs no wronge, nor pylled vs/ neither hast thou taken oughte of anye mannes hande. Then sayde he to them: the Lorde is wytnesse vnto you, and his annoynted is wytnesse this daye, that ye haue founde noughte in my handes. And they answered: we are witnesses. Then sayde Samuel vnto the people / it is the Lorde ✠ that made Moses and Aaron, whiche brought your fathers oute of Egypte. Now therfore stande styll/ and lette me reason with you before the Lorde, of all the mercyes of the Lorde, which he shewed bothe vnto you and youre fathers. After that Jacob was come in to Egypt, your fathers cryed vnto the Lorde, and the Lorde sent Moses and Aaron, and brought your fathers oute of Egypte, and made them dwell in this place. Neuertheless they forgate the Lorde their God. And he solde them in to the hande of Sisara chyefe capitayne of Jabin kynge of Hazor, and in to the handes of the Philistines, and in to the handes of the kynge of Moab whiche fought agaynst them. Then they cryed vnto the Lorde and sayd: we haue synned, because we haue forsaken the Lorde, and haue serued Baalim and Astharoth. But nowe delyuer vs oute of the handes of oure ennemyes, and we wyll serue the. And the Lorde sente Jerobaal ✠ Badan, Jephthah, and Samuel, and delyuered you oute of the handes of youre ennemyes on euery syde, so that ye dwelled without feare. And for all this when you sawe that Nahas the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon came agaynst you, ye said vnto me: not so, a kynge shal raygne ouer vs, when yet the Lord your God was your king. Now therfore beholde the king whom ye haue chosen, and whome ye haue desyred: se / the Lorde hathe gyuen you a kynge. Oh that he wolde feare the Lorde and serue him, & heare his voyce, and not disobeye the mouthe of the Lorde: and that bothe ye and the kynge that raygneth ouer you wolde folowe the Lorde youre God. For yf ye shall not harken vnto the voyce of the Lorde, but shall disobeye the Lordes mouthe/ then shall the hande of the Lord be vpon you, and on your fathers. Now also stande and se this greate thynge whiche the Lorde wyll do before youre eyes: is it not nowe whete harueste? And yet for all that, I wil call vnto the Lorde, and he shal send thunder and rayne. Wherby perceyue and vnderstande, how that youre wyckednesse is greate, whiche ye haue done in the sight of the Lord, in askynge you a kynge. And when Samuel called vnto the Lorde, the Lorde sente thunder and rayne the same daye. And all the people feared the Lorde and Samuel exceadyngly. Then sayd all the people vnto Samuel: praye for thy seruauntes vnto the Lorde thy God, that we dye not: for we haue synned in askynge vs a kynge, besyde all the synnes that euer we dyd.

Then sayd Samuel vnto the people: feare not. And thoughe ye haue done all this wyckednesse, yet depart not from the Lorde in any case: But serue hym with all youre hertes. Neyther turne ye after vayne thynges whiche shall not profyte you nor be able to delyuer you, for they are but vanities. And the Lorde wyll not forsake his people, because of his greate names sake: because the Lorde hathe begonne to make you his people. Moreouer God forbyd that I sholde synne agaynste the Lorde in leauynge prayinge for you, and to shewe you the good and ryghte waye. Onely feare you the Lorde and serue hym truly with all your hertes: for lo, he hathe wone greate thynges for you. But yf ye shall wo wickedlye, then shall bothe ye and youre kynge perysshe.

¶ The Philistines are smytten of Saul and Jonathas. Saul beynge dysobedient to Goddes commaundement is shewed of Samuel that he shall not raygne.

CAPI. XIII.

A IT was nowe an hole yere after that Saul had begon to raygne. And when he hadde rayned two yeres ouer Israel, he chose him thre thousande men out of Israel. Two thousande were with Saul in Machmas & mount Bethell / and a thousande with Jonathas in Gabaah/ Ben Jamin. And the rest of the people he sente home, euerye man to his house. So Jonathas slew the Philistines in an hold that they had in Gabaah / and it came to the Philistines eares. And Saul caused the trompet to be blowen thorowe oute all the lande, saying/ let ỹ Ebrues heare. And all Israel herd saye how that Saul had destroyed an holde of the Philistines, and that Israel stanke afore ỹ Philistines. And all the people cryed after Saul to Galgal.

Then the Philistines gathered them selues togyther to fyghte with Israel, thyrtye thousande charettes, and sixe thousande horse men, with other people lyke the ✳sand by the sees syde in multitude / and came vp and pitched in Machmas eastwarde from Bethauen. And when the men of Israel saw them selues in a strayte/ and that the people were discomforted, they hyd them selues in caues, in preuye holes, in rockes, dennes, and pyttes. And the Ebrues went ouer Jordan vnto the lande of Gad and Galaad. But Saul was yet in Galgal/ and all the people that folowed him were dismayed. And he tarved seuen dayes, as Samuel ✳had appoynted. But Samuel came not to Galgal/ and the people scattered from hym. Wherfore Saul sayd/ bringe me burnte sacrifyce, and peax offerynges. And he offered burnt sacrifyce. And as soone as he had ended his burnt offerynges/ beholde Samuel came. And Saul wente agaynste him to grete hym. Then sayde Samuel to Saul: what haste thou wone? And Saul sayde, bycause I sawe that the people scattered frome me/ and that thou camest not within the dayes appoynted/ and that the Philistines gathered theym selues togyther to Machmas: then sayd I, the Philistines shal come down vpon me to Galgal er I haue made my prayer vnto the Lord. And therfore when they enforced me, I offered burnte offerynges. Then sayde Samuel to Saul/ thou haste wone folysshly, and hast not kepte the commaundement of the Lorde thy God, whiche he commaunded the/ whiche thynge yf thou haddest not wone at this time wolde the Lorde haue stablysshed thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. But nowe thy kyngdome shall neuer florysshe agayne. The Lorde hath sought him a man after his owne hert, and hath commaunded him to be a capitayne ouer his people / bycause thou haste not kepte that the Lorde commaunded the. And Samuel arose and gat him frome Galgal to Gabaah Ben Jamin. And Saul nombred the people that were founde with him, aboute sixe hundred men. And Saul and Jonathas his sonne, and the people that were founde with them, hadde their abydynge in Gabaah Ben Jamin. But the Philistines had pytched in Machmas. And there came out of the hoste of the Philistines thre companyes, to destroy/ one company turned vnto the waye that leadeth to Ephrah vnto the lande of Saul/ an other company turned the way to Bethoron/ and the thyrde companye turned to the waye of the coste that turneth to the valeye of Zeboim towarde the wildernesse. But there was no smyth thorowe out all the lande of Israel. For the Philistines were ware that ỹ Ebrues sholde not make them selues neither swerdes nor speres. And therfore muste all Israel go downe to the Philistines to mende euerye man his share, his mattocke, his axe, or his sickle / as ofte as the edges of the sickles, mattockes, dongforkes, and axes were blunt, and muste be had vnto the stethye to be amended. And so in tyme of battayle, there was neyther swerde nor spere founde in the handes of anye of the people that were with Saul and Jonathas: saue for Saul and Jonathas his sonne was there somwhat found. And the armye of the Philistines came out and stode on the other side before Machmas.

¶ Jonathas companyed with his esquyre putteth the Philistines to flight. He tasteth the hony which his father vnknowing to him, had forbidden the hole host, for which he shulde haue bene slayne, but the people deliuered him.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND it fell on a daye that Jonathas the sonne of Saul sayde vnto his younge man that bare his harnesse / come and let vs goo ouer to the watche men of the Philistines that are yonder on the other syde, and tolde not his father. But Saul taryed in the vttermoste parte of Gabaah vnder a pomegarnet tree that was in Magron/ and the people that were with him were aboute sixe hundred men. And Ahiah the sonne of Ahitob Iehabodes brother, the sonne of Phinehes, the sonne of Heli was the Lordes preest in Silo and bare an Ephod. But the people wyste not that Jonathas was gone.

And in the way by which Jonathas sought to goo ouer vnto the garrison of the Philistines, were there two sharpe rockes, thone on the one syde, and an other on the other syde: the one called Bozez, and ỹ other Seneh. And the one leaneth northwarde towarde Machmas, mas, and the other southwarde towarde Gabaah. Then sayde Jonathas to the younge man his harnesbearer: come and let vs go ouer vnto the standyng of these vncircumcised, paraduenture the Lorde will worke with vs: for the Lord is able to saue eyther with mane or with fewe. And his harnesbearer sayd vnto him do all that is in thine herte: set the forwarde: & se, I am with the, as thine herte lusteth. Then sayd Jonathas: beholde, whē we go ouer vnto the men, and shewe oure selues vnto them: yf they saye on this wyse to vs: tarye tyll we come to you, then we wyll stand styll where we be and not goo vp vnto them. But yf they so saye vnto vs: come hyther vnto vs, then we will goo vp, for the Lorde hath delyuered them into our handes. And this shall be a signe vnto vs. And when they had both shewed theym selues vnto the garrison of the Philistines, the Philistines sayde: se, the Hebrewes come oute of the holes were they had hyd them selues in. And the men of the garrison answered Jonathas and his harnesbearer and sayde: come vp to vs, & we will shewe you a thinge. Then sayde Jonathas vnto his harnesbearer: come after me, for the Lorde hath delyuered them into ꝑ handes of Israell. And Jonathas clame vpon hāds and fete, and his harnesbearer after him. Then they fell before Jonathas: and his harnesbearer slewe them after him. And the firste slaughter which Jonathas and his harnesbearer made, was vpon a twenty men, within ꝑ compasse as it were aboute an halfe aker of lande. And there was a feare in the hoste that was in the felde, and amonge all the people: in so moche that they that kept the holde, and they that were gone to robbe, were afrayd also: and the earth trembled, and there was a feare sente of God. And the watche men of Saul in Gabaah Ben Jamin, sawe. And beholde, the people scatered and ran hyther and thyther. Then sayde Saul vnto the people ꝑ was with him: nōbre & se who is gone away frome vs. And when they had tolde: behold, Jonathas & his harnesbearer were not there. And then Saul sayde vnto Ahia: bringe hyther the Arcke of God. For the arcke of God was at that tyme with the children of Israel. And whyle Saul talked vnto the preaste, a lowde shremysshe beganne in the host of the Philistines, and it encreased and was harde with a great noyse, And Saul sayde vnto the preast: withdrawe thyne hande. And Saul assembled all the people that were with him, and went to the holde. And se, euery mannes swerde was against his felowe, & there was great slaughter done. Moreouer the Ebrewes that were with the Philistines before ꝑ tyme, and were come with them in all partes of the host, turned to the children of Israell that were with Saul and Jonathas. And they also which had hyd them selues in moūt Ephraim, hearinge that the Philistines were fled, put them selues in preace with Sauls men, & pursued the Philistines, and so God holpe Israell that daye. And the battayle continued tyll they came to Bethauen. And the men of Israell ioyned them selues togither that day: and Saul adiured the people sayeng: Cursed be he that eateth any fode vntyll nyght, that I maye be auenged of myne ennemyes. And so there was none of the people that tasted any fode. And all the land came to a wood, where hony laye vpon the grounde. And when the people were come into the wod: Beholde, ꝑ hony dropped. Howe be it there was no man that moued his hande to his mouth, because that the people feared the curse. But Jonathas herde not when his father adiured the people, wherfore he put forth the ende of the staffe that was in his hand and dypte it in an hony combe, and put his hande to his mouth and forthwith his eyen receyued their old vertue and courage. Then spake one of the people and sayde: thy father adiured the people, sayenge: Cursed be the man that eateth any fode this daye, and yet the people were fayne. Then sayde Jonathas: my father hath troubled the lande: for beholde my eyen haue recouered their power and strength, because I tasted a lytle of this hony: howe then yf all ꝑ people had eaten of the spoyle of their ennemyes which they founde, had there not bene then a moche greatter slaughter amonge the Philistines? And they layde on the Philistines that daye, frome Machmas to Aialon. But the people were exceadynge fayntie.

Then the people gat them to the spoyle, & toke shepe oren and calues, and slewe theym on the grounde, and dyd eate with the bloud. Then men tolde Saul, sayenge: Beholde ꝑ people synne against the Lorde, in that they eate with the bloude. And he sayde: ye haue trespased, But rowle a greate stone vnto me now, and go abrode amonge the people and byd them bringe euery man his ore, and euery man his shepe, and slay them here, & synne not against the Lorde / in eatynge with the bloude. And the people broughte euery man his ore in his hande by nyght and slewe them there. And Saul made an aultare vnto the Lorde, And that was the firste aultare that he made vnto the Lorde. And Saul sayde: Let vs go downe after the Philistines by nyght/ and let vs make hauoke amonge them tyll it be daye in the mornyng, and let vs not leaue one of them. And the people answered, do whatsoeuer thou thinkest best. Then sayde ꝑ preaste: Let vs come hyther vnto God. And Saul asked of God: Shall I goo downe after the Philistines? and wylt thou gyue them into myne handes? But he answered him not at that tyme. Then sayde Saul, let the people come hyther out of all quarters, & knowe and se, in whome this synne is chaunced this daye: for as truly as the Lorde liueth, whiche hath saued Israell, thoughe it be in Jonathas my sonne, he shall dye for it. But no man answered him of all the people.

Then he sayde vnto all Israell: Be ye on one syde, and I and Jonathas my sonne wyll be on an other. And the people sayde vnto Saul: What thou thinkest best that do. And Saul sayde vnto the Lorde God of Israell: gyue perfect knowledge. And Saul and Jonathas nathas were apprehended by the lotte, and the people escaped free. Then sayde Saul: caste lottes betwene me and Jonathas my sonne & Jonathas was taken by the lot. Then Saul sayde to Jonathas: tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathas told him and sayd: I tasted a lytle honye vpon the ende of my staffe that was in myne handē, and se, I must dye.

Then sayde Saul God deale so and so with me, but yf thou dye Jonathas. But the people sayde vnto Saul: shall Jonathas dye whiche hath so myghtely holpe Israel? God forbyd. As truelye as the Lorde lyueth, there shal not one heare of his hed fal to the groūd: for he hathe wrought with God this daye. And so the people delyuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. And then Saul ceased from folowynge the Philistines. And the Philistines retourned to theyr owne place. And so Saul toke the kyngdome ouer Israell, and foughte against all his enemyes on every syde: against the Moabites: against the children of Ammon: against the Edomites: against the kynges of Zobah, and against the Philistines. And whether so euer he turned him selfe, there he wanne, and demeaned him selfe valiauntly, and slewe the Amalekites, and dyd Israell oute of the handes of theym that spoyled them. The sonnes of Saul were Jonathas, Jesui, and Melchisua. And his two doughters were thus named: the elder Merob, and the younger Michol. And the name of Saules wyfe was Ahinoam, the doughter of Ahimaaz. And the name of his chief captayne was Abner the sonne of Ner Saules vncle. And * Cis was Saules father. And Ner the father of Abner was the sonne of Abiel. And there was sore warre with the Philistines, al the dayes of Saul. For where so euer Saul sawe a stronge man, and an actiue, he toke him vnto him.

The people wil reskow Jonathas that he dye not.

¶ Saul is commaunded to slay Amalech. He is disobedient to the voyce of God, and saueth the spoyle for whiche the Lorde forsaketh him. Samuel mourneth for Saul.

CAPI. XV.

THen sayde Samuel vnto Saul: ỹ Lord sent me to annoynt the, kynge ouer his people Israell. Nowe therfore obeye thou the voyce of the wordes of the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I haue called to remembraunce all that euer Amalecke hath done to Israel * how they laye in wayte for them in the waye, as they came out of Egypte. Now therfore go and smyte the Amalekites, and destroye ye only all that pertayneth vnto them, and se thou haue no compassion on them. But slay man and woman, infant and sucklinge, oxe, sheepe, camell, & Asse. And Saul assembled the people, and nombred them in Telaim two hundred thousande foote men, and ten thousande men of Juda. And Saul came vnto a cytie of the Amalekites, & fought in a valey. But Saul sayde vnto ỹ Kenites: go & departe & get ye away from the Amalekites, leest I destroy you with them for ye shewed mercy to Israell when they came out of Egypte. And the Kenites departed from the Amalekites. And Saul slewe the Amalekites frome Heuila to Sur that lyeth before Egypte, and toke Agag the kynge of the Amalekites a lyue, and vtterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the swerde. But Saul and the people spared Agag, and they left of the sheepe and of the oxen and fat thinges and the lambes and all that was good, & wolde not destroye theym. But all that was nought worth and slaggye, that they destroyed vtterly. Then came the worde of the Lord vnto Samuel, sayeng: it forthinked me that I haue made Saul kynge. For he is turned frome me and hath not fulfilled my commaundementes, wherfore Samuel was euyl apayd and cryed vnto the Lorde all nyght. And Samuel arose earely, to mete Saul in the morninge. And it was tolde Samuel that Saul was come to Carmel, and hadde set him vp a pyller of triumphe. And was turned and departed and gone to Galgal.

* 1. Regum. xv. c

* Exo. xvii. c. Num. xxiiii. d Deuter. xxv. c

And when Samuel was come to Saul, Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue wone the commaundement of ỹ Lorde. And Samuel answered: What meaneth then the bleatinge of the sheepe in myne eares, and the noyse of the oxē which I heare? And Saul sayde: they haue brought theym frome the Amalekites. For the people spared the best of the sheepe and of the oxen, to sacrifice vnto the Lorde thy God. And the rest we haue destroyed. But Samuel sayde to Saul: ceasse, and let me tell the what the Lorde hath sayde to me this nyghte. And he sayde vnto hym: saye on. And Samuel sayd, when thou were lytle in thyne owne sight, wert thou not made the heed of the trybes of Israell? And ỹ Lorde annoynted the, kyng ouer Israel. And then the Lorde sent the on a viage, and sayde vnto the, se thou vtterlye destroye thole synners the Amalekites and fight against them, tyll ye haue vtterly destroyed them, wherfore then hast thou nowe not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: But dydest turne to the praye and hast wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde?

And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: I haue obeyed the voyce of the Lorde, and went the waye which the Lord sent me, & haue brought Agag the kynge of the Amalekites. And haue vtterlye destroyed the Amalekites. And the people toke of the spoyle, sheepe, oxen, and the chefest of the thinges which shuld haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto the Lorde thy God in Galgal. Then sayde Samuel, requireth the Lorde burntsacrifices and offeringes, and not rather that thou shuldest obaye his voyce? Beholde, to obaye is better then offering, and to gyue hyde, is better, then the fat of Rammes. For rebellyousnesse is as the synne of wytchecraft: and stubburnesse is wyckednesse and Idolatrye. Because therfore thou hast cast awaye the worde of the Lorde, therfore hath the Lorde cast awaye the also / frome beynge kynge. Then sayde Saul to Samuel: I haue synned, synned, for I haue offended the mouthe of the Lorde, and thy wordes, because I feared the people and they obayed theyr voyce. But now take awaye my synne, and turne agaynewith me, that I maye worshippe the Lorde. Then sayd Samuel vnto Saul: I wyl not returne with the: for thou hast cast awaye the commaundement of God, and therfore the Lorde hath cast awaye the also, that thou shalte not be kynge ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned to goo awaye, he caught the lappe of his coote, and it rente. Then Samuel sayde, the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome of Israel frō this daye, and hath gyuen it to a neyghboure of thyne that is better then thou. And therto, he that gyueth victorye to Israell, will not beguyle nor repent, for he is not a man, that can repente. Then he sayde: I haue synned. But yet honoure me before the elders of my people, and before Israell, and turne agayne with me, that I maye praye vnto the Lorde thy God. And Samuel turned agayn & followed Saul. And Saul prayd vnto ℣ Lord. Thē sayde Samuel: Bringe ye hyther to me Agag the kyng of the Amaleckites. And Agag came vnto him delicatly. And Agag sayde: truely ℣ bytternesse of death commeth on. And Samuel sayde: As thy swerde hath made wemē childlesse, so shall thy mother be childlesse amonge other wemen. And so Samuel hewed Agag in peces before the Lorde in Galgal. And thē Samuel departed to Ramath. And Saul wēt home to his house to Gabaah Saul. But Samuel came no more to se Saul tyll the day of his deathe. Neuertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, because the Lorde repented that he had made him kynge ouer Israell.

¶ Dauid is anoynted kinge: and receyueth the holy ghost. An euyll spirite commeth vpon Saul whiche departeth when Dauid playeth.

CAPI. XVI.

AND then the Lorde sayd vnto Samuel: How longe wilt thou mourne for Saul sythens I haue caste him awaye frome raygnynge ouer Israel? fyll an horne with oyntmente, and come: I will sende the to Isai the Bethlehemite, for I haue espyed me a kynge amonge his sonnes. But Samuel answered: how shall I go? For Saul shal heare it and will kyll me. And the Lord sayd: Take an heyfer with the, and say, thou goest to offer to the Lorde. And call Isai to the offrynge, and I wil shewe the what thou shalte do: And thou shalte annoynte him, whome I shall assigne the. And Samuel dyd as ℣ Lord bad him. And when he came to Bethlehem, ℣ elders of the towne were astonyed at his commynge, and sayd: Betokeneth thy comming peax? and he sayde yea, for I am come to offer vnto the Lorde. ✳ Clense your selues and come with me to the offringe. And he purified Isai and his sonnes, and bad them to the offring. And when they were come he loked on Eliab and sayd: the Lordes annointed is before him. But the Lorde sayde vnto Samuel Loke not on his facyon nor on the heyght of his stature, for I haue refused him. Because it is not as man seeth. For man loketh on the outwarde appearaunce: but the Lorde beholdeth the herte. Then Isai called Abinadab, & made him come before Samuel. And he sayd: Neyther hathe the Lorde chosen this. Then Isai made Samah come, and he sayde: neyther yet hathe the Lorde chosen this. Then made Isai seuen of his sonnes come before Samuel. And Samuel sayd, the Lorde hath chosen none of these.

Then sayde Samuel to Isai: Are here all thy children? And he sayde: The youngest is yet behynde: Beholde, he kepeth the shepe. Then Samuel sayde vnto Isai: sende and fet him for we will not sit downe to meat tyll he be come hyther. And he sent and brought him in. And he was ruddy and a goodly creature of makynge, and of a pleasaunt countenaunce. And then the Lorde sayde aryse and annoynt him: for this is he. And Samuel toke ℣ horne with the oyntement and annoynted him in ℣ presens of his brethren. And the spyryte of ℣ Lorde came vpon Dauid, from that daye forwarde. Then Samuel arose vp and went to Ramath. But the spirite of the Lorde departed frome Saul, and an euyll spyryte sent of ℣ Lorde, vexed him. Then sayde his seruaūtes vnto him: Behold, an euyll spyryte sent of God vexeth the, let our Lorde therfore cōmaunde his seruauntes to seke a mā that is a conning player with an harpe. And then when the euil spirite sent of God, cōmeth vpon the, he may playe with his hand, and thou shalt be eased. And Saul sayde vnto his seruaūtes: seke me a man that can well playe, and bringe him to me. Then aunswered one of his seruauntes & sayde: Beholde, I haue sene a sonne of Isai the Bethlehemite, that can playe vpon instrumentes, and is an actiue felow, and a man of warre, and wyse, and well made, & the Lord is with him, wherupon Saul sent messengers vnto Isai, and sayde: Sende me Dauid thy sonne which is with the shepe. And Isai toke an asse laden with bred, and a flacket of wyne and a kydde, and sente theym by Dauid his sonne vnto Saul. And Dauid went to Saul, and came before him, and he loued him very well, so that he was made his page. And Saul sente to Isai, sayenge: Let Dauid remayne with me, for he hath founde fauour in my sight. And when the spirite of God came vpon Saul, Dauid toke an harpe and played with his hande, and so Saul was refreshed/ and dyd amende, and the euyll spirite departed frome him.

CAPI. XVII.

THe Philistines gathered their hoste to battayle, and assembled at Socoh in Iuda, and pytched betwene Socoh and Azekah, in the ende of Domim. And Saul and the men of Israell came and pytched in Ockedale dale, and put them selues in araye, to fyghte agaynste the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyl on the one syde, and Israel on an hyl on the other syde, and a baley betwene them. And then came a man and stode in the myddes, oute of the tentes of the Philistines named Goliath, of Geth syxe cubites and an handbreedth long, and had an helmet of brasse vpon his heed, and a coote of mayle aboute him. And the weyght of his coote of mayle was fyue thousande sycles of brasse. And he hadde harnesse of brasse vpon his legges, and a shylde of brasse vpon his shoulders. And the shaft of his spere was lyke a weuers beame. And his spere heed waied syxe hundred sycles of yron. And one bearynge a shylde went before him.

Goliath.

And he stode and called vnto the hoste of Israel, and sayde vnto them: what neadeth that ye shuld come out in araye to battayle? am not I a Philistine, and you seruauntes to Saule? chose you a man, and lett hym come downe to me, yf he be hable to fight with me and to beate me, then we wyll be youre seruantes. But if I can ouercom hym and beate hym: ye shall be our seruantes and serue vs.

B And the Philistine sayde: I haue defyed the hoste of Israel this daye, gyue me a man and let vs fyght to gyther. When Saul and al Israel herd those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged and greately afrayed. Now Dauid was ꝑ son of an Ephrathite of Bethlehem Juda, named Isai, whiche Isai hadde eyghte sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saule amonge the people. And the thre eldeste sonnes of Isai went and folowed Saul to battayle. And the names of his thre sonnes that went to battayle, were: Eliab ꝑ eldest, and the mydlemost Abinadab, and the thyrde Samah, and Dauid was the youngest. And when ꝑ thre eldest were gone after Saul, Dauid went and departed from Saul, to kepe his fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forthe euery mornynge and euenynge, and continued thus fourtye dayes.

And Isai sayde vnto Dauid his sonne: take for thy brethren this Epha of parched corne, and these ten loues, and run to the host to thy brethren, and carye these ten freshe cheses vnto the capitayne / and loke how thy brethren fare, and fet out their pledges. And Saul and they and al the men of Israel were in oke valeye fyghtyng with the Philistines. And Dauid arose vp erlye in the mornynge, and lefte the shepe with a keper, and toke and went as Isai had commaunded him, and came where

C the hoste laye. And the hoste was goynge out in araye, & shouted in ꝑ bataple/ for Israell & the Philistines had put them selues in araye, the one agaynst the other. Then Dauid put ꝑ panier from him, vnto the handes of the keper of the vessels, and ranne in to the host & came and greted his brethrē. And as he talked with them. Beholde, there stode a mā in the middes Goliath the Philistyne, by name, of Geth/ whiche came out of the araye of the Philistines, and spake in the maner aboue rehersed, that Dauid herde it. And all the men of Israel when they sawe the man, ranne awaye from him, and were sore afrayde. And euery man of Israel sayd: Se ye this mā that is come forth euen to reuyle Israel is he come. And to hym that beateth him wyll the kyng gyue great riches, and wil gyue hym his doughter therto: yea and make his fathers house free in Israel. Then spake Dauid to the men that stode by and sayde: What shall the man haue that beateth this Philistine and taketh awaye the shame frome Israel? for what is this vncircumcysed Philistine, that he shuld reuyle the hoste of the lyuynge God? And the people answered as is rehersed, sayenge: thus shall he be rewarded that canne vaynquyshe him. And Eliab his eldeste brother herde when he spake vnto the men, and was angrye with Dauid & sayde: Why cameste thou awaye? and with whome hast thou left those fewe shepe in the wildernesse? I knowe thy pryde and the malice of thyne herte, that thou arte come to se the battel. And Dauid answered, what haue I now done? is there any more saue a worde? And departed frome him into an other frome, and spake in the same maner, and the people aunswered him agayne, as before. And they that herde the wordes which Dauid spake, rehersed them before Saul, whiche cauled hym to be fet. And Dauid sayde to Saul: Let no mans herte faynt, for drede of him. Thy seruaunt will go and fight with this Philistine. And Saul sayde to Dauid agayne, thou arte not hable to go vnto this Philistine, to fight with him. For thou arte but a childe, and he hath bene a man of warre euē from his youth. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul, as thy seruāt kept his fathers shepe, there came a Lyon, & lykewyse a Beare, and toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I went out after him, and smote him and toke it out of his mouth. And when he arose against me, I caught him by ꝑ bearde and smote him, and slewe him. For bothe a Lyon and also a Beare hathe thy seruaunte slayne. And this vncircumcysed Philistine shalbe as one of them, for his raylinge on the hoste of the lyuynge God. And Dauid spake moreouer, the Lorde that delyuered me oute of the handes of the Lyon and out of the handes of the Beare, shall delyuer me also out of the handes of the Philistine.

Then sayde Saul to Dauid goo, and the Lorde be with the. And Saul put his raymēt vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of brasse vpō his heed, and put a coote of mayle vpon him, and gyrded Dauid with his owne swerde vpō his rayment. And he assayed howe he couldē go, for he neuer proued it. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul: I can not go in these, for I haue not bene vsed therto, and put them of him, & toke his staffe in his hand, and chose him fyue smothe stones oute of a broke, and put theym in a shepeherdes bagge whiche he hadde, and toke his slynge in his hande, and went to the Philistine.

And the Philistine came and drue nere to Dauid, with the man that bare a shylde be-foze hym. And when the Philistine loked and sawe Dauid: he disdayned him, for he was but a younglynge, roudye and goodly to loke vpon. And the Philistine sayde vnto Dauid: F am I a dogge, that thou commest to me with a staffe? and he cursed Dauid in the name of his Godes. And he sayd to Dauid: come to me & I wyll gyue thy flesshe vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the feld. Then sayd Dauid to the Philistine: thou commest to me with a swerde a speare and a thilde: But I come to the, in the name of the Lozde of hostes, the God of the hoste of Israel on whom thou hast rayled. This daye shall the Lozde gyue the into my handē, and I shall smyte the and take thyne hed frome the, and I wil giue the carkases of the host of the Philistines this daye vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the earth, and all the wozlde shall knowe, that there is a God in Israel. And all G this companye shall knowe, that the Lozde saueth not with the swerde and speare. For the battayle is the Lozdes, and he shall gyue you in to our handes.

And when the Philistine arose and came and drewe nygh vnto Dauid, Dauid hasted & ranne to fyght agaynste the Philistine. And Dauid put his hand in his poke and toke out a stone and slange it, and smote the Philistine in his forhed that the stone sonke in to his forhed, and he fell grouelynge to the earth. And G iiii.o. so Dauid ouercam the Philistine with a sling xvii.d and a stone, and smote the Philistine and slew him. And because Dauid had no swerde in his hande, he ran and stode vpon the Philistine, & toke his swerde and drewe it out of his sherhe and slewe him and cut of his hed therwith. And when the Philistines sawe their champion deed, they fled. And the men of Israel and of Juda arose and showted and folowed after the Philistines, tyll they came to the valeye and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Philistines fell downe deed by the waye to Samraim euen vnto Geth and Akaron. And then the childzen of Israel returned from chasinge after the Philistines, and spoyled their tentes. And Dauid toke the hed of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalem: But he put his armoure in his tent. But when Saul saw Dauid isshe forth against the Philistine, he sayd vnto Abner the capitayne of his host: Abner, whose sonne is this ponge man? And Abner aunswered, as truely as thy soule liueth, O kynge, I can not tell. Then sayde & kynge: Enquere thou, yf he be some noble mans sonne. And so when Dauid was returned frome the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke him and brought him before Saul, with the heed of the Philistine in his hande. And Saul sayde vnto him: Whose sonne arte thou, thou young man? And Dauid aunswered the sonne of thy seruaunte Jsai the Bethlehemite.

¶ The bonde betwene Dauid and Jonathas. Saul goeth a boute to slee Dauid. Dauid marieth Michol the daughter of Saul.

AND when he had made an ende of speakynge vnto Saul, the soule of Jonathas was knyt with the soule of Dauid. And so moche, that he loued him, as his owne sowle. And Saul toke him that daye & wold let him go no more home to his fathers house. And Jonathas and Dauid bound them selues the one to the other, for Jonathas loued him as his owne lyfe. And Jonathas put of his owne cote that was vpon him, & gaue it Dauid, and therto his mantle, his swerde, his bowe, and his gyrdle. And Dauid went out to all that Saul sent him, and behaued him selfe wysely. And whē Saul had set him B ouer his men of warre, he pleased all the people, and especyally them that were Sauls seruauntes.

And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned frome the slaughter of the Philistine, that wemen came out of all cyties of Jsrael syngynge & daunsynge, against Saul, with tymbrelles, with ioye, and with fydilles. And the wemen that played, sange therto, and sayde: Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid his ten thousande. Then was Saul excedynge wrothe and the sayenge displeased him, and he sayd: They haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousande, and to me but a thousande, and what can he more haue saue the kyngdome? wherfore Saul loked a wrye on Dauid frome that daye forwarde. And it happened on the morowe, that the euyl spyrite sent of God came vpon Saul, so that he pro- C phesyed in the myddes of the house. And Dauid played on the instrument with his hande, as he was daply wōt. And Saul had a speare in his hande, and hourlde it, intendinge to haue nayled Dauid to the wall. But Dauid auoyded out of his presence two tymes. For Saul was afearde of Dauid, because þ Lozde was with him, and was departed from Saul. And then Saul put Dauid frome him & made him a capitayne ouer a thousande, and he wēt out and in before the people. And Dauid was wyse in all his wynges, and the Lozde was with him. Wherfore when Saul saw he was so excedynge wyse, he was afrayde of him. D But all Jsrael & Juda loued Dauid, because he went out and in before them. Then sayde Saul to Dauid. Beholde my eldest doughter Merob, her I will gyue the to wyfe: Onely play the man and fight the Lozdes batayles. For Saul thought myne hande shall not be vpon him, but the hande of the Philistines. And Dauid aunswered Saul: * what am I? E and what is my lyfe or the kynred of my fa- * ii. Reg. ix. c ther in Jsrael, that I shulde be sonne in lawe to the kynge? But when the tyme was come that Merob Sauls doughter shulde haue ben gyuen to Dauid, she was gyuen vnto Adriel a Meholothite, to wyfe. How be it Michol an other of Sauls doughters loued Dauid. And when it was shewed Saul: the thinge pleased him well. And he sayde: I will gyue him her, that she maye be a snare to him, to bring the hande of the Philistines vpon him. And

Saul

Haul sayde to Dauid: thou shalte this daye be my sonne in law agayne. And Saule commaunded his seruauntes, to comen with Dauid secretelye and saye: Beholde the Kynge hath a fauoure to the, and all his seruauntes lone the, be therfore the Kynges sonne in lawe.

F And Sauls seruauntes spake those wordes in the eares of Dauid. But Dauid answered: semeth it to you a lyght thynge to be the kinges sonne in lawe, when I am a poore man and of small reputacion? And Sauls seruaūtes tolde him agayne, saying: in this maner answered Dauid. Then sayd Saul: this wise saye to Dauid: the kynge careth for no nother dowrye but for an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines to be auenged of the kynges enemyes. For Saul thought to make Dauid fall in to the handes of the Philistines. Then his seruauntes tolde Dauid these wordes, and it pleased Dauid well to be the kyn

G ges sonne in lawe. And shortly after Dauid arose with his men, and went and slewe of the Philistines, two hundred men, and broughte their foreskynnes, and nombred theym vnto the kynge for to become his sonne in lawe.

*1.Reg.iii.c. * And so Saul gaue him Michol his doughter to wyfe. And when Saul sawe and vnderstode, that the Lorde was with Dauid, & that Michol his doughter loued him, he was the more afrayde of Dauid, and became Dauids ennemye for euer. And when the Philistines went out to warre, Dauid behaued him selfe more wysely then all the seruauntes of Saul: so that his name was moche set by.

¶ Saul commaundeth to slee Dauid. Michol his wyfe laueth him by a proper feat, and decepueth her father. Saul is also amonge the Prophetes.

CAPI. XIX.

A THen Saul communed with Jonathas his sonne, and with all his seruauntes, that they shulde kyll Dauid. * But Jo

M.Re.xviii.a nathas Sauls sonne had a great fauoure to Dauid, and tolde Dauid sayenge: Saul my father goeth about to slee the. Now therfore take hede to thy selfe in season, and abyde in some secret place and hyde thy self. And I will go oute and stande by my father in the felde where thou art, and will comen with my father of the, and yf I can perceyue ought, I will tell the.

And Jonathas spake good of Dauid vnto Saul his father and sayde vnto him: let not the kynge synne against his seruaunt Dauid, for he hath not trespased against the, and his workes are towardes the very good. For he dyd put his lyfe in his hande and slewe ꝑ Philistine, and the Lorde gaue a great victory to Judi.xii.a all Israell. And thou sawest it, and thou reioysedest, wherfore then shouldest thou synne against innocent bloude, and slay Dauid for nought? And Saul harkened vnto the voyce of Jonathas and sware: as truly as ꝑ Lorde lyueth, he shall not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid and shewed him all those wordes, and brought him to Saul. And he was in his presence as in tymes paste. And the warre began agayne, and Dauid went out and fought with the Philistines and made a great slaughter, and put them to flyght. And the cuyl spyrite of the Lorde was vpon Saul as he sat in his house haunge a Jauelynge in his hande, and Dauid played with his hande. And Saul entended to nayle Dauid to the wall with the Jauelynge: But Dauid fled him selfe oute of Sauls presence, and so he smote the speare in to the wall. But Dauid fled and saued him selfe that nyght. Then Saul sent messengers vnto Dauids house, to lye in awayte of hym and to slay him in the morninge. But Michol his wyfe tolde it him, sayenge: Yf thou saue not thy selfe this night, to morow thou arte a deed man. And so Michol let Dauid wyne thorow a wyndow, and he went and fled and saued him selfe. And then she toke an Image and layde it in the bed, and put a pyllow stuffed with gotes heare vnder the heed of it, & couered it with a cloth. And when Saul sent messengers to fetche Dauid, she sayde that he was sicke: Then Saul sent the messengers ase Dauid, sayenge: bringe him to me, bed and all, that he maye be slayne. And when ꝑ messengers were come in: Beholde, there lay an Image in the bed, with a pyllowe of gootes heare vnder the heed of it. Then sayd Saul to Michol: Why haste thou mocked me so, and sent awaye myne ennemy that he is escaped? And Michol answered Saul: He sayde vnto me, let me go, or els I will kyll the. And so Dauid fled and escaped and wēt to Samuel to Ramath and told him al that Saul had wyne to him. And he, and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth.

And it was tolde Saul sayenge: Beholde, Dauid is at Naioth in Ramath, then Saul sent messengers to fet Dauid. And when they saw a companye of Prophetes prophesyenge, and Samuel teachinge theym, the spyrite of God fell vpon the messengers of Saul, & they prophesyed to. And when it was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesyed lyke wyse. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the thirde tyme whiche prophesyed also. Then went he him selfe to Ramath, and when he came to a greate well that is in Socoh, he asked and sayde: Where are Samuel and Dauid? And they sayde: See they be at Naioth in Ramath, and as he wente thither to Naioth in Ramath the spyrite of God came vpon hym also, and he wente Prophesyenge, tyll he came to Naioth in Ramath. And he strypte of his clothes and prophesyed before Samuel in lyke maner, and fell naked all ꝑ daye and all that nyght, wherfore it is a comen sayenge: Is Saul also amonges ꝑ Prophetes?

¶ Dauid beynge in ieoperdye complayneth vnto Jonathas. Jonathas deliuereth him. A policy deuyced betwene them: by which Dauid shulde know the intent of Saul.

CAPI. XX.

And

A AND Dauid fled frome Naioth in Ramath and went before Jonathas, and sayd: What haue I done? wherin am I faultye? what is the synne that I haue committed against thy father that he seketh my lyfe? And Jonathas answered hym: God forbyd, thou shalte not dye. For se, my father wyll do nothynge neyther great ne small, but that he wyll shewe me. For why shulde my father hyde this thynge frome me? I knowe not. And Dauid sware agayne and sayde: thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes and therfore he thynketh, Jonathas shal not knowe it, lest he be sory. For in dede, as truly as the Lorde lyueth, and as truely as thy soule lyueth, there is but a step betwene me and death. Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid, what so euer thy soule desyreth, I will do vnto the. And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathas: Beholde, to morowe be the Kalendes, and I shulde sit with the kynge at meat. But let me goo that I maye hyde my selfe in the feldes vnto this daye thre dayes at euen.

B If thy father mysse me, saye: Dauid asked leaue of me, that he myght go to Bethlehē to his own cytie, for there is holden a yerely feast for all his kynne. And yf thy father say thus: It is well done, then thy seruaunt shall haue peax. But yf he be angrye: be sure, wyckednesse is vtterlye concluded of him. And then thou shalt shewe mercy vnto thy seruaūt, for thou hast made with me thy seruaunt a bonde in the Lorde. Notwithstandinge yf there be in me any trespace, slay me thy selfe, for what nedest thou to bringe me to thy father? And Jonathas answered: God kepe frome the, that I shulde knowe, that wyckednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the: and shulde not tell it the. Then sayde Dauid, who shall tell me, yf thy father answer cruelly? Jonathas sayde to Dauid: Come and let vs go forth into the feldes. And they went both of them into the feldes. The Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: O Lorde God of Israell,

C when I haue groped my fathers mynde, at one tyme or other, within this three dayes, that it stande well with Dauid: and I then sende not vnto the, and shew it the, the Lord do so and so vnto Jonathas. And in lyke maner, yf euyll towardes the be appointed of my father, I will shew the, and sende the away, that thou mayst go in peax. And the Lorde be with the, as he hath bene with my father.

And thou shalte performe vnto me the mercy of the Lorde, not onely whyle I lyue, but also when I am deed, plucke not thy mercye away frome my house for euer: No, not whē the Lorde hathe destroyed the ennemyes of Dauid euery one frome the face of the earth. And so Jonathas made a bonde with ꝑ house of Dauid, desyringe that the Lorde shoulde seke out of the handes of Dauids ennemyes their wyckednesse. And with other wordes Jonathas adiured Dauid, because he loued him. For as his owne soule he loued hym.

D Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid: to morowe shall be the Kalendes. And thou shalt be mysled, because the place shall appeare emptye. But on the thyrde daye come in any wyse vnto the place where thou shalt hyde thy selfe, when it is workedaye: euen by the stone Esell. And I will shote three arowes by the one syde therof, as thoughe I shoote at a marke, and will sende after, a lad, and byd him goo seke the arowes. Yf I saye vnto the lad: Se the arowes are on this syde the, bringe them: then come thou: for it is peax, and nothinge to w, as sure as the Lorde lyueth, But yf I saye thus vnto the ladde, Beholde, the arowes are beyounde the, then flee, for the Lord hath sent the awaye. And of this which thou and I haue spoken / beholde, the Lorde is witnesse betwene the and me for euer. And so Dauid hyd him selfe in the felde. And when

E the Kalendes came, the kyng sat hym downe at meate, to thintent to eate. And the kynge sat him downe after the accustomed maner, in his seate by the wall. And Jonathas arose, & Abner sate by Hauls syde, and Dauids place was emptye, but yet Saul sayde nothinge at all that daye. For he thoughte, some thynge hadde chaunced him, whereby he was not cleane. But on the morowe after the Kalendes, when Dauids place appeared emptye, Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his sonne, wherfore commeth not the sonne of Jsai to meate, neyther yesterdaye nor to day. And Jonathas answered vnto Saul. Dauid asked lycence of me to go to Bethlehem sayenge / let me go I praye the, for our kynrede holde an offring in the cytie, and my brother hath sent for me. Nowe therfore yf I haue founde fauoure in thyne eyes, let me go, and se my brethren. And for this cause he cōmeth not vnto the kynges table. Then was Saul angrye with Jonathas and sayde vnto him / O frowarde and

F rebellious childe, thinkeste thou I know not how thou hast chosen the sonne of Jsai vnto thyne owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke and shame of thy mother? For as longe as ꝑ son of Jsai lyueth vpō the erth, thou shalt not be stablysshed, nor yet thy kyngdome, wherfore now sende and fet him vnto me, * for he is the childe of death. * 1. Re. xxbi. 2. 11. Regū. xii. 9.

But Jonathas answered Saul his father and sayde to him / wherfore shulde he dye? what hath he done? Then Saul cast a speare at him to hyt him, whereby Jonathas wiste well, that it was vtterlye determined of his father, to slay Dauid. Then Jonathas arose frome the table in a great anger, and dyd eate no meate the seconde daye of the Kalendes, for he was sory for Dauid, because his father had done him shame. On the nexte morynge Jonathas went oute into the felde, at the tyme appoynted with Dauid, and a lytle lad with hym. And he sayde vnto the boye, run and fynde oute myne arowes whiche I shote. And as the boye ranne, he shote an arowe beyounde him. And when the ladde was come

G to the place whether Jonathas hadde shoote the arowe, Jonathas cryed after him, & sayd / the arowe is beyonde the. And he cryed after the lad / haste, make spede and stande not stil. And Jonathas ladde gathered vp the arowe and came to his master. But the lad wiste no-thinge of the matter: Onely Jonathas and Dauid wist it. Then Jonathas gaue his weapons vnto the lad, and sayd vnto him: goo and carye theym to the towne. And as soue as the lad was gone, Dauid arose oute of a place that was towarde the south and fel on his face to the grounde, and bowed him selfe thre tymes. And they kyssed eyther other and wept togither, but Dauid more aboundantly. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peax of suche thinges as we haue swozne eyther of vs in the name of the Lozde, sayenge: The Lozde be betwene the and me, and betwene thy sede and myne foz euer. And he arose and departed. And Jonathas wente in to the towne.

¶ Dauid flyeth in to Nob to Achimelech the preest, and getteth the we bread to satisfye his honger. Ater he flyeth to kynge Achis, and there fayneth him selfe mad.

CAP. I. XXI.

A THen came Dauid to Nob to Achimelech the preest: And Achimelech was astonied at his commynge and went to mete Dauid and sayde vnto him: Why commeste thou thy selfe alone, and no man with the? And Dauid sayde to Achimelech the preest: ꝑ kynge hath commaunded me to do a certayne thyng and sayde vnto me, lette no man know wherabout I send the and what I haue commaunded the to do. And therfoze I haue appointed my seruauntes to suche and suche places. And nowe what haste thou vnder thyne hande? gyue me fyue loues of bred oz what cõmeth to hande. And the preest answered Dauid and sayde: There is no comen bzeed vnder myne hande, but there is halowed bzed, ꝑ the younge men haue abstayned onely frome wemen. B And Dauid answered the preest and sayd vnto him: Of a truthe wemen hath bene locked vp frome vs about a thze dayes, when we came out: and the vessels of the younge men were holy. How be it ꝑ we haue taken anye vnclennelie by the waye this daye, it shall be halowed in the vessellis. And so the preest gaue him halowed bzeed, foz there was none other bzed there saue shew bzedes, that were taken frome before the Lozde, to put fresshe bzed there.

And there was the same daye a certen man of the seruauntes of Saul within the tabernacle of the Lozde named Doeg an Edomite, the chiefest of Sauls herde men. And Dauid sayde vnto Achimelech: is not here vnder thyn C hande eyther speare oz swerde? foz I haue neyther brought my swerde noz myne harnes w me, because the kynges busynes requyred hast. Then the preest answered: the swerde of Goliath the Philistine whome thou slewest in Okedale, that is here wzapt in a cloth behynd the Ephod, ꝑ thou wilte take that, take it: foz there is none other saue that here. And Dauid sayde: there is none to that, gyue it me.

And Dauid arose and fledde the same daye from the presence of Saul, and went to Achis the kynge of Geth. And the seruauntes of Achis sayde of him: Is not this Dauid the kynge of the lande? dyd they not synge vnto this felowe in daunces, sayenge: Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid his ten thousand? And Dauid put those wordes vnto his hert and was soze afrayde of Achis the kynge of Geth. And he chaunged his countenaunce before theym, and raued in their handes, and scrabled on the dozes of the gate, and let his spittell fall downe vpon his bearde. The sayd Achis vnto his seruaunt. Lo ye saw that this man was besyde him selfe, wherfoze the haue ye brought him to me? lacke I mad men, that ye haue brought this felowe to playe the mad man in my presence? he shal not come into my house.

¶ Dauid flyeth in to the caue Odollam, and then in to Mazphah to the kynge of Moab. And thence in to Hareth. Doeg betrayeth Dauid. Achimelech is accused of treason and slayne, and foure scoze and foure preastes mo with hym: because they receyued Dauid. Nob is destroyed of Saul. Abiathar flyeth to Dauid.

CAP. XXII.

SO Dauid departed thence and escaped, & came vnto the caue Odollam, which whe his brethzen & all his fathers house herde of, they went thyther to him. And there resorted vnto him all suche as were in distresse and in det and troubled in their heertes, & he was made their capitayne, and there were with him aboute foure hundzed men. And Dauid went thence to Mazphah in the land of Moab, and sayde vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father and mother (I pzay the) haue their abydynge with you, tyll I know what God will do with me. And he brought theym afoze the kynge of Moab, and they dwelte with him all the whyle that Dauid kept him selfe in holdes. And the prophete Gad, sayde vnto Dauid: Abyde not in holdes, but departe and go to the lande of Juda. Then Dauid departed and came into ꝑ fozest Hareth. And Saul herde of it: foz Dauid was knowen and also the men that were with him. And as Saul sat in Gabaah vnder a groue vpon an hyghe bancke with his speare in his hande, and all his men roundeabout him, he sayde vnto his seruauntes that were about him. Heare me, ye sonnes of Jemini: Myll the sonne of Jsai also gyue euerye one of you feldes and vyneyardes, and make you all graunde capitaines and petye capitaines, that ye haue all conspired against me, so that there is none that will shewe me any thinge, in so moche that my sonne hath made a confederacie with the sonne of Jsai? There is none of you that bewayleth my chaūce oz sheweth it in myne eare: because my sonne hath set vp my seruaunt to lye in a wayte agaynste me, as appeareth this daye.

Then aunswered Doeg the Edomite, whyche was chiefe of the seruauntes of Saul and sayde: I sawe the sonne of Jsai, when he came came to Nob, to Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, whiche sought counsell of the Lord for him, and gaue him vitayles, & the swerde of Goliath ꝑ Philistine also. Then the kinge sent to call Achimelech the preaste the sonne of Achitob, and all his fathers house: that is to saye, the preastes that were in Nob. And they came all to the kynge. Then Saul sayd: heare thou sonne of Achitob. And he sayde: here I am my Lord. Then sayd Saul to him: why haue ye conspired againste me, thou and the sonne of Isai, in so moche that thou hast gyuē him vytayle and a swerde, & hast sought counsel of God for him, that he shoulde aryse agaynst me, and lye awayt as appeareth this daye? And Achimelech answered the kynge & sayd: who is amonge all thy seruauntes as the kaythfull Dauid and the kynges sonne in lawe, and goeth at thy byddynge, and is had in honoure in thyne house? haue I this daye begōne tyll to aske counsell of God for him? be this farre frome me: lette not the kynge suspect agaynst his seruaunt any suche thinge in all the house of my father. For thy seruaūt knoweth nothinge of all this, eyther lytle or moche.

But the kynge sayde: thou shalt surely dye Achimelech, bothe thou and all thy fathers house. Then sayde the kynge vnto his fotemē that stode about him: turne and sley the preestes of the Lorde, bothe because their hande is with Dauid, and because they knewe when Dauid fled and shewed it not to me. But the seruauntes of the kyng wolde not moue their handes, to run vpon the preastes of the Lord. Then sayde the kynge to Doeg: tourne thou and smyte the preastes. And ✳ Doeg the Edomite turned and ranne vpon the preastes and slewe that same daye foure skore and fyue persones that dyd weare eche man a lynnen Ephod. And Nob the cytte of the preastes he smote with the edge of the swerde, both man and woman, chylde and sucklynge, with ore asse and shepe. Yet one of the sonnes of Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, named Abiathar estaped and fled to Dauid, and shewed hym that Saul had slayn the Lordes preastes. The Dauid sayde vnto Abiathar: I wist it ꝑ same daye, that whē Doeg the Edomite was there, he wolde surely tell it Saul. I am cause of ꝑ death of all the soules of thy fathers house. Abyde with me and feare not: be that seketh thy soule, shall seke myne, and with me thou shalt be in sauegarde.

¶ Dauyd delyuereth Keilah, and flyeth in to the wildernesse of ziph. He is comforted of Jonathas. The ziphiens wolde haue betrayed him.

CAPI. XXIII.

THen they tolde Dauid, sayenge: Beholde, the Philistines fight againste Keilah, and spoyle the barnes. Dauid therfore asked the Lordes aduyse, sayenge: shall I goo and smyte the Philistines? And the Lorde sayde vnto Dauid: Go and smyte the Philistines, and saue Keilah. Then sayd Dauids men vnto him: Se, we be afrayde here in Juda. What shall we then be, when we come to Keilah, to the host of the Philistines? Then Dauid asked the Lorde agayne. And ꝑ Lorde answered him and sayde, aryse, and go to Keilah, for I wyll gyue the Philistines into thyne handes. So Dauid and his men wēt to Keilah, and fought with the Philistines / and draue awaye their catel and made a great slaughter of theym. And so Dauid saued the inhabitauntes of Keilah. Nowe it chaunced, when Abiathar the sonne of Achimelech, had fled to Dauid to Keilah, that he broughte an Ephod in his hande.

And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Keilah. Then sayd Saul: God hath gyuen him into myne hande. For he is shut in sythe he is come into a towne where be bothe gates and barres. And Saul called all ꝑ people to warre, for to goo to Keilah, to besyege Dauid and his men. But Dauid had knowledge that Saul pryuely imagined myschiefe againste him, and sayde to Abiathar the preast: ✳ Bringe the Ephod. Then sayde Dauid, O Lorde God of Israell, thy seruaunt heareth, that Saul is about to come to Keilah to destroye the cytie for my sake: wyll the elders of Keilah delyuer me into his hande? or will Saul come as thy seruaunte heareth saye? Lorde God of Israel tell thy seruaunt. And ꝑ Lorde sayde: He will come. Then sayde Dauid: Will the men of Keilah delyuer me and my men into the hande of Saul? & the Lord sayd: they will delyuer you.

Then Dauid and his men which were vpō a fyre hundred, arose and departed out of Keilah, and went here and there, they knew not whether. And when it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was fled frome Keilah, and so in sauegarde, he let the iourneye alone. And Dauid abode in the wyldernesse in stronge holdes, & in a mountayne in the wyldernesse of Ziph. And Saul sought him all his lyfe, but God delyuered him not into his hande. And Dauid saw that Saul was come out, to seke his lyfe but Dauid was in the wyldernesse of Ziph in a couert. And Jonathas Sauls sonne arose & went to Dauid to the couert, and strengthted him in God, and sayde vnto him: Feare not, for the hand of Saul my father shal not fynd the, but thou shalt be kynge ouer Israel, and I muste be next vnto the. Yea, and Saul my father knoweth that it shall be so. And they made ✳ a bonde togyther before the Lorde, & Dauid taryed styl in the wood, but Jonathas went to his house.

Then came the Ziphites to Saul vnto Gabaah, sayenge: Dauid hydeth him selfe faste by vs in stronge holdes that are in a couert in the hyll of Hachilah on the ryghteside of the wildernesse. Nowe therfore syr kynge, come downe with all the lust that thy soule hath to come. And it shalbe our partes to delyuer him into the handes of ꝑ kynge. Then sayd Saul: Blessed are ye in the Lorde: for ye haue compassion on me. Goo, I praye you, and marke more narowly, and knowe and se his haunte, D where his fote hath bene, and who hath sene him there: for it is tolde me he is very wyly. He therfore and knowe all the lorkynge places where he lourketh, and come agayne to me with the certentye, And I will goo with you. Yea and if he will hyde him selfe in the grounde, yet I will hunt him out, with all the thousandes of Juda. And they arose and went to Ziph before Saul. But Dauid and his men were in the wildernesse of Maon, in the wylde felde, on the ryght hande of the wyldernesse. For when Saul was gone with his men to seke, it was tolde Dauid. And therfore he went vnto a rocke and dwelt in the wilderneſſe of Maon, whiche when Saul hearde, he pursued after Dauid in to the wildernesse of Maon. But Saule and his men went one the one syde of the mountayne, and Dauid and his men on the other. And Dauid as a man amased, made haste to gette frome Saul. For Saul and his men had compalled Dauid & his men round about, to take them. Then there came a messenger to Saul, sayinge: Haste the and come, for the Philistines haue inuaded & do dispoyle the lande. Wherfore Saul returned frome persecutynge Dauid, and made agaynste the Philistines. And therfore the place is called * Hela Mahelecoth. And then Dauid went thence and dwelt in stronge holdes at Engaddi.

* That is the rock of gtictō

¶ Dauid flyeth into Engaddi and there hideth him. Saul cometh in thyther to do his eallment and Dauid cutteth of the border of his mātel. Dauid goeth out of the caue after Saul and speaketh to him.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A When Saul was come agayne frome the Philistines, there were that tolde him, sayenge: beholde, Dauid is in the wylderneſſe of Engaddi. Then Saul toke three thousande chosen men oute of all Israel, and went to seke Dauid and his men in the rockes, where nothinge haunted but wylde gootes. And he came to the flockes of shepe, by a wayes syde where was a caue. And Saul wēt in couer his fete. And Dauid and his men sat a longe by the sydes of the caue. And the men of Dauid sayde vnto him: se, the daye is come of which the Lorde sayde vnto the: Beholde, I will delyuer thyne ennemye into thyne hād, and thou shalt do with him what it pleaseth the. Then Dauid arose and cut of a lappe of Sauls cote prpuely. And forthwith Dauids hert smote him, because he had cut of a lappe of Sauls cote. And he sayde vnto his men: þ Lorde kepe me frome doynge that thinge vnto
B my master that is the Lordes annointed, to laye myne hande vpon him, sythe he is þ Lordes annointed. And so Dauid kept of his seruauntes with wordes, and suffred theym not to set vpon Saul. And when Saul was ryſen out of the caue, and went forward on his iourneye, Dauid arose and went out of þ caue and cryed after Saul, sayeng: My lord kyng. And Saul loked behynde him. And Dauid stouped to the earth and bowed him self, and sayd to Saul: Wherfore gyuest thou an eare to mens wordes, that saye, Dauid seketh the cupll? Beholde, this daye thyne eyes haue C sene, that the Lorde had delyuered the, into myne hande in the caue. And when they bad kyll the, myne eye had compassion on the: and I sayde: I will not lay my handes on my master, for he is þ Lordes annointed, but rather my father, se yet and acknowledge this the lap of thy coote in my hande. And in asmoche as I kylled the not also, when I cut of þ lap of thy coote, vnderstande and se, that there is neyther cupll ne rebellion in me, and that I haue not synned against the. And yet thou hūtest after my soule to destroye it. The Lorde be iudge betwene the and me, and the Lorde auenge me of the. But myne hand be not vpō the. Accordinge to the olde Prouerbe: Wyckednesse shall proceede out of the wycked: but myne hande shall not be vpon the. After whō arte thou come out, thou kynge of Israel? what is he whome thou chasest? certes euen a deed dogge, and a flee. The Lorde be iudge, and let him deme betwene the and me, and se and iudge my cause, and delyuer me oute of thyne hande. When Dauid had made ende of speakynge all these wordes to Saul, Saul D sayde: is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and he lyfte vp his voyce and wepte, and sayde to Dauid: Thou arte ryghteouser then I, for thou haste rewarded me with good, & I haue acquyted the with cupll. And thou haste shewed this daye how louyngly thou hast dealt with me, that when the Lorde had locked me in thyne hādes, thou slewest me not. For who when he shall fynde his ennemy will let him departe in a good waye? Wherfore the Lord rewarde the with good, for that thou haste done vnto me this daye. And now forasmoch as I know assuredly that thou shalt be kynge and that the kyngdome of Israel shalde establyshed in thyne hande: Swere vnto me by the Lord, that thou shalt not destroy my sede after me, and that thou shalt not destroy my name out of my fathers house: & Dauid swar vnto Saul, So Saul went home, But Dauid and his men gat them vp vnto an holde.

¶ Samuel dyeth. Dauid flyeth to the wildernesse of Pharan. He is angrye with Nabal: but is pacyfyed by the wysdome of Abigail. Nabal dyeth, and Dauid maryeth Abigail.

CAPI. XXV.

THen Samuel dyed, and al Israel assembled and lamented him and buryed him G in his owne house at Ramath. But Dauid arose & gat him to the wildernesse of Pharan. And there was a man in Maon / whose catell was in Carmell, & the man was exceadinge mighty, & had three thousande shepe & a thousand gotes. And he was shering his shepe in Carmell. The name of the man was Nabal, & the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and was a woman of good wysdome & bewtyfull. But the man was churlyshe & of shrewde condicions, & was a Calebite. And when Dauid herde herde in the wildernesse, that Nabal share his shepe, he sent out ten of his younge men, and sayd vnto them: get you vp to Carmel and go to Nabal and greete him in my name. And thus wise saye vnto my frinde: peax be to the, peax be to thine house, and peax be vnto all that thou haste. I haue herde saye thou haste sherers. Now, thy shepeherdes were with vs, & we did them no despite ne villanye, neyther was there ought missinge vnto them, all the whyle they were with vs in Carmel: aske thy seruauntes, & they will shewe the. Wherfore let these yong men finde fauour in thine eyes (for we come in a good season) & ✠ giue (I praye the) whatsoeuer commeth to thine hande, vnto thy seruauntes and to thy sonne Dauid. So Dauids younge men came and tolde Nabal all those wordes in the behalfe of Dauid and then stopped. Then Nabal answered Dauids seruauntes and sayde: what is Dauid? and what is the sonne of Isai? there is plentye of seruauntes nowe a dayes, that breake away from their masters. Shuld I take my breed, my water and my flesh that I haue killed for my sherers, and giue it vnto men which I wote not whence they be? The Dauids seruauntes turned their waye / and went agayne, and came and tolde him accordinge to al those sayenges. Then Dauid said vnto his men: gyrde euery man his sworde aboute him. And they gyrded euerye man his sworde on him, and Dauid therto gyrde on his sworde. And so there folowed Dauid aboute foure hundred men, and two hundred abode by the stuffe. But one of the seruauntes tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, sayenge: Se Dauid sent messengers vnto our master oute of the wyldernesse to salute him, & he reuyled them. And yet the men were very good vnto vs and dyd vs no displeasure, neyther myssed we any thinge, as longe as we were conuersaunt with them, when we were in the feldes. Yea they were a wall of defence vnto vs, both by night and by daye, all the whyle we were with the kepinge shepe. Nowe take hede and se, what thou haste to do, for myschiefe is concluded to be done vnto our master and to all his household. And he is vngracious to speake to. The Abigail made hast and toke twoo hundred loues and two botelles of wyne and fyue shepe redye dressed, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundred bondelles of resings, & two hundred fraples of fygges, and laded them on asses, and sayde vnto her young men: go before me, and lo I come after you, & tolde her husbande Nabal nothinge therof. And as she rode on her asse, & was comminge downe in a slade of the hyll, Dauid and his men came downe against her, and she met them. And Dauid sayde: in vayne haue I kept all that this felowe hadde in the wyldernesse: so that nought was myssed that pertayned vnto him, for he hathe acquyted me with euyll for good. So and so God do vnto the ennemyes of Dauid, as I will not leaue of all that pertayne to him, by the dawninge of the daye, ought that pisseth against the wall. When Abigail sawe Dauid, she hasted and dyd alyte of her asse, and fell before Dauid on her face, and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and fell at his fete and sayde: Let this vnhappye dede be accompted myne, my Lorde, and let thyne handemayde speake in thyne audience, and heare the wordes of thy handemayde. Let not my Lorde regarde this vnthrifty mã Nabal, for as his name is, so is he. Nabal is his name, and folly is with him. But I thyn handemayde sawe not the younge men of my Lorde which thou sendest. And now my Lord as truely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, the Lorde hath withholden the frome commynge to shede bloude, and frome auengynge thy selfe with thyne owne hande. Furthermore I praye God that thyne ennemyes and they that intende to do my Lorde euyll, maye be as Nabal. And now take this blessinge, whiche thyne handemayde hathe brought to the my Lorde, let it be gyuen vnto the younge men that folowe my Lorde. For-gyue the trespace of thyne handemayde that the Lorde maye make my Lorde a sure house because my Lorde fighteth the battelles of ỹ Lorde, and there coulde none euyll be founde in the, in all thy lyfe. And yf any man aryse to persecute the, and to seke thy soule, the soule of my Lorde mought be preserued as it were in a bondell of lyuynge thinges, with the Lorde thy God. And the soules of thy ennemyes be slonge in the myddle of a slynge. And when the Lorde shall haue done to my Lorde all the good that he hathe promysed the, and shall haue made the, ruler ouer Israell: then shall it be no grudge of conscience vnto the or discourage of herte vnto my Lorde, that thou shedest bloude causeles, and dyddest auenge thy selfe.

And when the Lorde shall haue dealt well with my Lorde, thinke on thyne handmayde Then sayde Dauid to Abigail: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel which sent the this day to mete me. And blessed be thy behauour, and blessed be thou which hast kept me this daye frome bloudshedinge, and frome auengynge my selfe with myne owne hande. For, in very dede as surely as the Lorde God of Israel lyueth, who hath kept me backe frome hurting the, except thou haddest hasted and met me, there hadde not bene left vnto Nabal by the dawninge of the daye, a piller against ỹ wall. And so Dauid receyued of her hande that she brought, and sayd to her: go in peax to thyne house. Lo I haue obeyed thy voyce and haue receyued the to grace.

And when Abigail retourned to Nabal: beholde, he held a feast in his house lyke ỹ feast of a kynge, and Nabals herte was merry with in him, for he was well dronke. Wherfore she tolde him naught neyther lytle nor moche tyll the morowe. But in the mornynge, when Nabal hadde dygested the wyne, his wyfe tolde him these wordes, and his herte dyed with in him, and he became as a stone, and vpon a ten dayes after the Lorde smote Nabal, that he dyed. Which when Dauid herde that Nabal was dead, sayde: Blessed be the Lord that hath iuged the cause of my rebuke of the hande of Nabal, and hath kept his seruaunt from euyll, and hathe turned the wickednesse of Naball vpon his owne heed. So Dauid sent to commen with Abigail, to thintent to take her to his wife. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her, sayinge: Dauid sent vs vnto the, to take the to his wyfe. And she arose and fell on her face to the erthe and sayde: Beholde, thy hand mayde be a seruaunt to wasshe the fete of the seruauntes of my Lorde. And Abigail hasted and arose and gat her vp vpon an Asse, with. v. damosselles of hers that went at her fete, and went after the messengers of Dauid and was his wyfe. Dauid also take Ahinoan of Jezrahel, and they were both his wiues. But Saul gaue Michol his daughter Dauids wife to Phalti the sonne of Lais of Gallim.

¶ Saul sleapeth in his tent, And Dauid taketh away his speare and a cruse of water, that stode at his heade.

CAPI. XXVI.

A After that came ꝑ Ziphites vnto Saul to Gabaah, saying: Dauid hydeth hym selfe in ꝑ hill of Hachilah before ꝑ wildernesse. Then Saule arose and went to the wyldernesse of Ziph and thre thousande chosen men of Jsrael with him, to seke Dauid in the wildernesse of Ziph. And Saul pytched in the hill of Hachilah whiche lyeth before the wyldernesse, by the wayes syde. But Dauid dwelt in the wyldernesse. And when he sawe that Saul pursued him into the wildernesse, he sent forth espyes and vnderstode that Saul was come in dede.

Wherfore Dauid arose and went to the place where Saul had pytched, and beheld the place where Saul lay with Abner the son of Ner, his chiefe capitayne. For Saul laye within a rounde banke, and the people pytched roundeabout him. Then answered Dauid and spake to Ahimelech the Hethite and to Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah and brother to Joab, sayenge: Who will go downe with me to Saul to the hoste? and Abisai sayde: J will goo downe with the. And so Dauid and Abisai came to the people by nyght. And beholde, Saul laye slepinge within a rounde
B bancke, and his speare pytched in the ground at his heed, Abner & the people lyenge round about him. Then sayde Abisai to Dauid: God hath inclosed thyne ennemy vnto thyne hand this daye. Now therfore let me smyte him J pray the with my speare to the earth, but one stroke, and it shall nede no more. But Dauid ☞ sayde to Abisai: destroy him not, for who can laye his hande on the Lordes annoynted and be giltlesse? And Dauid sayde furthermore: as truely as the Lorde lyueth, oneles ꝑ Lord shall smyte him, or his daye shall come to dye or he shall descende into battell and there perysshe: the Lorde kepe me from layeng myne hande vpon the Lordes annoynted. Now the take the speare that is at his heed, and the crewse of water, and let vs goo. And Dauid toke the speare and the crewse of water that was at Sauls heed, and they gat them away and no man saw or wist it or awoke. For they were all a slepe, because the Lorde had sent a slomber vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer
C to thother syde and stode on the toppe of an hyll a farre of (a great space beynge betwene theym) and cryed to the people and to Abner the sonne of Ner, sayeng: Answeresi thou not Abner? and Abner answered and sayd: What art thou that cryest to the kynge? and Dauid
D sayde to Abner: art not thou a man, and who is lyke the in Jsrael? But wherfore hast thou not kept thy Lorde the kyng? For there came one of the folke to destroy the kyng thy Lord. It is not good that thou hast done. As truely as the Lorde lyueth ye are worthy to dye, because ye haue no better kepte the Lordes annoynted. And now se where the kynges speare is, and the crewse of water, that was at his heed.

Then Saul knewe Dauids voyce & sayde: is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and Dauid sayde: it is my voyce my Lorde kynge. And he sayd further wherfore weth my Lord pursue his seruaunt? for what haue J wrought? what euyll is in myne hande? Nowe heare therfore (my Lorde kynge) the wordes of thy seruaunte. Jf the Lorde haue stered the vp against me, let him smell the sacrifice. But yf they be the children of men, cursed be they before the Lorde. For they haue caste me out so E that J can not dwell in the enheritaunce of ꝑ Lord, sayeng: hence & go serue other Goddes. And yet J hope my bloude shall not fal to the earth before the face of the Lorde, though the kynge of Jsraell be come out to hunt one flee, as men hunt the partregis in the mountaynes Then sayd Saul: J haue synned: come againe my sonne Dauid for J will wo the no more harme, because my soule was precious in thyne eyes this daye. Beholde, J haue played the fole and haue erred excedinge moche. And Dauid answered and sayde: Beholde the kynges speare, let one of the younge men come ouer and fet it. The Lord rewarde euery mās righteousnesse and faith: for the Lorde deliuered the into my hand this day, but J would not laye myne hande vpon the Lordes anoynted. And as thy lyfe was moche set by this tyme in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lorde, that he deliuer me out of all tribulacions. And Saul sayde to Dauid: Blessed arte thou my sonne Dauid, for thou shalt be a doer and also able to bringe to an ende. And so Dauid went his way, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

¶ Dauid fleeth to Achis kynge of Geth, which gyueth him Ziheleg to dwell in. He killeth the Philistines. And when Achis demaunded agaynste whome he had roued, he cloketh him a subtyll answere and deceyueth hym properlye.

CAP. XXVII.

THen thought Dauid in his hert: J may A perish at one daye or other by the hādes of Saul. There is no better thing for me then then to flee in to the lande of the Philistines, that Saul of verye dispayre to fynde me, may cease sekynge me any more in all the coostes of Israel: for so I may escape his hand. And Dauid arose, and he and the fyre hundred mē that were with him went vnto Achis the sonne of Maoch kynge of Geth. And Dauid dwelte w Achis at Geth, bothe he & his men, euery man with his houlholde, and Dauid with his two wyues: Ahinoam the Jezrahelite and Abigail Nabals wife of Carmell. So whē it was told Saul ꝑ Dauid was fled to Geth, he soughte no more for him. And Dauid sayd vnto Achis: Yf I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, let me haue a place in some towne in the feldes, that I maye dwell there. For what sholde thy seruaunt dwell in the heed cirye of the kingdome with the? Then Achis gaue him Zikeleg the same daye for which cause Zikeleg pertayneth vnto the kynges of Juda vnto this daye. And the tyme that Dauid dwelte in the countreye of the Philistines, was a yere and foure monethes. And Dauid and his men went and ran vpon the Gesurites, the Gerzites, and the Amalekites, whiche nations were from the begynnynge the inhabitantes of the lande, as men go to Sur, and so forth to Egypt. And Dauid smote the lande, and lefte neither man ne womā alyue/and toke the shepe, the oxen, the asses, camels, and clothes, and remoued & came to Achis. And Achis sayde/haue ye not bene a rouyng this daye? And Dauid answered/yes in the southe of Juda/and in the southe of the Jezrahelytes, and in the south of the Kenites. And Dauid saued neither man nor woman alyue to bryng to Geth, sayinge leest they shold speake agaynste vs: Thus dyd Dauid, and so was his maner all the whyle he dwelte in the countrey of the Philistines. And Achis bileued Dauid, saying: He hath wrought moche mischefe agaynst his people Israel, and therfore he shall be my seruaunt for euer.

¶ The Philistines moue warre agaynste Saul and the Israelites. Saul requyreth councell of God but hath no answere: and then seketh after an enchaunter, who rayseth vp the spirite of Samuel.

CAPI. XXVIII.

IT chaunced in those dayes that the Philistines gathered their host togyther to war, intendynge to fight with Israel. And Achis sayd to Dauid: Be sure thou shalte goo oute with me in the host, and thy men also. And Dauid said agayn to Achis: then thou shalt know what thy seruaunt can do. And Achis sayde to Dauid: Then I wyll make the keper of my heed for euer. Samuel was then deed, and all Israel had lamented him, and buryed hym in Ramath his owne city. And Saul had put the women that had spirites of prophesye and the sorcerers out of the lande. And the Philistines gathered togyther, and came & pitched in Sunam, and Saul and all Israel gathered togyther and pytched in Gelboe. When Saul saw the host of the Philistines, he was afrayde, & his herte was sore astonyed. And Saul asked counsel of the Lorde: But the Lord answered him not, neither by dreame, nor by preestes, nor yet by the Prophetes.

Then sayd Saul vnto his seruantes: seke me a woman hauing a spirite of prophecye, that I maye goo to her and aske of her. And his seruauntes sayd to hym: se, there is a wyfe that hath a spirite of prophesie at Endor. And Saul chaunged his clothes, and put on other rayment/and then went he & two men with him, and they came to the wyfe by nyghte/and he sayde: prophesye vnto me by the spirite, and bring me him vp whom I shal name vnto the. And the wyfe sayde vnto him: Beholde thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath destroyed the women that hadde prophesienge spirites, & the sorcerers out of the land. Wherfore then layest thou a net for my soule to kyll me? And Saul swore to her by the Lord, sayinge: as surely as the Lorde liueth, there shal no harme chaunce the for this thynge. Then sayd the wyfe: whome shall I fetche vp vnto the? and he sayd: bring me vp Samuel. When the woman sawe Samuel, she cryed w a loude voyce and spake to Saul, saying: why haste tho mocked me? for thou arte Saul. And the kyng said vnto her, be not afrayde: But what seest thou? And the wyfe sayd vnto Saul: I se a God ascendyng vp out of the erth. And he sayde: what facion is he of? And the woman sayde: there commeth vp an olde man with a mantel vpon him. And Saul perceyued that it was Samuel, and stouped with his face to ꝑ grounde and bowed hym selfe. And Samuel said to Saul: why hast thou vnquieted me, to make me brought vp? And Saul answered: I am sore encombred. For the Philistines make warre agaynst me, and God is departed from me, and answered me no more, neyther by prophetes, neyther by dreames/& therfore I haue called the, to tell me what I shall doo. Then said Samuel: wherfore axest thou aske of me? whyle the Lorde is gone from the, & is thyne ennemye/the Lorde wyll do to the as he sayde by my hand. For the Lord wil rent the kyngdome oute of thyne hande, and gyue it thy neighbour Dauid, bycause thou obeyedst not the voyce of the Lord, nor executedst his fearce wrath vpō the Amalekites. Therfore hath the Lord done this vnto the this daye. And further the Lorde wyll delyuer Israel with the in to the handes of ꝑ Philistines/& to morow shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me/and ꝑ Lorde shall gyue the host of Israel in to the handes of the Philistines. Then Saul fell forthwith flatte on the erth, and was sore a dredde of the wordes of Samuel.

And therto there was no strength in him, for he hadde not eaten all the daye before. And the woman came vnto Saul, & sawe he was sore troubled, and sayd vnto him. Se, thyne handmayde hath obeyed thy voice, and haue put my soule in my hande, & haue harkened vnto thy wordes, whiche thou sayedst vnto me. Nowe therfore harken thou also vnto the voyce of thyne handmayde, and let me set a morsell of breed before the, and eate and get the strength to go thy iourneye. But he refused it and sayd: I wil not eate. But his seruauntes & the wyfe

togyther compelled him, that he herde theyr voyce. And so he arose from the erthe and sate him on a bed. The woma had a fat calfe in the house, and that she hasted and killed, and toke flour & knede it, and did bake him swete cakes, and brought them before Saul, and before his seruantes/and when they had eaten, they stode vp, and went awaye the same nyght.

¶ Dauid goying with kyng Achis to fyght agaynst Saul is sent agayne by the meanes of the Lordes of the Philistines.

CAPI. XXIX.

A THe Philistines gathered al theyr hostes togyther vnto Aphek/and Israel pitched by a fountayn in Jezrahel. And the lordes of the Philistines wet forth by hundredes and by thoulandes. But Dauid and his men came behynde with Achis. Then sayd the lordes of the Philistines: what wyl yonder Hebrues? And Achis said vnto the lordes of the Philistines. Is not this Dauid the seruaunt of Saul the king of Israel, which hath ben with me dayes or yeres, and I haue found no faulte B in him sithens he fled vnto me vnto this daye. Neuertheleste the lordes of ꝑ Philistines were wroth with him and sayde vnto him: Make this felow returne, & let him go agayn to his 1. Parali. xi. d place whiche thou hast apoynted him. For he shall not goo with vs to battayle, lest he be an aduersarye to vs in the battayle, when we begyn to fyghte. For wherwith coulde he better obtayne the fauour of his master, then vpon the heedes of our men? Is this not Da- uid to whome they sange in daunces: ✳ Saul 1. Reg. xviii. a and. xxi. d slew in thousandes, but Dauid ysin ten thou- Eccli. xlvii. c. sandes? Then Achis called Dauid and said vn to him: As truely as the Lorde lyueth thou arte honest, and it pleaseth me well that thou sholdest accompany me in the hoste/for I haue found none euyl with the from the tyme thou camest to me vnto this day. Neuertheleste the C Lordes of the Philistines fauoure the not: wherfore returne and goo in peax, that thou displeale not ꝑ Lordes of the Philistines. And Dauid said agayn to Achis: Why, what haue I done? and what hast thou founde in thy ser uaunt as longe as I haue ben with the vnto this daye? that I maye not go fyght agaynste the ennemyes of my Lorde the kynge.

Achis answered and sayd to Dauid: I wot D well, thou pleasest me, as it were an aungell of God. Notwithstandynge the lordes of the Philistines haue sayde, that thou shalte not go with them to battayle. Wherfore aryse vp erly in the mornyng with thy masters seruan- tes that are come with the. And when ye be vp erlye, as soone it begyn to be daye, departe. And so Dauid and his men arose erlye to de- parte in the mornyng, and to returne in to the lande of the Philistines. And the Philistines went vp to Jezrahell.

¶ Dauid returnynge from kynge Achis fyndeth zi kleg burnte. He pursueth after the burners therof and killeth them and recouereth the praye.

CAPI. XXX.

BVt er Dauid and his men were come to A Zikeleg the thirde daye, the Amalekites had made assault in the south part vpon Zikeleg, and had smytten Zikeleg & burnt it with fyre/and had taken the women there pri soners, both smal & great, but slew not a man, but caryed them with them & departed. When Dauid and his men came to the citye/beholde it was burnt with fire/and their wiues, theyr sonnes and theyr doughters were taken pry- soners. Then Dauid and the people that was with hym lyfte vp theyr voyces and wept tyl they coulde wepe no moze. And Dauids two wyues were taken prysoners also/ Ahinoam B the Jezrahelite/ and Abigail the wyfe of Na- ball the Carmelite. And Dauid was sore trou bled/for the people intended to stone him, be- cause the hertes of all the people were vexed for theyr sonnes and their doughters. But Da uid toke a good herte to him in the Lorde his God, and sayd to Abiathar the preest Achime- lechs sonne: bynge me the Ephod. And Abi- thar brought the Ephod to Dauid. And Dauid asked the Lorde, sayinge: shall I pursue this companye? and shal I ouertake them? And he sayd to him: folowe, for thou shalte ouertake them and recouer the praye. So he wente and C the fire hundred men that were with him, and they came to the ryuer Besor, where a parte of them abode. Neuertheleste Dauid and foure hundred men folowed, but two hundred abode behynde, being to werye to go ouer the ryuer Besor. Then they founde an Egyptian in the felde, and brought him to Dauid and gaue him breed to eate, and water to drynke/& gaue him a fewe fygges, and two clusters of reasynges, and when he hadde eaten, his spirites came a- gayne to him, for he had eaten no breed, nor dronke no water in thre dayes and thre nyght- D tes. Then Dauid sayde vnto him: to whome belongest thou, and whence art thou? And the lad answered: I am an Egyptian, and seruant to an Amalekite: & my master lefte me behynd because it is thre dayes a gone that I fell sicke we came a rouing vpon the south of Cerethis, and vpon them of Juda, and on the southe of Caleb. And we burnt Zikeleg with fyre. And Dauid sayd to him: canste thou bynge me to this company? And he said: I swere vnto me by God, that thou wylt neyther kyll me, nor de- lyuer me in to the handes of my master, and I wyll bynge the vnto them. And when he had brought him: se, they laye scattered all abrode vpon the erth, eatynge and drynkynge and tri- umphynge ouer all the greate praye that they had caryed awaye out of the lande of the Phi listines, and out of the lande of Juda.

And Dauid sayde vpon them from the twy- E lyght, vntyll the euen of the next daye/so that there escaped not a man, saue four hundred yonge men, which rode awaye vpon camels and fled. And Dauid recouered all that the Amalekites had caried awaye, and his two wyues/so that there was no person lackynge small or great/ sonne or doughter, or of the spoyle of all that they had taken awaye, but Dauid brought all agayne. And Dauid toke all the shepe and the oxen. And they draue the cattell before & sayd: this this is Dauids prayer. And then Dauid came to the two hundred men that were ouer wery to folowe Dauid, whiche they made to abyde at the riuer Besor. And they came to mete Dauid and the people that were with him. And when Dauid came to the people, he greted the peacibly. Then answered all the wycked and the vnthryftes of the men that went with Dauid, and sayd: bicause they went not with vs, therfore shall none of the prayer that we haue recouered be gyuen vnto them, saue to euery man his wyfe & his chyldren: whiche let them carye awaye and be walkynge.

Then sayd Dauid: ye shall not doo so (my brethren) with that the Lorde hath gyuen vs, and hath preserued vs, and delyuered the compayne that came agaynst vs in to our handes. For who sholde herken vnto you in this matter? But as his parte is that goeth and fyghteth, so good shal his parte be that taryeth by the stuffe/they shal parte it alyke. And so from that day forwarde, was that made a law and a custome in Israel, and dureth tyl this daye. When Dauid came to Zikeleg, he sent of his prayer vnto the elders of Juda, and to his frendes, sayinge: Se there a present for you, of the spoyle of the enemies of the Lord. He sent to them of Bethel, to them of south Ramath: to them of Gether: to them of Aroer: to the of Sephamoth/to them of Esthamo/to them of Rachal/to them of the cityes of the Jerhameelytes: to them of the cities of the Kentites/ to them of Haramah/to them of Borasan/to them of Athach/ to them of Hebron/ and to all places where Dauid and his men were wonte to haunte.

¶ The battayle betwene the Philistines and Israel. Saul kylleth him self, and his children are slayne in the battayle.

CAPI. XXXI.

AND as the Philistines fought agaynst Israel, the men of Israell fled away fro the Philistines, & fell downe deed in mount Gelboe. And the Philistines made after Saul and his sonnes/and slew Jonathas, Abinadab and Melchisua, Sauls sonne. And the battell went sore agaynst Saul, in so moche that he was sore wounded of the shoters. Then sayd Saul vnto his harnes bearer * drawe out thy swerd and thrust me thorow therwith, lest these vncircumcised come thrust me thorow, and make a mockynge flocke of me. But his harnes bearer wold not/for he was sore afrayde. Wherfore Saul toke a swerde and fell vpon it. And when his harnes bearer saw that Saul was deed, he fell lykewyse vpon his swerde & dyed with him. And so Saul dyed and his thre sonnes, and his harnes bearer, & all his men that same daye togyther. When the men of Israel that were of the other syde the valeye, & they of the other syde Jordan herde that the men of Israel were put to flyght, and that Saul & his sonnes were deed/they lefte the cities and ran awaye, and the Philistines came & dwelte in them. * On the morow when the Philistines were come to stryp them that were slayn, they founde Saul and his thre sonnes lyinge in mount Gelboe. And they cut of his heed, & stripped him out of his harnesse, and sent in to the land of the Philistines euery where, to publysshe in the houses of theyr goddes, and to the people. And they hanged vp his harnesse in the house of Astaroth, but they hanged vp his carkesse on the walles of Bethsan. When the inhabitantes of Jabes in Galaad herd what the Philistines had doone to Saul, they arose as many as were men of warre, and went all nyght and toke the corps of Saul, and the corses of his sonnes from the walles of Bethsan and brought them to Jabes, and * burnte them there, and toke theyr bones and buryed them vnder a tree at Jabes, and fasted seuen dayes.

¶ Dauid commaundeth to slee the messenger, that sayde he hadde kylled Saul. The Lamentacion of Dauid for Saul and Jonathas.

CAPI. I.

A After the deathe of Saul, whē Dauid was returned from ꝑ slaugh ter of the Amalekites, and had ben two dayes in Zikeleg: Beholde, there came a man the thirde daye oute of the hoste frome Saul with his clothes rent, and erthe vpon his heed. And when he came to Dauid, he fell to the erthe & did obeysaunce. To whom Dauid said, whēce commest thou? And the other answered hym: Out of the hoste of Israel am I escaped. And Dauid sayd to him agayne. How hath it chaūced? tell me. And he sayd: the people fled from the battell/ and many of the people are ouerthrowen and deed / and Saul and Jonathas his sonne are deed therto. And Dauid sayd vn
B to the yong man that tolde him/how knowest thou that Saul and Jonathas his sonne be deed? And the yonge man that tolde him said: I was by chaunce in mounte Gelboe. And se, Saul leaned vpon his speare/ and the charets and horsemen folowed him at the heles. And Saul loked backe and called me: And I answered: here am I. And he said vnto me: what art thou? And I sayd vnto him: I am an Amalekite. And he sayde vnto me: come on me and slee me. For anguisshe is come vpon me, and my lyfe is yet all in me. And I wente on him and slewe him: for I was sure that he couldе not lyue after that he was fallen. And I toke the crowne that was vpon his heed, and the bracelet that was on his arme. and haue brought them vnto ꝑ my Lorde hither. Then Dauid toke his clothes and rent them, and so dyd all the men that were with him/and they moorned, wepte, and fasted tyl euen, for Saul and Jonathas his sonne / and for the people of the Lorde, and for the house of Israel, bycause they were ouerthrowē with the swerde.
C Then sayde Dauid vnto the yonge man that brought him tidynges. Whence arte thou? And he sayde: I am the sonne of a straunger, Psalm.ciiii. b an Amalekite. And Dauid sayde vnto hym. How is it that thou wast not afrayde to laye thyne hande on the Lordes annoynted to destroye him? And Dauid called one of his yong men, and sayd: Go and runne vpon him. And he smote him that he dyed. Then sayde Dauid ☞ vnto hym: Thy bloude be vpon thyne owne heed. For thyne owne mothe hathe witnessed agaynst the, saying: I haue slayne the Lordes anoynted. And Dauid sang this song of mourning ouer Saul, and ouer Jonathas his son, and bad to teache the chyldren of Israell the ☞ staues therof. And beholde it is written in the boke of the ryghtous. The glorye of Israel is slayn vpon the hygh hylles. Oh how were the myghty ouerthrowen? Tell it not in Geth, nor publysshe it in the stretes of Askalon/ lest the doughters of the Philistines reioyce, and that the doughters of the vncircumcised tryumphe therof: Ye mountaynes of Gelboe, vpon you be neyther dewe nor rayne, ne feldes whence heaue offerynges come. For there the shyldes of the myghtye were caste from them: the shylde of Saul, as though he had not ben annoynted with oyle. The bowe of Jonathas, and the swerde of Saul tourned neuer backe agayne emptye, from the bloude of the wounded, and from the fatte of the myghtye warriours.

Saul and Jonathas louely and pleasaunte in theyr lyues, were in theyr dethes not diuided/ men swifter then egles, and stronger then Lyons. Ye doughters of Israel wepe ouer Saul, whiche clothed you in pueple and gaymentes of pleasure / and bordered youre rayment with ornamentes of golde. Howe were the myghtye slayne in battayle? Jonathas on the hye hilles was wounded to deth. Woo is me for the, my brother Jonathas: delectable to me wast thou exceedynge. Thy loue to me was wonderfull passing the loue of women. How were thy mighty ouerthrowen, and how were the weapons of warre forlorne.

¶ Dauid is anoynted in Hebron. The battayle of the seruantes of Dauid and Isboseth.

CAPI. II.

After this Dauid asked the Lorde, saying: shall I go vp in to anye of the cytyes of Juda? And the Lorde sayd to him: and Dauid answered: whyther shal I go? He answered, vnto Hebron. And so Dauid went thyther with his two wyues also / Ahinoam the Jezrahelyte, and Abigail Nabals wyfe the Carmelite. And the men that were with him, dyd Dauid carye vp also, euerye man with his house. And they dwelte in the townes of Hebron. And the men of Juda came & there they annoynted Dauid kynge ouer the house of Juda. When it was tolde Dauid how the men of Jabes in Galaad had buryed Saul, he sent messengers vnto them, and sayde vnto them: blessed are ye vnto the Lorde, that ye haue shewed suche kyndnesse vnto youre Lorde Saul, and haue buryed hym. Wherfore the Lorde shewe you mercy and truthe agayn. And I wil do you good also, bycause ye haue doone this thynge. And nowe let your handes stere them and playe ye the men, thoughe youre master Saul be deed. And finallye vnderstande that the house of Juda haue annoynted me kynge ouer them. But Abner the sonne of Ner that was capitayne of Saules hoste toke Isboseth the sonne of Saul, and broughte him to Mahannum and made him king ouer Galaad and ouer the Assurites, and ouer Jezrahel/ and ouer Ephraim and Benjamin, and ouer al Israel.

And

And Iboseth Sauls sonne was fourtye yeres olde when he began to raigne ouer Israel and raigned two yeres. But the house of Juda only folowed Dauid. ✳ And the tyme which Dauid raygned in Hebron ouer the house of Juda, was. vij. yere and sixe monethes. And Abner the sonne of Ner and the seruauntes of Iboseth the sonne of Saul went out of Mahanaim to Gabaon. And Joab the sonne of Zaruiah and the seruauntes of Dauid went oute and met them by the pole of Gabaō. And they sate downe, the one parte on the one syde the pole, and the other on the other syde. And Abner sayd to Joab/ let the yonge men aryse and playe before vs. And Joab answered: Be it. Then there arose & went ouer: twelue of Benjamin by nombre, whiche pertayned to Iboseth the sonne of Saul/ and twelue of the seruauntes of Dauid. And they caughte eche his felowe that came against him by the heed/ and thruste his swerde in his syde, and so fell downe all at once. Wherfore the place was called ✠ Helath Zurim whiche is in Gabaon. And there began an excedynge cruell battayle that same daye. But Abner and the men of Israel were put to the worse of the seruauntes of Dauid.

And there was thre sonnes of Zaruiah: Joab, Abisai, and Asahel / whiche Asahel was as swyfte of fote as a wylde Roo, and folowed after Abner/ and tourned neyther to the ryght hande nor to the lefte from Abner. Then Abner loked behinde him, and sayd: art thou Asahel? And he sayd, yea. Then sayd Abner/ turne the eyther to the ryghte hande or to the lefte/ and catche one of the yonge men, and take the his spoyle. But Asahel wolde not depart from hym, but pursued hym. And Abner said agayne to Asahel: tourne frome me, and folowe not me/ for I were lothe to smyte the to ✠ ground. For then howe sholde I holde vp my face before Joab thy brother? how be it he wolde in no wyse departe.

✳ Then Abner with the hynder ende of the spere smote hym vnder the thorte rybbes, that the spere came out behynde hym, that he fell downe in the same place and died there. And as manye as came to the place where Asahell fell downe and dyed, stode styll. But Joab and Abisai folowed Abner tyll the sonne wente downe. And when they were come to the hyll Amah, that lyeth before Giah, in the waye that goeth thorowe the wyldernes of Gabaon the chyldren of Benjamin assembled after Abner on a plumpe, and stode styll on the top of an hyll. Then Abner called to Joab, & said/ shal the swerd deuour without ende? knowest thou not ✠ bitternesse is wont to come in the later ende? how longe shall it be er thou byd the people returne from folowyng their brethren? And Joab answered: as truly as God lyueth yf thou haddest so sayde, then euen in the morninge hadde the people departed eche frome folowynge his brother. And therwith ✳ Joab blewe a trompet/ and all the people stode styll and pursued after Israel no more, nor fought no more. And Abner and his men walked all that nyght by the wylde feldes, and went ouer Jordan, and past thorow all Bethhoron, and came to Mahanaim.

And Joab returned frome Abner and assembled all the people. And there lacked of Dauid seruauntes nyne tene personnes and Asahel. But the seruauntes of Dauid hadde slayne of Benjamin and of Abners men, thre hundred and thre score men. And they toke vp Asahel, and buryed hym in the sepulchre of his father in Bethlehem. And Joab and his men wente all nyghte, and came in the dawnynge to Hebron.

¶ Abner commeth to Dauid and bryngeth him his wife Michol. Joab killeth Abner. Dauid bewepeth his death, and curseth Joab.

CAPI. III.

THere was longe stryfe betwene ✠ house of Saul and the house of Dauid. But Dauid waxed stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul waxed weaker and weaker. ✳ And Dauid hadde chyldren borne hym in Hebron. His eldest sonne was Amnon of Ahinoam the Jezrahelite/ the seconde Cheleab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite/ the thyrd Absalom the sonne of Maachah the doughter of Tholmai the kynge of Gessur/ the fourthe Adonijah the sonne of Hagith/ the fyfte Saphatiah the sonne of Abital/ the sixte, Jethraam by Egla Dauids wyfe. These were borne to Dauid in Hebron. And as longe as there was battayle betwene the house of Saul and the house of Dauid, Abner the sonne of Ner helde vp the house of Saul. And Saul hadde a concubyne named Riphah, the doughter of Aiah. And Iboseth sayd to Abner. Wherfore hast thou with my fathers concubyne? Then was Abner verye wrothe for the wordes of Iboseth, and sayd: Am I not a ✳ dogges heed, whiche agaynste Juda haue shewed mercye this daye vnto the house of Saul thy father, and to his brethren and frendes / and haue not delyuered them in to the hande of Dauid: suthens thou fyndest a fault in me this daye for a woman? ✳ So wo God to Abner/ and so onlesse as the Lorde hath sworne to Dauid, I so wo to hym/ and bryng the kyngdome from the house of Saul, and sette vp the seate of Dauid ouer Israell and ouer Juda, frome Dan to Berlabe. And he coulde gyue Abner not one worde to aunswere, bycause he feared hym. Then Abner sente messengers to Dauid forthwith, sayinge: Whose is the lande? And he sayd moreouer: Make a bonde with me / and se, my hande is with the, to bryngе all Israell vnto the. And Dauid answered/ well sayde/ I wyll make a bonde with the. But one thynge I requyre the, that thou se not my face, onlesse thou fyrste bryngе Michol Sauls doughter, when thou commest to se me. And Dauid sent messengers to Iboseth Sauls sonne, sayinge: delyuer me my wyfe Michol, whiche I mayed with an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines. And Iboseth sent and toke her frome her husbande Phaltiel the sonne of Lais. And her her husbande folowed her, and came weppynge behynde her, tyl they came to Bahurim. Then sayde Abner vnto hym, goo and retourne. And he retourned. And Abner hadde communycacion with the elders of Israell, sayinge: Ye haue longe gone aboute that Dauid shoulde be kynge ouer you. Nowe then wo it: for the Lorde hathe sayde of Dauid, by the hande of my seruaunte Dauid, I wyll saue my people Israel oute of the handes of the Philistines, D and oute of the hande of all theyr ennemyes. And semblable wordes hadde he with Benjamin/and then wente to tell in the eares of Dauid in Hebron all that Israell was content with, and the hole house of Beniamin. So when Abner was come to Dauid to Hebron, and twentye men with hym/ Dauid made hym, and the men that were with him a feast. Then Abner sayd vnto Dauid/I wyll aryse and goo gather all Israel vnto my lorde the kynge, that they maye make a bonde with the, that thou mayste be a kynge ouer al that thyne herte desyreth/ and so Dauid let Abner departe, and he wente in peax. And loo, the seruauntes of Dauid and Joab came from chasynge robbers, and broughte a greate botye with them. But Abner was not with Dauid in Hebron: for he hadde sente him awaye to departe in peax. When Joab and all the E host with him were come, men tolde Joab saying: Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kynge/ and he hathe sent hym awaye that he is gone in peax. Then Joab wente to the kynge, and sayd: What hast thou wone? Se Abner came vnto the, why hast thou sent him awaye that he sholde escape free? Thou myghtest knowe Abner the sonne of Ner that he came to flater the, and knowe thy conuersacion and hauour, and to knowe all thy doynges. And when Joab was come oute frome the kynge, he sente messengers after Abner, whiche broughte hym agayne frome the well of Sirah vnbetynge to Dauid. So when Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Joab toke hym aside in the gate to speake with him gylefully, and there smote hym vnder the shorte ribbes that he dyed, for the bloude of Asahel his brother. F And when it afterward came to Dauids eare, he sayd: I and my kyngdome are gyltelesse before the Lorde for euer, concernyng the bloud of Abner the sonne of Ner, It fall therfore on the heed of Joab, and on al his fathers house: that the house of Joab be neuer without one or other that hathe runnynge issues or without lepers and goers on crouches, and that fall on the swerde, and that lacke breed. And the cause why Joab and Abisai slewe Abner, was that Abner had slayne theyr brother Asahel at Gabaon in battayle. And Dauid sayde to Joab, and to all the people that were with him/rent your clothes, and put on sacke cloth and mourne before Abner/ and kynge Dauid him selfe folowed the bere. And when they hadde buryed Abner in Hebron, the kynge lyft vp his voyce and wepte ouer the graue of Abner/and so dyd all the people. And the kynge bewayled Abner and sayde: Abner dyed not as a wretche dyeth. Thy handes were not manacled, ne thy fete shackled with fetters/but as men falle before wycked chyldren, so fellest thou/ and all the people wepte yet more ouer him.

And when all the people came to eate meat G with Dauid, whyle it was yet daye, Dauid sware, sayinge: so do God to me and so, yf I taste breed or oughte elles, tyll the sonne be downe. And the people wyste it, and it pleased them, as wel as all other good thinges which the kynge dyd in the syghte of the people. And all the people, and all Israel vnderstode that daye how it was not the kynges mynde, to slee Abner the sonne of Ner. And the kynge sayd vnto his seruauntes: knowe ye not, there is a Lorde, and that a greate, fallen this day in Israel? And I am this daye tender, though I be annoynted kyng. And these men the sonnes of Zaruiah be to good for me to rule? But the Lorde reward the doer of euyll accordyng to his wickednesse.

¶ Baanah and Rechab slep Isboseth the sonne of Saul.

CAP. IIII.

WHen Sauls sonne herd that Abner was deed in Hebron, his handes faynted and all Israell was troubled. Nowe, this Sauls sonne had two men that were become capitaynes ouer the souldyers, the one called Baanah, and the other Rechab the sonnes of Remon a Berothite/ and of the chyldren of Benjamin: for Beroth was reckened to appertayne to Beniamin. And these Berothites fledde to Gethaim, and sojourned there tyll the same tyme. And Jonathas Sauls sonne hadde a sonne lame on his fete: fyue yeere olde was he, when tydynges came of Saul and Jonathas oute of Jezrahel. And his nourise toke him vp, and fledde awaye. And as she made haste to flee and was amased, the chylde fell and became halte and was called Miphiboseth. And these sonnes of Remon the Berothite, Rechab and Baanah went and came in the heate of the daye to the house of Isboseth, as he slepte on a bedde at none. And beholde, they came in to the house as though they wolde haue bought whete, and smote hym vnder his shorte ribbes, and fledde. For they came in to the house as he slepte on his bedde in his nestynge chamber, and smote him and slewe him and beheded hym, and toke his heed and gat them awaye towarde the Easte all nyght. And they broughte the heed of Isboseth vnto Dauid to Hebron, and sayde to the kynge: Beholde here the heed of Isboseth Sauls sonne thyne ennemy, which sought thy soule. But the Lorde hathe awreaked my Lorde the kynge this daye, of Saul and of his seede. Then Dauid answered Rechab and Baanah his brother, the sonnes of Remon the Berothyte, and sayde vnto them: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, who hathe delyuered my soule oute of all aduersities: hym that told me that Saul was deed, thynkynge to haue broughte me good tydynges, I caughte and slewe in Zikeleg, to gyue hym a rewarde for his tydinges bryngyng. And how moche more ought I so to deale with wycked men that haue slayne a ryghtous person in his owne house vpon his bedde. Now therfore thynke ye that I wyll not requyre his blonde of youre handes, and take you frome the earthe? And Dauid gaue a in cõmaundement to his seruauntes, and they slewe them and cut of their handes and their fete, & hãged them vp by the pole in Hebron. And they toke the heed of Isboseth, and buryed it in the sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

¶ Dauid is yet agayne anoynted king: and taketh the Iebuse from Sion. He casteth out the blynde and the lame. He marieth moo wyues and getteth moo chyldren. He stryketh the Philistines.

CAPI. V.

THen came all the kynredes of Israel to Dauid to Hebron and sayde: se, we are thy bones and thy flesshe. And further in tymes paste when Saul was kynge ouer vs, thou ledest Israel in and out. And the Lorde hath sayde: thou shalte fede my people Israel, and shalte be a capitayne ouer Israell. And so all the elders of Israel came to the kynge to Hebron. And kynge Dauid made a couenaunt with them in Hebron before the Lorde / and they annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israell. Dauid was thyrtye yere olde what tyme he bgan to raygne, and he raygned fourty yeres. In Hebron he raygned ouer Iuda, seuen yere, and sixe monethes / and in Jerusalem thyrtye and thre yeres ouer all Israel and Juda.

Then went the kynge and his men to Jerusalem, vnto the Jebusites thinhabitauntes of the lande. And they sayde vnto Dauid: onlesse thou take away the blynde and the lame, thou shalt not come in hither, meaning therby that Dauid sholde not haue come in thyther. Neuertheles Dauid toke the holde of Sion, whiche is in the citye of Dauid. Then sayd Dauid the same daye. Who so euer sleeth the Jebusite, and wynneth the toures of his house / and destroyeth the lame and the blynde ennemyes vnto Dauids soule. Wherfore it is a prouerbe: the blynde and the lame shal not come in to the house. And Dauid dwelt in the tour, and called it the citye of Dauid. And he buylte rounde about it from Mello inwarde. Dauid ward greate, and the Lorde God of hostes was with him. And Hiram kynge of Tire sent messengers to Dauid with Cedar trees and carpenters and masons, to buylde Dauid an house. Wherby Dauid perceyued ℣ the Lorde had stablished hym kynge ouer Israel, and had auaunsed his kyngdome for his people Israels sake. And Dauid toke him mo concubynes and wyues oute of Jerusalem, after he was come frome Hebron, and mo sonnes and doughters were borne to Dauid. These be the names of the sonnes that were borne hym in Jerusalem: Samua, Sobab, Nathan, Salomon. Iebahar, Elisua, Nepheg, Japhia, Elisama, Eliada, and Eliphalet.

But when the Philistines herde that they had annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israel, they came all vp to seke Dauid. And as soone as Dauid herde of it, he gat him to an holde. And the Philistines came and layde them along in the valeye of Raphaim. And Dauid asked of the Lord, saying: shal I go to the Philistines? and wilt thou giue them in to my handes? And the Lorde sayde vnto Dauid: goo, for I wyll delyuer the Philistines in to thy handes. And Dauid came to Baal Perazim and smote them there and said: the Lorde hathe seuered myne ennemyes asondre before me, as a man wolde diuide water; and therfore he called the name of the sayde place Baal Perazim. And there they lefte theyr ymages, and Dauid and his men toke them vp. And the Philistines came yet agayne, and layde them in the valeye Raphaim. But Dauid asked the Lorde, and he sayde, goo not. But compasse theym on the backelyde, and come vpon them from the mulberye trees. And when thou hearest the noyse of a thynge goynge in the toppes of the trees, then moue. For then the Lorde is gone oute before the, to smyte the hoste of the Philistines. And Dauid dyd as the Lorde commaunded, and smote the Philistines from Gabaah to Gezer.

¶ The arcke is brought forth of the house of Abinadab. Ozah is stryken and dyeth because he touched the arcke. The arcke is brought in to the house of Obed Edom, and frome thence in to Jerusalem. Dauid daunceth before it, and is therfore despysed of his wyfe Michol.

CAPI. VI.

AFter this, Dauid chose out all the chiefe younge men in Israell to the somme of xxx. thousande, and arose and went, and all the folke that were with hym of the men of Juda, to fet awaye the arcke of God, vpon which is called the name of ℣ Lorde of hostes, that dwelleth bytwene ℣ cherubyns. And they put the arcke of God on a new cart, & brought it forth of the house of Abinadab that dwelte at Gabaah. And Ozah and Ahio the sonnes of Abinadab drawe the new cart. And when they brought it oute of the house of Abinadab that dwelt at Gabaah with the arcke of God / Ahio wente before the arcke / and Dauid and all the house of Israel playde before the Lorde with all maner instrumentes of fyre wodde, with harpes, psalteryes, tymberelles, fedyles and cymbals.

And when they came to Nachons threshynge floure, Ozah put his hand to the arcke of God and held it, for the oxen stombled. And the Lorde was wrathe with Ozah, and God smote him in the same place for his fault, and there he dyed by the arcke of God. And Dauid was displeased bycause the Lorde had rent Orah. And the name of the place was called Perez Ozah tyll this daye. And Dauid was then afrayde of the Lord, and sayd: how shold the arcke of the Lorde come to my house? And so Dauid wold not bryng the arcke of the Lorde with hym in to the cityе of Dauid, but caried it in to the house of Obed Edom a Gethite. And the arcke of the Lorde continued in the house of Obed Edom the Gethyte thre monethes / and the Lorde blessed Obed Edom, and all his houshолde. And when it was tolde

1.Parali.xv. kynge Dauid that the Lorde hadde blessed the house of Obed Edom, and al that belonged vnto him, bycause of the arcke of God, he
C went and broughte the arcke of God frome the house of Obed Edom, vnto the cityе of Dauid with gladnesse. And euer when they that bare the arcke of the Lorde hadde gone sixe passes, he offered an oxe and a fatte shepe. And Dauid daunced before the Lorde with al his myghte in a lynnen Ephod gyrde vnto hym. And Dauid and all the house of Israel brought the arcke of the Lorde with shouting and trompet blowynge.

And as the arcke of the Lorde came in to the cityе of Dauid, Michol Sauls doughter Michol. loked thorowe a wyndowe and sawe kynge Dauid springe and daunce before the Lorde, and therfore dispysed hym in her herte. And when they hadde brought in the arcke of the Lorde, and had set it in his place, euen in the D tabernacle that Dauid hadde prepared for it: Dauid offered burntofferynges and peaceofferynges before the Lorde/and as soone as Dauid had made an ende of offerynge burnt offerynges and peaceofferynges, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde of hostes, and gaue amonge all the folke, euen amonge the hole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men euery one a cake of breed, and a pece of flesshe and a flacket of wyne. And so the people departed euery man to his house. Then Dauid returned to salute his housholde. And Michol the doughter of Saul came oute agaynste hym and sayde. Oh how gloryous was the kynge of Israell to daye, whiche stryppte hym selfe this daye before the eyen of the maydens of his seruauntes, as a lyght brayned felowe is wont to stryppe hym selfe. But Dauid sayde agayne to Michol, I wyll make sporte before the Lorde, whiche chose me before thy father, and before all his kynne, commaundynge me to be ruler ouer all his people Israel. And I wyl be yet more vile then so, and wil be meke in myne owne sight: and shall neuertheless that of the verye same mayde seruauntes whiche thou speakest of, ¶ Dauid of a good purpose entendynge to buylde an house vnto the Lorde, is forbidden of God. He prayeth that the promyses of God may be fulfylled.
☞ be hadde in honoure. But the sayde Michol doughter to Saul, hadde no chylde vnto the daye of her deth.

1.Par.xvii.b. AND in processe as the kynge dwelte in his house after that the Lorde had gyuen hym reste rounde aboute frome all his ennemyes, he sayd vnto Nathan the prophet: beholde, I well in an house of Cedar trees, but the arcke of God dwelleth in the myddes of curtaynes. Then sayd Nathan vnto the kynge: go and doo all that is in thyne herte, for the Lorde is with the.
But that same nyght the worde of the Lorde came vnto Nathan, sayinge: goo and tell my seruaunt Dauid, thus sayth the Lorde/shalte thou go buylde me an house to dwell in? For I haue not dwelte in anye house sithens the tyme I brought the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte, vnto this daye: but haue walked in a tent and in a tabernacle. In any way where I wente amonge all the chyldren of Israel, spake I one worde with anye of the kynredes of Israel, whiche I commaunded to fede my people Israel, sayinge: why buylde ye not me an house of Cedar tree? Nowe therfore so saye vnto my seruauntes Dauid: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes, I toke the out of a shepe cote frome folowynge shepe, to be a ruler ouer my people Israell. And I was with the in all thou wentest to, and haue destroyed all thyne ennemyes oute of thy syghte, and haue made the a greate name, lyke vnto the renowme of the greate men of the worlde. And I wyll appoynt a place for my people Israel, and wyll plant it, and they shall continue in one place and shall moue no more, neyther shall wycked people trouble them any more as they dyd at the begynnynge/and sithens the tyme I commaunded Judges to be ouer my people Israel, and I wyll gyue the rest from all thyne ennemyes. And the Lorde telleth the that he wyll buylde the an houlholde.

And when the dayes be fulfylled, and thou layde to reste with thy fathers, then I wyll set vp thy seed after the, whiche shall procede out of thy body, and wyll establysshe his kyngdome, he shall buylde an house for my name, and I wyll establysshe the seate of his kyngdome for euer: I wyll be his father, and he shal be my sonne: in so moche that yf he synne I wyll but rebuke hym with suche a rodde as men be rebuked with, and with suche plages as the chyldren of men be plaged with. But my mercye wyll I not take awaye frome hym, as I toke it from Saul, whom I put downe before the and thyne house, and thy kyngdom shall endure without ende after the, and thy seate shall be establysshed for euer. When Nathan hadde tolde Dauid all these wordes, and all this vision, then went Dauid and set him downe before the Lorde and sayde: what am I Lorde almyghtye, and what is my kynne, that thou sholdest haue brought me this farre forth? And is this a small thynge in my syghte Lorde almyghtye, but that thou shouldest speake also of thy seruauntes house for a great whyle to come? Is this a lawe amonge men Lorde almyghtye? And what can Dauid saye more vnto the, sithe thou knowest thy seruant Lorde almyghtye? Euen for thy worde, and accordynge to thyne owne herte hast thou wrought all these great thinges to make them knowne vnto thy seruaunt.

wherfore thou art great, o Lorde God, and there is none lyke ỹ, neither is there any God saue thou, according to all that we haue herde with oure eares. And what one people in the erthe

earthe is lyke vnto thy people Israel, whiche God delyuered to be his people/and to make him a name/ and to shew them great and terrible thynges in the earthe, before thy people whiche thou redemedst to the, out of Egypte/ euen from the people and from theyr goddes. And thou hast ordeyned thy people Israell to be thy people for euer/ and thou Lorde arte their God. And nowe, Lorde God, the thyng thou hast sayd of thy seruaunt & of his house, make it good for euer, and do as thou hast sayde. And lette thy name be great for euer/ that men maye saye: the Lorde of hostes is the God of Israel: and lette the house of thy seruaunte Dauid be allured before the. For thou Lorde of hostes, God of Israel hast tolde in the eare of thy seruaunt, sayinge: I wyll buylde the an house. And therfore hath thy seruaunt founde in his herte to praye this prayer vnto the. And now Lorde almyghty thou art the God, & thy wordes muste be true/ for thou hast tolde this goodnesse vnto thy seruaunt. Now therfore go to, and bielle the housholde of thy seruaunt, that it may continue for euer before the. For thou Lorde almighty hast sayd that of thy biellynge, the house of thy seruaunt shall be biessed for euer.

¶ Dauid ouercommeth the Philistines and maketh the tributaryes. He ordayneth and appoynteth his officers.

CAPI. VIII.

A ii.Reg.viii.a

AFter that, Dauid beat the Philistines, and subdued them, and toke the bridell of bondage oute of their handes. And he beat the Moabytes, and measured them w a lyne, makynge them lye alonge on the erth/ and then meatyng the length of two lynes to slee, and the length of one lyne to saue a lyue. And so became the Moabites Dauids seruauntes, and payde tribute. Dauid smote also Adadezer the sonne of Rehob kynge of Zobah, as he wente to make the ende of his costes at the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke a thousand and seuen hundred horsemen of his, & twenty thousande fote men, and destroyed all his chariottes, reseruynge one hundred of them. Then B came the Syrians of Damascon to succoure Adadezer kynge of Zobah. And Dauid slewe of them xxii. thousande men, and put souldyours in Syra Damascon. And the Syrians became seruauntes to Dauid, payinge tribute. And thus the Lorde saued Dauid in all that he wente to. And Dauid toke the shyldes of golde that were vpon the seruauntes of Adadezer, and broughte them to Jerusalem. And therto oute of Betah and Berathai citees of Adadezer, he broughte exceadynge great aboun C daunce of brasse.

Thoi. When Thoi kynge of Hemath hadde herde howe Dauid hadde discumfyted all the hoste of Adadezer, he sente Joram his sonne vnto kynge Dauid, to salute him with peax, and to bielle hym bycause he hadde foughte agaynste Adadezer, and beaten him: For Thoi kepte warre with Adadezer, whiche sonne broughte vessellles of syluer, golde, and of brasse with him. And them also kynge Dauid dyd present vnto the Lorde the syluer and golde that he halowed seuerally of all nations whiche he subdued: of the Syrians: the Moabites, the chyldren of Ammon, the Philistines, the Amalekites, and of the spoyle of Adadezer son of Rehob kynge of Zobah. And Dauid made D him a name after he returned from the slaughter of the Syrians in the valeye of salt where he slewe eyghtene thousande men. And he put kepers in Edom, euen thorowe oute all Edom put he souldyours/ and all Edom became his subiectes. And the Lorde kepte Dauid what so euer he toke in hande. And Dauid raygned ouer all Israel, and executed ryghte and iustice vnto all his people. And * Joab † *ii.Reg.xx.d sonne of Zarviah was ouer the hoste/ and Josaphat, the sonne of Ahilud was recorder. And Sadoch the sonne of Ahitob and Achimeleth the sonne of Abiathar were the preestes/ and Saraiah was the scribe. And Banaiah the son of Jehoiada was ouer the Cerethites and the Phelethites, but Dauids sonnes were chiefe rulers.

CAPI. IX.

THen sayd Dauid: is there yet any man A lefte of the house of Saul, that I maye shewe hym mercye/ for Jonathas sake? And there was of the houshold of Saul a seruaunt named Ziba, who was called vnto Dauid. And the kynge sayde vnto hym: art thou Ziba? And he sayd: thy seruaunt is he. Then sayde the kynge: remayneth yet anye man of the kynrede of Saul, whome I maye shewe the mercye of God vpon? And Ziba sayde vnto the kynge: Jonathas hathe yet a B sonne whiche is lame on bothe feete. And the kynge sayde vnto hym: where is he? And Ziba sayd vnto the kynge: beholde he is in the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel in Lodaber. Then king Dauid sent and fet him out of the house of Machir the sone of Amiel out of Miphiboseth. Lodaber. Now, when Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saul was come to Dauid, he bowed hym selfe, and fell on his face. Then sayde Dauid: Miphiboseth? And he answered. Beholde thy seruaunt. And Dauid sayde: feare not, for I wyll surely shewe C the kyndnesse for Jonathas sake/ and wyll restore the all the landes of Saul thy father/ and thou shalte eate meate on myne owne table alwaye. And the other bowed him self and sayde: what is thy seruaunt, that thou shouldest vouchesafe to loke vpon suche a ded dog as I am? Then the king called Ziba Sauls younge man, sayinge vnto hym: I gyue vnto thy masters sonne all that pertayned to Saul and to all his kynne. Se therfore thou and thy sonnes and thy seruauntes tylle the lande for him, and bringe in, that thy masters sonne maye haue foode to eate. For Miphiboseth thy masters sonne shall eate meate alwaye vpon my table. For this Ziba had fyftene sonnes, and twentye seruauntes. Then sayde Ziba vnto the kyng: All that my lorde hath sayde vnto his seruaunte/thy seruaunte shall doo. For (sayde the kynge) Miphiboseth muste eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges sonnes. This Miphiboseth hadde a sonne that was yonge, named Micha / and all that dwelled in the house of Ziba, were seruauntes vnto Miphiboseth. So Miphiboseth dwelte in Ierusalem / for he ate euer at the kynges table / and was therto haulte on bothe legges.

CAPI. X.

A IT happened after this, that the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed / and Hanon his sonne raygned in his stede: Then sayde Dauid: I wyl shewe kyndnelle vnto Hanon the son of Nahas, as his father shewed kindnelle vnto me. And therupon Dauid sente to comforte him by the hande of his seruauntes ouer the deth of his father. Nowe, when Dauids seruauntes were come in to the lande of the chyldren of Ammon/the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayd vnto Hanon their lorde/ thynkest thou that Dauid dothe honour thy father, bycause he hathe sent to comforte thee? Naye he hathe rather sente his seruauntes vnto the to serche the citye and to clyppe it out, to thintent to ouerthrowe it. Wherfore Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes, and shaued of the one halfe of euery mans berde, and cut of their garmentes euen in the myddle harde by the buttockes of them, & sent them away. Which thyng when it was told Dauid, he sent against them (for they were men exceedingly ashamed) and sayd: tarye at Iericho tyll your berdes be growen, and then returne. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that, they wronged Dauid, they sent and hyred the sonnes of Bethrehob, and of the Syrians of Zobah .xx. thousande foote men, and of kyng Maacah a thousande men/ & of Istob twelue thousande men: and when Dauid herd of it/ he sent Joab and all the hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out and gaue battayle before the gate/ and the Syrians of Zobah, of Rehob, Istob, and Maacah, were them selues in the feldes. When Joab sawe that the front of the battayle was before and after, he chose of all the best of Israel and put them in araye against the Syrians. And the rest of the people he deliuered in to the hande of Abisai his brother, which put them in araye against the chyldren of Ammon. And he sayd: yf the Syrians ouercome me, then succour me. But yf the chyldren of Ammon be to good for the, I wil come and succour the/ quyte the lyke a man, and let vs fyght lustely for our people, and for the cityes of our God. And the Lorde do what semeth best/in his eyes. And forthwith Joab proceded and the people that was with him in to battayle against the Syrias, which fled before him. Whyche when the chyldren of Ammon saw that the Syrians were fled, then fled they also before Abisai, and entred in to the citye. And so Joab returned from the chyldren of Ammon, and came to Ierusalem. And when the Syrias sawe that they were put to the worse before Israel, they gathered them togyther. And Hadadezer sente and brought oute the Syrians that were beyonde the ryuer. And the hoste of them came, and Sobah captayne of the hoste of Hadadezer before them.

And when it was shewed Dauid, he gathered all Israell and passed ouer Jordan & came to Helam: where the Syrians put them selues in araye against Dauid, and fought with him: how be it the Syrians fledde before Israel. And Dauid destroyed seuen hundred charettes of them, and fourtye thousande horsemen / and smote Sobah the capitayne of his hoste, so that he there dyed. And when all the kynges that were seruauntes to Hadadezer saw they were put to the worse before Israel, they made peax with them and serued them. And so the Syrians feared to helpe the chyldren of Ammon any further.

CAPI. XI.

IT came to passe in the begynnynge of a newe yere, in the tymes when kynges are wont to go forthe to battayle, that Dauid sent Joab and his seruauntes with hym and all Israell. And they destroyed the chyldren of Ammon, and besieged Rabah. But Dauid taryed styll at Ierusalem. And it chaunced in an euenynge, that Dauid arose from his couche and walked vpon the rouffe of the kynges palace, and frome the rouffe sawe a very beautyfull woman washyng her selfe. And he sente to enquyre what woman it shold be. And it was answered agayne, that she was Bethsabe the doughter of Eliam, and wife to Urias the Hethite. And Dauid sent messengers and fet her, and she came vnto him, and he laye with her. And she was forthwith clensed frome her vncleannelle, & returned vnto her house. And when the woman had perceyued that she had conceyued, she sent and tolde Dauid, and sayd: I am with chyld. Then Dauid sent to Joab to send vnto hym Urias the Hethite. And Joab sente Urias to Dauid. So when Urias was come to hym, he demaunded howe Joab dyd / and how the people fared, and how the warre prospered. And Dauid sayde moreouer to Urias: go downe to thyne house, and washe thy fete. And Urias departed out of the kynges palace and there folowed him a seruice from the kinges table. But Urias slepte at the wore of the kynges palace with all the seruauntes of his Lorde, and went not downe to his house. Then they tolde Dauid sayinge: Urias went not in to his house. Then sayd Dauid vnto Urias: forasmoche as thou art come from iourneying,

why doest thou not goo downe vnto thyne house? And Urias sayd vnto Dauid: the arcke and Israel and Juda dwel in pauylyons: and my lorde Joab and the seruauntes of my lorde lye in tentes vpon the flatte earth/and shulde I go in to myne house, to eate and drynke and to lye with my wyfe? ✠ By thy lyfe, and as sure as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not do that thynge. Then sayd Dauid vnto Urias: tarye here this daye also, and to morowe I wyl let the departe. And so Urias abode in Jerusalem that daye and on the morow. And Dauid called hym, and he ate and dranke before hym/ and he made hym dronke. And at euen he wente oute to lye on his couche with the seruauntes of his lorde, and wente not downe to his house. Wherfore on the morowe Dauid wrote a letter to Joab, and sente it by Urias. And he wrote in the letter, sayinge: put Urias in the fore fronte of the battayle where it is moste stronge, and come backe frome hym, that he maye be smytten to deth. So when Joab beseged the citye, he appoynted Urias to a place, where he wist that strong men were. And the men of the citye came out and foughte with Joab. And there were certayne ouerthrowen of the people, and of the seruauntes of Dauid, and Urias the Hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sente and tolde Dauid all the procedinges of the warre, and charged the messengers, sayinge: When thou hast made an ende of tellynge the thynges of the warre vnto the kynge yt he begyn to fume and saye vnto the: wherfore approched ye so nye vnto the citie to fyghte? wyste ye not that men wolde d shoute and shoote frome the walles? Who smote Abimelech sonne of Jerobeseth? Dyd not a woman caste a pece of a mylstone vpon him frome of the walles, that he dyed in Thebes? why then went ye nye the walles? Then saye thou, thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is dead also.

And the messengers wente, and came and shewed Dauid all that Joab hadde sente hym with/ and sayde vnto Dauid: the men preuayle agaynste vs, and came forth vnto vs in to the felde, and we stacke vnto them vnto the entringe of the gate, and shoters shot from the walles, and some of the seruauntes of the kynge be dead. And thy seruaunte Urias the Hethite is dead also. Then sayd Dauid vnto the messenger: thus wyse saye vnto Joab/let not the thynge trouble the. For the swerde deuoureth one as well as an other: make thy battayle more stronge agaynste the citye, and destroye it/and se thou encourage Joab. And when the wyfe of Urias herde that her husbande was dead, she mourned for hym/and as soone as the mournynge was ended, Dauid sente and fette her to his house, and she was his wyfe and bare hym a sonne. But the dede that Dauid hadde commytted, displeased the Lorde.

¶ Dauid is reproued for ỹ slaughter of Urias, and then repenteth. The chylde conceyued in aduoutrye dyeth. Ette it, is Salomon borne.

CAPI. XII.

AND the Lorde sente Nathan vnto Dauid. And he came vnto hym and sayd vnto hym: there were two men in one citye, a ryche and a poore. And the ryche had exceedynge greate aboundance of shepe and oxen. But the poore hadde nothynge saue one lytle lambe, wyche he boughte and nourysshed vp. And it grewe vp with him and his chyldren, and dyd eat of his owne meat and dranke of his owne cuppe, and slept in his bosome, and was as dere vnto him as his daughter. And there came a straunger vnto the ryche man. And he couldē not fynde in his herte to make of his owne shepe nor of his beestes to prepare for the straunger that was come vnto hym. But toke the poore mannes lambe, and dressed it for the man that was come to hym. And Dauid was exceedynge wroth with the man, and sayde to Nathan: as surely as the Lorde lyueth the felowe that hathe done this thynge is worthye of deathe and shall restore ỹ lambe foure folde, bycause he dyd this thyng and had no pity. Then Nathan said to Dauid: thou art the selfe man. This sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: I annoynted the kynge ouer Israel and ryd the out of the handes of Saul: And I gaue the thy maysters house, and thy masters wyues in to thy bosome, and gaue the the house of Israel and of Juda, and wolde yf that hadde bene to lytle: haue gyuen the twyse so moche more. Wherfore hast thou despysed the commaundement of the Lorde, to do wickednesse in his syght? thou hast kylled Urias the Hethite with the swerde and haste taken his wyfe to thy wyfe, & hast slayne hym with the swearde of the chyldren of Amnon. Nowe therfore the swerde shall neuer depart from thyne house, because (sayeth the Lord) thou hast despysed me and taken the wyfe of Urias the Hethite, to be thy wyfe. Thus sayeth the Lorde: beholde I wyll stere vp euyll agaynste the euen of thyne owne house and wyll take thy wyues before thyne eyes, and gyue theym vnto thy neyghboure, whiche shall slepe with theym in the syghte of the sonne. And thou dydest it secretlye, yet wil I do this thynge before all Israel and in the open sonne syghte.

ii. Regū. xvi.

Then sayde Dauid vnto Nathan: I haue synned agaynst the Lorde. And Nathan sayde agayne to Dauid: the Lorde hath put awaye thy synne, thou shalte not dye. How be it because in doynge this dede thou haste gyuen the ennemyes of the Lord a cause to rayle, the chylde that is borne the, shall surely dye. And Nathan departed vnto his house. Then the Lorde stroke the chylde that Urias wyfe bare Dauid, and it sickened. Dauid besoughte God for the chylde, and fasted and went and lay all nyght vpō the erth: And the elders of his house arose and wente to him, to take him vp frome ỹ erth. But he wold not/neyther yet eate meat with them. It happened the seuenth day that the chylde dyed. But the seruauntes of Dauid durst not tel him the chylde was dead. For they sayde: se, whyle the chylde was yet alyue, we spake vnto him, and he wolde not herken vnto our voyce. Howe moche moze wyll he vexe hym selfe, yf we tel him the chyld is deed? But Dauid sawe his seruauntes whysperynge, and therbye perceyued that the chylde was deed, and sayde vnto his seruauntes: is the chylde deed? And they sayde, yea. Then Dauid arose frome the erthe, and washed, and annoynted hym selfe, and chaunged his apparell / and went in to the house of the Lord, and prayed / and after came to his owne house, and badde they sholde set meate before him, and he dyd eate. Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: what is this that thou hast doone? Thou fastedest and wepest for thy chyld whyle it was

I alyue, but as soone as it was deed, thou diddest ryse vp and eate meate. And he answered: whyle the chylde was alyue, I fasted & wepte.
☞ For I this thoughte: who can tell whether God wyll haue mercye on me that the childe maye lyue? But nowe sithe it is deed, wherfore sholde I faste? can I brynge him agayne anye moze? I shall goo to hym, but he shall not come agayne to me. And Dauid comfozted Bethsabe his wyfe / and wente in vnto her and laye with her, and she bare a sonne whose name was called ✠Salomon / and the Lozde ✠Hebze. Salomoh. Wath.i. loued him. And he sent by the hande of Nathā the Pzophete, and called his name Jediah, on the Lozdes behalfe.

G And as Joab foughte agaynste Rabah, the citye of the chyldzen of Amnon, he toke the kynges Toure and sente messengers to Dauid, sayinge: I haue made assaute to Rabah / and also haue taken the castell frome whence i.Parali.xx.a they hadde theyr water. Now therfore gather the reste of the people / and come and beliege the citye, and take it / leest yf I take it, the victozye be ascrybed to me. And Dauid gathered all the people togyther, and went to Rabah
✱i.Par.xx.b. and assauted it, and gate it. ✱And he toke the kynges crowne frome of his heed, whiche wayed an hundzed wayght of golde, and was sette with pzecious stones / and Dauid ware it on his heed. And he bzoughte out the spoyle of the citye in excedynge greate aboundance. And he bzoughte oute the people that was therin, and sawed them, and dzewe harowes of yzon vpon them, and chzedde some of them with chzedynge knyues of yzon, and thzuste some in to foznaces. And so he serued all the citzes of the chyldzen of Amnon. And then Dauid and all the people retourned vnto Ieruſalem.

¶Amnon Dauids sonne defyleth his syster Thamar. Absalom therfore kylleth Amnon and after flyeth for feare of his father.

CAPI. XIII.

A Amnon. AND it chaunced that Absalom Dauids sonne hadde a fayze syster named Thamar, whome afterwarde Amnon an other sonne of Dauid loued. And this Amnō was so vexed that he fell sycke for the loue of his syster Thamar: for it thoughte him harde to come by his purpose of her, sithe she was yet a virgyn. But Amnon hadde a companion called Jonadab the sonne of Samah the bzother of Dauid: whiche Jonadab was a verye wyse man. And he sayd vnto hym, howe commeth it, that thou being the kynges sonne art thus consumed euerye moznynge? mayst thou not tell it me? And Amnon answered him: I loue Thamar my bzother Absalōs sister. Then sayd Jonadab vnto him: lye on thye bedde and fayne thy selfe sicke / and when thy father is come to se the / saye vnto hym: let my sister Thamar come and gyue me meate, and dzesse it in my syght, that I maye se it, and eate it of her hande. So Amnon laye downe and made B him selfe sicke / and when the kynge was come to se hym / Amnon sayde vnto hym: let Thamar my syster come and make me a couple of fritters in my syght, ✠ I may eate of her hand. Then Dauid sente home to Thamer, sayinge: goo to thy bzother Amnons house, and dzesse hym meate. When Thamar came to her bzother Amnons house, he laye / & she toke floure and made paste, and made fritters in his sight and dyd bake theym / and toke a platter and powzed theym oute before hym. And Amnon wolde not eate, but commaunded to haue out all men frome hym / and they wente all oute from hym. Then sayd Amnon vnto Thamar: bzynge the meate in to the chamber, that I maye eate of thyne hande: And Thamar toke the fritters which she had made, and brought them in to the chambze to Amnon her bzother, and set them before hym to eate. And he toke her and sayd vnto her: Come lye with me my C syster. And she answered hym: nay my bzother doo not inforce me / for it ought not to be so in Israel / doo not this folly. ✱For whyther shal I goo with my shame? And thou shalte be as one of the fooles in Israell. But speake vnto the kynge, and he shal not denye me vnto the. How be it he wold not harken vnto her voice but was to strong for her, and ✱forced her and ✱ laye with her. And then Amnon hated her ex- in cedyngly: so that the hate wherwith he hated her, was greater then the loue with whiche he before loued her. And he sayd vnto her / arise and awaye. Then she sayde vnto hym / this D great cruelte that thou puttest me awaye, passeth the other that thou diddest vnto me. Neuertheleſſe he wolde not heare her, but called his ladde that wayted vpon him and sayd: put her out at the wozes frome me, and bolte the woze after her. And she hadde a kyrtell of dyuers colours vpon her: for with such were the kynges doughters that were virgyns apparelled, made strayte vnto them. Then his seruaunt bzought her oute at the wozes, and E locked the wozes after her. And Thamar put asshes on her heed, and rente her gaye kyrtell that was on her. and put her hand on her heed and so went / and as she went, cried. Then Absalom her bzother said vnto her: hath Amnon thy bzother ben with the? Nowe then be styll my syster, for he is thy bzother / and let not this thynge greue thyne herte. And so Thamar remayned discomfozted in her bzother Absolons house. And kynge Dauid herde of all these thynges, and was very wzothe. And Absalom sayde vnto his bzother Amnon, neyther good ne badde. How be it Absalom hated Amnon becaule he had forced his lyster Thamar.

And it happened two yere after that, Absalom hadde a shepesherynge in Baal Hasor besyde the tryde of Ephraim, and bad all the kynges sonnes and he came to the kynge and sayde: beholde thy seruaunt hathe a shepessheringe, let the kynge and his seruauntes come with thy seruaunt. And the kynge sayde vnto Absalom. Oh naye my sonne, lette vs not goo euery one of vs, that we be not chargeable vn to the. And Absalom laye sore vpon him/how be it he wolde not goo, but blessed him. Then said Absalom, then let my brother Amnon go with vs. And the king answered, what nedeth it that he goo with the? But Absalom made suche instaunce, that he let Amnon goo with him, and all the kynges chyldren.

Then Absalom commaunded his younge men, sayinge: marke when Amnons herte is merye with wyne, and when I bid you smyte Amnō, then kyl him: feare not, for it is I that byd you/be bolde therfore and playe the lusty bloudes. And the yonge men of Absalom ser-ued Amnon euen as Absalom commaunded
the. And all the kynges sonnes arose and toke eche man his mule and fledde. And whyl they were yet in the waye, tidinges came to Da-uid that Absalom hadde slayne all the kynges sonnes, so that none was lefte alyue. Then the kynge arose and tare his garmentes, and laye alonge on the earthe / and all his seruauntes stode by, with theyr clothes rente.
Then Jonadab the sonne of Samah Dauids brother answered and sayd: let not my lorde suppose, that they haue slayne all the younge men the kynges sonnes, saue Amnon onely is deed, for that hathe ben euer in Absloloms mouthe, sythens he forced his syster Thamar.
Nowe therfore lette not my lorde the kynge take the thynge so greuously, to thynke that all the kynges sonnes be deed, when Amnon only is deed. But Absalom fled/and the yong man that kepte the watche lyfte vp his eyen and loked aboute / and beholde, there came moche people by awaye that was behynde his backe alonge by an hylles syde. Then said Jonadab vnto the kynge: beholde, the kynges sonnes are come/ and as thy seruant said, so it is. And as sone as he had lefte speakyng:
beholde the kynges sonnes came and lyfte vp theyr voyces and wepte. And therto the kyng and all his seruauntes wepte excedyngly.
But Absalom escaped and went to Tholmai the sonne of Amihud kynge of Gesur. And the kynge mourned for his sonne continually.
And so Absalom escaped and went to Gesur, and was there thre yeres. And by that tyme the kynge turned his mynde from pursuynge Absalom. For he had lefte mournynge for the deth of Amnon.

By the wysdome of the woman of Thekoa Absalom is called. The comlynesse and boustie of Absalom. Absalom spyeth Joabs corne. His father kyl-leth hym.

Wyhen Joab the sonne of Saruiah per-ceyued that the kynges hert was turned agayne to Absalom, he sente to Thekoa, and fet thence a wyse woman, and sayde vnto her: feyn thy selfe to be mourner, and put on mournyge apparell. And anoynt not thy selfe with oyle. But be as a woman that hadde longe tyme mourned for the deth of some body. And go to the kyng and speake on this maner vnto him. And Joab taughte her what she shulde saye. Nowe when the wyfe of Thekoa was come to speake with the kynge, she fell on her face to the ground and dyd obeysaunce and sayde: helpe me O kynge. And the kynge sayde vnto her, what ayleth the? she answered. I am a wyddowe, and myne husbande is deed. And thy handmayde hadde two sonnes whiche foughte to gether in the feldes where was no man to go betwene them, & the one slewe thother. And beholde, the hole kynrede arose agaynste thy handemayde, and sayde: deliuer vs him that smote his brother: that we maye kyl him for the soule of his brother whome he slewe, for we wyll destroye the heyre also. And so they shall quenche my sparkle whiche is lefte, tyll there remayne neither name ne issue vpon the erth vnto my husbande. The kynge sayde vnto the wyfe: goo home to thyne house, and I wyll gyue a charge for the. Then the woman of Thekoa sayde vnto the kynge. My lorde kynge, the trespace be on me and on my fathers house, and the kynge and his seate be gyltlesse. And then sayd the kyng: yf any man saye ought vnto the, bryng him to me / and he shall no more trouble the. Then saide she, let the kynge remembre his Lorde God, that the nexte of the bloude gather not on heapes togyther to destroye, and y they slee not my sonne. And he sayd: as truly as the Lorde lyueth, there shall not one heere of thy sonnes heed fall to therthe.

Then the woman sayde: let thyne handemayde speake one worde more to my lorde the kynge, and he sayd, saye on. And the woman sayde/wherfore then hast thou determined on this same maner agaynst the people of God?
that the kynge sholde speake this thing and be fautye therin, so that the kynge sholde not fet home agayne his banished? For we must nedes dye and perysshe, as water spylt on the grounde, whiche can not be gathered vp a-gayne/and God wyl not take awaye the life, but fynde the meanes that the banysshed be not vterly expelled from hym. And now con cernynge that I am come to speake of this thynge vnto the kynge my lorde / for I stode in feare of the people/thy handmayd thought surely I wyll speake vnto the kynge / peraduenture the kynge wyll heare the request of his handemayde. And the kynge shall heare his handemayde and delyuer her forth of the hande of the man that wolde haue destroyed me and my sonne also, oute of the enherytaunce of God. Then thyne handmayde sayd:
I praye God that the worde of my lorde the kynge maye be vnchaungeable. For my lorde the kynge is an aungell of God in hearyng of good

good or badde: and therfore the Lorde thy God be with the.

Then the kynge answered and sayde to the woman: hyde not frome me I praye the: the thinge that I shall aske the. And the woman sayde: let my Lorde the kynge saye on. Then sayde the kynge. Is not the hande of Joab with the in all this matter? And the woman answered and sayde: as surely as thy soule lyueth, my Lorde kynge, it is neyther on the right hande nor on the left, that my Lorde the kynge hathe spoken. For thy seruaunt Joab bad me, & he put all these wordes in the mouth of thyne handemayde. And that I shulde thus turne my tale an other waye, wylled me thy seruaunt Joab. And so I se that my Lorde is wyse, euen as an Aungell of God, to vnderstande all thinges that are in the earth. Then sayde the kynge to Joab, beholde, I am content to do this thinge. Go therfore fet home the yongeman Absalom. And Joab fell to the grounde on his face, and bowed him selfe, & blessed the kynge, and sayd: now thy seruaũt knoweth that I haue founde grace in ỹ sight of my Lorde the kynge in that he hath fulfilled the request of his seruaunte. And so Joab arose and went to Gesur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. Then sayde the kynge: let him turne to his owne house, and se he come not in my presence. And so Absalom went to his owne house, but came not in the kynges presence. Moreouer in all Jsraell there was not so goodly a man as Absalom, or so greatly prayed, from the sole of his fote to the top of his heed, was no blemysh in him. And whe he shaued his heed (for at euery yeres ende he shaued it because it was heuye on him, & ther fore he shaued it) the heare therof wayed two hundred sycles weyght of the kynges weyght And this Absalom had thre sonnes borne him and one doughter named Thamar, whiche was a fayre woman to loke vpon. When Absalom had dwelt two yere in Jerusalem with out commynge into the kynges presence, he sent for Joab, to thintent, to haue sent him to the kynge. But he wolde not come to him. And he sent agayne, & yet he wolde not come. Then he sayde vnto his seruauntes: beholde, Joab hath a parcell of lande fast by myne/ & hath barley therin. Go and set it on fyre, And Absaloms seruauntes went and set it on fire.

Then Joab arose and came to Absalom vnto his house, and sayde vnto him: Wherfore haue thy seruantes burnt my felde with fyre? And Absalom sayde to Joab: beholde, I sent for the, desyring the to come, because I wold haue sent the to the kynge, for to say: wherfore am I come frome Gesur? It had bene as good for me to haue byden there still. Nowe therfore let me come to the kynges presence, or elles yf there be any trespace in me, kil me. And Joab went to the kynge and tolde him. And he sent for Absalõ: which whan he was come, fell to the grounde on his face before ỹ kynge. And the kynge kyssed him.

¶ Absalom maketh insurrection agaynst his father, Dauid is fayne to flee for feare of him.

CAPI. XV.

After this, Absalom gat him charettes and horses, and fyftye men to run before him. And therto he vsed to aryse vp early in the mornynges, and to stande by ỹ wayes syde that led to the gate of the cyte. And all the men of Jsrael that had complaintes and came to the kynge for iudgement, he called vnto him and sayde: of what cite arte thou? And when the other answered: thy seruaunt is of suche a tribe of Jsrael. Then sayd Absalom vnto him: se, me thinketh thy matter is good and ryghteous, and yet no man is appointed of the kynge, to heare the. Then Absalom sayde further: Oh, that I were a iudge in the lande, and that all men whiche haue sutes and matters in ỹ lawe, shuld come to me. For I wolde do them iustice. And also when any man came nyghe to him to do hym obeysaunce, he put forth his hande and toke him to him, and kyssed him. And on this maner dyd Absalom to all Jsrael that came to ỹ kynge for iudgement, and thus he wanne the hertes of the men of Jsraell. And at fourtye yeres ende Absalom sayde to the kynge: Let me go to Hebron, and paye my vowe whiche I haue vowed, vnto the Lorde: for thy seruaunt vowed a vowe when I was in Gesur in the lande of Syria, sayinge: yf the Lorde shall bringe me agayne to Jerusalem, I will serue the Lorde. And the kynge sayde/ goo in peax. And so he arose and went to Hebron. Then Absalom sent spyes thorow out all the tribes of Jsrael, sayenge/ as sone as ye heare the voyce of the trompe blowe, saye/ Absalõ raygneth kynge in Hebron. And with Absalõ went two hundred men forth of Jerusalem ỹ were called. And they went with pure hertes knowinge nothinge of the matter. Absalom sent also for Achitophel the Gilonite Dauids counceilour, and fet him out of his cytie Gyloh, when he sacrificed sacrifices, where was wrought strong treason. And the people drue to Absalom in great thronges. And there cam a messenger to Dauid and sayde / The hertes of the men of Jsrael are to folow Absalom. Then sayde Dauid to all his seruauntes that were with him at Jerusalem / aryse and let vs flee, for we shall not otherwyse escape hõ Absalom. Make spede to depart/ lest he come sodenly and catche vs, and bringe some myschefe vpon vs, & smyte the cytie with thedge of the swerde. And the kynges seruaũtes sayd to him / beholde, thy seruauntes are redy to whatsouer my Lord the kynge shal appointe. Then the kynge & all his houshold departed a fote. And he left behynde him ten wemen ỹ were his concubynes, to kepe the house. And so the kynge & al the people went forth a fote & tarved farre frome the house, & all his seruauntes went by his syde. And all the Cerethites & all the Phelethites, & all the Hethites euen. vi. hundred men which were come a fote frome Geth, went before the kynge. Thẽ sayde ỹ kyng to Ethai the Gethite, wherfore shuldest thou go with vs also? Retourne and abyde with the kynge, for thou art a straũger and and art remoued frome thyne owne place. Thou camest but yesterdaye, and shoulde I disquiet the to daye to go with vs? I will go whether I go. But returne thou and cary agayne thy brethren. Mercy & truthe be with the. And Ethai answered the kynge and sayd: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as surely as my Lorde the kynge lyueth, in what place my Lorde the kynge shalbe, whether in death or lyfe, there will thy seruaũt be. Then sayd the kynge to Ethai, come and go forwarde. And Ethai the Gethite wente forth, and all his men, and all the childzen that were with him. And all the countrey wept with a loude voyce. Soo all the people went forwarde the straight waye to the wildernesse. And behold Sadock and all the Leuites were with him, and bare the arcke of the testament of God. And when they hadde set downe the arcke of God, Abiathar came vp, vntyll the people were all come ouer, out of the cytie. Thē sayd the kynge vnto Sadock. Carye the arcke of God agayne into the cytie. Yf I shall fynde fauoure in the eyes of the Lord, he will bring me agayne, and shewe me both it and the tabernacle therof also. But yf the Lorde thus saye: I haue no lust vnto the. Beholde, here am I, let him do with me what semeth good in his eyes. The kynge sayde also vnto Sadock the preaste, thou arte a Sear. Returne therfore into the cytie in peace. And take your two sonnes with you: Ahimaaz thy sonne, & Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar. And se, I will byde me in the feldes of the wyldernesse tyll there come some worde frome you to be tolde me. And so Sadock and Abiathar caryed the Arcke of God agayne to Jerusalem, and they taryed there. And Dauid wente vp on mount Oliuet and wept as he went, and had his heed couered, and went barefote. And all the people that was with him, had euery mā his heed couered, and as they went wept also. And one tolde Dauid, sayenge: Achitophel is one of them that haue conspired with Absalom. Then sayde Dauid: O Lorde, turne the counsell of Achitophel in folyshnes. Wher Dauid was come to the toppe of the mount and had bowed hym selfe vnto God: behold, Husai the Arachite came against him with his cote torne & earth vpon his heed. Vnto whō Dauid sayd: yf thou go with me, thou shalt be a burthen vnto me. But yf thou returne to the cytie: then shalt thou saye vnto Absalom I will be thy seruaunt O kynge: thus longe haue I bene thy fathers seruaunte, and nowe I am thyne. And shalt disclose the counsel of Achitophel. And thou hast therewith the Sadock and Abiathar the prestes, to whom thou shalte shewe all thou canste heare oute of the kynges house. And behold, ye haue with you there two sonnes: Ahimaaz Sadockes sonne, and Jonathas Abiathars sonne, by whome ye shall sende me all ye can heare. And so Husai Dauids frende gat him to the cytie. And Absalom also entered into Jerusalem.

CAPI. XVI.

When Dauid was a lytle paste the toppe of the hyll: beholde Ziba the seruaunt of Miphiboseth came against him with a couple of Asses sadeled, and vpon them two hundred loues, and one hundred bonches of resinges, and an hundred krayles of dryed figges, and a bottell of wyne. Then sayde the kynge to Ziba: What hast thou there? And Ziba sayde: Asses for the kynges housholde to ryde on, and bread and frute for the young men to eate, and wyne to drinke, yf any man faynt in the wyldernesse. Then sayde ỹ kynge: Where is thy masters sonne? and Ziba sayd vnto the kynge: beholde, he taryeth still at Jerusalem. For he sayde: This daye shal the house of Jsraell restore me ỹ kyngdome of my father. Then sayd the kynge to Ziba: behold thyne are all that pertayned vnto Miphiboseth. And Ziba answered: I beseche ỹ that I may fynde grace in thy sight my Lorde kyng. ii. Regū. xix. b

And when kyng Dauid came to Bahurim: beholde, thence came oute a man of the kynrede of the house of Saul named Semei the sonne of Gera, and he came out cursyng. And therto he caste stones at Dauid and at all the seruauntes of kynge of Dauid, all the people and all the men of warre goynge part on his right hande, and part on his lefte. And thus sayde this Semei, when he cursed the kynge, walke, walke, thou bloudesheder, and thou vnthryfty man. The Lord hath brought vpō the, al the bloud of ỹ house of Saul, in whose place thou hast raygned, and he hath delyuered the kyngdome into the hande of Absalom thy sonne. And thou art wrapped about with thyn owne myscheefe, because thou art a bloud sheder. B ii. Regum. c. d

Then sayde Abisai the son of Zaruiah vnto the kynge: Why doth this deed dogge curse my Lorde the kynge? let me go and stryke of his heed. And the kynge sayd: What haue I to do with you, ye sonnes of Zaruiah / Let him curse / for the Lord hath bydden him curse Dauid. And who dare presume to saye wherfore doth he so? And Dauid sayde to Abisai, & to all his seruauntes / behold, my sonne whiche came out of myne owne bowelles seketh my lyfe. How moche more then may this son of Jemini do it? Suffre him therfore to curse for the Lorde hath bydden him / happely the Lorde will loke on my wretchednesse, and do me good for his cursinge this daye. And thus as Dauid and his men went by the way, Semei wente alonge on the hylles syde, ouer against him, and rayled as he went, and threw stones at him, and cast dust. And the kynge & all that were with him came very wery, and refreshed them selues there. C D

And Absalom and all the people of the men of Jsrael came to Jerusalem and Achitophel with him. And as sone as he was come / Husai the Arachite Dauides frende wente vnto Absa-

Absalom and sayde vnto him: God saue the kynge, God saue the kyng. And Absalom sayd
D agayne to Husai: is this thy kindnesse thou owest to thy frende? Why wentest thou not with hym? And Husai sayde vnto Absalom: naye not so, but whome the Lorde and this people and all the men of Israel chose, his will I be, and with hym will I dwell. And furthermore, vnto whome shall I do seruice but to his sonne? And as I was seruaunte before with thy father, so shall I be with the. Then spake Absalom to Achitophel, gyue counsell what is best for vs to do. Achitophel sayde to Absalom: get the in to thy fathers concubines whiche he hath lefte to kepe the house. For when all Israel shall heare that thou hast kepied thy father, then shall ỹ handes of all that are with the, be stronge. And so they pytched Absalom a tent vpon the top of the house. And he went in vnto his fathers concubynes in the sight of all Israel. And the counsel of Achitophel whiche he counseled in those dayes, euen as a man had asked counsel of God: so was all the counsel of Achitophel, bothe vnto Dauid and also vnto Absalom.

CAP. XVII.

A THen Achitophel sayd vnto Absalom: let me chose out twelue thousand men. And I will forwarde and folow after Dauid by night, and come vpon him whyle he is wery and weake handed, and will fray hym, that all the people that are with him shall flee. And so will I smyte the kynge succourlesse, & will bryng agayne al the people vnto the, for thou seekest but after one man, and all the people shall haue rest. And the sayenge pleased Absalom well, and al the elders of Israel. Then sayde Absalom: call also Husai the Arachite and let vs heare his aduise. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto hym, sayeng: Achitophel hath gyuen suche counsel, whether it be best we wolde after his sayenge or not, tell thou. Then sayde Husai to Absalom: the counsell that Achitophel hath gyuen is not good at this tyme. For (sayde Husai) thou knowest thy father and the men
B that are with him, how they be stronge men. And they be chafed in their myndes, as a Bear robbed of her whelpes. And moreouer thy fa Proue.xvii.b ther is a man practised in warre, and will not lye a nyghtes amonges the commen people. Perchaunce he nowe lurketh in some caue or in some other place. And thoughe some of his men be ouerthrowē at the first brunt, yet they that heare it will thynke the people that folowech Absalom, be put to the worsse. By reason wherof euē the best men thou hast whose hertes are as the hertes of Lyons, shal shrink therat. For all Israel knowe that thy father
C is a wyse man, and that they which be with him be valyaunt men. But my counsel is that all Israell be gathered vnto the, frome Dan to Berseba, as the sande of the see in nombre, and that thou goo to battayle in thyne owne persone. And we shall come vpon him in one place or other, where we shall fynde him, and we shall pytche a felde against him, euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on the grounde. And there shall not one of them be lefte, nyther he ne anye of all that were with him. Moreouer yf he take a towne, then shall all the men of Israel compasse that cytie rounde about with ropes, and we will drawe it into the ryuer, vntyl there be not one stone found vpon an other. And Absalom and all the men of Israel sayde: that the counsel of Husai the Arachite was better then the counsell of Achitophel. For it was euen the Lordes intent to destroye the counsell of Achitophel: which was good, that the Lorde myght bringe euil vpon Absalom. Then sayd ✱ Husai vnto Sadock and Abiathar the preastes: on this & that maner dyd Achitophel and thelders of Israel counsel Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counseled. Now therfore sende quyckely and shewe Dauid, sayenge: tary not all nyght in the feldes of the wildernes, but get the ouerlest the kynge be deuoured, and all the people that are with him. Now Jonathas and Ahimaaz abode by the wel Rogel/for they might not be sene to come into the cytie. And a wenche went and tolde them. And they to goo & shewed kynge Dauid. Neuertheles there was a lad saw them whiche tolde it to Absalom. But they went both of them awaye quickly, and came to a mans house in Bahurim, whyche had a well in his yarde, into whiche they went downe. And the wyfe toke and spred a couerlet on the top of the well, and strawed theron steaped barleye to drye. And the thyng was not espyed. So when Absaloms seruantes came to the wyfe, to the house and asked where one Ahimaaz and Jonathas were, the wyfe sayde vnto them / they be gone ouer the lytle brooke of water. And when they hadde sought them and coulde not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem. And as sone as they were departed, the other came out of the wel and went and tolde kynge Dauid, and sayde vnto him / aryse and get you quyckely ouer the water, for suche counsell hath Achitophel gyuen. Thē Dauid arose and all the people that were with him, and they were come ouer Jordan by day yeght so that there lacked not one of them that was not come ouer Jordan. And when Achitophel sawe his counsell was not folowed, he sadelled his asse, and arose, and gat him home, to his owne cytie, and set his houshold in order and hanged him selfe and dyed, and was buryed in the buryall of his father. Then Dauid came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed ouer Jordan, both he and all the men of Israell with him. Then Absalom made Amasa capitayne of the hoste in stede of Joab which Amasa was a mās sonne named Jethra a Jezrahelyte that went in to Abigail the doughter of Naab, sister to Zaruiah Joabs mother. And Israel and Absalom pitched in the lande of Galaad. And whē Dauid was come to Mahanaim, Sobi the sonne of Nahas of ab of Rabath the cytye of the chyldren of Ammon, and Machir the sonne of Amiel of Lodaber, and Berzelei the Galaadite of Rogelim, brought beddes, basens and erthen vesselles: and also corne, barley, floure, and parched corne, benes, and rice, hony, butter, shepe and chese of kyne, for Dauid and all the people that were with him to eate. For they supposed that the people shulde be hongrye, faintye, and thurstye in the wyldernesse.

¶ Absalom is ouercomme in battayle. He hangeth by the heare on an Oke. He is kylled and putte in a dytche. Dauid is sorowfull for the deeth of Absalom that he wepeth.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND the kyng nombred the people that were with him, and set graund capitaines and pety cappitaines ouer them. And he sent one part of them with Joab, and an other parte with Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah Joabs brother, and the thirde part with Ethai the Gethite. And the kynge sayde to ỹ people: shall I go with you? And the people answered: naye, for yf we flee, our aduersaries will not care for vs: neyther thoughe half of vs were slayne, shall they regarde vs. But thou were worth ten thousande of vs. And furthermore it is that thou be redy to succour vs out of the cytie. Then sayde the kynge: what semeth you best, that will I do. And ỹ kynge stode by the gates syde, and al the people came out by hundredes and by thousandes. And the kynge commaunded Joab, Abisai, and Ethai sayenge: se that ye saue my sonne Absalom. And all the people herde when the kinge gaue all the capitaynes charge vpon Absalom. And the people went out into the felde against Israel, and the battell was in the woode of Ephraim. Where the people of Israel were put to the worse before the seruauntes of Dauid and there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twenty thousande men. And the felde was fought in dyuerse places, all abrode vpō the earth. And the woodes deuoured moo people that day, than dyd the swerde. And it chaūced Absalom to come before the seruauntes of Dauid rydinge vpon a Mule whiche carved him vnder the thicke bowes of a great Oke. And his heed caught in the Oke, so that he honge betwene heauen and earthe, and the Mule that was vnder him went awaye. And one that sawe it tolde Joab sayenge: behold, I sawe Absolom hange in an Oke: and Joab sayd vnto him that tolde him: lo, sawest thou him? And why dydest not thou there smyte him to the grounde, that I shoulde haue gyuen the ten sycles of syluer and a souldyours gyrdle.

And the man answered Joab: thoughe I hadde a thousand sycles of syluer tolde in my hande, yet wold I not stretche out myne hād against the kynges sonne. For we herde with our eares when the kynge charged the, Abisai, and Ethai, sayenge: se that ye laye no handes vpon my sonne Absalom. Moreouer thoughe I had ieoparded my lyfe, and wone falsly, yet coulde nought of al the matter haue bene hyd frome the kynge: yea and thou thy selfe wouldest be against me. Then sayde Joab I may not stande tarrienge with the, I wil bō him before thy face.

hande and thrust them into the hart of Absalō whyle he was yet alyue on the body of ỹ tree And ten seruauntes that bare Joabs weapōs, turned and smote Absalom and slue him. Thē Joab blewe a trompet, and the people returned frome pursuynge Israel: for Joab spared the people. And they toke Absalom, and caste him into a great pyt that was in the wood, & cast a myghty great heape of stones vpon him Then all Israel fled euery man to his tent. And this Absalom yet in his lyfe tyme, reared vp a pyller, which is yet in kynges dale. For he sayde: I haue no male childe. And therfore to kepe my name in remembraunce wo I it. And he called the pyller after his owne name. And it is called vnto this daye, Absaloms pyller. E

Absaloms pyller.

Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock: let me runne and beare the kynge tydinges, how the Lorde hath gyuē him iugemēt forth of the handes of his ennemyes. Joab sayde to him: thou arte no man to beare tydinges to day: thou shalt beare tydinges another tyme but to daye thou shalt beare none, because the kynges sonne is deed. Thē sayd Joab to Chusi go and tell the kynge what thou haste sene. And Chusi bowed him selfe vnto Joab and ranne. Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock agayne to Joab: come what come wyll, let me runne I praye the after Chusi. And Joab sayde: Wherfore shouldest thou runne my sonne? for al be it thou runne thou gettest no rewarde: but he sayde, Well, come what wil let me runne. And he sayde vnto him: runne. Then Ahimaaz ranne by the playne and ouer ranne Chusi.

Dauid sat betwene the two gates. And F the watcheman went vp to the roufe ouer the gate vnto the wall, and lyfte vp his eyes and sawe: and beholde, there came a man runnynge alone. And the watcheman called and tolde the kynge. And the kynge sayde, yf he come alone, there is tidinges in his mouth. And he came and drue nye. And the watchmā sawe another man runnynge, and called vnto the porter and sayde: beholde, there commeth a nother runnynge alone. And the kynge answered, he is also a tydynges brynger. And the watchman sayde: me thinketh the runnynge of the formost is lyke the runninge of Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock. And the kynge sayde: he is a good man, and commeth with good tydinges. And Ahimaaz called and sayd to the kynge: good tydinges, and bowed him selfe to the erth vpon his face before the king and sayde: blessed be the Lorde thy God whiche hath shut vp al the men that lyft vp their handes against my Lorde the kynge. And the kynge sayde, is the lad Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered, I saw a great hurlee burlee G the kynge sayde: turne and stande here. And he turned and stode. And beholde Chusi came and sayde, Good tydynges my liege sir king, the Lorde hathe quytte the this daye out of the handes of all that arose agaynste the. And the kynge sayd to Chusi, is the lad Absalom safe? And Chusi answered, the ennemyes of my Lorde the kyng and all that rise agaynste the, to haue the, be as thy sonne is. And the kynge was moued and went vp to a chamber ouer the gate and wepte. And as he went thus he sayde: my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde to God I hadde dyed for the Absalom, my sonne, my sonne.

¶ Dauid is restored to his kyndome, and brought agayne to Jerusalem.

CAPI. XIX.

A IT was tolde Joab, that the kynge wepte and mourned for Absalom. And the victorye was turned that daye in to mournyng vnto al the people. For the people herde that daye, howe the kynge sorowed for his sonne, and the people went stealynge in to the cyty, euen as people confounded do steale awaye, when they flee in battell. And the kynge hyd his face and cryed with a loude voyce: my son Absalom Absalom my sonne my sonne. Joab therfore went into the house to the kynge & sayde: thou hast abashed this daye the faces of all thy seruauntes, whiche this daye haue saued thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sonnes & doughters, and the lyues of thy wynes & concubynes, in that thou louest thyne ennemyes and hatest thy frendes. Thou hast declared this daye that thou carest neyther for thy capytaynes nor seruauntes. For now I euidentely perceyue, yf Absalom had lyued, and all we dyed this daye, then it had pleased the well.

B Now therfore aryse and come abrode, & speke kyndly vnto thy seruauntes, I swere by the Lorde oneles thou come oute, there will not tarye one man with the this nighte, whiche thinge will be worsse vnto the, then all the euyll that fell on the frome thy youthe vnto this houre. Then the kynge arose & sat downe in the Gate. And it was tolde vnto all ỹ people, how the kynge sat in the Gate. And then all the people came before the kynge, But Israel fled euery man to his tent. And all ỹ people were at stryfe thorow oute all the kynredes of Israell, sayenge: the kynge delyuered vs out of the hande of our ennemyes, and he delyuered vs oute of the hande of the Philistines. And now he is fled out of the land for Absalom. But Absalom whome we annoynted ouer vs is dead in battell. Nowe therfore

C why are ye so styll, that ye bringe not ỹ kyng agayne? And kynge Dauid sent to Sadock & Abiathar the preastes, sayenge: Speake vnto the elders of Juda and saye: why shuld ye be the last that shulde bringe agayne ỹ kyng to his house, sythe suche tydinges is come frō all Israel vnto the kynge euen to his house? ye are my brethren, my bones and my flesshe: wherfore then shuld ye be the last that shuld come to bringe the kynge home agayne? And saye to Amasa: art thou not my bone and my flesh? And God do so to me and so, onles thou be capitayne of the hoste to me for euer in the rowme of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of all the men of Juda, as a man wolde bowe the hert of one man: so that they sent worde to the kynge, that he shulde returne with all his seruauntes. And the kynge returned and came to Jordan. And Juda came to Galgal to thintent to mete the kyng and conuey him ouer Jordan. And Semei ✝ the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini whiche was of Bahurim, hasted and came with the men of Juda to mete kynge Dauid, and a thousande men of Ben Jamin with him, and ✝ Siba the seruaunt of the house of Saul, and his. xv. sonnes, and twentye seruauntes with him. And they whypte ouer Jordan before the kynge. And there went ouer a Bote to cary ouer the kynges housholde, and to do him pleasure. And Semei the sonne of Gera fell before the kynge, as he was come ouer Jordan, & sayde to him: let not my lorde accompt wickednes vnto me, ne let him not remember the wyckednesse that thy seruant dyd, when my lord the kynge departed forthe of Jerusalem that the kynge shulde take it to herte. For thy seruaunt doth knowe his offence. And therfore beholde, I am the firste this daye of all the house of Joseph that am come to mete my lorde the kynge. But Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah aunswered and sayde: shall Semei not dye for these wordes that he reuyled the Lordes annointed? And the kynge sayde / What matter is betwene you and me, ye sonnes of Zaruiah, that ye shulde this daye be aduersaries vnto me? There shall no man dye this daye in Israel / for I knowe I am made this daye kynge ouer Israell. And the kynge sayd vnto Semei / thou shalte not dye, and sware vnto him.

And Miphiboseth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kynge, and had neyther dressed his fete, ne shauen his bearde, ne washed his clothes, frome the tyme the kynge departed, tyll he came agayne in peax. And whē he was come to Jerusalem towarde the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him / Wherfore wentest not thou with me Miphiboseth? And he sayd, My Lorde kynge, my seruaunt deceyued me. For thy seruaunte sayde / that I wolde haue myne asse sadled to ryde theron, for to go to the kynge, because thy seruaunt is lame. And he hath therto complayned on thy seruaunte vnto my Lorde the kynge. But my lorde the kynge is as an aungell of God / doo therfore what semeth best in thyne eyes. For all my fathers house were but deedmen vnto my lorde the kynge / & yet dyddest thou put me among theym that eate at thyne owne table. What righte therfore haue I yet, to crye anye more vnto the kynge? And the kynge sayde / it nedeth the not to speake anye more, for I haue sayde / that thou and Siba shall diuide ỹ landes betwene you. And Miphiboseth sayd vnto the kyng / yee let him take all / for so moch as my as my lorde the kynge is come in peax to his owne houſſe.

F And Berzelai the Galaadite came frome Rogelim, and wente ouer Jordan with the kynge, to accompanye hym ouer Jordan: whiche Berzelai was a very aged man, euē foure ſkore yeres olde, and had prouyded the kynge of ſuſtenaunce whyle he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of very great ſubſtaunce. And the kyng ſayde vnto Berzelai: come thou with me, that I maye fede the with me in Jeruſalem. But Berzelai ſayde vnto the kynge, Of what age am I, that I ſhulde go with the kynge into Jeruſalem? I am this daye foure ſkore yere olde: and therfore can not deceme ſauery frome vnſauery, neyther hath thy ſeruaunte pleaſure in that he eateth or dryncketh: ne yet delectacion in the ſonges of mē or women. It is no nede that thy ſeruaunt be a burthen vnto my Lorde the kynge: let thy ſeruaunt goo a lytle waye ouer Jordan with the kynge, for why ſhulde the kynge yeld me ſuche a reward? But let thy ſeruaunt turne backe agayne, that I may dye in myne owne citie, and be buryed by the graue of my father and mother. But loo, here is thy ſeruaunte Chamaam, let him goo with my Lorde the kynge, and do to him, what ſhall pleaſe the. And the kynge anſwered, Chamaam ſhall G go with me. And I wyll do to hym that thou ſhalt be content with. Yea and whatſoeuer thou ſhalte requyre of me, that ſame wyll I do for the. And all the people went ouer Jordan. And when the kynge was come ouer Jordan, he kyſſed Berzelai and bleſſed hym, and he went backe agayne vnto his owne place. And then the kyng went to Galgal, and Chamaam went with hym. Nowe, all the men of Juda were at the bryngyng ouer of the king, and but halfe the men of Iſrael.

Wherfore all the men of Iſrael came to the kyng and ſayde vnto him: why haue our brethren the men of Juda ſtolen the awaye, and haue brought the kyng and his houſhold and all Dauids men with hym ouer Jordan? And all the men of Juda anſwered the men of Iſrael: for the kynge is nere of kynne to vs: wherfore be ye angry for that mater? thynke ye that we eate of the kynges coſte, or that the kynge gyueth vs any gyftes? And the men of Iſrael anſwered the men of Juda and ſayde: we haue ten partes in the king and haue therto more right to Dauid thē ye. Why then dyd ye deſpyſe vs, that our aduyſe had not bene fyrſte hadde in reſtorynge oure kynge agayne? And the wordes of the men of Juda were fearcer then the wordes of the mē of Iſrael.

CAPI. XX.

A THere happened alſo to be an vnthryfty perſon named Seba, the ſon of Bochri, a man of Gemini, whyche blew a trōpet

& ſayde: we haue no part in Dauid, nor inheritaunce in the ſonne of Iſai, O Iſrael, let vs depart therfore euery man to his tent. And al Iſrael went from Dauid and folowed Seba the ſonne of Bochri. But the men of Juda claue faſte vnto the kynge, frome Jordan to Jeruſalem. And when Dauid was come to his houſe to Jeruſalem, he toke the .x. women his concubynes that he had left behynde him to kepe the houſe, and put them in warde and mynyſtred all thynges vnto them: but laye no more with them. And ſo they were cloſed vnto the daye of the death of them, and lyued a wydowes lyfe. Seba

Then ſayde the kynge to Amaſa: aſſemble me the men of Juda within thre dayes & preſent thy ſelfe here. And Amaſa went to aſſemble the men of Juda: but taryed longer then the tyme appointed him. Wherfore the kyng ſayde to Abiſai: now ſhal Seba ꝑ ſon of Bochri be worſe to vs thē Abſalom. Take thou therfore thy maiſters ſeruauntes and folow after him: leſt he get him walled cytes and eſcape vs. And there went out after him Joabs mē and the Cerethites and the Phelethites and men of ſtrength. And they departed out of Jeruſalem te purſue Seba the ſonne of Bochri. And when they were come to the great ſtone in Gabaon, Amaſa met hym. And Joab hadde his garment that he had about him, gyrde vn to him, and hadde gyrde theron a knyfe ioyned faſt to his loynes in a ſhethe out of whyche it myght eaſily come forthe. And Joab ſayde to Amaſa: are al thinges in reſt and peax my brother? And Joab toke Amaſa by the chynne vn to the righthande, as thoughe he wolde haue kiſſed him. And Amaſa toke no hede to the knyfe that was in Joabs hande, with whyche Joab ſmote him in the ſhort rybbes, and ſhed oute his bowelles to the grounde, and ſmote hym but one ſtroke, and he dyed. And then Joab and Abiſai his brother purſued Seba the ſon of Bochri. And one of Joabs men that ſtode by the dede corps of Amaſa ſayd: What is he that he wolde be as Joab, and what is he ꝑ wolde be vnto Dauid in ſtede of Joab? And Amaſa laye walowynge in blonde in the mides of the waye. And there was a man that ſaw how all the people ſtode ſtil to gaſe vpon him, and he rowled Amaſa out of the way into the felde, and caſt a clothe vpon him. And as ſone as he was tombled oute of the waye all the people went after Joab, to purſue Seba the ſonne of Bochri. Joab kylleth Amaſa. ii. Regum. ii. E

And he went thorow al the tribes of Iſrael vnto Abel Bethmaacah and all Barim. And the people gathered vnto him and went alſo after him. And they came & beſieged him in Abel Bethmaacah. And they caſt vp a bāke againſt the cytie. And it was beſieged. All the people that was with Joab labored buſily to ouerthrowe the wall. Then cryed a wyſe woman out of the cytie, harken, harken, byd Joab that he come hyther, to thintent I maye ſpeake with him. When Joab was come, the woman ſayde: arte thou Joab? And Joab anſwered, I am. And ſhe ſayd to him: heare the wordes of thy handmayde, And he ſayd: I am I wyſe woman. F

redy to heare. And she sayde: it hathe bene a common sayinge in olde tyme / men muste aske in Abel, & thē it come to good passe. Abel is one of the quyetest and faythfullest cities that are in Israel. And thou goest aboute to destroye a cytye that is a mother in Israell. Why deuourest thou the inheritaunce of the Lorde? And Joab answered and sayde: God forbydde, God forbydde it me, that I shulde eyther deuoure or destroye it. The thynge is not so: But there is a man of mount Ephraim, Seba the sonne of Bochri by name, who hath lyft vp his hande agaynste kynge Dauid. Delyuer vs him only, and I wyll depart
G frome the cytye. And the woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heed shall be throwen throwe the wall to the. And then the womā went vnto all the people in her wysdome. And they smote of the hed of Seba the sonne of Bochri, and cast it to Joab. And he blewe the trompe, and they shatered from the cytye euery man to his tent. So Joab returned to Jerusalem vnto the kynge.

And Joab was the graund capitayne ouer all the host of Israel, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada was ouer the Cerethites & the Plethites. Aduram was officer ouer the tribute And Josaphat the sonne of Ahilud was recorder. Seua was scribe. Sadock and Abiathar were the preastes. But Ira the Jaurite was counsellour euen to Dauid selfe.

¶ Thre deare yeres. The vengeaunce of the synnes of Saul lyghteth on his seuen sonnes, whiche are hanged. Foure great batelles, which Dauid fought agaynste the Philistines.

CAPI. XXI.

A THen there fell an hongre in the dayes of Dauid three yeres inslewinglye, and Dauid enquired of the Lorde. And the Lorde answered: it is for Sauls sake and the house of bloude, because he slewe the Gabaonites. And the kynge called the Gabaontes, and sayde vnto them. (Nowe these Gabaontes were not of the children of Israel, but a remnaunt of the Ammorites, for the children of Israel had sworne vnto them, & yet Saul sought to slay them, of a zele he had to ỹ children of Israel and of Juda) Dauid therfore sayd vnto the Gabaonites: What shall I do for you? and wherwith shall I content you, that ye may bleſſe the enheritaūce of ỹ Lord? The Gabaonites sayde vnto him: Our matter is not vpon siluer & gold but against Saul and against his house: neyther haue we any man that we wolde kyl in Israel. Thē he sayd
B What then will ye I do for you? And they sayde vnto the kynge: the man that consumed and imagyned to bringe vs to nought, hym we ought to destroy, that not one of his stock be left in all the coostes of Israel, let the seuē men of his sonnes be delyuered vnto vs, that we may hange them vp vnto the Lord, in Gibeah, of Saul sometyme the Lordes electe. And Dauid sayde: I will gyue them you.

1 Reg. xviii.a But the kynge had compassion on Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas, the son of Saul, because of the Lordes oth that was betwene Dauid and Jonathas the son of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Rezphah ỹ dughter of Aiah which she bare vnto Saul, Armoni and Miphiboseth, and the fyue sonnes of Michol the dughter of Saul which she bare to Adriel the son of Berzelai the Molathite, & delyuered them vnto the handes of the Gabaonites, and they hanged them in the hill before the Lorde. These seuen were all slayne at once in the first dayes of heruest: euen in ỹ begynninge of Barley heruest.

And Rezphah the dughter of Aiah toke sack clothe and spred it vnder her vpon the Rocke, euen frome the beginninge of heruest, vntyll rayne dropped vpon them out of heauen and suffered neyther the brydes of the ayre to fall on them by daye, nor beastes of the felde by night. When it was tolde Dauid what Rezphah the dughter of Aiah the concubyne of
C Saul had wone, he went and toke the bones of Saul & of Jonathas his sonne, of the men
D of Jabes in Galaad, whiche they had stolen frome the streete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged theym in the dayes when ỹ Philistines had slayne Saul in Gelboe. And brought thence the bones of Saul and ỹ bones of Jonathas his son, and they set awaye the bones of them that were hanged, and buryed them with the bones of Saul and Jonathas his sonne in the countrey of Benjamin, in Zela, in the sepulchre of Cis his father. And when they hadde performed all that the kynge commaunded, God was appeased with the lande. And the Philistines had yet againe warre wt Israel. Dauid therfore went downe and his seruantes with him, and fought with the Philistines. And Dauid waxed faynty, & Jesbi of Nob one of the sonnes of Haraphah whose speare hed waged thre hundred sycles of Brasse, and was gyrde with a new sworde thought to haue slayne Dauid. But Abisai sonne of Zaruiah succoured him and smote the Philistine and kylled him. Then the seE uauntes of Dauid sware vnto him sayenge. Thou shalt go no more forth with vs to battel, that the lyght of Israell be not put out. And there was yet after this, battel with the Philistines at Nob, in whiche Sobochai the Husathite slew Saph of the sonnes of Haraphah. And there was yet the thirde battel in Gob, with the Philistines, where Elehanan the son of the Jaere Orgim, a Bethlehemite, slew one Goliath a Gethite: ỹ staffe of whose speare was as gret as a weuers cloth beame.

And there was yet battell in Geth, where was a man of a great heyght, who had on euery hande sixe fingers, and on euery fote sixe toes. xxiiij. in all. And was also of the kynred of Haraphah, and defyed Israel. And Jonathas the sonne of Samach the brother of Dauid slew him. These foure were of the sonnes of Haraphah in Geth, and were ouerthrowē by the hande of Dauid and his seruauntes.

CAP. XXII.

And

AND Dauid spake the wordes of this balade vnto the Lorde, what tyme the Lorde had delyuered hym oute of the handes of all his enempes, and out of the handes of Saul. And he sayde: the Lorde is my rocke, my castell and my sauyour. God is my strenght, and in hym wyll I truste: my shylde & the horne that defendeth me: myne hyghe holde and refuge, my sauour, saue me frome wyckednelle.

I wyll prayse and call on the Lorde and so shall be saued frome myne enempes. For ℣ sorowes of death haue closed me about, and the flouddes of Belial haue feared me. The cordes of hell haue enuironned me, and the snares of death haue ouertake me. In my tribulation I called to the Lorde, and cryed to my God. And he herde my voyce out of his tẽple, and my crye entred into his eares. The earth trembled and quoke, and the foundacions of heauen moued and shoke, because he was angry. ℣.xvii.a

Smoke went out of his nostrelles, and cõsumynge fyre oute of his mouth, that it kyndled coles. He bowed heauen & came downe, and derckenelle vnder nethe his feete. And he rode vpon Cherubim and flew: and appeared vpon the wynges of the wynde. And he made derckenelle a tabernacle rounde about him, ℣ water congeled in thicke cloudes. Of ℣ bright nelle that was before him, coles were set on fyre. The Lorde thundred frome heauen, and the most hyghe put out his voyce. He shotte arowes and scatered them, and hurled lyghtnynge and turmoyled them. And the bottome of the see appeared, and the foundacions of the worlde were sene, by reason of the rebukynge of the Lorde, and thorow the blastinge of the breath of his nostrelles. He sent frome aboue and set me, & plucked me out of mygh ty waters. He delyuered me from my mighty enuemy, and frome them that hated me, and were to stronge for me. When they had besieged me in the daye of my affliction, the Lorde stayed me vp. And he brought me out at large and delyuered me, because he delyted in me.

The Lorde rewarded me after my righte wyselle, and accordinge to the pureneſſe of my handes he requyted me. For I kept the wayes of the Lorde, and committed no wyckednelle by forlakinge my God. But I had all his lawes in my sight, neyther I tourned my face frome any of his ordinaunces. But was pure vnto hymwarde, and kept my selfe frome vngodlyneſſe.

And the Lorde dyd to me againe, accordinge to my righte wyſneſſe, and after my pureneſſe ℣ I had in his sight. With the holy thou shalt be holy, and with the man that is vncorrupt, thou shalt be vncorrupt. With the pure thou shalt be pure, & with the frowarde thou shalte be frowarde also. And the people that are in aduerſite, thou shalt helpe. And on the proud shalt thou cast thyne eyes, to pull thẽ downe. Thou art my light (O Lorde,) and the Lorde shall lyght my derckenelle. With thy helpe I will run thorowe an hoste of men, and by the ayde of my God will spring ouer a wall. The waye of God is vndefyled, and the worde of the Lorde fyned as golde, and he a shilde to al that trust in him.

Who is a God saue the Lord, & who mighty saue our God? God is my strẽgth in war, and ryddeth the waye cleare before me. And maketh my fete as swyfte as an hyndes, and setteth me fast vpon my hyghe holdes.

And teacheth my handes to fyghte, that a bowe of brasse is to weake for myne armes.

And thou haste saued me with thy shylde, & thy gentylnes hath multiplyed me. Thou madeſt me space to walke in, that my fete shulde not stagger. I folowed myne ennempes and destroyed them, and turned not agayne tyll I had consumed them. I wasted them & so brow sed them, that they coulde not aryse: but fell vnder my fete.

And thou dyddeſt compaſe me about with myght to battell, and madeſt them that rose againſt me, to stoupe vnder me. Thou madeſt myne ennempes to turne their backes to me, & them that hated me, & I destroyed thẽ. They loked for helpe: but none came to saue them. Vnto the Lorde they cryed, but he herde thẽ not. I will beate them as smal as the dust of the earthe, and will stampe them as the dyrte of the streate, and will spreade them abrode.

Thou delyueredſt me frome the dillencion of my people, and kepeſt me to be an hed ouer nacions, for the people which I knew not became my seruauntes.

And the straungers shall make reſiſtence againſt me, and shall obeye me at a worde.

And the alyenes that shrinke awaye, shall tremble for feare in their defenced places.

The Lorde lyue, and bleſſed be he that is my strength: and exalted be God the strength that sauyth me. It is God that auengeth me, and bringeth downe the people vnder me. And delyuereth me from myne enempes, thou lyfteſt me vp on hyghe frome them that aryse againſt me, and delyureſt me frome the wycked men.

And therfore I will prayse the (O Lorde) amonge the Heythen, and wyll synge vnto thy name. For thy great and manyfolde sauinge of thy kynge, and shewinge mercy vnto thyne annoynted, euen to Dauid, and his sede for euer. Roma.xv.b

¶ The laſte communicacion of Dauid, and the deſcripcion of the myghty men to hym belongynge.

CAPI. XXIII.

THese be the laſt sayenges of Dauid the sonne of Iſai. The man which is made the hyghe annoynted of the God of Jacob and pleasaunt Psalmiſt of Iſrael sayde: ℣ spirite of the Lord spake in me, & his wordes were on my tonge. The God of Iſrael spake vnto me, and the strength of Iſrael sayde: he that beareth rule ouer men, he that ruleth iuſtlye in the feare of God, shall be as the morynge sterre when the sonne shyneth in a morynge in whiche are no cloudes to lette the brightneſſe, and as the graſſe of the erth by vertu of the rayne. And is not myne house so with God? in that he hath made with me an euerlastynge couenaunt perfect in all poin tes: and in that he shall fulfyll all that is healthsome vnto me, & al my desyres therto. Where as the vnthryfty men are al as thornes taken forth of their places, whiche cannot be taken with handes: but the man that shall touche them, must be armed with yron on a longe helue. And then shal they be burnt with fyre, to ‡ therby.

These be the names of the myghtye men þ
B were about Dauid: Iosed of Sebeth the Thachmonite, first of thre, otherwyse called Adino the Aznite, which slew. viij. hundred at one tyme. And next to him Eleazar the son of Dodi the sonne of Ahohi, one of the three principal that were with Dauid, which whē they defyed the Philistines that were there gathered in battell (and the men of Israel were gone vp) arose and layd on the Philistines tyl his hande aked and claue vnto the swerd. And the Lorde made a great victory the same daye. And the people returned and went after hym onely to spoyle. After him was Sema þ sonne of Agee the Hararite (which when the Philistines were gathered in Lahata where was a parcell of lande full of rye, and the people were fled for feare of the Philistines) stode in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it & slew the Philistines. And the Lorde gaue him a great victory.

And these three of the thirtye of the lordes went downe and came to Dauid in þ harueste tyme vnto the caue Odliam. And the host of C the Philistines had pitched their pauilions in the valey of geauntes. And Dauid was then in a stronge holde. And the souldiours of the ☞ Philistines were then in Bethlehem. And Dauid longed and sayde: Oh, that I had of the water that is in the wel in the gate of Bethlehem to drinke. And anone the three myghty brake thorow the host of the Philistines and fet water out of the Wel of Bethlehem that was in the gate, and toke and brought it to Dauid: neuertheles he wolde not drink therof, but offred it vnto the Lorde, and sayd: the Lorde forbyd that I shuld do so, shuld I drink the bloude of men that were in ieopardye of their lyues? and so he wolde not drinke it. These thinges dyd these three mighty mē. The Abisai the brother of Joab, the sonne of Saruiah: he was capitayne ouer thre, and he lyft vp his speare against three hundred and slewe them, and was named with the three. For he was noblre man then the three and was their capitayne. Howe be it he attayned not vnto those three in actes. Then Banaiah the sonne of Joiada the sonne of a lusty man valyaunt in actes of Kabzeel, he slewe twoo Lyons of Moab. He went downe and slew a Lyon in a pyt in tyme of snow. And he slew an Egyptian a goodly man, which hadde a speare in his hande. And Banaiah went down to him with a staffe, and plucked the speare out of the Egyptians hande and slewe him with his owne speare: Suche thinges dyd Banaiah the son of Joiada and was the noblest of thirty: But not lyke to any of the three in feates of warre. And Dauid made him of his counsell. Asahel the brother of Joab was one of the thirtye. D Then Elchanan the sonne of Dodo of Bethlehem: Semah the Harodite: Elica the Harodite: Helez the Paltite: Ira the sonne of Akes the Thekoite: Abiezer of Anatoth: Mebonai the Husathite: Zelmon an Ahohite: Maharai the Netophathite: Heled the sonne of Baanah an Netophathite: Ithai the sonne of Ribai of Gabaah a cytie of the childzen of Ben Jamin: Banaiah the Pharathonite: Hedai of the ryuer of Gaas: Abialbon the Arbathite: Asmaueth a Berhomite: Eliahba a Shalabonite: Of the sonnes of Jasen Jonathas: Semah the Hararite, Ahiam the sonne of Sarar an Araarite / Eliphelet the sonne of Ahasbai the sonne of a Maachathite, Eliam the sonne of Achitophel the Gilonite / Hezrai the Carmelite / Pharai the Arbite / Igaal the sonne of Nathan of Zobah / Bani the Gadite / Zelec an Amonite, Naharai a Berothite the harnesbearer of Joab the sonne of Zaruiah / Ira the Jethrite / Gareb the Jethrite / Urias the Hethite / in all thirty and seuen.

¶ Because Dauid caused the people to be nombred, Israel is plaged with pestilence: so that in thre dayes dyed. lxx. thousande.

CAPI. XXIIII.

AND the Lorde was wrothe ekstones a gainst Israel, & stered vp Dauid against them, sayenge / Go and nombre bothe Israel and Juda. And forthwith the kyng said to Joab the capitayne of his host / goo about I praye the, thorow out all the tribes of Israel, euen frome Dan to Berlsabe & nombre the people þ I maye knowe the nombre of them. And Joab sayde vnto the kynge / I beseche þ the Lorde thy God make the people as many mo as they be / yea and an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lorde the kynge maye se them. But howe is it that my Lorde the kynge hath a lust in this thinge? Notwithstanding the kynges wordes preuayled against Joab and against al the capitaynes of the host. Then Joab and the capitaynes of the host went out from the kynge, to dewe þ people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jordā and pytched in Aroer on the right syde of the cytie that lyeth in the myddes of the valeye of Gad and so forth to Jazer. And then they went to Galaad & to the nether lande of Hodesi, and frome thence to Dan Jaan, & about to Sidon, and came to the stronge towne of Tyre, and to all the cyties of the Heuites, & of the Cananites, and then went out to the south of Juda, euen to Berlsabe. And so when they had bene abrode thorow out al the lāde, they retourned to Jerusalem at the ende of nyne monethes and twenty dayes. And then Joab delyuered vp the rekeninge of the nom bre of the people vnto the kynge. And there were found in Israel nyne hundred thousand men of might that drew swerdes. And þ men of Juda were fyue hundred thousand men.

And

And Dauids hert smote him after that he had nombred the people. And he sayde vnto ꝑ Lorde: I haue synned exceadingly in that I haue done. And now Lord take away the trespace of thy seruant: for I haue done folyshly. And when Dauid was risen in a morninge, ꝑ worde of the Lorde came vnto the ꝓphete Gad. Gad Dauids Sear, sayenge: Go and say to Dauid, this sayth the Lorde. I offer the thre thinges, chose which of them I shall do to ꝑ. And Gad came to Dauid and shewed him, & sayde vnto him: whether wilt thou haue. iij. yeres hunger in thy lande, or that thou flee thre monethes before thyne ennemyes and they folowynge the, or that there be thre dayes pestilence in thy land. Now auise the and se, what worde I shall bringe agayne to him that sent me. Then sayde Dauid vnto Gad: I am in a ryght great strayte. But better it is to fal into ꝑ hādz of the Lorde, for moch is his mercy, the to fall in to the handes of men. And the Lord sent a pestilēce in Israel frō the morning vnto the ende of the tyme appointed. And there dyed of the people betwene Dan and Berseba. lxx. thousande men. And when the angell stretched out his hande vnto Ierusalē to haue destroyed it, the Lorde repented vpon ꝑ scourge and sayde to the angell that destroyed ꝑ people / It is sufficient, let thyne hand cease. And the angell was at the threshinge place of Areunah the Jebusite. Then spake Dauid vnto the Lorde when he saw the Angel that smote the people, and sayde / Loo, it is I that haue synned, and I that haue done wickedly. But these shepe what haue they done? let I praye ꝑ thine hand be on me & on my fathers house. And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayde vnto him / Go vp an reare an altare vnto the Lorde in the threshinge floure of Areunah the Jebusite. And Dauid accordinge to ꝑ sayenge of Gad, wente vp as the Lorde co maunded. And when Areunah loked and saw the kynge and his seruauntes commynge towarde him, he went out: and bowed him self to the kynge flat on his face to the grounde, & sayde: Wherfore is my Lorde the kynge come to his seruaunt? And Dauid sayd: to bye the threshyngefloure of the, for to make an aultare vnto the Lorde that the plage may cease from the people. And Areunah sayde vnto the kyng: Let my Lorde the kynge take and offer what semeth him good in his eyes / Beholde, oxen for sacrifice, and sleades and the other instrumentes of the oxen for woode. And Areunah the kynges frende gaue all to the kynge, and sayd moreouer vnto the kyng / the Lord / the Lorde thy God accept the. But the kyng sayde vnto Areunah / not so, but I will bye it of the at a price, and wil not offer sacrifice vnto the Lord my God that shal cost me nought And so Dauid bought the threshingefloure, and the oxen, for lxtye sycles of syluer.

And Dauid buylt there an aultare vnto the Lorde, and offered burntsacrifices and peax offringes. And so the Lord was appeased vnto the lande. And the plage ceased frome Israell.

¶ The younge virgin Abisag kepeth Dauid in his extreme Age. Adonias occuppeth the realme vnwitynge to his father. Salomon is annoynted kynge and then Adonias flyeth.

CAPI. I.

A When kinge Dauid was waxen olde & stryken in yeres, thoughe they couered hym with clothes, yet he caught no heate. Wherfore his seruauntes sayde vnto him: let there be sought for my Lorde the kynge, a younge mayden to stande before him and to cherysh him. And let her lye in thy bosome, that my Lorde the kyng may get heate. And so they sought for a fayre damosel thorow out all the coostes of Israel and founde one Abisag, a Sunamite, and brought her to the kynge. And the Damosell was excedinge fayre, and cherysshed the kynge and ministred to him: But the kynge had not to do with her.

Adonias. But Adonias the sonne of Hagith exalted him selfe sayinge: I wyll be kynge. And he gat him a charet, and horsmen, and fyfty men to runne before him. And his father rebuked him not at any tyme nor sayd so moch to him as why west thou so. And he was therto a goodly man and his mother bare him next after Absalom. And he communed with Joab ꝑ sonne of Zaruiah, & with Abiathar the preest. And they holpe Adonias. But Sadock ꝑ preest Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, Nathan the prophet, Semei and Rei & the men of mighte B which were with Dauid fauered not Adonias And Adonias sacrificed shepe and oxen and fat lynges at the stone of Zoheleth, which is fast by the wel of Rogel/and bad thyther all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and all the men of Juda the kynges seruantes. But Nathan the Prophete and Banaiah and the myghtye men and Salomon his brother he bad not.

Nathan. Wherupon Nathan spake vnto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon, sayenge: hast thou not herde how Adonias the sonne of Hagith with raigne vnwetinge vnto our master Dauid? Nowe therfore come that I maye gyue the counsel, how to saue thyne owne lyfe, and ꝑ lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. Hence and get ꝑ vnto kynge Dauid, and saye vnto him: dyddest not thou my Lord kynge sweere vnto thy handmayde, sayenge? Salomon thy son shal raygne after me, and he shall sytte vpon my seate, why is then Adonias made kynge? And se, whyle thou yet talkest there with the kyng I will come in after the/and will ende thy wordes.

C So Bethsabe entred vnto the kynge into the chambre. And the kynge was very olde & Abisag the Sunamite ministred vnto him. And Bethsabe stouped and made obeysaunce vnto the kynge. And the kynge sayde: what is thy matter? She answered and sayde: my lorde, thou swarest by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handemayde: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, and shall sytte vpon my seate. But now se, Adonias is kynge and thou my Lorde kynge wotest it not, & he hath offered oxen, fatlynges, and shepe aboundantly, and hath called all the sonnes of the kyng and Abiathar the preest, and Joab the Capitayne of the host, But Salomon thy seruaũt hath he not bydden. And now (my lord kyng) the eyes of all Israell wayte on the, to tell them who shall syt on the seate of my Lorde the kynge after hym. For elles when my Lorde the kynge is layde to rest with his fathers, I and my sonne Salomon shalbe synners.

And beholde, whyle she yet talked with the kynge, Nathan the prophete was come. And they tolde the kynge, sayenge: here commeth Nathan ꝑ Prophete. And when he was come before the kynge, he made obeysaunce vnto ꝑ kynge vpon his face vnto the grounde, & sayd: My lorde kyng, hast thou sayde, Adonias shal raygne after me, and he shall sytte vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this day and hath offered oxen, fatlynges, and shepe plentifully D and hath called al the kynges sonnes and the capitaynes of the host, and Abiathar ꝑ preest. And se, they eate and drinke before him & say. God saue kyng Adonias. But me thy seruãt & Sadock the preest and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and thy seruaunt Salomon he hath not called. Is this thinge doone of my Lorde the kynge and yet wouldest not shewe me thy seruaunt, who shulde sitte on the seate of my lorde the kynge after him?

Then kynge Dauid aunswered and sayde: Call me Bethsabe. And she came in and stode before him. And the kynge sware, sayenge. As surely as the Lorde (that hathe rydde my soule oute of all aduersitie) lyueth: euen as I sware vnto the by the Lorde God of Israell, sayenge: Salomon shall raygne after me, and he shall syt vpon my seate for me, so will Idoo this daye. And Bethsabe bowed on her E face to the earthe, and dyd obeysaunce vnto the kynge, and sayde: I prayе God my lorde kynge Dauid maye lyue euer. Then sayde kynge Dauid call me Sadock the preest and Nathan the Prophete, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada. And when they came before the kynge/The kynge sayde vnto them/Take with you the seruauntes of your lorde, and set Salomon my sonne vpon myne owne Mule, and carye hym downe to Ethon. And lette Sadock the Preaste, and Nathan the Prophete annoynte hym there/to be Kynge ouer Israell. And then blowe ye with a trompette, and saye: God saue kynge Salomon. And then come vp after him, and let hym come and sytte vpon my seate. For he shall be kynge in my stede. And hym I haue commaunded to be leader ouer Israell and Juda. And Banaiah the sonne of Joiada answered the kynge, and sayd: Amen. And so I praye God that the Lorde God of my Lorde the kynge saye so to. And as the Lorde hathe ben with my Lorde the kynge: so I praye God he may be with Salomon, and that he make his seate more glorious then the seat of my Lord king David. So Sadock the preest, and Nathan the prophete, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and the Cerethytes and Phelethytes wente downe, and sette Salomon vpon kynge Dauids Mule, and ledde him to Gihon. And Sadock the preest toke an horne of oyle oute of the tabernacle, and annointed Salomon. And they blewe a trompet/ and all they sayd: God saue kyng Salomon. And all the people came vp after hym pypynge with pypes, and reioysynge greatly, so that the erth range with the sounde of them.

And Adonias and all the gestes that were with hym herde it, euen as they hadde made an ende of eatynge. And when Joab herde the sounde of the trompet, he sayd: how happeneth it that there is suche a noyse in the cytye? And as he yet spake: se, Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar the preeste came. And Adonias sayde: come for thou arte a lusty blonde, and bryngest good tydynges. And Jonathas answered and sayde to Adonias: Verily oure Lorde kynge Dauid hathe made Salomon kynge. And the kynge sente with him, Sadock the preeste, and Nathan the prophete: and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and the Cerethites and the Phelethites, and they haue set hym vpon the kynges Mule. And Sadock the preeste, and Nathan the prophete haue annoynted hym kynge in Gihon. And as they came vp agayne, they reioysed that the cityE dyd sounde agayne. And that is the noyse that ye haue herde. And therto Salomon sytteth on the seate of the kyngdome. And moreouer the kynges seruauntes wente in to blesse oure Lorde kynge Dauid, sayinge: thy God make the name of Salomon more full of fauoure then thyne/ and his seate more glorious then thyne. And the kynge bowed hym selfe vpon the bedde. And lastly of all thus sayde the kynge: blessed be the Lorde God of Israell, who hathe made one to sytte on my seate this daye, myne eyes seynge it. Then all the gestes that were with Adonias were afrayde, and rose vp and wente euerye man his waye. But Adonias fearyng Salomon, arose, and went and caught holde on the hornes of the aulter. And it was tolde Salomon that Adonias for feare of kynge Salomon, hath caught holde by the hornes of the aulter, sayinge: let kynge Salomon swere vnto me this day, that he wil not slee his seruaunt with the swerde. And Salomon sayd: yf he wyll be a good man, there shal not an heere of hym fall to the erth. But yf wyckednesse shall be founde in hym, he shall dye for it. And therupon kynge Salomon sent and set him downe from the aulter. And he came and dyd obeysaunce vnto kynge Salomon. And Salomon sayde to hym: get the to thyne house.

¶ Dauid dyeth. Adonias requyreth to haue Abisag to his concubine, and therfore Salomon commaundeth to sley hym. Abiathar is put frome his Preasthode. Semei and Joab are slayne.

CAPI. II.

When the dayes of Dauid were drawen A nye that he sholde dye, he charged Salomon his sonne, sayinge: I must walke by the waye of all the worlde, neuertheles be stronge, and quyte thy selfe manfully. And se thou kepe the appoyntment of the Lorde thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, ordinaunces, lawes and testimonyes/ as it is written in the lawe of Moses, that thou mayste vnderstande all that thou oughtest to do/ and al that thou shouldest medle with, that the Lorde maye make good his promesse, whiche he hath promysed me, sayinge: yf thy children shall take hede to their wayes, that they walke before me in truthe with all theyr hertes, and with all theyr soules: * then thou shalte neuer *iii.Reg.ix.b

Thou art a man of wysdome, and shalte knowe what to do to hym/ se therfore thou bryngе his grayе heed to the graue with bloude. And so Dauid rested with his fathers, and was buryed in the cityе of Dauid. And the dayes whiche Dauid raygned vpon Israel were fourtye yeres/ seuen yeres in Hebron, and thyrtye and thre yere in Jerusalem. C his father. And his kyngdom was stablysshed myghtyly.

After this, Adonias the sonne of Hagith came to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon. And she said: betokeneth thy comming peax? *i.Reg.xvi.s
And he sayde it betokeneth peax. Then sayde he, I haue a matter to shewe the. And she said: saye on. And he sayde: thou knowest that the kyngdom kyngdome was myne, and that all Israel set theyr eyes on me that I shulde raygne, how be it the kyngdome was turned away and giuen to my brother, for it was appoynted him of the Lorde: and nowe I aske a petycyon of the, wherof denye me not. And she sayde vnto him: tell what it is. Then he sayde: speake I praye the, vnto Salomon the kynge (for he wyll not saye the naye) that he gyue me Abisag the Sunampte to wyfe: And Bethsabe sayde: well, I wyll speake for the vnto the kynge. And therupon Bethsabe wente vnto kynge Salomon to speake vnto him for Adonias. And the kynge rose vp agaynste her and bowed him selfe vnto her, and sat him downe on his seate. And there was a seate set for the kynges mother, and she sat on his ryght syde. Then she sayde: I muste desyre a lyttell petycion of the: saye me not naye. And the kynge sayd vnto her. Aske on my mother: for I wyl not saye the naye. And she sayd: let Abisag the Sunamite be gyuen to Adonias thy brother to wyfe. And kynge Salomon answered and sayde vnto his mother: why doest thou aske Abisag ỹ Sunamite for Adonias? Naye, rather aske for hym the kyngdome, sithe he is myne elder brother: Euen for him aske it, and for Abiathar the Preest, and for Joab the sonne of Zaruiah. Then kinge Salomon swore by the Lorde, sayinge: God do so to me and so, yf Adonias haue not spoken this worde agaynste him selfe. Now therfore as surely as the Lorde lyueth, who hathe establysshed me and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and who hathe made me an house as he promysed me, Adonias shall dye this daye. And kynge Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and smote him so that he dyed. And vnto Abiathar the Preeste sayde the kyng: get ỹ to Anatoth vnto thyne owne feldes, for thou arte worthy deth: but I wyll not at this tyme kyl the, bycause thou bareste the arcke of the Lorde God before Dauid my father, and bycause thou sufferedest w my father in all his afflictions. And so Salomon put awaye Abiathar from beinge preest vnto the Lorde: to fulfyll the wordes of the Lorde whiche he spake ouer the house of Eli in Silo. Then tidynges came to Joab: for Joab hadde turned after Adonias, but not after Salomon. Wherupon he fledde vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde and caught holde on the hornes of the aulter. And it was told king Salomon how Joab was fledde vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and stode by the aulter. Then Salomon sente Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, sayinge: go and smyte him. And when Banaiah was come to the tabernacle of the Lorde he sayd vnto him: thus sayth the king, come out. And he sayde naye. But I wyll dye here. And Banaiah brought the kynge worde, sayinge: thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me. Then the kynge sayde: do euen as he hathe sayde: smyte hym and burye hym, and take awaye the bloude (whiche Joab shedde causelesse) from me, and from the house of my father, and the Lorde bryngе his bloude vpon his owne heed, for he smote two men ryghtwyser and better then he, and slew them with the swerde, my father vnwetynge: euen Abner sonne of Ner, capitayne of the hoste of Israel, and Amasa the sonne of Jether, capitayn of the host of Juda, and theyr bloude returne vpon the heed of Joab, and on the heed of his seed for euer/ and prosperitie be vnto Dauid, and vnto his seed, and vnto his house, and vnto his seate of the Lorde for euer. And Banaiah the sonne of Joiada went vp and smote him, and slewe hym & burped him in his owne house in the wyldernesse / and the kynge put Banaiah the sonne of Joiada in his rowme ouer the host, and put Sadock the preest in the rowme of Abiathar. Then the kynge sent and called Semei, and sayd to hym: buylde the an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, & se thou go not thence any whither. For be thou sure of it, the daye thou goest oute and passest ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalte dye for it, and thy bloude shall be on thyne owne heed. Semei sayd vnto the kynge: it is well sayde / as my Lorde the kynge hathe sayde, so wyll his seruaunt w. And Semei dwelte in Jerusalem many a daye. And it chaunsed at the ende of thre yere, that two of the seruauntes of Semei ranne awaye vnto Achis sonne of Maacah king of Geth. And one told Semei sayinge: se, thy seruauntes be in Geth. And Semei stode vp and sadled his asse, and gat him to Geth to Achis to seke his seruauntes, & came and brought them agayne from Geth. But it was tolde Salomon how Semei hadde gone from Jerusalem to Geth, and was come agayne. And the kynge sente and called Semei and sayd vnto hym: Dyd I not swere by the Lorde, and recorded vnto the sayinge / be sure whe so euer thou goest out and walkest abroe any whither, thou shalte dye? And thou answeredst me, it is good tydynges that I haue herd. Why then hast thou not kept the oth of the Lorde, and the commaundement that I commaunded the? And then the kynge sayd to Semei: * thou remembrest all the wickednesse whiche thyne herte knoweth that thou dyddest to Dauid my father. The Lorde therfore render agayne thy wyckednesse vpon thyne owne heed: and kyng Salomō be blessed, and the seate of Dauid be settled before the Lorde for euer. And the kynge commaunded Banaiah the sonne of Joiada: whiche wente oute and smote hym that he dyed. And so was the kyngdome settled in the hande of Salomon.

¶ Salomon taketh Pharaos daughter to wyfe. The Lorde apeareth to hym, and gyueth hym wysdome. The pleadinge of the two harlots who shulde owe the lyuynge chylde: and Salomons sentence therin.

CAPI. III.

THen Salomon dyde affinitie with Pharao kyng of Egypt, and toke his daughter, and brought her in to the cite of Dauid, tyll he hadde made an ende of buyldynge his owne house and the house of the Lorde, and and the walles of Ierusalem rounde aboute. Onely the people sacrifyced in aulters made on hylles, bycause there was no house buylte for the name of the Lorde, tyll those dayes. Salomon doubtlesse loued the Lorde, & walked in the ordinaunces of Dauid his father, saue onely that he sacrificed and offered incese vpon aulters in hylles.

And the kynge wente to Gabaon to offre there/for that was a greate offerynge place. And there Salomon offered a thousand burnt offerynges vpon that aulter. And in Gabaon the Lorde appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyght. And God sayde: Aske what I shall gyue the. And Salomon sayde: thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaũt Dauid my father greate mercye/ bycause that he walked before the in truthe and in ryghtousnesse and playnesse of herte with the. And thou hast kepte for hym this greate mercye, that thou hast gyuen hym a sonne to syte on his seate: as it is come to passe this daye. ✳And now Lorde my God, it is thou, that hast made thy seruaunt kynge in the rowme of Dauid my father. ✳And I am a ponge ladde, and wot not how to ordre my selfe. And thy seruaunt is in the myddes of thy people, whiche thou hast chosen, a people that are so manye that they can not be tolde nor nombred for multitude. ✳Gyue therfore vnto thy seruaunte, an vnderstandynge herte to iudge thy people, & to discerne betwene good and badde. For who is hable to iudge this thy so wayghty a people? And it pleased the Lord well, that Salomon had holpen this thyng. Wherfore God sayd vnto him: bycause thou hast asked this thyng, and hast not asked long lyfe, neither hast asked richesse, nor the lyues of thyne ennemyes, but hast asked the discretion to vnderstande equite: Lo, I haue wonne accordynge to thy peticyon: and beholde, I haue gyuen the a wyse and an vnderstandyng herte, so that there was none lyke heretofore, neyther after the shall anye aryse lyke vnto the. And therto I haue gyuen the that thou askedst not, bothe rychesse and honoure: so that there shall be no kynge lyke the, all thy dayes. And yf thou wylte walke in my wayes to kepe myne ordynaunces and commaundementes, as Dauid thy father dyd walke, I wil lengthen thy dayes also. When Salomon awoke, he vnderstode this was his dreame. And he came to Ierusalem and presented hym selfe before the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt, and offered burntofferynges and peaceofferynges, and made a feaste to all his seruauntes.

Then came two women that were harlots vnto the kynge, and stode before hym. And the one of them sayde: O my Lorde, I and this woman dwell in one house. And I was delyuered of a chylde with her in the sayd house. So the thyrd daye after I was delyuered, she was delyuered also: we two beynge togyther, and no stranger wt vs in the house saue we two alone. And this wymes chylde dyed in a nyght, for she had ouerlayde it. And then she arose at mydnyght, and toke my sonne from my syde, whyle thyne handmayde slepte and layde it in her bosome, and put her deed chylde in my bosome. And when I arose vp in the morynge to gyue my chylde sucke: lo, it was deed. But when I had loked more diligentlye vpon it in the morynge: Beholde, it was not my sonne whiche I dyd beare. And the other woman sayde: It is not so: But the lyuynge is my sonne, and the deed thyne. And she sayde agayne: thou sayest vntrue, for the deed is thy sonne, and the lyuynge myne. And thus they chydded before the kyng. Then sayd the kyng: the one sayth / this that is alyue is my sonne, and the deed is thyne. And thother sayth naye: But thy sonne is the deed, and the chylde alyue is myne. Then sayde the kynge: brynge me a swerde. And they broughte a swerde before the kynge. And the kynge sayde: Diuyde the lyuynge chylde in two, and gyue the one halfe to the one, and the other to the other.

Then spake the woman that was mother to the chyld alyue vnto the kynge (for her bowelles yerned vpon her sonne) and sayde: I beseche the my Lorde, gyue her the lyuynge chylde, and in no wyse slee it. And the other sayd: it shall be neither thyne nor myne, but diuyde it. Then the kynge answered and sayd: ✳gyue her the lyuynge chylde and slee it not, for she is the mother therof. And all Israell herde of the iudgement whiche the kynge had gyuen, and feared the kynge / for they perceyued that the wysdome of God was in him to do iustyce.

CAPI. V.

AND Hiram kynge of Tire sent his seruauntes vnto Salomon/ foz he hadde herd that they had anoynted him kyng in the rowme of his father. And therto Hiram was euer a louer of Dauid. * And Salomon * 15 sent agayne to Hiram, saying: thou knowest of Dauid my father, how he could not buylde an house vnto the name of the Lozd his God foz warre whiche he had on euery syde, vntyll the Lozde had put them vnder his fote. But now the Lozde my God hath giuen me rest on euerye syde/ so that there is neither aduersary noz any cupl plage. And therfoze I am disposed to buyld an house vnto the name of the Lozd my God, as he promised Dauid my father saying: thy sonne which I wyll put vpon thy seat foz the, he shall buylde an house vnto my name. Nowe then commaunde that they hewe me Cedar trees in Libanon. And let my seruauntes be with thyne/ & I wyll gyue the, the hyze of thy seruauntes in all suche thinges as thou shalte requyze/ foz thou knowest that there are not amonge vs that can skyll to hewe tymber lyke vnto the Sidones.

When Hiram herde the wozdes of Salomon/ he reioyced greatlye and sayde: Blessed be the Lozde this daye, whiche hathe set Dauid a wyse sonne ouer this myghtye people. And Hiram sent agayne to Salomon, saying: I haue allowed the request whiche thou sentest to me/ and wyll fulfylye all thy luste concernyng tymber of Cedar trees and fyzre. My seruauntes shall bzynge them frome Libanon to the see. CAPI. VI.

A Nd it came to passe in the foure hundred and foure score yere, after the chyldren of Israell were come oute of the lande of Egypte, and the fourthe yere of the raygne of Salomon vpon Israel, and the seconde moneth called ✠ Zif, that he began to buylde the temple vnto the Lorde. And the house whiche Salomon buylte for the Lorde was thre score cubytes longe, and twentye brode, and thirtye cubytes hye. And the porche that was before the body of the temple, was twentye cubytes longe, after the measure of the bredth of the house, and tenne brode/ euen at the verye ende of the house. And he made vnto the house, wyndowes to open and shutte.

And vnder the walles of the house, he made galeryes rounde aboute, bothe aboute the temple, and also the quere. And so made sydes rounde aboute. And the nethermoste galerye was fyue cubytes brode, and the myddle galerye sixe, and the thyrde seuen cubytes brode. for he made the walles without wheron the beames laye, euer thynner and thynner/ so that they were not fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was buylte of stone made perfecte aforehande er it was broughte thyther/ so that there was neither hammer or axe, eyther anye toole of yron herde in the house, whyle it was in buyldynge. And the wore of the myddle galerye was in the ende of the house on the ryghte syde. And men wente vp with wyndyng steares into the myddle galerye, and oute of the myddle into the thyrde. And so he buylte the house and finished it, and roofte it with beames of Cedar tymbre, made holowe and ioyned togyther. Then he buylte chambres ouer all the temple of fyue cubytes heyght, and coupled the house togyther with beames of Ceder.

And the worde of the Lorde came to Salomon, sayinge: concernynge the house whiche thou art a buyldynge/ yf thou wylte walke in myne ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and kepe all my commaundementes, to walke in them: then wyll I make good vnto the, my promes ✠ whiche I promysed Dauid thy father. ✠ And I wyll dwelle amonge the chyldren of Israel, and wyll not forsake my people Israel. And so Salomon buylte the house and fynished it, and syled the walles of the house within, with rybbes of Cedar tree/ euen from the pauement vnto the rouffe, dyd he syle it within, and borded the flooze of the house with planckes of fyre.

And he syled twentye cubytes in the ende of the temple, bothe flooze and walles with Cedar, and dressed it within to be the quere, and place mooste holye. And the fyrste house, that is to saye, the bodye of the temple, was fourtye cubytes longe. And the Cedar of the house within, was kerued with knoppes and grauen with floures, and all was Cedar tymber, so that no stone was sene. And the quere that was within the temple, he prepared to set there the arche of the Lordes testament. And the quere was twentie cubites long/ and twentye in bredth, and twentye in heyghte. And he syled it with pure golde, and borded the aulter with Cedar. And Salomon syled the house within also with pure golde. And he made golden barres runne alonge the quere, whiche he hadde couered with golde. And the hole house he ouerlayde with golde, vntyll he had ended it. And the aulter that was in the quere, he ouerlayde with gold also. And within the quere he made two ✠ Cherubyns of olyue tree, ten cubytes hyghe a pece, and euery wynge fiue cubytes longe/ so that from the vttermost parte of one wynge, vnto the vttermost parte of the other, were ten cubytes. And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hyghe also/ so that bothe the Cherubes were of one measure and one syse. The heyght of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubes in the middle of the inner house. ✠ And the Cherubs stretched theyr wynges/ so that the one wynge of the one touched the one wall, and the one wynge of the other touched the other walle. And the other two wynges of them touched one an other in the myddes of the house. And he ouerlayde the Cherubes with golde.

And the walles of the house rounde about he garnysshed with worke of Cherubs and palme trees, and grauen floures, bothe within in the quere, and without in the temple. And the flooze of the house he couered with golde/ bothe within in the quere, and also without in the temple. And in the entering of the quere he made two doores of olyue tree, with the vpper and two syde postes, fyue square. And the two wores of olyue tree, he graued with grauynge of Cherubes and palme trees, and graued floures, an couered them with golde, and layde golde ouer the Cherubes, and also the palme trees. And in lyke maner vnto the wore of the temple, he made postes of olyue tree foure square, and two dores of fyre tree, and either wore with two foldyng leues, and graued theron Cherubes, palme trees, & floures, and couered them with gold made playne by a ruler. And then he buylte the inner court with thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde.

In the fourthe yere of his raygne was the foundacion of the house of the Lorde layde/ euen in the moneth Zif, and in the eleuenth yere in the moneth ✠ Bul. whiche the eyghte moneth, it was full fynished in all that perteyned therto, and facioned as it shoulde be in all poyntes. And so was he seuen yere in buyldynge of it.

CAPI. VII.

A AND Salomon buylte his owne houle in thyztene pere ſpace, and full finiſhed it. And he buylte the houle of the wodde of Libanon, an hundzed cubytes longe, and fyftye bzode, and thyztye hyghe, foure ſquare with rowes of Cedar pyllers, and Cedar beames alonge vpon the pyllers. And the rouffe was Cedar aboue an hyghe vpon the beames that laye an hyghe on the pyllers, whiche pyllers, were fourtye and fyue in nombze/ fyftene on a rowe/ and the ſpaces bytwene the pyllers were one agaynſte an other thzee folde. And all the wozes with the ſyde poſtes were foure ſquare one agaynſte an other thze folde.

And he made a pozche of pyllers fiftye cubi tes longe, and thyztye cubytes bzode/ and yet a pozche befoze that with pillers/ and a thicke pyller befoze that. Then he made a pozche to ſyt and iudge in, ſyled with Cedar euen frome the pauementes, vnto the top. And his owne houſe where he kept reſidēce in an other court without that pozche, was of the ſame wozke. And then Salomon made an houſe foz Phaos doughter, whiche he hadde taken to wyfe, lyke vnto that pozche.

B And all theſe thynges were of ryche ſtones hewed after a meaſure, and ſawed with ſawes within and without/ euen frome the foun dacion, vnto the top of the walles/ and on the oute ſyde therto towarde the great court. And the foundacion was of ryche ſtones, and that myghtye greate ſtones of ten cubytes, and of eight. And aboue were ryche ſtones hewed ac cozdynge to the ſame ryle/ and alſo with Ce dar. And the great courte rounde aboute was with thze rowes of hewed ſtone, and one row of Cedar planckes. and likewiſe was it in the inner courte of the houſe of the Lozde, and of the pozche of the temple. ✶ And kynge Salo *ii. Para. ii. c mon ſent and fet one Hiram oute of Tire, a wydowes ſonne of the trybe of Nephtalim/ hys father being of Tire. Whiche Hiram was a perfyte founderer, and full of wyſdome, vnderſtandynge, and connyng, to wozke all ma ner of wozke in bzalle. And he came to kynge Salomon, and wzoughte all his wozke. He caſt two pyllers of bzalle, of eyghtene cubites a pece hyghe/ and a ſtrynge of twelue cubytes myght compaſſe eyther of them about. And he made two heed peces of molten bzalle to ſette on the toppes of the pyllers, of fyue cubytes long a pece, with garlandes of bzayded wozke, and hoopes of chayne wozke foz the heed pe ces that were on the pyllers, ſeuen foz the one and ſeuen foz the other. And he made the pyl C lers/ and foz either of the heed peces a garland with two rowes of pomegranetes to couer them with. And the heed peces that were on the toppes of the pyllers, were wzought with lylyes in the pozche, the ſpace of foure cubites of them. And the pomegranetes aboue and be nethe on the wzethen chaynes that compaſſed the myddle of the heed peces, were in nombze two hundzed on either heed pece. And he ſet vp the pyllers in the pozche of the temple/ and when he hadde ſet vp the ryght pyller, he cal led the name therof Jachin/ and when he ſet D vp the lefte pyller, he called the name therof Boaz. And the toppes of the pillers were thus wzought with lilies, and ſo was theyz wozke manſhip finyſhed.

Then he caſte a ſee of bzalle tenne cubytes wyde frome bzymme to bzymme, and rounde in compaſſe, and fyue cubytes hyghe. And a ſtrynge of thyztye cubytes myghte compaſſe it aboute/ and vnder the bzymme of it as it were apples compaſſed and embzaſed the ſee of ten cubytes wyde in two rowes caſt with it when it was caſte. And it ſtode on twelue oxen/ of whiche, three loked Nozthe, three Weſt, three Houth, and thze Eaſt/ and the ſee on hygh vpō them/ & all theyz hynder partes were inwarde. And it was an handebzedth thycke, and the bzym wzought lyke the bzymme of a cup with floures of lylies. And it contayned two thow ſande Bathes.

And he made ten botomes of bzalle, foure E cubites longe, and foure cubites bzode a pece, and thze hyghe. And the wozkes of the botto mes was on this maner that the ſydes were, as it were flatte bozdes bytwene the ledges. And on the flatt bozdes betwene the ledges F were lyons, oxen, and Cherubes. And vpō the ledges that were aboue and beneth the lyons and oxen, was ioyned pendant wozke. And euerye bottome hadde foure bzalen wheles/ whoſe axeltrees were alſo of bzalle. And in the foure cozners were vnderſetters vnder the lauatozye caſte eche ouer agaynſte his fe lowe.

And the ſtalke of the lauatozye was in the myddle of the bottome one cubyte hyghe/ and a cubyte and an half rounde/ and it had knop pes theron in the bare places, whiche were foure ſquare, not rounde. And vnder the ſydes were foure wheles/ and theyz axeltrees ioy ned faſte to the bottome. And the heyghte of euerye whele was a cubyte and an halfe. And the wozkemanſhyp of the wheles was lyke the wozke of a charet whele. And the axeltrees, the nauelles, ſpokes, and chaftes were all moulten. And the foure vnderſet ters in the foure cozners, were of the verye bottomes.

And vnder the ſtalcke of the lauatozye in the myddes of the bottome, was there a rounde fote of halfe a cubyte hyghe. And ther on playne places and ledges of the ſelfe. And he graued in the playne, and alſo on ꝑ ledges, Cherubes, lyons, & palme trees, euerye where rounde aboute. And on this maner he made G the ten bottomes caſt wozke: all of one mea ſure and one ryle. Then he made ten lauers of bzalle, contaynyng fourtye Bathes a pece, and they were of four cubytes a pece foz euery one of the bottomes a lauer. And he put fyue of thoſe bottomes on the ryght cozner of the tem ple/ and other fiue on the lefte/ and put the ſee on the ryght cozner of the temple Eaſtwarde, and and towarde the Southe. And Hiram made pottes, shouelles, and basons/ and so finished all the worke that he made kynge Salomon for the house of the Lord: that is to saye, two pyllers, and two scalpes of the heedes ꝑ were on the toppes of the two pyllers, and foure hundred pomegranettes vpon two wrethes/ two rowes on either wrethe, to couer the two scalpes of the heedes, that were on the toppes of the two pyllers: and the ten bottomes of brasse, with ten lauers vpon them/ and a see vi twelue oxen vnder it/ and pottes shouels and basens. And all these vesselles whiche Hiram made to kynge Salomon for the house of the G Lord, were of bryght brasse. And in the playne of Jordan dyd the kynge caste them: euen in the clay of the erthe betwene Socoth and Zarthan. And Salomon left all the vesselles vnwayed, for the excedinge abundaunce of brasse that was in them.

And Salomō made all the vessels that pertayned vnto the house of the Lord/ the aulter of gold/ and ꝑ table of golde wheron the shewe breed was put. And fyue candelstyckes for the ryght syde/ and as many for the left, before the quere of pure golde: with floures, lampes, and snoffers of golde/ and bolles, psalteries, basōs, spones and fire pannes of pure golde, and hinges of golde, bothe for the dores of the quere, the place moost holy/ and for the dores of the temple also.

And so was ended all the worke that kyng Salomō made for the house of the Lorde. And then ✳Salomō brought in the thinges which Dauid his father had dedicate in syluer, golde, and other vessels, and put them to the treasure of the house of the Lorde.

The Arcke is borne in to the temple. A Cloude fylleth the temple. The temple is blessed.

CAPI. VIII.

A Then Salomon gathered the elders of Israel, all the heedes of the trybes, and auncient lordes of the childzen of Israel, vnto him to Jerusalem, to bringe vp the arcke of the testament of the Lord out of the city of Dauid, which is Sion. And all the men of Israel assembled vnto king Salomō, to the feast that tarieth in the moneth ꝑ Ethanim, whiche is the seuenth moneth. And when al the elders of Israel were come, the preests toke vp ꝑ arcke of the Lord/ and brought it and also the tabernacle of witnesse, and all the holy vessels that were therin. And the preestes and the Leuites brought them vp. And kyng Salomon and all the company of Israel that were assembled. & were with him before the arcke, did offre shepe and oxen that could not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And so the preestes brought the arcke of the Lordes testament vnto his place, cuē in to the quere of the temple, and place moost holy, vnder the wynges of the Cherubes. For the Cherubes stretched out their winges ouer ꝑ arcke, and coucred both it and also the staues therof a bye bpō it. How be it the staues were so long that the endes of them appered out of the holy place before the quere/ but on the oute syde were they not sene, and there they be vnto this B day. And there was nothing in the arcke, saue Deuter.x. ꝑ two tables of stone, which Moses put there Exo. xxxiii. d at Horeb, when the Lorde made an appoynt-ment with the chyldren of Israell, after they were come forth of Egypte.

And when the preestes were come out of the holye place/ then a cloude fylled the house of the Lorde, that the preestes coulde not endure to minister bycause of the cloude: for the glorye of the Lorde hadde fylled the house of the Lorde. Then spake Salomon: the Lorde said ii. Paral. vi. a that he wolde dwelle in darckenesse. I haue buylte the an house to dwelle in, and an habitacion for the to abyde in for euer. And ꝑ kyng turned his face, and blessed all the congregacion of Israel, all the cougregacion standinge. And he sayd: Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, whiche hath fulfylled with his hand, that he spake with his mouthe vnto Dauid my father: saynge: frome the daye I brought my people Israel forthe of Egypte, I chose no cytye amonge anye of the trybes of Israell, to buyld an house that my name myght be there: But I haue chosen Dauid to be ruler ouer my people Israel.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father ii. Regū. vii. a to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. But the Lorde God sayd vnto Dauid my father/ in that it was in thyne hert to buylde an house for my name, thou dyddest well, that thou wast so mynded. Neuertheles thou shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne that shall come out of thy loynes, shall buyld an house for my name. And the Lorde hathe C made good his word that he spake. For I stode vp in the rowme of Dauid my father, and sate on the seate of Israel, as the Lorde promised/ and haue buylte an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israell. And I haue prepared therin a place for ꝑ arcke wherin the couenaūt of the Lorde is, whiche he made with oure fathers, after he hadde brought them out of the lande of Egypte. And Salomon stode before the aulter of the Lorde in the sighte of all the people of Israel, and stretched out his handes to heuen, and sayd: Lord God of Israel, there i. Mac. iii. b is no God lyke the in heuen aboue, or in the earthe beneth/ that kepest appoynt-ment and mercye with thy seruauntes that walke before the with all theyr hertes/ whiche also hast kept with thy seruaunt Dauid my father, that thou promysedst him. Thou spakest with thy mouthe/ and hast fulfylled with thyne hande, as it is come to passe this day. And now Lorde ii. Reg. viii. b. Sod of Israell kepe with thy seruaunte Dauid my father, that thou promysedst him, saynge: thou shalte not be without one or other before me, sytt ynge on the seate of Israel: So neuertheless, yf thy chyldren shall take hede to theyr wayes that they walke before me, as thou hast walked before me. Nowe then, O Lorde God of Israel/ let thy worde be stable whiche thou spakest vnto thy seruaunt Dauid my father.

But in dede can God dwelle on the earthe?

Beholde, neyther heuen, nor heuen aboue all heuens are hable to conteyn the: how moche

Deuter.xii.b. the place, of whiche thou haste said, my name shall be there: that thou harken vnto ꝑ praye whiche thy seruaunte shall praye in this place. And herke vnto the supplication of thy hearest, haue mercye. And yf any man treſpace an adiuracion to adiure him withall, and the adiuracion come before thyne aulter at this house, then harken thou vp to heuen, & worke and iudge thy seruantes, that thou condemne the wicked, to bryng his waye vpon his heed, and iustifie the ryghtous, to gyue him accor= bicause they haue synned agaynst the, & after= merciful vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and bryng them agayne vnto the land which thou gauest vnto their fathers.

Yf heuen be shut vp, that there be no rayne, bicause they haue synned agaynste the: yet yf
they praye in this place, and prayse thy name, and turne frō their synnes, thorow thy scour= and be mercyful vnto the synne of thy seruaū= che shall knowlege euerye man the plage of his owne hert/ and stretche forthe his handes vnto this house/ and be mercyful and worke, and gyue euery man accordyng to his wayes/(euen as thou onely knowest euerye mannes chyldren of Adam) that they may feare the as longe as they lyue vpon the erth whiche thou gauest vnto their fathers And lykewyse yf a E straunger ꝑ is not of thy people Israel, cmoe

(for they shall heare of thy great name and of thy myghtye hande, and stretched oute arme) and therfore yf he come & praye at this place/heare thou vp to heuen thy dwellynge place, and doo accordynge to all that the straunger calleth to the for, that all nations of the erth maye knowe thy name/ to feare the as do thy people Israell/ and that it maye be knowen that thy name is called vpon ouer this house whiche I haue buylte.

And when they go out to battayle agaynst their enemies whither so euer thou shalt send them, and shall praye vnto the Lorde towarde the citye which thou hast chosen, and towarde the house ꝑ I haue buylt for thy name: heare thou their prayers and supplicacōs, vp to he=

And finally, when they shal haue synned a= treſpaced agaynst the/ and get the fauoure in the syghte of them that holde them captyue/that they may haue compaſſion on them. For they be thy people, and thyne inheritaunce, whiche thou broughteſt oute of Egypte/ from the ✳ fornace of yron. And lette thyne eyes be open vnto the prayer of thy seruaūt and vnto

the prayer of thy people Israel/ to harken vn= to them in all they call vnto the for. For thou dyddeſt seuere them to be thyne inheritaunce, aboue all the nations of the earthe/ as thou saydeſt by the hande of Moses thy seruaunt, when thou broughteſt our fathers oute of E=
gypte, O Lorde almyghtye.

When Salomon had made an ende of pray= inge all this prayer and supplication vnto the Lorde/ he arose from the aulter of the Lorde, and frome knelynge on his knees, and frome stretchynge his handes vp to heuen, and stode and blessed all the cōgregation of Israel with a loude voyce, sayinge: Blessed be the Lorde that hathe gyuen gyuen reſte vnto his people Israel according to al ꝑ he promised: ✳ so that there is not one worde escaped of all the good promyses whiche he promysed by the hand of Moses his seruaunt. And the Lorde oure God be with vs, as he was with oure fathers/ and forsake vs not neither leaue vs, but that he bowe our hertes vnto hym, to walke in al his wayes/ and to kepe his commaundements, ordinaunces and rites, whiche he commaun=
ded our fathers. And these my wordes whiche
I haue prayed before the Lorde, be nye vnto the Lorde oure God daye and nyght, that he defende the cause of his seruaunte and of his people Israel euermore, that all nations of the erth maye knowe that the Lorde is God, and none but he. And I praye God that your hertes maye be sounde with the Lorde our God, to walke in his ordinaunces, and to kepe his lawes, as we do this daye.

And the kyng and all Israel with him, offered offeringes before the Lord. ✶ And the yeare offeringes that Salomon offered vnto ỹ Lord were .xxij. thousande oxen, and an hundred and .xx. thousande shepe. And so the kynge and all the children of Israel halowed the house of the Lord. And the same day the kyng halowed the middle of the court that is before the house of the Lorde/for there he offered burntofferynges, and meatofferynges, & the fat of the peace offerynges, bicause the brasen aulter that was before the Lorde, was to lytle to receyue the burntofferynges and meatofferynges, and the fat of the peaceofferynges.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye feast, and all Israell with hym, a mightye congregation, euen from the coostes of Hemath, vnto the ryuer of Egypt, before the Lorde our God, seuen dayes, and yet seuen dayes, that is fourtene dayes. And the eight daye he sent the people awaye. And they blessed the kynge and wente vnto theyr tentes ioyous and glade in herte, for all the goodnesse that the Lord had shewed vnto Dauid his seruaunt, and to Israel his people.

¶ The Lorde appeareth agayne to Salomon. Salomon giueth townes to Hiram. The Cananites become trybutarye. He sendeth shyppes for gold. And buyldeth many cytyes.

CAPI. IX.

a 3. Reg. vii. c

When Salomon had finysshed the buylding of the house of the Lorde, and of the kynges palace/and all that his desire and lust was to make: the Lorde appeared vn to him agayne, as he appeared to hym at Gabaon. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: I haue herd thy prayer and intercession that thou madest before me, and haue halowed this house whiche thou hast buylt to put my name there for euer/and myne eyes and myne hert shal be there perpetually. And if thou wylt walke before me, as Dauid thy father walked, in pureneselle of herte and playnesse, to do all that I haue commaunded the, and shalte kepe myne ordinaunces and rytes: then I wyl settle the seate of thy kyngdom vpon Israel for euer/as I promised Dauid thy father, saying: ✶ Thou shalte not be without one or other vpon the seate of Israel. That yf ye and your children shall turne awaye from me, and shall not kepe myne ordinaunces whiche I haue sette before you, but shall go and serue other goddes, and bowe youre selues vnto theym: then I wyll wede Israel oute of the lande whiche I haue gyuen them. And this house whiche I haue halowed for my name, I wil put out of my sight. And Israel shall be a prouerbe and a fable vn to all nations. And his house whiche is so hye, ✶ all that passe by it shall be astonied, and shal hysse and saye: why hath the Lorde dealte on this maner with this land, & with this house? And it shal be answered them, bicause they forsoke the Lord their God, which brought their fathers oute of the lande of Egypte, and haue leaned to other goddes, and haue stouped vnto them and serued them: therfore hath the Lord brought vpon them all this euil. Then at the ende of twenty yeres, in which Salomon had buylt the two houses/that is to wit, the house of the Lorde, and the kynges palace: bicause Hiram the kynge of Tire had supported him with Cedar, fyre, and gold, as moche as he desired/therfore Salomon gaue Hiram. xx. cities in the lande of Galile. And when Hiram was come fro Tire to se the cities which Salomon had gyuen hym/they pleased him not. Wherfore he sayd: what cities are these which thou hast giuen me, my brother? And he called them the lande of Cabull vnto this daye. This Hiram hadde sente the kynge fyue score hundred waight of golde. And this is the somme of the tribute which king Salomon raysed to buyld the house of the Lorde and his owne house, & Melo, and the walles of Jerusalem and Hezer and Magedo, and Gazer.

Jerem. xxii. c
ii. Para. vii. d

ii. Para. viii.

For Pharao kynge of Egypte went vp and toke Gazer and burnt it with fyre / and slewe the Cananites that dwelte in the cyte, & gaue it for a presente vnto his doughter that was Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylt Gazer and Beth Horon the nether, and Baalath and Thamar in the wyldernesse that is in ỹ land/ and all the store cityes that Salomon hadde, and cityes for his charettes, and cityes for his horsemen, and all that his lust was to buylde in Jerusalem and Libanon, and in al the land of his kyngdome.

And all the people that were lefte of the Amorytes, Hethites, Pherezytes, Heuites, and Jebusytes, whiche were not of the chyldren of Israel / the chyldren of the sayde nacyons that were lefte in the lande / bycause the chyldren of Israell were not hable to destroye them / Salomon made trybutarye vnto this daye. But of the chyldren of Israell dyd Salomon make no bondemen. But they were men of warre, and his seruauntes, and his Lordes, and Capitaynes and rulers of his charettes, and of his horsemen. And these manye Lordes that ouersawe the worke had Salomon, fyue hundred and fyfty, whiche ruled the people that wroughte in the worke. And Pharaos doughter came vp oute of the cyte of Dauid, vnto the house whiche Salomon hadde buylte for her. And after that, he buylte Melo. And thryse a yere dyd Salomon offre burnt offerynges and peace offerynges vpon the aulter whiche he hadde buylte vnto the Lorde, to burne the fatte theron: whiche aulter is before the Lorde. So when kynge Salomon hadde made the house perfecte, he made shyppes in Azion Gaber, whiche is beside Eloth, on the bryncke of the red see, in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sente by shyppe also of his seruauntes, that were shypmen, and experte in the see, with the seruauntes of Salomon. And they wente to Ophir. and fet from thence gold. to the ſomme of foure hundred and. xxti. talentes, & brought it to Salomon.

¶ The Quene of Saba commeth from the furtheſt partes of the lande to heare and ſe the wyſdome of Salomon. The yerely reuenues and rentes of Salomon. His throne, veſſelles of golde, Charettes, horſmen, and foyſon of fruyt.

A Ti. Para. ix. a Math. xii. d Luc. xi. d

AND the quene of Saba herd of the wiſdome of Salomon concernyng ſ name of the Lorde, and came to proue him wt ydelles. And ſhe came to Ieruſalem with a mighty greate multitude of Camelles ſ bare ſwete odoures and golde exceding moche, and precyous ſtones. And when ſhe was come to Salomon, ſhe talked with him of al that was in her herte. And Salomon expowned her all her queſtions, that there was not one thynge hyd from the kynge, whiche he expowned her not. And when the quene of Saba had ſene al Salomons wyſdome, & the houſe that he had buylte, and the meat of his table/and the lodgynges of his ſeruantes, and the facion of his courte, and theyr apparell, and his buttlers, & his ſacrifice that he offered in the houſe of the Lorde, ſhe was aſtonied. Then ſhe ſayd to the kynge: the worde I herde in myne owne land of thy dedes and wyſdome, is true. How be it I beleued it not, tyll I came and ſawe it with myne eyes. And lo, the one half was not tolde me/for thy wildom and goodneſſe paſſeth the fame whiche I herde. Happye are thy men/ and happye are theſe thy ſeruauntes, whiche ſtande euer before the and heare thy wyſdom. And bleſſed be the Lorde thy god whiche had a luſt to the, to ſet the on the ſeate of Iſrael, becauſe the Lorde loued Iſrael for euer, and therfore made the kynge, to doo equitie and ryghteouſnes.

Then ſhe gaue the kyng an hundred and. xx. talentes of golde, and of ſwete odoures exceadyng moche/and precious ſtones. There came neuer after ſuche abundance of ſwete odoures as the quene of Saba gaue to kyng Salomō. And therto ſ ſhyppes of Hiram that brought golde from Ophir, brought from Ophir great plentye of ꝑ Almuge tree, and precious ſtones. And kyng Salomō made of the Almuge trees pyllers in the houſe of the Lorde, and in the kynges palace, and made harpes and pſalteries for ſyngers. There came no more Almuge tre ſo/nor was any more ſene vnto this daye. And kynge Salomō gaue vnto ſ quene of Saba all her deſyre that ſhe aſked of hym/ beſydes that he gaue her with his own hand. And ſo ſhe returned vnto her owne countrey with her ſeruauntes.

ꝑ Some reade Tourall. Some Bzaſill.

¶ The weight of golde that came to Salomō euery yere, was. vi. hundred thre ſcore and. vi. talentes of golde, beſides that he had of chapmen, and of marchaūtes, of potticaries, and of all the kinges of Arabie, and of the lordes of ſ countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten gold/fyre hūdred ſicles of golde went to a buckler. And he made thre hundred ſhyldes of beaten golde, thre pounde of golde goynge to a pece, and put them in the houſe of the wodde of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great ſeate of Ivorye and couered it with precyous golde. And the ſeate had fyre ſteppes. And the top of the ſeate was rounde behynde his backe, with pomels on either ſyde on the place where he ſate/ and two lyons ſtandynge beſyde the pomelles. And there ſtode twelue lyons on the ſteppes, fyre on a ſyde. There was none lyke ſene in anye kingdome. And all kyng Salomons drynkynge cuppes were of golde, and all the garnyſchement of the houſe of the wod of Libanon, were of pure golde. And as for ſyluer, it was nothynge worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the ſee ſhyppes whiche the kyng had in the ſee, with the ſhyppes of Hiram, came euery thyrd yere laden with golde, ſyluer, Ivorye, apes, and pecockes. ✶ And ſo kynge Salomon paſſed all the kynges of the erth in riches and wyſdome. And all the worlde reſorted to Salomon, to heare his wyſdome whiche God had put in his herte. And broughte him euerye man his preſent, veſſels of ſyluer and of gold/ and of rayment, harneſſe, ſwete odoures, horſes, and Mules, yere by yere. And Salomō gathered togyther charettes and horſemen/ ſo that he had a thouſand and foure hundred charettes, and twelue thouſande horſemen, which he beſtowed in the charet cityes, and with the kynge at Ieruſalem.

✶ And the kynge made ſyluer in Ieruſalem as plenteous as ſtones, and Cedar as plenteous as the mulbery trees that grow in the valeyes. And Salomons horſſes came out of Egypt frome Kcua. The marchauntes fet them from Kcua at a price. A charet came out of Egypt for. vi. hundred ſicles of ſiluer, & an horſe for an hundred & fyfty. And euen ſo by the handes of the ſayde marchauntes, horſſes were brought out for al the kinges of the Hethites, and for the kynges of Sirria.

¶ Salomon hath ſeuen hundred Quenes and three hundred Concubynes, whiche brynge hym to Idolatrye. His aduerſaryes rebell agaynſte hym. He dyeth, and Jeroboam his ſonne raygneth in his ſtede.

CAPI. XI.

BVt kyng Salomon loued many outlandyſche women: the doughter of Pharao/ and of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonites, and Hethites/euen of naciōs of which the Lorde ſayd vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, ſe ye come not at them, nor let thē come to you/for ſurely they wyll turne your hertes after theyr goddes. Neuertheleſſe to ſuche Salomon claue, and fel in loue with them. ✶ And he had ſeuen hundred verye quenes, and three hundred concubynes, whiche turned away his hert. For when Salomon was olde, his wines turned his hert after other goddes, ſo that his hert was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the hert of Dauid his father.

And Salomon folowed Aſtaroth the God of

B of the Zidons, and Milcom the abhominacion of the Ammonits. So Salomō wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde, and continued not after the Lorde as dyd Dauid his father. After that Salomon buylte an aulter for Chamos the abhominacion of the Moabites in the hyll that standeth before Jerusalem, and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the chyldren of Ammon. And semblably dyd he for all his outlandyshe wiues which burnt incense and offered vnto theyr Goddes. Then b.iij.b was the Lorde angry with Salomon, because his hert turned from the Lorde God of Israel whiche appeared vnto hym twyse, and gaue him a charge of this thinge that he sholde not folowe other Goddes. But he kepte not that whiche the Lorde commaunded hym: wherupon the Lord sayd to Salomō: for as moch as this is done of the, and thou haste not kept myne appoyntment & myne ordinaūces which I haue commaunded the, therfore I wyll rent the kingdome from the, and wil gyue it to thy
C seruant. Notwithstanding in thy dayes I wil not do it, because of Dauid thy father: but wil take it frō thy sonne. How be it I wil not take away al: but wil giue one tribe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruaunt, and because of Jerusalem, whiche I haue chosen.

Then the Lord stered vp an aduersary vnto Salomon, one Hadad an Edomite, and of the kynges linage of Edom. For whē Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the capitayne of the hoste was gone vp to burye them that were slayn, & had slayne all the men chyldren in Edom. For sixe monethes dyd Joab remayne there, and al Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men chyldren in Edom. And this Hadad fled, & certeyn other Edomites of his fathers seruauntes wt him, to go to Egypt, Hadad beinge yet a litle lad. And they arose out of Madian, and went
D to Pharan, and toke men with them oute of Pharan, & came to Egypt vnto Pharao kyng therof, which gaue him an house/and appointed him victayles, and gaue him landes. And Hadad gat great fauour in the sight of Pharao, so that he gaue him to wyfe the syster of his owne wyfe, the syster of Thahaphnes the quene. And the sister of Thahaphnes bare him Henubath his sonne. And Thahaphnes weaned him in Pharaos house. And he was i Pharaos house among the sonnes of Pharao. And when Hadad herde saye in Egypte that Dauid was layde to slepe with his fathers / and that Joab the capitayne of the hoste was ded also/he sayd to Pharao: let me departe, that I maye go to myne owne countrey. Then sayde Pharao vnto hym: what lacketh thou heare with me, that thou woldest go to thyne owne countreye? And he sayd, nothynge: how be it let me go. And God stered vp an other aduersarye, one Razon the sonne of Eliada, whiche fled from Hadadezer kyng of Zobah his master. This Razon gathered men vnto him, and became capitayne ouer an armye, when Dauid slewe them. And they went to Damasco, & dwelte therin/and raygned in Damasco. And he was an aduersarye to Israel all the dayes of Salomon, with the euill that Hadad dyd, which abhorred Israel, and raygned in Syria.

And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat an Ephrathite of Zaredah (whose mother was called Zeruah, and was a wydowe, and he Salomons seruaunt) lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kyng/and hereof came it, that he lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kynge. Salomon buylt Melo, and mended broken places in the citye of Dauid his father. And this felowe Jeroboam was an actiue man. And when Salomō sawe the yong man that he wrought so lustely in the worke, he made him ruler ouer all the charges of the house of Joseph. And it chaūced at that season, as Jeroboam was gone out of Jerusalem, that the Prophete Ahiah the Silonite met him by the waye, hauyng a new mantell on him, & they two alone in the felde. And Ahiah caught the newe mantel that was on him, and rent it in twelue peces, and said to E Jeroboam: take the ten peces. For this sayth the Lorde God of Israel: beholde I wil rent the kingdome out of the handes of Salomon, and wil gyue ten tribes to the/ & he shall haue one, for my seruaunt Dauids sake, and for Jerusalem, the citye whiche I haue chosen oute of all the trybes of Israell, because they haue forsaken me, and haue bowed them selues vnto Astaroth the God of the Zidons / and to Chamos the God of the Moabites / and to Milcom, the God of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to do that pleaseth me / and myne ordynaunces and rytes: as dyd Dauid his father.

How be it I wyll take none of the kyngdome oute of his hande / but wyll make hym chefe all his lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruauntes sake, whiche I chose, because he kept my commaundementes and ordinaunces. But I wyl take the kyngdome forth of his sonnes hande, and wyll gyue vnto the ten trybes of it / and wyll gyue his sonne one, that Dauid my seruaunte maye haue a lyghte alwaye before me in Jerusalem the citye which I haue chosen me, to put my name there. And I wyll take the, and thou shalte raygne vpon all that thy soule desyreth, & shalt be king ouer Israel.
G And yf thou shalt harken vnto al that I commaunde the, and shalte walke in my wayes/ and do that is righte in my syghte/that thou kepe myne ordinaunces and commaundementes/as Dauid my seruaūt dyd: then will I be with the, and buylde the an house that shall continue / as I buylte for my seruaunte Dauid / and I wyll gyue Israell vnto the. And therwith wyll I vexe the seed of Dauid, but not for euer. And Salomon sought to kyl Jeroboam/wherfore Jeroboam arose, and fledde in to Egypte, vnto Sesak kynge of Egypte, and continued there tyll the deathe of Salomon. The reste of the actes of Salomon, and all that he dyd, and his wysdome, are wrytten in the boke of the actes of Salomon. And the tyme that Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israell, was fourtye yeres. And then he layde hym to reste with his fathers, and was buryed in the citye of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ The kyngdome is deuyded: a Rehoboam raygneth ouer.ii.trybes, and Ieroboam ouer.x. Aduram is stoned. Ieroboam maketh golden calues.

CAPI. XII.

A AND Rehoboam wente to Sichem: for al Israel were come to Sichem to make him kynge. And when Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat herd of it, being yet in Egypt: for he had fledde to Egypte, for feare of Salomon/and dwelte there. And they sent and called him: and so Ieroboam and all the assemble of Israel came and spake vnto Rehoboam, saynge: thy father made oure yoke greuous, but now make thou the greuous seruice of thy father, and his sore yoke whiche he put vpon vs, lyghter/ and so we wyll serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Rehoboam toke counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon his father, whyle he yet lyued, and sayde: what counsel gyue ye to answere this people with? B And they sayde vnto hym. Yf thou shalte be a seruaunt vnto this people this day, and serue them, and answere them, and speke kynde wordes to them, they wyll be thy seruauntes for euer. But he lefte the counsell that the olde men had gyuen hym, and counselled with the yonge men that were nourysshed vp with him and had wayted on him.

The counsail of the olde me despised.

And he sayd vnto them: what counsel gyue ye, to answere this people, whiche haue communed with me sayinge: make the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs, lyghter? And the yong men that were brought vp with him answered him, sayinge: this people that haue sayd vnto the: thy father made our yoke heuy make thou it vs lyghter: thus answere them. Eccles.xlvii. d L My lytle fynger shall be wayghtyer then my fathers loynes. And nowe where my father put a greuous yoke vpon you, I wyll make it heuyer. For where my father correcte you with scourges, I wyll chastyse you with scorpyons. And when Ieroboam, and all the people were come to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kynge appoynted them, sayinge: come to me agayne this daye thre dayes / the kynge answered the people churlysshely, and lefte the aduyse that the olde men gaue hym/ and spake to theym after the counsell of the yonge men, sayinge. My father made youre yoke greuous, but I wyll make it greuouser. For where my father chastysed you with D whyppes, I wyll chastyse you with scorpyons. And so the kynge harkened not vnto the people: for the turnynge awaye was of the Lord, *iii.Reg.xi. f * to performe his saynge, whiche the Lorde sayde by Ahiah the Silonite vnto Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat.

And when all Israel sawe that the kynge harkened them not/the people answered the kynge agayne, sayinge: we haue no parte in Dauid, ii.Parali.x.d. nor inheritaunce in the sonne of Isai. * Hasten to youre tentes therfore Israel, and nowe se to thyne owne house Dauid. And so Israel departed vnto theyr tentes. How be it ouer the children of Israel whiche dwelte in the city of Iuda, did Rehoboam raygne styl. Then kynge Rehoboam sent Aduram the receyuer of the tribute. And al Israel stoned him to deth with stones. But kynge Rehoboam made spede and gat E him vp to his charet, & fled to Ierusalem. And so Israel departed from the house of Dauid vnto this daye. And when al Israel herd that Ieroboam was come agayn, they sent and called hym vnto the congregacyon, and made hym kynge ouer Israell: so folowed the house of Dauid, but the tribe of Iuda only. * And whe *ii.Parali.xi.a Rehoboam was come to Ierusalem, he gathered all the house of Iuda, and all the tribe of Ben Jamin an hundred and four score thousandes of chosen men & good warriours, to fight agaynst the house of Israel/and to bringe the kyngdome agayne of Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Semeiah the man of God, saying/ speke f vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Iuda, and vnto all the house of Iuda and Ben Jamin, and the remnaunt of the people, and saye, Thus sayth the Lorde: goo not nor yet fight agaynst your brethren the children of Israel, but returne euery man to his house, for this doynge is of the Lorde. And they obeyed the worde of the Lorde, and retourned and departed accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. Then Ieroboam buylte Sichem in mount Ephraim, and dwelte therin. And wente frome thence and buylt Phanuel.

And Ieroboam thought in his herte: nowe might the kingdome returne to ỹ house of Dauid agayne. For yf this people shall go vp and do sacrifyce in the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem: then shal theyr hertes turne agayn vnto their Lorde Rehoboam kynge of Iuda: and so shall they kyll me, and go agayne to Rehoboam kynge of Iuda. * Whervpon the kynge *iii.Reg.xii.c toke counsell and made two calues of golde, and sayd vnto the people: ye shall not nede to goo anye more to Ierusalem. Beholde, youre Gods (Israel) whiche brought you oute of the lande of Egypt. And he put the one in Bethel G and the other in Dan. And that doynge was a cause of synne. And the people wente to worshyp the calfe, as farre as Dan. And he made temples in the hylles, and made of the lowest of the people preestes, whiche were not of the sonnes of Leui. And Ieroboam made a feaste the fyftene daye of the eyght moneth, lyke vnto the feast that was in Iuda, and offered on the aulter. And so dyd he in Bethel, to offre vnto the calues ỹ he had made. And he put in Bethel the preestes of the hyllaulters, whiche he had made. And he offered vpon the aulter whiche he had made in Bethel, the fyftene daye of the eyght moneth, whiche he had ymagined of his owne herte/ and made a solempne feast vnto the chyldren of Israel, and wente vp to the aulter to burne sacrifyce.

¶ Ieroboam sacrifyinge vnto Calues, is reproued of the Prophete. His hande dryeth vp whyle he putteth it out agaynst the Prophete. The Prophete is kylled and buryed.

CAP. XIII.

A And beholde, there came a man of God out of Juda with the worde of God, to Bethel, as Jeroboam stode by the aultar to offer, and cryed agaynst the aultare at the cõmaundement of the Lorde and sayd: aultare, aultare, thus sayth the Lorde. Beholde, a chylde shall be borne of the house of Dauid, Josiah by name, whiche vpon the shall offer the preistes of the hyllaultares that sacrifyce vpon the, and shall burne mennes bones vpon the. And he gaue theym the same tyme a signe sayenge: this is the signe of that the Lorde hath promysed. Beholde the aulter shall rent and the asshes that are in it shal fal out. And when the kynge herde the sayeng of the man of God whiche he cryed against the aulter in Bethel, he stretched oute his hande frome the aultare sayeng: holde him. And his hande which he put forth towarde him, dryed vp, that he coulde not pull it in agayn to him and the aulter claue and the asshes ran out of the aulter accordinge to the token which the man of God had gyuen at the cõmaundment of the Lorde. And the kynge aunswered and sayde vnto the man of God: Oh praye vnto the Lorde thy God, and make intercession for me, that my hand may be restored me againe. And the man of God besought the Lord, and his hande came to him agayne as well as before.

Then sayd the kynge vnto the man of God Come home with me and refresshe thy selfe, & I wyll gyue the rewarde. But the man of God answered the king, if thou woldest gyue me halfe thyne house, I wolde not goo with the nether wolde I eate meate or drynke water in this place. For so was it charged me, C thorowe the worde of God and sayde to me: eate no bred, nor dryncke water, nor turne agayne by the same waye thou wentest. And so he went an other waye and returned not by the waye he came to Bethel. And there dwelt an olde Prophete in Bethel, whose sonnes came and tolde him all the workes that the man of God had done that day in Bethel, and the wordes which he spake vnto ỳ kynge they tolde their father also. And their father sayde to them: what waye went he? for his sonnes had sene what waye the man of God wente which came frome Juda. Then sayd he to his sonnes: sadle myne asse. And they sadled him an asse. And he gat him vp theron and wente after the man of God, and found him sitting vnder an Oke, and sayde vnto him: Art thou the man of God that camest from Juda? And he sayde, yea.

D Then he sayd to him: come home with me and eate bred. And the other sayde agayne, I maye not returne with the, to go with ỳ, ney ther maye I eate bred or drinke water with ỳ in this place. For it was sayde to me by the cõmaundement of the Lorde, eate no bred nor drinke water in this place, nor turne agayne by the waye thou wentest. And the olde Prophet sayde vnto him: I am a Prophet as wel as thou, and an Angel spake vnto me with ỳ worde of the Lorde, sayenge: Bringe him agayne with the to thyne house, & let him eate bred and drink water, and yet lyed vnto him. And to the other went agayne with him & ate bred in his houlse and dranke water.

And as they sate at the table, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the Prophete ỳ brought him agayne. And he cryed vnto ỳ man of God E that came frome Juda, sayenge: Thus sayth the Lorde: because thou haste disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, and hast not kept ỳ commaundement which the Lorde thy God commaunded the, but camest backe agayne & hast eaten bread and dronke water in the place in which he bad that thou shuldest eate no bred nor drincke water: therfore thy carkasse shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

And when he had eaten bred and dronke, he sadled an Asse for the Prophete which he had brought agayne. And as he tourneyed, a lyon met him by the waye, and slew him, and his carkasse laye alonge in the waye, and the asse stode therby, and the lyon stode by the corpse also. And men that passed by, saw the carkasse F cast a longe in the way and the lyon standing therby, & went & tolde it in the towne where the olde Prophete dwelt. And when the Prophete that brought him backe agayne from ỳ waye, herde therof, he sayde: It is the mã of God which disobeyed the mouth of the Lord. And therfore the Lorde hathe delyuered him vnto the Lyon which hath rẽt him and slayne him, according to the worde of ỳ Lorde, which he sayde to him. And he sayd to his sonnes sadle me an Asse: and so they dyd. And he wẽt and founde the body cast alonge in the waye, and the Asse and the Lyon standinge therby. And the Lyon had not eaten the carkasse nor G hurt the Asse. And he toke vp the body of the manne of God, and put it vpon the Asse, and brought it agayne, and came to the cyte of ỳ olde Prophete to lament him, & to bury him. And he layde his body in his owne graue, and lamented ouer him, Oh my brother. And whẽ he had buryed him, he spake to his sonnes sayenge: When I am deed, se ye bury me in the sepulchre wherin the man of God is buryed/ and lay my bones by his. For the sayeng which he cryed at the bydding of the Lorde against the aultare in Bethel, and against all the houses of hyllaultares whiche are in the cyties of Samarie, shall come to passe.

How be it for all that, Jeroboam turned not from his wicked waye: but turned away and made of the lowest of the people preestes of the hyllaultares. Who so euer wolde, he fylled their handes, and they became preastes of the hyllaultares. And this wynne was syn vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to destroy it and to put it awaye frome of the face of the earthe.

¶ Jeroboams wyfe asketh counsell of Ahiah, which prophelyeth the deeth of her chylde and the destruccion of the Realme. Jeroboam dyeth. Sezak kyng of Egypt robbeth the houle of the Lorde. Roboam dyeth. Abiam succedeth hym.

in the water is shaken, and will wede Israel out of this good lande which he gaue to their fathers, and wyll scatter theym beyonde Euphrates, because they haue made theym gro-ues to angre the Lorde. And he wyl gyue Israel vp, because of the synne of Jeroboam, wherwith he dyd synne, & made Israell synne also.

And Jeroboams wyfe arose and departed, & and went to Thersah, and by that she was come to the thresholde of the dore, the ladde was deed. And all Israel buryed him and lamented him, according vnto the worde of the Lorde which he spake by the hande of his sededes of Jeroboam, how he warred and how he raygned, are wrytten in the booke of the out of all ye trybes of Israel, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Juda wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lord and angred him aboue all that their fathers dyd, with their synne which they synned. For they also made them hill aultars and Images and groues on euery hyghe hyll, and vnder euery grene tree.

And therto ther was a stues of male childre in the lande, and they dyd according to all the abhominacions of the Heythen, whiche the Lorde cast out before the childzen of Israel. G
And the fyft yere of kynge Rehoboā came Se sack kynge of Egypt vp to Jerusalem, & toke awaye the treasure of the house of the Lorde and the treasure of the kynges house, and all that was to be had. And he toke away ye shil-des of golde which Salomō made. In whose u.
stede kynge Rehoboam made braszen shyldes, and put them in the keping of the capitaynes of the garde, which wayted at the dore of the kynges house. And as ofte as the kynge went into the house of the Lorde, they of his garde bare them, and euer brought them agayne in-wughter of Abesalom. And he walked in all the synnes of his father whiche he dyd before hym, and his herte was not hole with the Lorde his God, as the herte of Dauid his father. Neuertheles for Dauids sake, the

the Lord his God gaue him a lyght in Jerusalem, that he set vp his sonne after him, to cõtinue Jerusalem. Because that Dauid dyd þ which pleased the Lorde, and tourned frome nothinge that he cõmaunded him al the dayes of his lyfe, * saue only in the matter of Urias the Hethite. And there was war betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam as longe as he lyued. The rest of the dedes of Abiam and all þ he dyd, are written in the boke of the Chronicles that were wone in the dayes of the kynges of Juda. And there was warre betwene Abiã and Jeroboam. And Asa dyd that semed ryght in the eyen of the Lord, lyke Dauid his father. And he made the lues of males departe the lande, and put awaye all the Idolles that his fathers had made. And therto he put downe Maacah his mother frome beryng rule, because she had made an Idole in a groue. And Asa destroyed her Idoll and burnt it by the broke Cedron. But he put not downe the hyllaulters. Neuertheles Asas herte was hole with the Lorde all his dayes. And he brought in, that his father had dedicat, and the thinges halowed vnto the house of the Lorde, syluer, gold and Jewelles. And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa kyng of Israel al their dayes.

And Baasa kyng of Israel went vp against Juda, and buylt Ramah, because he wolde let none of Asas people kynge of Juda, go in or out. Then Asa toke all the syluer and gold that was left in the treasure of the house of þ Lorde, & all the treasure of the kynges house, and deliuered it vnto his seruauntes, & sente them to Benhadad the sonne of Tadzemon þ sonne of Hezion kynge of Syria that dwelte at Damasco, sayeng: there is a bonde betwene the and me, as was betwene thy father and myne. Therfore I sende the bothe golde & syluer for a gyfte, that thou goo and breake the bonde betwene the and Baasa kynge of Israel, that he maye departe frome me. And Benhadad herkened vnto kynge Asa, and sent the capitaines of the hostes which he had against the cyties of Israel, and smote Ahion, Dan, Abel called Beth Maacah and all Cineroth with all the lande of Nephthali. And when Baasa herde that, he left buyldyng of Ramah and dwelt in Thersah. Then kynge Asa made Proclamation thorowoute all Juda, þ none shulde be excused. And they toke the stones of Ramah and þ tymber wherwith Baasa had buylt, and kyng Asa buylt therwith Gabaah in Ben Jamin and Maspha. And Josaphat his sonne raygned in his rowme. And Nadab the sonne of Jeroboam began to raygne vpõ Israel the seconde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, and raygned vpõ Israel two yere. And he did euyll in the sight of the Lorde, and walked in the waye of his father and in his synne wherwith he made Israel synne. But Baasa the son of Ahiah of the house of Issachar conspired against him, and slew him at Gebethon a cytie of the Philistines, for Nadab and all Israell laye at seage before Gebethon. And it was þ thirde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, when Baasa slew him, and raygned in his stede. And as sone as he was kynge, he slew al the house of Jeroboam and left him naught that brethed, vntyll he had vtterly destroyed him, agreinge vnto the sayenge of the Lorde which he spake by his seruaunte Ahiah the Silonite, for the synne of Jeroboam wherwith he synned and made Israel synne, and for his angeryng that he angred the Lorde God of Israel. The rest of the dedes of Nadab, and all his procedinges, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa, kynge of Israell, all their dayes.

Nadab.

In the thirde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, Baasa the sonne of Ahiah began to raygne ouer all Israell in Thersah, and continewed .xxiiij. yeere. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde, for he walked in the waye of Jeroboam and in his synne, wherwith he made Israel synne.

¶ Jehu prophesieth agaynste Baasa, of whome he is slayne. Elah succedeth Baasa. Zamri kylleth his mayster Elah, and destroyeth the house of Baasa. He is reiect and Amri chosen. Zamri burneth hym selfe and his house. Wycked Ahab succedeth Amri, and taketh to wyfe wycked Jezabel.

CAPI. XVI.

THen came the worde of the Lorde to Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynste Baasa, sayenge: for as moche as I exalted the out of the dust and made the cappitayne ouer my people Israel, and thou haste walked in the waye of Jeroboam and haste made my people Israel synne, to angrye me with theyr synne: I wyll make cleane riddaunce of Baasa and of all his house, and wyll make his house lyke the house of Jeroboam, the sonne of Nabat. * And he that dyeth of Baasa in the cytie, him shall wogges eate: and him that dyeth in the feldes, shall the fowles of the ayre eate.

The. xxvi. yere of Asa kynge of Juda began Elah the sonne of Baasa to raygne ouer Israel in Thersah, and contynued two yere. And his seruaunte Zamri capitayne of Zamri. halfe his charettes, conspired agaynste hym, as he was in Thersah drynckynge of stronge dryncke, in the house of Arza stewarde of his house in Thersah. And Zamri came and smot hym and kylled hym the .xxvij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, and raygned in his stede. And * Exodi. xi. b. as sone as he was kynge and sate on his seate 1. And therto he slue all his kynne and frendes, and so Zamri destroyed all the house of Baasa, accordinge to the worde of the Lorde which he spake to Baasa thorow Jehu ꝑ prophete, for all the synnes of Baasa and synnes of Elah his sonne, wherwith they synned and made Israell synne, to angre the Lorde of Israel with their vanities. The rest of the actes of Elah and all he dyd, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The. xxvij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, Zāri raygned. vij. dayes in Thersah, the people besegynge Gebethon a cytie of the Philistines. And when the people that lay in ꝑ feage herde saye how Zamri had conspired, & how he had slayne the kynge also: then all Israel Amri. made Amri the capitayn of the men of warre kynge, that same daye ouer Israel euen in the host. And Amri departed frome Gebethon, & all Israel with him, and besieged Thersah. And when Zamri sawe that the cytie must nedes be taken, he went into the palace of ꝑ kynges house, & set the kynges house a fyre vpon him selfe, and there dyed, for his synnes wherche he synned in wynge wyckednesse in ꝑ sight of the Lorde, and for walkynge in the waye of Jeroboam and in his synnes which he dyd and made Israel synne. The rest of the actes of Zamri and the treason that he wrought, are wrytten in the boke of Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. Moreouer that same season was Israel deuyded in twayne, for halfe the people folowed Thebni the sonne of Gineth, to make him kynge, and thother halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri, preuayled against the that folowed Thebni the sonne of Gineth. And so Thebni dyed and Amri raygned.

The. xxxi. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, began Amri to raygne ouer Israel. xij. yere and ruled fyre yere in Thersah. And he bought the hyll of Samaria of one Semar for two hundred talentes of syluer, and buylt in the hill, & called the name of the cytie whiche he had buylt Samaria, after the name of Semar the Lord Samaria. of the hill. And this Amri wrought wyckednesse in the eyes of the Lorde worse then all that were before him, and walked in all the wayes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and in his synne wherwith he made Israel synne, to angre the Lorde God of Israell with their vanities. The rest of the actes of Amri which he dyd, and his battels that he foughte, are wrytten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Amri layde him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed in Samaria, & Achab his sonne raygned in his stede.

The. xxxviij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, began Achab the sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, and raygned in Samaria. xxij. yere. And he displeased the Lorde aboue all ꝑ were before him. For it semed him a lyght thinge to walke in the synne of Jeroboam. But take Jezabel the doughter of Ethbaal kynge of the Sidonites to wyfe, and * went and serued Baal and bowed vnto him. And he reered an aultar to Baal in the house of Baal which he hadde made in Samaria. And Achab made a groue, and proceded further in angerynge the Lorde God of Israel, then all the kynges of Israel that were before him.

In his dayes Hiel of Bethel buylt Jericho And it cost him Amram his eldest sonne when he layde the foundacion, and his youngest son when he set vp the gates, agreynge vnto the worde of the Lorde which he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

¶ Eliah is nourished and fedde of Rauens, and after is sent to the woman of Sarephtha whose childe he rayseth to lyfe.

CAPI. XVII.

AND Eliah the Thesbite which was of the enhabitauntes of Galaad, sayd vnto Achab: * as truly as the Lord God of Israel lyueth, before whome I stand, there shalbe neyther dew nor rayne these yeres, saue as I appoint it. And the worde of God came him, sayenge: get the hence and turne the eastwarde, and hyde thy selfe in the broke Rith, that lyeth before Jordan: drinke of the ryuer, for I haue commaunded the rauens to fede the there. And he wēt and dyd accordyng vnto the worde of the Lorde: he went & dwelt by the broke Karith that lyeth before Jordan And the rauens brought him bred and flesshe euery morneynge and euery euenynge, and he dranke of the brooke. And it chaunced after a whyle, that the broke dryed vp, because there fell no rayne vpon the earthe. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto him sayenge: arise, and get the to Sarephtha a cytie of Sidon, & dwell there. Beholde I haue commaunded a wydowe there to sustayne the. And he arose & went to Sarephtha. And when he came to ꝑ gate of the cytie, there was a wydowe there gatheringe stickes. And he called to her & sayd * fet me I praye the, a lytle water in a dysshe that I maye drinke. And as she went to fet it, he cryed to her and sayde: Bringe me I praye the, a morsell of bred in thyne hande. And she answered: as surely as the Lorde thy God lyueth, I haue no bred, but euen an handful of Mele in a pitcher, and a lytle Oyle in a cruse. And lo, I haue gathered a fewe stickes for to go and bake it for me and my sonne, that we may eate it and then dye. And Eliah sayd vnto her to her: feare not, but go and do as thou haste sayde: and make me therof a lytle cake first of all, and bringe it out to me: and afterwarde make for the and thy sonne. For thus sayth ꝑ Lorde God of Israell: the pytcher of Mele shall not be wasted, neyther shall thy oyle cruse be without oyle, tyl the Lorde haue sent rayne vpon the earthe. And she went and did as Eliah bad. And she and he and her house dyd eat a good space, & ꝑ pytcher of Mele wasted not, neyther was the oyle cruse without oyle according to the worde of the Lorde whi che he spake thorowe Eliah. And after theie thinges, it happened that the son of ꝑ wyfe of the house fell sicke. And his sickenesse was so sore, that there was no breth left in him. Then sayde she vnto Eliah, What haue I to w with the, O thou man of God? art thou come vnto me, that my syn shulde be thought on, and my sonne slayne? And Eliah sayd vn to her: gyue me thy sonne. And he toke him out of her lappe and caryed him vp into a loft where he laye, and layde him vpon his owne bed, and called vnto the Lorde and sayde: O Lorde my God, hast thou bene so euyll vnto the wywwe with whome I soiourne, ꝑ thou hast slayne her sonne? ✳ And he stretched him self vpon the childe thre tymes, and called vn to the Lorde and sayde: O Lorde my God, let the childes soule come into him agayne. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Eliah, and the soule of the childe came into him agayne and he reuyued. And Eliah toke ꝑ boye & brought him wyne out of the chambre into the house and deliuered him vnto his mother and sayde: se, thy sonne lyueth. Then the wyfe sayde to Eliah: Now I know thou art Gods man, & that the worde of the Lorde in thy mouthe, is truthe.

¶ Eliah is sent to Achab. Abdiah hydeth an hundred Prophetes and saueth them. Baall cannot heare although the people crye very loude. Eliah killeth all Baals Prophets: and after obtayneth rayne.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND at last the worde of the Lorde came to Eliah the third yere sayeng: go shew thy selfe vnto Achab, that I may send rayne vpon the earthe. And Eliah wente to shewe him selfe vnto Achab, for there was a great famyshement in Samaria. Wherfore Achab called Abdiah ꝑ gouernour of his house which feared God greatly: in so moche that when Iezabel destroyed the Lordes prophetes he toke an hundred of the Prophetes and hid them, fyfty in one caue, and fyfty in an other and prouyded bred and water for them. And Achab sayde vnto Abdiah: walke thorow the lande, vnto all fountaynes of water, and vnto all brokes, to se whether any grasse maye be founde, that we maye saue the horses and the Mules, that we destroy not ꝑ beastes. So they dyuyded the land betwene thē to walke thorow it. Achab went one waye by him self, and Abdiah went an other by him selfe. And it chaunced as Abdiah went in the waye, that Eliah met him. And Abdiah knewe him, and fell on his face, and sayde: Arte not thou my Lorde Eliah? And he sayde vnto him: I am he. Go and tell Achab that Eliah is here. And the other aunswered: What haue I synned, that thou woldest delyuer me into the hande of Achab, to slay me? As surely as the Lorde thy God lyueth, there is no nacion ne kyngdome whether my Lorde hath not sent to seke the. And when they sayd thou wast not there he toke an othe of the kyngdome and nacyon, because he founde the not. And now thou sayest: Go tell thy Lorde, Eliah is here. And as sone as I am gone frome the, the spirite of ꝑ Lorde shall cary the awaye whether I shall not knowe: and then when I haue gone and tolde Achab, and he can not fynd the, he shal slay me. And yet I thy seruaunt haue feared ꝑ Lorde frome my youth. Was it not tolde my Lorde, what I dyd, when Iezabel slewe the Prophetes of the Lorde, how I hyd an hundred of the Lordes Prophetes, fyfty in one caue and as many in an other, and prouyded them bred & water? And yet now thou sayest, go shew thy Lorde, that Eliah is here to th'intent he myght slay me. Then Eliah sayde: as truely as the Lorde of hostes lyueth, before whome I stande: I will shewe my selfe vnto him this daye. And therupon Abdiah went to Achab and told him. And Achab went against Eliah. And when Achab saw Eliah, he sayde vnto him: Art thou he that troubleth Israel? And he sayde: it is not I that trouble Israel, but thou & thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the Lord and haue folowed Baal. But now sende and gather me all Israel vnto mount Carmell, & the Prophetes of Baal foure hundred & fyfty and the Prophetes of the groues foure hundred, which eat of Iezabels table. And Achab sent for all the children of Israel, and gathered the Prophetes vnto mount Carmel.

And Eliah came vnto all the people & sayd: Why halt ye betwene two opinions? Yf the Lorde be very God: folow him: or yf Baal be he, then folow him. And the people answered him not one worde. Then sayde Eliah vn to the people: I only remayne of the Lordes Prophetes, and Baals Prophetes are foure hundred and fyfty. Let two oxen be gyuē vs, and let them chose the one, and cut him in pe ces and laye him on wood, and put no fyre vn der, And I will dresse the other and put him on wood, and will put no fyre vnder. And cal ye on the name of your God, and I will call on the name of the Lorde. And then the God that answereth by fyre, he is the very God.

✳ And all the people sayde: It is well spoken. Then sayd Eliah vnto the Prophetes of Baal, chose you an ore and dresse him first (for ye are manye) and call on the name of youre God, but put no fyre vnder. And they toke ꝑ ore that was gyuen them and dressed it, and called on the name of Baal from morning to none, sayenge: O Baal heare vs. But there was no voyce nor aunswere. And they lept a bout the aultare that they had made. And at none Eliah mocked them & sayde: Cal lowde (for he is a God: but he is talkynge or pur-suinge his ennemyes, or happily he slepeth) that he maye awake. And they cryed aloude/& cut them selues (as their maner was) with knyues and launcers, tyll the bloud folowed on them. But when myddaye was passed, and they hadde played the Prophetes tyll it was tyme to offre / and yet was neither voyce, ne answere, ne anye that regarded them. Eliah sayd to all the folke / come to me. And all the people came to him. And he mended the aulter of the Lorde that was broken, * and toke.xij. stones, accordyng to the nombre of the twelue trybes of the sonnes of Jacob, vnto whom the worde of the Lorde came, saying: Israel shal be thy name. And with the stones he made an aulter in the name of the Lorde. And he made a gutter rounde aboute the aulter, hable to receyue two peckes of corne/and he put the wod in order, and hewed the ore in peces, and put him on the wodde, and sayde / fyll foure pytchers with water, and poure it on the sacrifice and on the wodde. And he sayd/wo so agayne. And they dyd so agayne. Then he sayd: wo it the thyrde tyme. And they dyd so the thyrde tyme. And the water ranne rounde aboute the aulter/and the gutter was full of water also.

So when offeryng tyme was come, Eliah the Prophete went to and sayd: Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel/ let it be knowen this daye, that thou arte the God of Israell, and that I am thy seruaunte / and that I wo all these thynges at thy commaundement. Heare me, O Lorde, heare me / that this people maye knowe that thou arte the God/ and that thou hast tourned theyr hertes backwarde. And there fell fyre from the Lorde and consumed the sacrifyce, and the wodde, and the stones, and the dulle/ and lycked vp the water that was in the gutter. Whiche when all the people sawe, they fel on theyr faces and sayd, the Lorde he is God, the Lorde he is God. Then sayde Eliah vnto them, laye handes on the Prophetes of Baal, lett not one of them escape. And when they had taken them Eliah brought them downe vnto the brooke Kison, and slue them there.

Then Eliah sayde vnto Achab, get the vp and eate and dryncke, for there is a sounde of moche rayne. And whē Achab went vp to eate and to dryncke/Eliah went vp to the toppe of mount Carmel, * and bowed him selfe to the earthe, and put his face betwene his knees/ and sayd to his seruaunt: go vp and loke towarde the see. And he went vp and loked, and sayd: here is nothynge. And he sayd go agayn seuen tymes. And the seuenth tyme he sayde: behold, there aryseth a lytle cloude out of the see, lyke the paulme of a mannes hand. Then he sayde: goo and saye to Achab, putte the horses in the charete, and get the downe ꝑ the rayne stoppe the not. And within a lytle whyle heuen was blacke with cloudes and wynde, and there was a greate rayne. And Achab rode and went to Jezrahel. and the hāde of the Lorde was on Eliah, and he gyrded vp his lopnes and ranne before Achab, tyll they came to Jezrahel.

¶ Eliah fleinge frome Jezabel is nourysshed of the aungell of God. He complayneth that he is lefte alone, and that they seke his lyfe to. He is commaunded to annoynt Hazahel, Jehu, and Eliseus.

CAPI. XIX.

AND Achab tolde Jezabell, all that Eliah hadde wone, and all togyther, howe he had slayne the Prophetes with the swerde. Then Jezabell sente a messenger vnto Eliah, sayinge: * so woo God to me, and so therto, but ꝑ I make thy soule lyke one of theyrs/by to morow this tyme: when he saw that, he arose and went for his lyfe, and came to Berlsabe in Juda, and lefte his seruaunte there. And he went a dayes tourneye in to the wyldernesse/and when he was come, sat down vnder a Juniper tree/and desyred for his soule, that he myghte dye, and sayde: * it is nowe ynough, O Lord, take my soule/for I am not better then my fathers.

And as he laye and slepte vnder the Junyper tree: beholde there came an aungell and touched hym, and sayde vnto him: aryse and eate. And he loked aboute hym: and loo there was an Imber cake, and a cruse of water at his heed. And he ate and dranke, and layde him downe agayne to slepe. And the aungell of the Lorde came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched him, and sayd: aryse and eate, for thou haste a longe tourneye to goo. And he arose and dyd eate and dryncke, and went in the strengthe of that meat fourtye dayes and fourtye nyghtes vnto Horeb the mounte of God, and entred there in to a caue, and lodged there all nyght.

And then the worde of the Lorde came to him and sayde: what doest thou heare Eliah? And he answered: I haue ben thorow angrye for the Lord God of hostes sake. For ꝑ childre of Israel haue forsaken thy couenaunt, and haue broke downe thyne aulters, and slayne the Prophetes with the swerde, and I onely am lefte/and they seke my soule to haue it to. And he sayd: come oute and stande before the Lorde. And beholde, the Lorde went by, and a myghtye stronge wynde that rent the mountaynes, and brake the rockes before him / but the Lord was not in the wynde. And after the wynde, came an erthquake/ but the Lord was not in the erthquake. And after the erthquake came fyre / but the Lorde was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a small styll voyce. And when Eliah herde it, he couered his face with his mantell/and wente oute and stode in the mouthe of the caue. And loo, there came a voyce vnto him, and sayde: what doest thou here Eliah? And he answered: I haue ben ernestly angry for the Lord God of hostes sake bicause the chyldren of Israell haue forsaken thyne appoyntmēt and haue cast downe thyne aulters, and slayne thy Prophetes with the swerde/and I onely am left, and they seke my soule to haue it. Then the Lorde sayde vnto him/goo and tourne thy waye to the wyldernesse of Damasco, and go and anoynt Hazael to be kynge of Syria. And Jehu the sonne of Namsi

And therto I haue left me seuen thousande in Israel, of which neuer man bowed his knees vnto Baal nor kissed him with his mouth.

And he departed thence and founde Eliseus the sonne of Saphat plowynge with twelue yoke of oxen before him, & he with the twelfe. And Elias went to him and cast his mantell vpon him. And he left the oxen and ran after Elias and sayde: let me I praye the, kysse my father and mother, and then I will folowe the. And he sayde to him: go backe agayn, for what haue I wne to the? And he went backe agayn from him, and toke a yocke of oxen and slewe them, and dressed the flesh with the instrumentes of the oxen, and gaue it the people, & they dyd eate. And then he arose and went after Elias and ministred vnto him.

¶ The fyrste and seconde tyme that Samaria was beleged of Benhadad kynge of Syria.

CAPI. XX.

AND Benhadad kynge of Syria gathered all his host togither, and. xxxij. kynges with him, with horse and charet: and went vp and beleged Samaria and warred against it. And he sent messengers to Achab kynge of Israel into the cytie, and sayde vnto him: thus saith Benhadad, Thy syluer & thy golde is myne, and the best of thy wyues, and the best of thy children be myne. And the king of Israel answered and sayde: my Lorde king according to thy sayeng, I am thyne with al I haue.

And the messengers came agayne to Achab and sayde: thus sayth Benhadad. I haue therfore sent vnto the, sayeng: delyuer me then thy syluer and thy golde, and thy wyues, and thy children. Neuels I will sende my seruauntes vnto the by to morow this tyme: & they shal serche thyne house, and the houses of thy seruauntes, which shal take all that is glorious in thyne eyes, and bringe it awaye with them. Then the kynge of Israell sent for the elders of the lande and sayde: take hede I praye you, & se how this felowe goeth about mischiefe. For he sente vnto me, for my wyues and my children, and my syluer and my golde: and I denyed him nothinge of it. And all the elders of Israel and all the people sayde: herken not to him nor consent. Wherupon he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tell my Lorde the kynge, all that he sent for the first tyme, I will do: but this request I maye not do. And the messengers departed & brought him worde. The Benhadad sent vnto him and sayd: thus do the goddes to me and so therto, yf the dust of Samaria be ynoughe for all the people that folowe me, that euery man may haue an handfull. And the kynge of Israell answered and sayde: Tell him, let not him that putteth on his harnesse boste him selfe, as he that putteth it of. And when Benhadad herde that answer as he and the kynges were drynckinge in the paupilons, he sayde vnto his seruauntes: put youre selfes in aray. And they put them selues in araye against the cytie. And beholde there came a Prophete vnto Achab kynge of Israel and sayd to him: Thus sayth the Lorde. Seist thou al this great multitude? Beholde, I wil delyuer them into thyne hande this daye, that thou mayst knowe that I am the Lorde. And Achab sayde, by whome? And he sayde, thus sayth the Lorde: euen by the gouernours men of the shires. And Achab sayde: who shal fyght in the batayle? And he sayde, thou. Then he nombred the men of the gouernours of the shires: and they were two hundred & xxxij. And after them he nombred all the people, and all the children of Israel were seuen thousande. And they marched forwarde at none when Benhadad was a drynkynge stronge drinke in the paupilyons with the. xxxij. kynges that holp him. And the men of the rulers of the shires went out first. And Benhadad sent forthe, & they shewed hym sayenge: There come men from Samaria. And he sayde: yf they come to make a peax, take them a lyue. And also yf they come for warre, take them yet a lyue. And when those men of the shyres of the shires were come out of the cytie and the host after them, they slew euery one of them his ennemy that stode in his waye. And the Syrians fled, and Israel folowed after them. And Benhadad the kynge of Syria escaped on a horse with his horsemen. And the kynge of Israell went out and smote horse and charet, & slew a great slaughter of the Syrians.

Then there came a Prophete to the kynge of Israell, and sayde to hym: Go forthe and playe the man, be wyse and take hede what thou west: for when the yere is gone about, the kynge of Syria will come against the agayn. Then sayde the seruauntes of the kynges of Syria to him / The goddes of the hylles are their goddes, and therfore they had the better of vs. But let vs fight with them in the playne and vndoubtedly we shall haue the better of them. And this do / take the kynges away euery man out of his place, & put Dukes in their rowmes. And furnysh the a new host, lyke the host that thou hast lost, and horse for horse, & charet for charet, and let vs fight with them in the playne, and for a wager, we get the better of the. And the kynge herkened vnto their counsell and dyd euen so.

And as sone as the yere was gone aboute, Benhadad nombred the Syrians and went vp to Aphek to warre with Israel. And the children of Israel were nombred and prouyded of vytayle, and went against them, and pytched before them lyke two lytle flockes of kyddes but the Syrians fylled the countreye. Then there came a man of God and sayde vnto the kynge of Israell, thus sayth the Lorde. Because the Syrians saye, that the Lorde is but a God of the hilles, & not God of the valeys to / therfore will I delyuer all this great multitude into thine hande that ye may know that I am the Lorde. And they pytched one ouer against the other. vij. dayes, and the seuenth day they ioyned batayle. And the childre of Israel slue of the Sirians an hundred thousande fote men in one daye. And the rest fled to Aphek into ỹ cytie. And there fell a wall vpon. xxvij. thousande of them that were left. And Benhadad fled and went into the cytie, from chambre to chambre.

Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: Beholde, we haue herde saye, that the kynges of the house of Israel are mercyfull kynges. Let vs put sacke cloth about our loynes, and ropes about our heddes, and go out to the kyng of Israel: happely he will saue thy lyfe. So they gyrded sacke clothe about their loynes, & put ropes about their heddes, and went oute to the kynge of Israel and sayde: thy seruaũt Benhadad sayth, I praye the let me lyue. And he sayde: Is he yet a lyue? what he is my brother. And they toke that worde for good lucke and hastely caught it out of his mouth & sayd Yea thy brother Benhadad. Then he sayd: go and bringe him. And Benhadad came oute to him, and the other toke him vp into the charet. And Benhadad sayde: the cyties whiche my father toke frome thy father, I will restore agayn. And thou shalt make streates for the in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I will make a leage with the & send the awaye. And so made a leage with him and sent him awaye.

Then a certeyn man of the childre of the prophetes sayd vnto his felow with the word of the Lorde, smyte me I praye the. And the man wolde not smyte him. And he sayde, because thou haste not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: beholde, as sone as thou arte departed frome me a Lyon shal slay the. And as sone as he was departed frome him, * a Lyon found 3 Regu. xvii. a him & slew him. Then he founde an other mã and sayd to him: smyte me I praye the. And the man gaue him a good stryppe and wounded him. And the prophete went forth and wayted for the kynge by the waye and tyed a kercheefe ouer his eyes, and put him selfe oute of knowledge. And when the kynge came by, he cryed vnto him and sayde: thy seruaunt went out in the myddes of the battel. And lo, there was one began to flee. And there came a man to me and sayde: kepe thou this man. And yf
G he be myssed, thy lyfe shall goo for his, or els
☞ thou shalt paye a talent of syluer. And as thy seruaunt had here & there to do, he was gone. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto him: euen so shal thy iudgement be as thou hast defined it thy selfe.

And he hasted and vnfolded the kercheefe awaye frome his eyes: and the kynge of Israel knew him, that he was of the Prophetes.
iii. Reg. xxii. f And he sayd vnto the kyng, thus sayth ỹ Lord because thou hast let go a mã ỹ ought to haue dyed, thy lyfe shal go for his lyfe, & thy people for his. And the kynge of Israell went to his house al sad & hert hurt, & retred into Samaria ¶ Jezabel commaundeth to kyll Naboth, for the vyneyard that he refused to sell Achab. Helias reproueth Achab, and he repenteth.

CAPI. XXI

After these thinges were done, it chaunced that Naboth the Jezrahelite had a vyneyarde in Jezrahel hard by the palace of Achab kynge of Samaria. And Achab spake vnto Naboth sayenge: let me haue thy vyneyarde, to make me a garden of herbes therof, because it lyeth so nyghe my house: & I will gyue the a better vyneyarde for it: or yf it playse the I will gyue the the worthe of it in syluer. But Naboth sayde to Achab: the Lorde forbyd that frome me, that I shoulde gyue the enheritaũce of my fathers vnto the. Then went Achab vnto his house excedynge angrye and euyll apayde, because of the wordes which Naboth the Jezrahelite had spoke to him sayenge: I will not gyue to the the enheritaunce of my fathers. And he layde him downe vpõ his bed, and turned away his face and wolde eate no meat.

Then Jezabel his wyfe came to him, and sayde vnto him: Why art thou so frowarde, that thou eatest no meat? And he sayde vnto her, I spake vnto Naboth the Jezrahelyte, & sayde vnto him: Gyue me thy vyneyarde for syluer, or els yf thou wilt, I will gyue the an other vyneyarde for it. And he sayde: I wyll not gyue the my vyneyarde.

Then sayde Jezabell his wyfe vnto him: What a goodly kyngdome were thou able to make in Israel? vp and eat meat, and let thyne hert at rest, for I will gyue ỹ the vyneyard of Naboth the Jezrahelite. Thẽ she wrote a letter in Achabs name & sealed it with his seale, and sent it vnto the elders and chiefe men of his cytie that dwelt where Naboth dwelt. And she wrote in the letter sayeng: proclayme fastinge and set Naboth on hyghe among the people, and set two naughty felowes before him, and let them testify against him sayenge: thou dyddest blaspheme both God & the king And vpon that cary him out and stone him to death.

And the elders and nobles of his cytie, wher she dwelt in his cytie, dyd as Jezabel had sent vnto them, and as it was written in the letter which she had sent vnto them. They proclaymed fasting, and set Naboth an hyghe amonge the people, and there came in two vnthrifty persons and sate before him. And the two deuelysh persons witnessed against Naboth before the people sayenge. Naboth dyd curse God and the kynge. * And vpon that they caryed him out of ỹ cytie and stoned him with stones to deth. And then they sent to Jezabel sayenge: Naboth is stoned to deth. And when Jezabel herde that Naboth was stoned to death: she sayde to Achab: aryse and take possession of the vyneyarde of Naboth, ỹ Jezrahelite, which he denyed to gyue ỹ for syluer, for Naboth is not a lyue, but deed. And when Achab herde that Naboth was deed. He arose to go downe to the vyneyarde of Naboth the Jezrahelite, to take possession of it.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto Eliah the Thesbite sayeng: aryse and go downe to mete Achab kyng of Israel which is in Samaria maria. Beholde, he is in the vyneyarde of Naboth: for he is gone downe thyther, to take possession of it. And say vnto him: thus saith the Lorde, thou hast kylled & moreouer gotten possession. And saye after that vnto him, thus sayth the Lorde: in the place where dogges lapped the bloude of Naboth, shall dogges lappe euen thy bloude also. And Achab sayde to Eliah: hast thou found me thyne enemy at any tyme? And he sayde yee, because thou art vtterly appointed to worke wickednesse in the sight of the Lord. Behold, I wil bringe euyll vpon the, and will make cleane ryddaunce of thyne yssue, and will destroy of Achab all that pisseth against the wall, and euen the inclose and furthest in Israel: & wyl make thyne house, lyke the house of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Ahiah, because thou haste prouoked me to angre, & made Israel synne.

And also against Iezabel came the worde of the Lorde, sayenge: dogges shall eat Iezabel vnder the walles of Iezrahel. And he ỹ dyeth of Achab in the towne, him shall dogges eate: and he that dyeth in the feldes, him shall the foules of the ayre eate. For there was none at all lyke Achab, that was so vtterly appointed to worke wyckednesse in the sight of the Lord, and that because Iezabel his wyfe pricked him forwarde. And therfore he dyd excedynge abhominably, in folowinge Ydles, in all thinges lyke as dyd the Amorites whiche the Lorde cast out before the childrē of Israel.

When Achab herde those wordes, * he rēt his clothes and put sackecloth about his flesh and fasted, and lay in sacke and went comfortelle. And ỹ worde of the Lord came to Eliah the Thesbite sayenge: seyst thou how Achab humbleth him selfe before me? because he so humbleth him self before me, I wil not bring the euyll in his dayes: but in his sonnes dayes I will bringe euyll vpon his house.

¶ Foure hundred false Prophetes do counsell Achab and Iosaphat to warre agaynst Ramoth: only Micheah prophesyeth the truth, for whiche he is smytten and put in prysion.

CAP. XXII

AND they continued thre yere without warre betwene Syria and Israel. * And the third yere Iosaphat kynge of Juda came to the kynge of Israell. Then sayde the kynge of Israel vnto his seruantes, know ye not that Ramoth in Galaad is ours, and we sit still and take it not out of the handes of ỹ kynge of Syria? And he sayd vnto Iosaphat: wilt thou go with me to batayle, to Ramoth in Galaad? And Iosaphat sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: * I will be as thou art, & my people shalbe as thyne, and my horsses as thyne.

And Iosaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: aske counsell I praye the of the Lord to daye. And then the kynge of Israel gathered of the Prophetes togither, vpon a foure hundred men, and sayde vnto them: shall I go to Ramoth in Galaad to batayle, or be still? And they sayde, go / for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And Iosaphat sayde: is there not one Prophet of the Lordes here more, that we might enquire of him? And the kynge of Israel sayde to Iosaphat: there is yet one, by whom we may aske counsel of the Lorde, one Micheah the sonne of Iemlah But I hate him: for he neuer prophesyeth good vnto me, but euyll. And Iosaphat sayd: let not the kynge say so. Then the kynge of Israel called vnto one of his chamberlayns and sayd: fet Micheah the sonne of Iemlah hyther atones. And the kynge of Israel and Iosaphat the kynge of Juda sat eyther in his seat and their apparell on them, in a voyde place beside the entrynge of the gate of Samaria, and all the Prophetes Prophesyenge before them. And Zedekiah the sonne of Canaanah made hornes of yron and sayd, thus sayth the Lord: with these hornes thou shalt wynowe the Syrians vntyll thou haue made an ende of them. And all the Prophetes prophesyed euen so, sayenge: goo to Ramoth in Galaad and prospere, for the Lorde shall delyuer it into the handes of the kynge. And Micheah sayde / as surely as the Lorde lyueth, what the Lorde putteth in my mouth, that will I speake. And the kynge sayd vnto him, howe often shall I adiure the, that thou tell me nothinge but truthe, in the name of the Lord? Then he sayd I saw all Israel scattered vpon the hylles, as sheepe that haue no shepherdes. And the Lord sayde / those haue no master, let them returne euery man to his house in peace. Then sayd ỹ kynge of Israel to Iosaphat / dyd I not tell the, that he wolde Prophesye no good vnto me, but euyl? And Micheah sayd / Heare thou therfore the worde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sit on his seate, and al the company of heauen standinge about him, on his ryghthād and on his left. And the Lorde sayd: * Who shal deceyue Achab that he may go & be slayne at Ramoth in Galaad? and one sayd on this maner & an other on that. Then came forthe a spryte & stode before the Lorde & sayd / I wil deceyue him. And the Lorde sayd, wherwith? And he sayde / I will goo oute and be a false spryte in the mouthes of all his Prophetes. And the Lorde sayd, Thou shalt deceyue him and also preuayle, go forth & do euen so. Now therfore beholde, the Lorde hath put a lying spryte in the mouthe of all these thy Prophetes / when in very dede the Lorde hath spokē euyll towarde the.

Then Zedekiah the sonne of Canaanah wēt to and smote Micheah on the cheke, and sayde / Howe is the spryte of the Lorde gone frome me, to speake in the? And Micheah

And he sayde vnto him, * go and prosper, the Lorde shall delyuer it into the handes of the kynge. And the kynge sayd vnto him, howe often shall I adiure the, that thou tell me nothinge but truthe, in the name of the Lord? Then he sayd I saw all Israel scattered vpon the hylles, as sheepe that haue no shepherdes. And the Lord sayde / those haue no master, let them returne euery man to his house in peax. Then sayd ꝑ kynge of Israel to Iosaphat / dyd I not tell the, that he wolde Prophesye no good vnto me, but euyl? And Micheah sayd / Heare thou therfore the worde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sit on his seate, and al the company of heauen standinge about him, on his ryght hād and on his left. And the Lorde sayd: * Who shal deceyue Achab that he may go & be slayne at Ramoth in Galaad? and one sayd on this maner & an other on that. Then came forthe a spryte & stode before the Lorde & sayd / I wil deceyue him. And the Lorde sayd, wherwith? And he sayde / I will goo oute and be a false spryte in the mouthes of all his Prophetes. And the Lorde sayd, Thou shalt deceyue him and also preuayle, go forth & do euen so. Now therfore beholde, the Lorde hath put a lying spryte in the mouthe of all these thy Prophetes / when in very dede the Lorde hath spokē euyll towarde the.

Then Zedekiah the sonne of Canaanah wēt to and smote Micheah on the cheke, and sayde / Howe is the spryte of the Lorde gone frome me, to speake in the? And Micheah

sayde: Beholde, thou shalte se in that daye, when thou shalt go frome chambre to chambre to hyde the. And the kynge of Israel sayde Take Micheah and cary him backe agayn vn to Amon the gouerner of the cytie, and vnto Joab the kynges sonne, and saye: thus sayth the kynge. Put ye this felowe in prison and fede him with bred and water straytly, tyll I returne in peax. Then Micheah sayde, yf thou come safe agayne, the Lorde hath not spoken in me. And he sayde, herken ye people euerye one of you.

And so the kynge of Israel and Josaphat ꝑ kynge of Juda went vp to Ramoth in Galaad. And the kynge of Israel sayd to Josaphat I will chaunge myne apparell and get me to warre: but put thou on thyne owne apparel. And the kynge of Israel chaunged his raymēt and went to battel also. But the kyng of Siria had commanded the Capitaynes of his charettes of which he had. xxxij. sayenge: fighte neyther with small nor greate, saue with the kynge of Israel only. And when the capitaynes of the charettes sawe Josaphat, they thought he had bene the kynge of Israel, and therfore turned to him to fight. But Josaphat cryed out. And when the capitaynes of ꝑ charettes sawe he was not the kynge of Israell, they turned backe frome him. And a certayne man drewe a bowe vnwares, and smote the kyng of Israel betwene the ribbes of his harnesse. Wherfore the kynge sayde vnto the dryuer of his charet, turne thy hande and cary me forth of the host, for I am hurt. And the feld encreased that daye, and the kynge continued in his charet before the Sirians, and dyed about nyght. And the blonde ranne oute of the wounde into the bottome of the charet. And there went a Proclamation thorowe out the host after the sonne was downe, sayenge: let euery man repaire to his cytie and to his own ff countreye. And when the kyng of Israel was ded, they came to Samaria and buryed hym there. And whyle they washed the charet in the pole of Samaria, the dogges lycked vp iii.Reg.xxi. c. his blonde, and harlottes washed him accordinge vnto the worde of the Lorde which he spake. The rest of the dedes of Achab, and all he dyd, and the Ywory house which he made, and the cyties that he buylt, are writen in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And when Achab was layde to reste with his fathers, Ohoziah his sonne raygned in his steade.

Josaphat the sonne of Asa began to raygne vpon Juda, the fourth yere of Achab kynge of Israell, and was. xxxv. yere olde when he began to raygne and raygned. xxv. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Azubah the dughter of Salahi. And he walked in all the wayes of Asa his father and bowed not therfrome, but dyd that was right in the eyes of the Lorde. Onely he dyd not put the hylaulters out of the waye: for the people offered & burnt their sacrifices yet, in the hylaultares. And he had peax with the kynge of Israel.

The rest of the dedes of Josaphat, and the myght that he shed, and how he warred, are writen in the boke of Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And also the remnaūt of the buggery boyes, whiche remayned in the dayes of his father, he put cleane oute of the lande. There was then no kynge in Edom, the kyng was but a deputie. And Josaphat made shyppes in the se, to go to Ophir for gold, but they went not: for the shyppes brake at Azion Gaber. Then sayde Ohoziah the sonne of Achab vnto Josaphat: Let my seruauntes go with thyne in the shyppes. But Josaphat wolde not. And Josaphat layde him to slepe with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytie of Dauid his father: & Jehoram his sonne raygned in his rowme.

The ende of the thyrde boke of the kynges, as the latenistes reken, the Hebrues call it the fyrste of the kynges.

THE FOVRTH BOKE OF THE KYNGES, VVHICH THE HEBRVES CALL THE SECONDE OF THE KYNGES.

¶ Ohoziah is hurt, and asketh counsell of Belzebub howe he may come by health. The capitaynes ouer fyftye with theyr soudiars are burnt, by the prayer of Eliah. Ohoziah is reproued of Eliah, and dieth and Iehoram his brother succedeth hym.

CAP. I.

A Hoziah the sonne of Achab began to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria, the.xvij yere of Iosaphat kynge of Juda, and was kynge ouer Israel twoo yeres, and dyd euyll in the sight of ỹ Lorde and walked in the waye of his father and in the waye of his mother, and in the waye of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel to synne. And he serued Baal and bowed him selfe to him, and angred the Lorde God of Israel, in all thinge, as dyd his father.

Moabites rebelled against Israel after the death of Achab.

And Ohoziah fell throrow a latteise wyndow out of an vpper chambre that he had in Samaria, and fell sicke. Tyē he sent messengers, sayenge vnto them: Go and enquyre of Beelzebub the God of Akaron, whether I shal recouer of this disease, or no. But the angell of the Lorde spake to Eliah the Thesbite, aryse and go against the messengers of the kynge of Samaria, and saye vnto theym: Is there no God in Israel, that ye go to aske of Beelzebub the God of Akaron. Therfore thus saith the Lorde: Thou shalt not come downe frome the bed wheron thou lyest, but shalt dye. And Eliah departed.

And the messengers turned backe agayne vnto Ohoziah. And he sayde vnto them: why B are ye thus come agayne? And they sayd vnto him, there came a man against vs and sayd vnto vs? go and returne vnto the kynge that sent you, and shewe vnto him. Thus sayth ỹ Lord. Is there no God in Israell, that thou sendest to enquire of Belzebub the God of Akaron? Therfore thou shalte not come downe frome the bed wheron thou arte gone vp, but shalt surely dye. And he sayde to them: What maner man was that whiche met you and tolde you these wordes? And they sayde vnto him: It was an heary man and gyrte with a gyrdle of a skynne aboute his loynes. And he sayde vnto them: It is Eliah the Thesbite.

Then the kynge sent vnto him a capitayne ouer fyfty with his fyfty that were vnder him. And when the capitayne was come to him, beholde: he sat on the toppe of an hyll. And ỹ capitayne sayde vnto him: O man of God, the kynge byddeth the come downe. And Eliah answered and sayde to the capitayne ouer the fifty, Yf I be a man of God, fyre come downe C frome heauen and consume the and thy fifty. * And there came fire downe frome heauen & deuoured him and his fyfty. And the kynge wente agayne and sent to him an other capitayne ouer fyfty with his fifty men with him which answered and sayde vnto him, O man of God, thus sayth the kynge make hast and come downe. And Eliah answered and sayde vnto them, Yf I be a man of God, then let fyre come downe from heauen and consume ỹ and thy fyfty. And there came fire downe from heauen and consumed him and his fyfty.

And the kynge sent agayne the thirde capitayne ouer fyfty. And when the thyrd capitayne ouer fyfty was come vp to him, he fell on his knees before Eliah and besought hym and sayd vnto him / Oh man of God, let my lyfe and the lyfe of these fyfty thy seruantes D be precious in thy sight. Behold, there came fire downe frome heauen and burnt vp ỹ two fore capitaynes ouer fyfty with their fyftes. But let my lyfe now be precious in thy sight Then sayde the angell of the Lorde vnto Eliah / Go downe with him, and be not afrayd of him. And he went downe with him vnto ỹ kynge.

And he sayde vnto the kynge, thus sayth ỹ Lorde / for as moche as thou sentest messengers to aske throrow Beelzebub the God of Akaron, as thoughe there had bene no God in Israel to aske throrow his worde, therfore thou shalt not come of the bed on which thou art mounted, but shalte surely dye. And so he dyed according to the worde of the Lorde which Eliah spake / and Iehoram was made kynge in his stede, the seconde yere of Iehorā sonne of Iosaphat kynge of Juda, because he had no sonne. The rest of the dedes of Ohoziah which he dyd, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

¶ Eliah diuideth the waters with his mantel. He is taken vp in to heuen. The bytter and venemous waters are heled by the salt that Eliseus put into them. The chyldren that mocke Eliseus are rent in peces.

CAP. II.

A Nd it chaunced when the Lorde wold A take vp Eliah to heauen in a whirlewynde, that Eliah and Eliseus were goynge frome Galgal. And Eliah sayde to Eliseus, tary here, for the Lord hath sent me 1.Re.xxviii.b to Bethel. But Eliseus sayd / * as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I will not leaue the. And when they came to Bethell, the children of the Prophetes that were at Bethel, came forthe to Eliseus, and sayde to him: knowest thou not that ỹ Lorde will take awaye thy master that he be no lenger thy head this daye? And he sayd I know it to, holde your peace.

Then sayde Eliah to Eliseus / tary here I B. praye the, for the Lorde hathe sent me to Jericho. And he sayde / as surely as the Lorde lyueth ueth, and as surely as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not leaue the, and so they went to Jericho. And the childzen of the Pzophetes that were at Jericho came to Eliseus and sayde vnto hym: arte thou not ware that the Lozde wil take awaye thy mayster frome the this day? And he answered: I know it also, holde your peare. And Eliah sayde to hym: tarye I pzay the here, foz the Lozde hathe sent me to Jozdan. But he sayde: as surelye as the Lozde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not leaue the. And so they went both of them to gyther. And fyftye men of the sonnes of the Pzophetes went and stode in syght a farre of, as they two stode by Jozdan.

And then Eliah toke his mantel & wzapt it togither, and smote the water, and it diuided it selfe / parte one waye, and parte an other/ and they two went ouer on the dzy land. And as soone as they were ouer, Eliah sayde to Eliseus/ aske what I shall do foz the, er I be taken awaye frome the. And Eliseus sayde: let me haue thy spirite double in me. And he sayde: thou hast asked an harde thynge. Neuertheleſſe if thou se me when I am taken awaye frome the, thou shalte haue it so: yf thou do not, it shall not be. And as they went walkynge and talkynge: beholde there came a charet of fire, and hozses of fire/ & put them asonder. And Eliah went vp in the whozlwynde to heauen. And Eliseus sawe and cryed: O my father, O my father, the charet of Israel, and his charet man, but he sawe hym no moze/ and therfoze toke his owne clothes, and rent them in two peaces.

And then he toke vp the mantell of Eliah that fel from him, and went backe agayn and stode by Jozdans syde, and with the mantell of Eliah ꝑ fell from him, he smote the water, and sayd: where is the Lozde God of Eliah, where is he? And when he had smytten ꝑ water, it diuided parte this waye and parte that way/ and Eliseus went ouer. And the childzen of the Pzophetes of Jericho whiche sawe him a farre, sayd: the spirite of Eliah, dothe rest on Eliseus/ and went agaynst him, and bowed to the erth vnto him. And they sayd vnto him/ se, there be amonge thy seruauntes fyftye lustye men: let them go and seke thy master, happly the spirite of the Lozde hath taken him vp & cast him vpon some mountayne, oz in some valeye. And he sayd: sende not. Neuertheleſſe yet they laye vpon him, tyll he was ashamed, and sayd: sende, and they sent fyftye men whiche sought him thze dayes and thze nyghtes / but found him not. And they came agayn to him, foz he taryed at Jericho. And he sayd to them/ dyd I not saye vnto you that ye shold not go? Then the men of Jericho sayde to Eliseus: beholde, the citye standeth pleasauntly, as my Lozde seeth / but the water is noughte, and the grounde bareyn. And he sayde: bzynge me a newe cruse, and put salte therin. And they bzoughte it to him. And he wente vnto the spzynge of the water, and cast the salte in thyther/ and sayd, thus sayth the Lozde: I heale this water/ there shal not come hencefozth either deth, oz bareynnesse. And the water was helthsome euer after, according to the sayinge of Eliseus whiche he spake.

And he wente frome thence vp to Bethell. And as he was goynge in the waye / there came lytle laddes oute of the cytye, and mocked him, and sayd to him: goo vp thou balde heed/ goo vp thou balde heed. And he tourned backe, and loked on them, and cursed them in the name of the Lozde. And there came two beares oute of the wodde, and tare. xlij. of the boyes. And he wente frome thence to mounte Carmel, and frome thence wente agayne to Samaria.

¶ The kynges of Israel Juda and Edom lacke water, when they shulde fyghte agaynste Moab: which they obtayne thzough the pzayer of Eliseus. The kynge of Moab leseth the felde and after sacryfyeth his sonne.

CAPI. III.

IEhozam the sonne of Achab begã to raigne vpon Israel in Samaria the eyghtene yere of Josaphat kynge of Juda, and continued twelue yere. And he wzoughte euyll in the syghte of the Lozde / but not lyke his father oz his mother/ foz he put awaye the ymage of Baal that his father had made. Neuertheleſſe he contynued in the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel synne, and thzonke not therfrom. And Mesa king of Moab, whiche was ryche of shepe (and was wont to render vnto the kynges of Israell an hundzed thousand lambes, and as many rammes with ꝑ wolle) rebelled against the kyng of Israel after the deth of Achab. And kyng Jehoram went out of Samaria the same seaſo, and nombzed all Israel. And then went and sente to Josaphat kyng of Juda, sayinge: the kyng of Moab hath rebelled agaynst me/ wylt thou go with me agaynst the Moabites to battell? And he sayd I wyll go, and wyll be as thou, my people shal be as thyne, and my hozses as thyne. And he sayde what waye shall we goo? And the other answered: the waye thozowe the wyldernesse of Edom.

And the kynge of Israel toke his iourneye with the kynge of Juda and the kynge of Edom. And when they had compassed the waye seuen dayes, there was no water foz the hoste noz foz the cattell that they hadde with them. Then sayde the kynge of Israell: Alas, the Lozde hathe called togyther these three kynges, to delyuer them in to handes of the Moabites. But Josaphat sayde: Is there heare no Pzophete of the Lozdes, that we maye enquyre of the Lozde by hym? And one of the kynge of Israels seruauntes answered and sayde: here is Eliseus the sonne of Saphat, whiche poured water on the handes of Eliah. And Josaphat sayde: the wozde of the Lozde is with him. And so the kynge of Israell and Josaphat, and the kyng of Edom went wnto to him.

what haue I to do with the? Get the to the Prophetes of thy father and of thy mother And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto him: Oh naye/ but hathe the Lorde called these three kynges to deliuer them in to the handes of the Moabites? And Eliseus sayd: as truly as the Lorde of hoostes lyueth (in whose syghte I stande) and it were not that I regarded the presence of Josaphat the kynge of Juda, I wolde not loke towarde the, nor yet se the. But nowe, bringe me a mynstrell. And as the mynstrell played, the hande of the Lord was vpon hym. And he sayde: thus byddeth the Lorde/make at this brokes heed, ditches and ditches agayne. For thus sayth the Lorde: ye shall se neyther wynde nor rayne, and yet this broke shall be fylled with water that ye may drynke, and your beestes and your cattell also. And this is yet but a small thyng in the sight of the Lorde. But he wyll gyue the Moabites in to youre handes also. And ye shall destroye all stronge townes, and all goodly cyties/ and shall fell all pleasaunt trees, & stop all the welles of water/ and marre all good plottes of grounde with stones. And in the morninge aboute offeryng tyme, there came suche a water the waye from Edom, that the countrey was fylled with water.

When all the Moabites herde the kynges were come to fyght agaynst them, they assembled from the yongest that was hable to put on harnesse, and so vpwarde/ and wayted in the borders. And they beinge vp early in the morninge, the sonne arose and shone vpon the water. And when the Moabites sawe the water a farre of as red as bloude/ they sayde: it is bloude, the kynges haue foughte togither/ & one slayne an other. Now therfore ye Moabites/ get you to the spoyle. And when they came to the host of Israel, the Israelites stode vp and layde on the Moabites/ that they fled before them. And so they entred the lande and destroyed the Moabites. And they ouerthrew the cityes/ and on euery good parcell of lande calle euerye man his stone and ouer couered it/ and stopte all the welles of water/ and felde all the good trees. And as longe as the stones therof dyd remayne in the walles of brycke, the slyngers wente vpon it and bette it.

And when the kynge of Moab sawe that the battayle was to stronge for hym, he toke with him seuen hundred men that drewe the swerd, to haue broken vp vnto the kyng of Edom, but they could not. And then he toke his eldest sonne that sholde haue raigned in his stede, and offered him for a burntoffering vpon the walles. And there came so greate wrathe vpon Israell, that they departed from him, & returned to theyr owne lande.

God gyueth a certayne poore woman oyle and floure by Eliseus. Eliseus obtayneth of God a childe for his Hostesse: which dyeth and is after raysed to lyfe thorow hym. He maketh swete the potage: and multyplyeth the loues.

CAPI. IIII.

AND there cryed a certeyn woman of the A wyues of the childzen of the prophetes vnto Eliseus, saying: thy seruaunt my husbande is deed, and thou knowest that thy seruaunt dyd feare the Lorde.

And the man that lende vs money is come to fet my two sonnes, to be his bondmen. And Eliseus sayd to her: What shall I do for the? Tell me, what hast thou in thyne house? And she sayde, thyne handmayde hath notbynge at all in her house, saue a pytcher with oyle. And he sayde: Goo and borowe the in other places of all thy neyghboures, emptye vesselles and that not a fewe/ and then goo and shutte the wore to the, and to thy sonnes/ and poure out in to all those vesselles, and put the full alway aside. So she went from him, and shut B the wore to her, and to her sonnes. And they brought to her, and she poured oute. And whe the vesselles were full, she sayde to her sonne: brynge yet a vessell. And he sayde: there is no mo. And then the oyle ceased. Then she came and tolde the man of God. And he sayd: goo and sell the oyle, and pay thy dettes. And lyue thou and thy childzen of the reste. And it befell on a daye, that Eliseus came to Sunam where was a ryche woman that toke him in for to eate breed. And as ofte as he came that waye, he tourned in thyther to eate breed. And she sayde vnto her husbande: se, I perceyue that this is an holye man of God, and commeth oftentymes by vs/ let vs make him a chambre with a lytle walle, and let vs set him there a bed, a table, a stole, & a candelsticke, that he maye tourne in thither when he commeth to vs.

And it fortuned on a time that he came thither, and tourned in to the chamber, and laye there. Then he sayde to Giezi his seruaunte: C call this Sunamite. And he called her, and she came before him. And Eliseus sayde to hym, saye to her I praye the: se, thou hast made all this prouision for vs, what shall we do for the? wouldest thou be spoken for to the kynge, or to the capitayne of thy hoste? And she sayd/ I dwell amonge myne owne people. Then he sayd: what is to be done for her? And Giezi sayd: Verily she hath no childe, and her husbande is olde. And he sayde: call her. And he called her. And she came and stode at the dore. Then he sayde: by suche a tyme, and in suche an houre, yf thou lyuest, thou shalt embrace a Genes. xviii. b sonne, and she sayd: Oh naye my Lorde, thou man of God, do not lye vnto thyne handemayde. And the wyfe conceyued and bare a sonne that same season and houre that Eliseus had sayde vnto her.

And when the childe was well waxen, it fel on a daye, that he went forth to his father to the haruestmen. And there he complayned to his father, my heed my heed. And his father sayde to a seruaunte, carye him to his mother, D & he toke him and brought him to his mother. And he sat on her knees tyll none, and then dyed. And she caryed him vp and layde him on the bed of the man of God, and shut the dore to him, and wet out, and came to her husband, and sayde: sende me one of the yonge me and an

an asse, that I may runne to the man of God. And he sayd: wherfore wylte thou go to him to daye, whyle it is neither newe mone, nor Saboth day? And she sayd: be content. Then she sadled an asse, and sayde to her seruaunte: leade awaye, and make me not cease rydynge tyll I byd the. So she wente and came to the man of God to mount Carmel. And whē the man of God sawe her a farre/he sayde to Gihezi his seruaunt: se where our seruaunt cōmeth. Nowe go and mete her, & aske her whether it be all well with her, and with her husbande, and with the chylde. And she sayd: all is well. Then she went to the man of God vp to the hyll, and caughte him by the feete. And Gihezi wente to her to thrust her awaye. But the man of God sayde: let her alone, for her soule is vexed, and the Lorde hath hyd it from me, and hathe not tolde it me. Then she sayde: dyd I desyre a sonne of my Lorde? dyd I not saye, that thou shouldest not mocke me. Then he sayd to Gihezi: gyrde vp thy loynes / and take my staffe in thyne hande, & get the hence. If any mā mete the, salute him not. And if any salute the, answere him not. And put my staffe vpon the boye. Notwithstandyng the mother of the chylde sayde: as surely as the Lord lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not leaue the. And then he arose and folowed her. Gihezi went before them, and put the staffe vpon the ladde. But there was neither voyce nor feelynge. And then he went agayne agaynste his master and tolde him, sayinge: It hath not awaked the chylde.

When Eliseus was come to the house: behoulde the boye was dead. and layde vpon his bed. And he went in and shut the doze to the chylde and him / and prayed vnto the Lorde. And he went vp, and laye vpon the lad, and put his mouthe on his mouthe / and his eyes on his eyes / & the palme of his handes on the palme of his handes / and spred him self vpon the ladde, that the flesshe of the chylde waxed warme. And wente agayne and walked ones vp and downe in the house, and then went vp and spred him self vpon him / and then the lad neesed seuen tymes. and opened his eyes. And he called Gihezi and sayde. Call for this Sunamitte. And he called her. And when she was come to him, he sayd: take thy sonne. Then she wente and fell at his feete, and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and toke vp her sonne, and went forthe. When Eliseus was come to Galgal agayn, there was a derth in the land, and the children of the Prophetes dwelt with him. Then he sayde to his seruaunt / put on a great pot / and make pottage for the chyldren of the Prophetes. And one went out in to the felde to gather herbes, and founde as it were a wylde vyne / and gathered therof Coloquintidaes his lappe full, and came and shred them in to the potte of potage, and wyste not what it was. And they poured oute for the men to eate. And when they had tasted of the portage they cryed oute and sayde/ there is deth in the potte, thou man of God, and couldest not eate therof. Then he sayde: brynge meale. And he caste it in to the potte and sayde: fyll for the people, that they maye eate, and there was no harme in the pot.

There came a man frome Baalsalisa and broughte the man of God breed of fyrste frutes, euen twentye loues of barleye, and newe corne in a clothe he hadde. And Eliseus badde put it before the people, that they myght eate. Then his minister sayde: what shall I sette this before an hundred men? And he sayde/ set it before the people. and lette them eate. For thus sayethe the Lorde: They shall eate and leaue. And he set it before them/ and they ate and lefte, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

¶ Naaman the Syrien is healed of his leprye. Gihezi is stryken with a leprosye because he toke money and raymente of Naaman.

CAPI. V.

NAaman capitayne of the kynges hoste of Syria was greate with his master, and well taken: for thorowe him the Lorde saued Syria. And he was an actyue mā & riche, but yet a leper. And there was a companye of souldyours gone out of Syria a roupnge, and had brought of the countreye of Israel a litle mayde, which was with Naamans wyfe. And the damosell sayde vnto her ladye: I wolde my master were with a Prophete that is in Samaria, he wolde delyuer him of his leprye. And she went and tolde her husbande, sayinge thus and thus sayethe the mayde of the lande of Israel. And the kynge of Syria sayde: goo thy waye, and I wyll sende a letter vnto the kynge of Israel. And he wente and toke with him ten talentes of syluer, and sixe thousande peces of gold, and ten chaunge of raymentes. And he brought the letter to the kyng of Israel, contaynynge in effecte these wordes. When this letter is come vp to the: Behold, I haue sent Naaman my seruaunt to the, that thou shuldest rydde hym of his leprye. And when the kynge of Israel had read the letter, he rente his clothes and sayde: am I God, to slee and to make alyue that he shulde sende to me, to delyuer a man from his leprye. But consyder I praye you and se, howe he pyketh quarelles with me. And when Eliseus the man of God, had hearde how the kynge of Israel had rente his clothes, he set to the kyng, saying: Wherfore hast thou rent thy clothes? let him come to me, that he maye knowe there is a Prophete in Israel.

And Naaman came with his horses and his charette, and stode at the doze of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sent a messenger, sayinge: goo and washe the in Jordan seuen tymes, and thy flesshe shall be hole, and thou shalte be cleane. And Naaman was wrothe and went awaye, and sayde: Behold, I thought in my selfe, he wolde haue come out, and stande and call on the name of the Lorde his God, and put his hande on the place of the disease, and so take away the leprye. D tes, and talked with him and sayd. Father, yf the Prophete had byd the doone some greate thing oughtest thou not to haue done it? How more rather then sholdest thou do it, whyle he sayth to the onely, washe and be clene? ✱
iii.e Then he went downe & washed seuen tymes in Jordan, as the man of God bad/& his flesh chaunged, lyke vnto the flesshe of a lytle boye, and he was clene.

Then he turned agayne to the man of God and all his company with him / and came and stode before him and sayd. Beholde, I knowe there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israel. And now I praye the take a rewarde of thy xvii.a seruaunt. But he sayd ✱as surely as the Lord
E lyueth, before whome I stande, I wyll receyue none. And the other wolde haue constrayned him to receyue / but he wolde not. And Naaman sayd: yf thou wylte not, yet I praye the maye there not be gyuen to thy seruaunte the burthen of two mules of earthe. For thy seruaunt wyll hencefoorth offre neyther burnt sacrifyce nor offeryng vnto anye other God, then to the Lord. But herin the Lord be mercyfull to thy seruaunte / for when my master goeth in to the house of Remon to worshyp there, he leaneth on myne hande/ and I muste worshyp in the house of Remon, let the Lorde I praye the be mercyfull vnto thy seruaunte in this case. And he sayde to him: goo in peace.
And when he was departed frome him a fur-
F longe of grounde, Gyhezi the seruaunt of Eliseus the man of God, sayd: se, my master is so pytyful to this Sirien Naaman, that he wold not receyue of his hande that he offered. As surely as the Lorde lyueth, I wyll runne after him & take somwhat. And so Gyhezi wente after Naaman. And when Naaman sawe him iiii.b come runnyng after him, he came downe of the charet agaynst him, and sayd: is all well? And he sayd yea. But my master hath sent me, sayinge: lo, there be two yonge men come to me out of Ephraim of the chyldren of the Prophetes: gyue them I praye the, one talent of G syluer, and a couple of good garmentes. And Naaman sayd: auenture and take two talentes of syluer/ and he constrayned him & bound two talentes of syluer in two bagges, with two goodly garmentes, and delyuered them vnto two of his seruauntes to beare it before him. So when he came to the toure, he toke it of their handes, and bestowed it in the house, and let the men go, and they departed.

Then he wente and stode before his master. And Eliseus sayde to him: whence commeth Gyhezi? And he sayde: thy seruaunt wente no whither. And he sayd: went not myne herte w the, when the man turned and came of his cha ret agaynste the? Did not I knowe the tyme when thou went to receyue syluer, and to receyue garmentes, olyue trees, vyneyardes, oxen, shepe, men seruauntes, and maydẽ seruauntes? The lepre therfore of Naaman

¶ Eliseus maketh yron to swymme aboue the water. The Sirriens besege Israel, so that two women agre togyther to eate theyr owne chyldren.

CAPI. VI.

THen sayd the children of the Prophetes vnto Eliseus: se, the place where we A dwell with the, is to litle for vs. Let vs therfore take euery man a pece of tymber, and buyld vs a place there to dwel in. And he sayd: go ye. And one sayd: begyn I praye the, and go with thy seruauntes. And he sayd: I wyl/ and so went with them.

And when they came to Jordan, they cut downe woode. And as one was hewynge of a tree, the axe heed fell in to the water. And he
B cryed out and sayde: Alasse master, for it was lente me. And the man of God sayde: Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And he
C cut an helue and caste it in thyther, and made the axe heed swymme. And he sayde: take it vp to the. And the other stretched is hande and caught it.

And the kynge of Syria fought agaynst Israell, and toke counsell with his seruauntes, sayinge: In suche a place and in suche, wyll I pytche. And the man of God sente vnto the kynge of Israel, saying: Beware thou go not by suche a place, for there are the Sirians gone downe. And the kynge of Israell sente to the place which the man of God tolde him & warned him of, and saued him self there more then ones or twyse. And the herte of the kynge of Syria was troubled therwith, that he sente for his seruauntes, and sayde to them: ✱wyl *i.Reg.xxii.b ye not shewe me, who betrayeth me to the kynge of Israell? And one of his seruauntes sayde: naye my lorde kynge: Eliseus the Pro-phete that is in Israel, he telleth the kynge of Israell, the wordes that thou speakest in thy D priuye chamber. Then he sayde: goo and E espye where he is, that I maye sende and fet hym. And one tolde the kynge, sayinge: se, he is in Dothan. And he sente thyther horse and charettes, and a greate hoste. And they came thyther by nyght, and enuyronned the towne aboute.

And when the seruaunt of the man of God rose vp earlye and was gone oute. Beholde, there was an hoste rounde aboute the towne with horses and charettes. Then sayd his seruauntes to him. Alas master, what shall we D wo? And he sayd: feare not, there are mo with vs then with them. And Eliseus prayed and sayde. Lorde open the eyen of the yonge man/ and he sawe. And behold, the mountayne was full of horses and charettes of fyre rounde a-boute Eliseus. And when the souldiours came downe to him, Eliseus prayed vnto the Lorde and sayd. Smyte this people with blyndnesse. And he smote them with blyndnesse, according to the desyre of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sayde vnto them / this is not the waye, nor this is not the towne. But folowe me and I wyll E bringe ye to the man ye seke. And he led them to Samaria.

When they were come to Samaria, Eli-

seus sayd: Lorde open theyr eyes, and let the se, and the Lorde opened theyr eyes that they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And then sayd the kynge of Israel vnto Eliseus when he sawe them / ✠ shall 4.Regū.vii.a I smyte them shall I smyte them father? And he sayd / smyte them not. But smyte those whō thou takest with thyne owne swerde / and with thyne owne bowe / but set breed and water before them, and let them eate and drynke and goo to theyr master. And he made greate
F ordinaunce before them. And when they hadde eaten and droncke, sente them awaye, and they wente to theyr master. And so the souldiours of Siria came no more in to the lande of Israel.

After this, Benhadad kynge of Siria gathered all the hoste, and wente and besieged Samaria. And there arose greate dearthe in Samaria. For they hadde besieged it, tyll an asses heed was worthe foure score sicles of siluer / and the fourthe parte of a Cab of doues donge worthe fyue sycles. And as the kynge of Israel walked vpon the walles, there cryed a woman to him, sayinge / helpe my lorde kynge. And he sayde: Naye, the Lorde helpe the. But wherwith wolde I helpe the, with corne or wyne? Then sayde the kynge to her / what ayleth the? And she aunswered / this woman here sayde to me, bringe thy sonne, and let vs eate him to daye, and we wyll eate myne to morow. ✠ And so we dressed my sonne and did Deut.xxviii.c eate hym. And I sayde to her an other daye /
Ezech.iiii.b bringe thy sonne, that we maye eate hym.
G But she hath hyd her sonne. When the kynge herde the wordes of the woman, he rente his clothes euen as he was walkyng on the walles. And when the people loked vpon him / lo, he was clothed in sacke vnder. Then he sayde God do so and so to me, yf the heed of Elisеus the sonne of Saphat tarye on hym this daye. And as Elisеus sat in his house and the elders with hym, the kyng sente one for hym. But er the messenger came at him, he sayde to the elders: Se you not howe the sonne of this murtherer hathe sente to take of myne heed? Be circumspecte therfore when the messenger commeth, and shut the doore, and thrust him backe therwith / for the sounde of his masters fete foloweth him. And whyle he yet talked with them: Beholde, the messenger was come vnto him. And he sayd / beholde, this euyll is of the Lorde / what more shall we loke for of the Lorde?

¶ Elisеus prophesyeth plentcousnesse of vytayles and other thynges to Samaria. The Sirians rūne awaye no man folowynge them. The Lorde that wolde not byleue the worde of Elisеus is troden to death.

CAPI. VII.

A THen Elisеus sayde: heare the worde of the Lorde / for thus sayth the Lorde, to morowe this tyme a busshell of fyne floure shal be sold for a sicle, and two bussheles of barleye for an other in the gates of Samaria. Then a Duke, on whose hande the kynge leaned, answered the man of God and sayde / though the Lorde wolde make wyndowes in heuen, yet wolde not this be. And he sayde agayne: Beholde, thou shalte se it with thyne eyes, and shalt not eate therof.

And there were foure lepers set without the gate of Samaria. And they sayde eche to B his companyon / what, syt we here vntyll we dye? thoughe we thoughte that we myghte come in to the citye, yet is the dearth so greate in the citye, that we shall there dye. And yf we tarye here, we are but deed also. Nowe therfore come and lette vs flee to the hoste of the Sirians: Yf they saue oure lyues, we shall lyue: And yf they kyll vs, then are we deed. And so they arose in the daysprynge to go to the hoste of the Sirians. And when they were come to the syde of the hoste of Siria / lo there was no man there. For the Lorde hadde C made the host of the Sirians heare a noyse of charettes, and a noyse of horses, and the noyse of a greate hoste. In so moche that they sayde one to an other: lo, the kynge of Israel hath hyred agaynst vs the kynges of the Hethites, and the kynges of Egypte to come vpon vs. Wherupon they arose and fledde in the darke, and lefte theyr tentes, theyr horses, theyr asses, and the felde they hadde pitched, euen as it was, and fled for theyr lyues. And when these lepers came to the edge of the hoste, they went in to a tente and dyd eate and drynke, and caryed thence syluer, golde, and rayment, & went and hydde it / and came agayne, and entred in to an other, and caryed thence also, and wente and hyd it. Then they sayd one to an other / it is not well that we do / for this daye hathe broughte good tydynges with it. And yf we holde oure peax, and tarye tyll it be daye light, we shall fynde a mischiefe. Nowe therfore come, lette vs goo and tell the kynges houshold. And so they wente and called to the porter of the citye, and tolde them, sayinge: we came to the pauylyons of the Sirians / and lo, there was no man there, neyther voyce of man, but horses and asses tyed, and the tentes euē as they were. Then the porters called and tolde the kynges house within. And the kynge arose in the nyghte, and sayde to his seruauntes, I wyl shewe you howe the Sirians haue serued vs. They know we are oppressed with hungre, and therfore are gone oute of theyr pauilyons to hyde theym selues in the felde, sayinge: They wyll come out of the citye, and then we shall catche them alyue, and gette in to the citye. And one of his seruauntes answered and sayde: Let men take fyue of the horses that remayne and are lefte in the city. Beholde, they are as good as all the multytude that are lefte in the citye / and as good as all the multitude of the citye that are consumed, and let vs sende and se. And they tooke two charettes of horses / and the kynge sente after the hoste of the Sirians, sayinge: Goo and se. And they folowed after them, euen vnto Jordan: and lo, all the waye was full of clothes and vesselles whiche the Sirians had cast from them for haste.

Then

Then the messengers returned and told the kynge and the people illued oute, and robbed the tentes of the Sirians. And so a busshell of floure was solde for a sycle, and two bussheles of barleye for a sycle, according to the Lordes worde. And the kynge sette the Duke on whose hande he leaned, to kepe the gate. And the people trode him in the gate, that he dyed, according to the saying of the Gods mã, whiche he sayde when the kynge came downe to him. And it came to passe according to the worde of the man of God spoken to the kyng saynge: two bussheles of barleye for a sycle, and a busshell of barleye for an other, shall be to morow this tyme in the gates of Samaria. Wherunto the Duke aunswered the man of God, and sayd: though the Lorde made windwes in heuen, yet wolde this not be. And the other said/ beholde, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes, and shalt not eate therof. And so it chaunsed/ for the people trode him vnder fete in the gate, that he dyed.

Eliseus Prophesyeth vnto the Sunamite the darth of seuen yere. After the deeth of Benhadad raygneth Hazael in Siria. Iehoram the sonne of Iolaphat raygneth in Juda. Edom falleth frome Juda. Ohoziah succedeth Iehoram.

CAPI. VIII.

THen spake Eliseus vnto the woman whose sonne he had restored to life, saynge/ aryse and go bothe thou and thyne house, and soiourne where thou thynkest beste/ for the Lorde wyll call a derthe/ whiche shall come on the lande seuen yere. And the woman arose and dyd after the sayinge of the Gods man/ and wente bothe she and her household and soiourned in the lande of the Philistines seuen yere. And at the seuen yeres ende, when the woman was come agayne out of the lande of the Philistines, she wente oute to speake to the kynge for her house and for her lande. And the kynge was talkynge with Gihezi the seruaunt of the man of God, saynge: tell me I praye the, all the greate dedes whiche Eliseus dyd. And it chaunsed as he was tellynge the kynge howe he restored a deed bodye to lyfe agayne, came in the woman whose sonne he reuyued, and cryed to the kynge for her house and lande. Then sayde Gihezi: My Lorde kyng, this is the woman, and this is her sonne whiche Eliseus broughte to lyfe agayne. And the kynge asked the woman, and she tolde hym. And so the kynge sente with her one of his chamberlaynes, saynge/ restore all that pertayneth to her, with all the frutes of the felde, sythens the daye she lefte the lande, vnto this tyme.

After this Eliseus wente to Damasco, and Benhadad the kynge of Siria fell sycke. And one tolde the kynge, saying: The man of God is come hyther. Then sayde the kynge to Hazael: take a present with the, and go agaynst the man of God, and aske the Lorde by hym whether I shall recouer of this my disease or no. And Hazael went to mete him, and toke presentes with him, euen of all the good thinges of Damasco, as moche as fourtye camels coulde beare, and came and presented him selfe before him and sayde/ thy sonne Benhadad kynge of Siria hathe sent me to the, saynge/ shall I recouer of this my disease? Eliseus said to him: goo and saye to him/ thou shalte recouer/ how be it the Lorde hath shewed me that he shall surely dye. And the man of God stode styll by him, and was taken with a sore maladye/ in so moche that he chaunged countenance and wepte. And Hazael sayd/ why wepeth my lorde? And he answered/ for I knowe ỹ thou shalte do cupll vnto the chyldren of Israell/ theyr stronge citees thou shalte set on fyre, and theyr younge men thou shalte slee with the swerde, and shalte dasshe oute the braynes of theyr suckynge chyldren/ and all to teare theyr women with chylde. And Hazael sayde/ what is thy seruaunt, whiche am but a dogge, that I sholde do this great thynge? And Eliseus sayde/ for the Lorde hathe shewed me, that thou shalte be kynge of Siria. And so he departed frome Eliseus, and came to his master, whiche sayd to hym. What sayd Eliseus to the? And he sayde/ he tolde me that thou sholdest recouer. And on the morowe he toke a roughe clothe, and dypte in the water, & spred it on his face, and he dyed, and Hazael raygned in his stede.

The fyfte yere of Iehoram sonne of Achab kynge of Israel (Iolaphat yet kynge of Juda) Iehoram sonne of Iolaphat, kynge of Juda, began to raygne/ thirtye and two yere olde was he when he began to raygne, and he raygned eyght yere in Jerusalem. And he walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, as did the house of Achab/ for the doughter of Achab was his wyfe/ and he dyd that displeased the Lorde. Neuertheles the Lorde wolde not destroye Juda, because of Dauid his seruaunte, as he promised him to gyue him a light in his chyldren alwaye. Iehoram. Ioram.

And in his dayes, Edom fell awaye from vnder the hande of Juda, and made them a kynge of theyr owne. And Iehoram wente to Seir, and all his charettes with him. And he rose by nyght, and layde on the Edomites, whiche compassed him in/ and the capitaynes of his charet and the people fledde in to theyr tentes. And so the Edomites flypte awaye tõ beyng vnder the hande of Juda vnto this day. And then Lobnah flypte awaye to, euen that same tyme. Edom.

The reste of the dedes of Iehoram, and all he dyd, are wrytten in the cronycles of kynges of Juda. And Iehoram rested with his fathers and was buryed with his fathers in the citye of Dauid. And Ohoziah his sonne raygned in his stede. The twelfte yere of Iehoram sonne of Achab, kynge of Israel, dyd Ohoziah the sonne of Iehoram kynge of Juda begyn to to raygne. Two and twentye yere olde was Ohoziah when he began to raygne, and raygned one yere in Jerusalem, his mothers name was Athalia doughter of Amri kynge of Israell. And he walked in the waye of the house of Achab/ for he was a sonne in lawe to

to the houſe of Achab.

And Iehoram the ſonne of Achab went to warre with Hazael kynge of Syria, at Ramoth in Galaad / and the Syrians wounded him. Wherfore kynge Iehoram wente backe agayne, to be healed in Iezrahel of the woundes whiche the Syrians hadde gyuen hym at Ramoth, when he fought with Hazael kyng of Syria. And Ohoziah the ſonne of Iehoram kynge of Iuda, wente downe to ſe Iehoram ſonne of Achab in Iezrahel, becauſe he was ſycke.

¶ Iehu is made kynge of Iſrael, and kylleth Iehoram the kynge therof, and Ohoziah kynge of Iuda alſo: and therto cauſeth Iezabell to be caſte downe forthof a wyndowe, whome dogges eate.

CAPI. IX.

a AND Eliſeus the Prophete called vnto one of the chyldren of the Prophetes, and ſayd to him: gyrde vp thy loynes, and take this horne of oyle in thyne hande, and gette the to Ramoth in Galaad. And when thou commeſt thyther, thou ſhalte there ſe Iehu the ſonne of Joſaphat the ſonne of Namſi, and goo to him and make him aryſe vp frome amonge his brethren, and carye him to a ſecrete chamber. And take the horne of oyle and poure it on his heed, and ſaye / thus ſayth the Lorde: I haue annoynted the to be kynge ouer Iſrael. And then open the doore and flee / and tarye not. So the ſeruaunte of the Prophete dyd gette him to Ramoth in Galaad / and when he came, the capitaynes of the hoſt were ſyttynge togyther. And he ſayd: I haue an erraude to the, lyr capitayne. And Iehu ſayde / vnto whiche of all vs? And he ſayd: to the, O capitayne. And he aroſe and went in to b the houſe.

And the other poured the oyle on his heed, and ſayde to hym / thus ſayth the Lorde God of Iſrael: I haue annoynted the to be kyng ouer Iſrael the people of the Lorde, that thou ſlee the houſholde of Achab thy maſter. For I (ſayth the Lorde) wyll auenge the bloude of my ſeruauntes the Prophetes, and the bloude of all the ſeruauntes of the Lorde, of the hand of Iezabel (for the hole houſe of Achab ſhall be deſtroyed) and I wyll deſtroye vnto Achab what pyſſeth agaynſt the wall / and ſo moche as the pyſſoned, or that is forſaken in Iſrael, and wyll make the houſe of Achab lyke the houſe of Ieroboam ſonne of Nabat, and lyke the houſe of Baaſa the ſonne of Ahiah. And concernyng Iezabel, the dogges ſhall eate her in the felde of Iezrahel / and none ſhall burye her. And he opened the doore and fledde. And when Iehu was come oute to the ſeruauntes of his Lorde / they ſayde to hym: Is all peax? Wherfore came this madde felowe to the? And he ſayd to him: ye knowe the perſon and his communycacion. And they ſayde: it is not ſo. But tell vs a felowſhip. And he ſayd / thus c and thus ſpake he to me, ſayinge. Thus ſayth the Lorde: I haue annoynted the to be kynge ouer Iſrael. And they haſted and toke euerye man his mantell and put vnder him on an hye benche at the toppe of the ſteppes, and blewe a trompet, and ſayde: Iehu is kynge. And ſo Iehu the ſonne of Joſaphat the ſonne of Namſi, conſpired agaynſte Iehoram. And Iehoram hadde ben waytynge at Ramoth Galaad, and all Iſrael with him for feare of Hazael kynge of Syria, and was retourned to be healed in Iezrahel, of the woundes whiche the Syrians hadde gyuen him, as he foughte with Hazael kyng of Syria.

Then ſayde Iehu. Yf it be youre myndes, let no man eſcape out of the cityе, to goo and tell in Iezrahel. And Iehu rode and wente to Iezrahel / for Iehoram laye there / and Ohoziah kynge of Iuda, was come to Iehoram. And the watcheman that ſtode on the toure in Iezrahel, eſpyed the companye of Iehu as he came, and ſayde: I ſe a companye. And Iehoram ſayde: take an horſeman and ſende agaynſte them, and lette him aſke whether it be peax. And there wente one on horſebacke agaynſte him, and ſayde. Thus ſayth the kynge: is it peax? And Iehu anſwered, what haſte thou to do with peax? tourne and come after me. And the watcheman tolde, ſayinge: the meſſenger came to them, but he commeth not agayne. Then he ſente oute an other on horſebacke, whiche came to theym and ſayde / thus ſayth the kynge: Is it peax? And Iehu anſwered / what haſte thou to do with peax? turne and come after me. And the watcheman told, ſaying: he came to them, but he commeth not agayne, and the dryuynge is lyke the dryuynge of Iehu the ſonne of Namſi, for he dryueth as he were mad.

Then ſayd Iehoram, make redye. And they made redye his charet. And Iehoram kynge of Iſrael, and Ohoziah kynge of Iuda went out eyther in his charet agaynſte Iehu, and mette him in the furlonge of Naboth the Iezrahelite. And when Iehoram ſawe Iehu, he ſayde: is it peax Iehu? And he ſayd / what peax (ſoth) there be, ſo longe as the hoordomes of thy mother Iezabell and her wytchecraftes are ſo greate? And Iehoram tourned his hande and fledde, and ſayde to Ohoziah / there is falſehed in hande Ohoziah. And Iehu toke his bowe in his hande, and ſmote Iehoram betwene the ſhoulders, that the arowe came oute at his breſte. And he fell downe thre folde in his charet. Then he ſayd to Badukar a lorde of his / take and caſte him in the plotte of grounde of Naboth the Iezrahelyte. For I remember as I and thou rode togyther after Achab his father, howe the Lorde ſpake theſe wordes agaynſt him: I haue ſene yeſterdaye the bloude of Naboth and of his ſonnes, ſayde the Lorde, and I wyll reacquyte him in this grounde / ſayth the Lorde. Nowe therfore take and caſte him in the plot of grounde, accordynge to the Lordes worde. And when Ohoziah kynge of Iuda ſawe that, he fled the waye to the yarden houſe. And Iehu folowed after hym and ſayde: ſmyte hym alſo. And they ſmote him in his charet at the goynge vp to Sur by Iebleam, and fled to Magedo, and there dyed. And his ſeruauntes caryed him to Ieruſalem, and buryed him in his sepulchre with his fathers in the cite of Dauid. And in the eleuenth yere of Iehoram sonne of Achab, began Ohoziah to raygne ouer Iuda. And when Iehu was come to Iezrahel, Iezabel herde of it, and depeinted her eyes, and tyred her heed, and loked out at a wyndow. And as Iehu entred at the gate she said: had Zamri peax, which slew his master? And he lyft vp his eyes to the window and sayd: Who is of my syde, who? And there loked out to him two or thre lordes that were chamberlaynes. And he sayde: Throwe her downe. And they threwe her downe. And he ſ sprynckled of her blonde vpon the walles and on the horses, and trode her vnder foote. And then when he was come in, and had eaten and droncke, he sayde: go and vysite I pray you yonder cursed creature, and bury her/for she is a kinges doughter. And when they came to bury her, they found no more of her then ꝑ scull and the two fete and the two hãdes. And they came agayne and tolde him. And he sayde: It is the worde of the Lorde, whiche he spake by the hande of his seruaunte Eliah the Thesbite, sayinge: ✠ in the felde of Iezrahell shall dogges eate the fleshe of Iezabel, and the carkasse of Iezabel shall be donge vpon the earth in the felde of Iezrahel/ that men shal not say, this is Iezabel.

¶ Iehu causeth the thre score and ten sonnes of Achab to be slayne, and after that fourtye and two of his brethren. He kylleth a meane also to kyll all the preestes of Baal. After his death his sonne raygneth in his stede.

CAPI. X.

A Chab hadde thre score and ten sonnes in Samaria. And Iehu wrote letters, and sente to Samaria vnto the elders that were lordes of Iezrahel/and to them that nourced vp Achabs chyldren, sayinge: nowe at the commynge of these letters to you/ ye haue with you youre masters sonnes/ and ye haue with you charettes and horsses/ and a stronge cite and harnesse. Therfore chose the best/ and him that mooste pleaseth you of your masters sonnes/ and put hym on his fathers seate/ and fyghte for youre lordes house. And they were exceedyngly atrayde, and sayde: se, two kynges were not able to stande before hym, howe shall we then stande? And the gouernour of the kynges house, and of the cite and of the elders/ and the nourses sent to Iehu, sayinge: we are thy seruauntes, and wyll do all that thou shalt byd vs: we wyll make no man kyng: but do thou what semeth good in thyne eyes.

Then he wrote other letters to them, sayinge: Yf he be myne, and wyll obey my voice, then take the heedes of youre masters sonnes and come to me to Iezrahel by to morow this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were thre score and ten personnes with the greate men of the cite whiche nourysshed them. And when the letters came to theym, they toke the kynges chyldren and slewe them in nombre thre score and ten personnes, and put their heedes in cophines, and sente them to hym to Iezrahell. And there came a messenger and tolde hym, sayinge: they haue brought the heedes of the kinges sonnes. And he said: let them put them on two heapes in the enteryng of the gate, tyl it be daye. And in the mornynge he wente out and stode and sayd to all the folke: Ye be righteous: for se, I conspyred agaynst my master, & slewe him: But who slewe these? ✠ Consider nowe howe there is nothynge of the Lordes word fallen to the erth, which he spake against the house of Achab: for the Lorde hath done that he spake to his seruaunt Eliah. And so Iehu slewe all that remayned in the house of Achab in Iezrahel/ and all that were great with him/ and his companions and his preestes, tyl he had lefte him naught. And he arose and departed, and wente to Samaria. And as Iehu was come to the house where the shepeherdes bynde their shepe by the hye waye syde, he met with the brethren of Ohoziah kynge of Iuda, and sayd: what are ye? and they sayd, the brethren of Ohoziah are we, and goo to welcome the chyldren of the kynge & of the quene. And he sayd: take them alyue. And they toke them alyue, and slewe them at the well beside the house where the shepherdes bynde their shepe, in nombre two and fourty personns, that he left none of them.

And when he was departed thence, he met with Ionadab the sonne of Rechab comming agaynste him. And Iehu welcomed hym, and sayde to him: is thyne herte ryghte, as myne herte is with thyne? And Ionadab sayde/ye it is. He said: yf it be, then gyue me thyne hand. And he haue his hande, and the other toke him vp to him in to the charet, & sayd/ goo with me and se the zele I haue to the Lorde, & made him ryde with him in his charet. And when he came to Samaria, he slewe all that remayned vnto Achab in Samaria, tyl he had wypte him out, accordynge to the sayinge of the Lorde, which he spake to Eliah.

After that Iehu assembled all the people togyther, and sayde to them: ✠ Achab serued Baal a litle: But Iehu shal serue him a good. Nowe therfore call vnto me all the Prophetes of Baal, and all his seruauntes, and al his preestes, ꝑ none be lackyng. For I haue a great sacrifice to do to Baal: and yf any be myssed, he shall not lyue. But Iehu dyd it of a wyle, to destroye the seruauntes of Baal. Wherfore Iehu sayde: Appoynte a solempne feaste for Baal, and they proclaymed it. Then Iehu sẽt thorowe oute all Israel. And all the seruauntes of Baal came, that there was not a man lefte behynde that came not. And when they were come in to the temple of Baal, the temple was full frome thone ende to thother.

Then he sayde to the keper of the vestrye/ bringe forthe garmentes for the seruauntes of Baal. And he brought them out garmentes. And Iehu wente with Ionadab sonne of Rechab in to the house of Baal: and sayd to the seruauntes of Baal: searche and loke that there be none here with you of the seruauntes of the Lorde, but the seruauntes of Baal onely. And they went in to offre sacrifice and burntofferinges. But Jehu appoynted him foure score men without, and sayde: Yf anye of the men whiche I shall brynge vnto youre handes escape/ he that letteth him goo shall dye for him.

And as soone as he hadde made an ende of offerynge of burnt sacrifice, he sayde to them of the garde, and to the capitaynes: goo in and slee them, lette none come oute. And they smote him with the edge of the swerde. And the garde and the capitaynes caste them oute, and went in to the cite of the house of Baal, and fette oute the ymage oute of the house of Baal, and burnt it. And they brake the ymage of Baal, and brake the house of Baal/ and made a Jakes of it euer after. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel synne with the golden calues in Bethel and Dan, Jehu departed not. Then the Lorde sayde to Jehu/ bycause thou hast busyly wone that pleaseth me/ and hast wone to the house of Achab all that was in myne herte: Therfore shall * thy chyldren in the fourthe generacion, sytte on the seate of Israell. But Jehu forced not to walke in the lawe of the Lorde God of Israel with al his herte/ for he departed not frome the synnes of Jeroboam, whiche made Israell synne. In those dayes the Lorde began to cutte Israell shorte/ for Hazael slewe them in all the costes of Israel, from Jordan Eastwarde: euen all the land of Galaad/ the Gaddites, the Rubenites, and the Manassites/ from Aroer vpon the ryuer of Arnon, with Galaad and Basan. The reste of the actes of Jehu, and all he dyd, & all his power, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Israell. And when Jehu was layde to reste with his fathers/ they buryed him in Samaria/ and Joachaz his sonne raygned in his stede. And the tyme that Jehu raygned vpon Israel in Samaria, was eyght and twenty yere.

iiii. Reg. xv. c.

¶ Athalia putteth to deth all the kynges sonnes, except Joas the sonne of Ohoziah: whiche is hydden and after her dethe is made kynge.

CAPI. XI.

AND Athalia the mother of Ohoziah/ when she saw that her sonne was deed she arose and slewe all the kynges bloude. But Josaba the doughter of kynge Jehoram, and sister of Ohoziah, toke Joas the sonne of Ohoziah, and stale him from amonge the kynges sonnes that were slayne, and his nource with hym oute of the nourserye, and hyd him from Athalia that he was not slayne. And he was with her, hyd in the house of the Lorde sixe yeres. And Athalia dyd raigne ouer the lande.

In the seuenth yere Joiada sent and fet the capitaines & souldiours, & toke them vnto him in to the house of the Lorde, and made a leage with them, and toke an othe of them in the house of the Lorde/ and shewed them the kinges sonne/ and commaũded them, saying: this is the thynge that ye must doo: one third part of you shall come on the Saboth daye, and kepe the watche of the kynges house: And an other thyrde parte shall be at the gate Sur/ & an other thyrde parte shall be at the gate behynde the garde chamber/ and so shall ye kepe the watche of the house of Mesa/ and two portions of you/ that is, all that goo out on the Saboth day, shal kepe the watche of þ house of the Lorde about the kynge/ and shall compasse the kynge round about, euery man with his weapen in his hande. And who so euer commeth with in the ranges, shall dye for it. And se ye be with the kyng as he goeth out and in.

The capitaynes did al thynges as Joiada þ preest commaunded, and toke euerye man his men/ that is, them þ came in the Saboth daye with them that wente out the Saboth daye, and wente to Joiada the Preeste. And the Preeste gaue to the capitaynes the speares and shyldes that were kynge Dauids, and had remayned in the temple. And the garde stode euerye man with his weapon in his hande rounde about the kyng/ from the eyght corner of the temple to the left a long by the aulter and the temple. And he brought out the kinges sonne, and put the crowne vpon him and deliuered him the ☞witnesse, and made him kyng, and anointed him. And they clapt their handes and sayde God saue the kynge.

When Athalia herde the noyse of the concourse of the people/ she came to the people in to the house of the Lorde. And when she sawe the kynge stande by a pyller (as the maner was) and the syngers and the trompettes by the kynge/ and all the people of the lande reioyсyng, and the blowyng of the trompettes, she rent her clothes and cryed, treason treason. Then Joiada the Preeste commaunded the capitaynes that had the rule of the hoste, and sayde to theym: haue her oute without the ranges, and yf anye folowe her, lette him dye with the swerde: for the preest sayd/ she maye not be slayne in the house of the Lorde. And they layde handes on her, and she went the waye that the horses of the kynges went out, and was slayne there.

And Joiada made a bond both bitwene the Lorde and the kyng, and bitwene the people & the Lord, that they shold be þ Lordes people/ and also bitwene the kyng & the people. Then all the people of the land went in to the house of Baal, and destroyed his aulters, and brake downe his ymages lustely, and slewe Mathan the preest of Baal before the aulter. And þ preest set watchemen in the house of the Lorde, and toke þ rulers ouer hundredes, & the capitains and the garde, and all the people of the lande. And they brought the kynge from the house of the Lord, and went the way of the gate of the garde vnto the kynges house. And he sat hym downe vnder the clothe of estate. And all the people of the Lorde reioyсed/ and the city was in quiet. So they slewe Athalia with þ swerde in the kynges house.

¶ Joas

¶ Joas maketh prouision for the repayrynge of the temple. He is kylled by two of his seruauntes, and Amazia raigneth in his stede.

CAPI. XII.

A IOas was seuen yeres olde when he was made kynge. And he began to raygne the seuenth yere of Jehu, and raygned fourtye yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zebia Berſabe. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde, as longe as Joiada the Preeste enformed him. But he toke not awaye the hyll aulters/ for the people slewe, and offered styll in the hyll aulters.

And Joas sayd to the preestes: al the syluer that is gyuen to the vse of the temple, and brought to the house of the Lorde by straungers, whether that it be the money that euery mã is set at/ or the money that any mans hert gyueth him to brynge in to the house of the Lorde/ let the preestes take it to them, euerye man in his course, and let them repaire the broken places of the temple, in all places where ought is founde decayed.

Neuertheleſſe the preestes had not repayred vnto the thre and twentye yere of Joas, the thynges decayed in the temple. Then kynge B Joas called for Joiada the preest, and for thother preestes, and sayd to them / why repayre yenot the broken places of the temple? Now therfore se ye receiue no more money according to your order, but deliuer it to repayre the temple withall. And the preestes consented to receyue no more money of the people: But that it sholde go to the repayrynge of the temple.

Then Joiada the Preeste toke a cofer, and bored an hole in the lydde of it, and put it behyde the aulter on the ryghte syde as one commeth to the house of the Lorde. And in to that dyd the preestes that kepte the wores, put all the money that was brought to the Lordes house. And when they sawe there was moche money in the cofer * the kynges scryke and the hye preest came and sealed vp the money that was founde in the house of the Lorde, after they had tolde it.

And they gaue the money by sommes in to C the handes of the masters of the worckes, that had the ouersyghte of the house of the Lorde: and they brought it oute to the carpenters & buylders that wrought vpon the house of the Lord, and to masons and hewers of stone, to bye tymbre and free stone, to repayre the reare in the house of the Lorde / and all that neded reparacyons in the house: howe be it there was not made in the house of the Lorde booles of syluer, snyrr dynge knyues, basens, trompettes, or any other instrumentes of gold or syluer, of that money that was brought for the house of the Lorde. For they gaue that to the worckemen, to repayre therwith the house of the Lorde. Moreouer they reckened not with the men, in to whose handes they deliuered the money to be bestowed on worckemen: But they dyd it euen of fidelitie. Howe be it trespace money and synne money myght not be brought in to the house of the Lorde, for it was the preestes.

Then came Hazael kynge of Sirria / and foughte agaynste Geth, and toke it / and appoynted him selfe to go vp to Jerusalem. But D Joas kynge of Juda toke all the dedicat thynges, that Josaphat, Jehoram, and Ohoziah his progenitours kynges of Juda had dedicate / & that he him selfe hadde dedicated / and all the golde that coulde be founde in the treasure of the Lordes house, and of the kinges house/ and sent it to Hazael kynge of Sirria/ and so he departed from Jerusalem.

The residue of the actes of Joas and all he dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Juda. But his owne seruauntes arose and wrought treason, and slewe Joas in the house Melo, in the waye downe to Sela. For Jozachar the sonne of Semaath and Jozabad the sonne of Somer his seruauntes, smote him & he dyed. And they buryed him with his fathers in the citye of Dauid. And Amazias his sonne raygned in his place.

¶ Joachaz the sonne of Jehu is deliuered in to the handes of the Sirriens, and dyeth. Joas his sonne raygneth in his steade. Eliseus dyeth.

CAPI. XIII.

A IN the thre and twentye yere of Joas sonne of Ohoziah kynge of Juda / Joachaz the sonne of Jehu was made kyng ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued seuentene yeres/ & he wrought wyckednelle in the eye of ꝯ Lord/ for he followed the synne of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, which made Israel to synne, and departed not from the same. Wherfore the Lord was angrye with Israel/ and deliuered them in to the hande of Hazael kynge of Sirria, and in to the hande of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael all theyr dayes. Joachaz

But Joachaz besought ꝯ Lorde, and ꝯ Lord herde him. For he had sene the affliction of Israel, how the kynge of Sirria oppreſſed them. And therfore the Lorde gaue vnto Israel a deliuerour, and they were deliuered forth of ꝯ handes of the Sirrians. And the children of Israell B dwelt in their tentes as before tyme. Neuertheleſſe they departed not from the synne of ꝯ house of Jeroboam, who made Israel to synne, but walked therin. And there remayned a superſticious wod also in Samaria stil / but there were left of the people to Joachaz, but fyftye horſemen and ten charettes, and ten thousand fotemen/ for the kynge of Sirria had destroyed them, and made them like threshed chaffe. The rest of the actes of Joachaz, and all he did / and his power, are writtē in ꝯ Chronicles of kings of Israell. Eliseus dyeth.

When Eliseus was fallen sycke of the sycknesse wherof he dyed / Joas kynge of Jsrael came to hym and wepte to him and sayd. O father father, chariot of Jsraell, and conductour of the same. Eliseus sayde vnto him/ brynge bowe and arowes. And he broughte to him bowe and arowes. And he sayde to the kynge of Jsraell: ☞ Put thyne hande vpon the bowe. And when he hadde put his hande vpon the bowe, Eliseus put his handes vpon the kynges handes. Then he sayd: open a wyndowe Eastwarde: and he opened. And Eliseus sayde: shote/and he shotte. And he sayde: the arowe of helpe of the Lorde, and the arowe of helpe agaynste the Sirians/ for thou shalte beate the Sirians in Aphek, tyll thou haue consumed them.

Then he sayde: take arowes/and he toke. Then he sayde to the kynge of Jsraell/smyte the grounde: and he smote thryse, and ceased. And the man of God was angrye with hym, and sayde: Thou sholdest haue smytten fyue or sixe tymes, & then thou haddest smytten the Sirians tyll thou haddest consumed them: where nowe thou shalte beate them but thryse.

When Eliseus was deed and buryed / an armye of the Moabytes came in to the land, the yere folowynge. And it chaunsed as they were buryinge a man, they espyed the souldiours, and therfore cast the deed corps in to the sepulchre of Eliseus. And as soone as it touched the bones of Eliseus, he reuyued & stode vp on his fete. ☞ Eccle. xlviii. b

And Hazael oppressed Jsrael all the dayes of Joachaz. But the Lorde hadde mercye on them, and tourned to them bycause of his promyse made with Abraham, Jsaac, and Jacob/ and wolde not destroye them, neyther caste them frome him as yet. And when Hazaell kyng of Syria was ded, Benhadad his sonne raygned in his stede. And then Joas the sonne of Joachaz went agayne, and toke out of the hand of Benhadad sonne of Hazael, the cities whiche he had taken forthe of the handes of Joachaz his father by law of armes. And thre tymes dyd Joas beate him and broughte the cities of Jsrael agayne.

¶ Amazias kyng of Juda putteth to deth the murderers of his father: and smytteth Edom. Joas king of Jsrael taketh Amazias. Joas dieth, and Jeroboam succedeth: after him raygneth Zacharias. Amazias is kylled, and Azariah raygneth in his stede.

Neyther toke they awaye the hyll aulters/for the people slewe and offered styll in hyll aulters. And as soone as the kyngdome was settled in his hande / he slewe his seruauntes that kylled the kynge his father. But the chyldren of those murtherers he slewe not: accordyng to that is wrytten in the boke of the lawe of Moses / where the Lorde commaunded sayinge: ✻ the fathers shall not dye for the chyldrens cause, nor the chyldren for the dedes of theyr fathers: but euery man shall be slayne for his owne synne.

✻ And he slewe of the Edomites in the salte valeye, ten thousande, and toke the towne Sela with strengthe of battayle / and called the name of it Jekthеel euer after. After that Amazias sente messengers to Joas the sonne of Joachaz sonne of Jehu, kynge of Jsrael, sayinge: come, lette vs se eche other. But Joas kynge of Jsrael sent agayne to Amazias kyng of Juda, sayinge: A thystell in Libanon, sente to a cyprelle tree in Libanon, sayinge: gyue thy doughter to my sonne to wyfe. But the wylde beastes in Libanon, wente and trode downe the thistell. Bycause thou hast beaten the Edomites, therfore thyne herte ryseth. Be glorious: but tarye at home. For what nede thou to prouoke myschiefe, that thou sholdest be ouerthrowen, and Juda with the?

But Amazias wolde not heare. And so Joas kynge of Jsraell wente vp, and he and Amazias kynge of Juda sawe eyther other at Bethsames in Juda. He restored the costes of Israel from the entrynge of Hemath vnto the see, in the wyld feldes/accordyng to the word of the Lorde God of Israell whiche he spake thorowe his seruaunte Jonah the sonne of Amithai the prophet, which was of Geth Ophir. THe seuentene yere of Phakeh sonne of Romelia kyng of Israel/Achaz sonne of Jotham kynge of Juda, began to raigne being of thage of twentye yere, when he was made kynge/ and raigned sixtene yere in Jerusalem/and dyd not the thynge that was ryght in the eyen of the Lorde his God, as dyd Dauid his father: But went in the waye of the kynges of Israel / & therto he offered his sonne in fyre, after the abhominacion of the hethen, whiche the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered and burnt the fat in ꝓ hyl aulters, and on the hylles and vnder euery grene tree. * Then Razin kynge of Siria, and Phakeh sonne of Romelia kynge of Israell, came vp to Jerusalem to fight. And they besieged Achaz, but could not ouercome him. At the same tyme Razin kyng of Siria brought Ailath agayn to Siria, and tid the Jewes thēce. And the Edomites went to Ailath and dwelt therin vnto this daye.

Then Achaz sent messegers to Teglath Phalasar king of Assiria, saying: I am thy seruant and thy sonne/come and deliuer me out of the hande of the kyng of Siria, and out of ꝓ hande of the kyng of Israel, whiche be rysen agaynst me. And Achaz toke the syluer & the golde that was founde in the house of the Lorde, & in the treasure of the kynges house, and sent it for a rewarde to the kynge of Assiria. And the kyng of Assiria was applyinge to his mynde, & went to Damasco, and toke it/and caried the people awaye to Kir, and slewe Razin.

And kynge Achaz wente agaynste Teglath Phalasar kynge of Assiria, to Damasco. And when he sawe a certayne aulter that was at Damasco, he sente to Uria the preest the paterne of the aulter, and the facyon of all the workemanshyp therof. And Uria the Preest made an aulter in all poyntes lyke to the paterne whiche kyng Achaz had sente from Damasco/and had fynisshed it by the kynges commynge frome Damasco. And when the kynge was come from Damasco, and saw the aulter, he went to it, and offered theron. And he burnt his burnt offerynge, and sprynckled the bloude of his peaxofferyng/and poured his wellayles, and sprynckled the bloude of his peaxofferynges vpon the sayde aulter. And the brasen aulter that was before the Lorde, he remoued from betwene the aulter and the house of the Lorde, and put it on the north syde of the sayd aulter.

And the king commaunded Urias the preest sayinge: vpon the greate aulter set on fyre the morninge burntofferynges, and in them meatofferynges / and the kynges burnt sacryfice, and his meatofferinges/and the burntofferynges of all ꝓ people of the lande and their meatofferynges & theyr drynkofferynges, & poure theron all the bloude of all maner offrynges. But the brasen aulter shall be for me to enquyre with. And Urias the Preest dyd all thynges as kynge Achaz commaunded him. And kynge Achaz brake the sydes of the bottomes, and toke the lauers from them/and toke downe the see from the brasen oxen that went vnder it, and put it vpon a pauement of stone. And therto the pulpyt for the Saboth that they hadde made in the house, and the kynges entrye without, turned he to the house of the Lorde, for feare of the kynge of Assiria. The reste of the dedes of Achaz whiche he dyd, are wrytten in the Cronycles of kynges of Juda. And Achaz layde him to reste with his fathers/ and was buryed with his fathers in the citye of Dauid / and Ezechias his sonne raygned in his rowme.

¶ Hosea kinge of Israel is taken. And he and all his royalme brought to the Assyryans.

CAPI. XVII.

IN the. xij. yere of Achaz kynge of Juda, Hosea sonne of Elah beganne to raygne in Samaria vpon Israel, and contynued nyne yeres, and dyd that displeased the Lorde but not so cuyll as dyd the kynges of Israel that were before hym. And Salmanasar kyng of Assiria came vpon him/ and Hosea became his seruaunt, and gaue him trybutes. And the kynge kynge of Assyria founde treason in Hosea, because he had sent messengers to Sua kynge of Egypte, and sent no tributes vnto the kynge of Assiria, as he was yerely wont to do. Therfore the kynge of Assiria besyeged him & bound him and put him in prysone. ✠ And then the kynge of Assiria came thorow out all the land and came to Samaria & beleged it thre yere. And in the nynthe yere of Hosea, the kyng of Assyria toke Samaria & caryed Israel awaye vnto Assiria and put them in Hala, in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of ỹ Medes. For the children of Israel had synned against the Lorde their God whiche hadde brought them out of the lande of Egypt, frō the hande of Pharao kynge of Egypte, and worshipped other goddes. And they walked in the ordinaunce of the heythen whiche the Lorde cast out before the children of Israel, & in the thinges whiche the kynges of Israell had made. And the children of Israel wrapte them selues in thinges that were not wel towarde the Lorde their God. And they buylt them hylaulters in all their cyties, bothe in the towres where they kept watche and also in the stronge townes. And they made theym Images and superstitious woodes on euery hyghe hyll and vnder euery grene tree. And there they sacrificed in the hylaultars, as dyd the heythen, which the Lorde caryed away at their comminge, and wrought wycked dedes to angre the Lorde with. And they serued Ydoles, concerninge which thing the Lord had sayde to thē: ye shall not do so. And the Lord testifyed to Israel and to Juda, by all the prophetes and by all the Sears, sayenge: Turne frome your wycked wayes, and kepe my commaundementes and myne ordinaunces, accordinge to all the lawes which I commaunded your fathers, and as I sent to you by my seruauntes the Prophetes. But they wolde not heare, but hardened their neckes, lyke to the neckes of their fathers that dyd not beleue ỹ Lorde their God. And they refused his ordinaunces and his couenaunt that he had made with their fathers, and the wytnesse whiche he had wytnessed to them, and folowed vanite and became vayne, lyke to the heythen, ỹ were roundeabout them, of wyche, the Lorde had charged theym, that they shoulde not do lyke them. But they left the commaundementes of the Lorde their God, and made them Images of metall, that is to saye two calues and made groues and bowed them selues vn to all the host of heauen, and serued Baal. And they sacrificed their sonnes & their doughters in fyre, and vsed witchecraft and enchauntementes, and had euen appointed them selues to worke wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde, for to angre him.

Wherfore the Lorde was exceadinge wroth with Israell and put them oute of his sighte, that there was left but the trybe of Juda only, yea and neyther Juda kept the commaundmentes of the Lorde their God, but walked in the ordinaunces of Israel whiche they had made. Therfore the Lorde caste vp all ỹ seed of Israel and vexed them and betoke them in to the handes of spoylers, vntyll he had caste them out of his sight. And Israel diuided the selues frome the house of Dauid, and made Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat kynge. Which Jeroboam thrust Israel away from the Lord and made them synne a great synne. And so ỹ children of Israel walked in all the synne of Jeroboam which he had set vp, and departed not frome the same, tyll the Lorde hadde put Israel awaye out of his sight, as he sayde by all his seruauntes the Prophetes. And so he translated Israel out of their lande to Assiria, euen vnto this daye. Jerem.xxv.a

And the kynge of Assiria brought people frome Babylon and frome Cutha, and frome Aua, and frome Hemath, and from Sepharuaim, and put them in the cyties of Samaria in stede of the children of Israel. And they possessed Samaria and dwelt in the cyties therof. E But at the begynninge of their dwelling, they feared not the Lorde. Wherfore ỹ Lord sent Lyons vpon them whiche slewe theym. Then men tolde the kynge of Assyria, sayng: The nacions which thou hast brought & put in the cyties of Samaria, know not the maner of the God of the lande, and therfore he hath sent Lyons vpon them, which slay them because they know not the maner of the God of the lande.

Then the kyng of Assiria commaunded sayenge: cary thyther one of the preestes whiche ye brought thence, and let him go and dwell there, and teache theym the facyon howe to serue the God of the countreye. And then one of the preastes which they had caryed thence, went and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them how they shulde feare the Lorde. Howe be it euery nacion made their owne Goddes & put them in the houses of the hilaultares whiche the Samaritans had made, euerye nacion in their cyties where they dwelt. The mē of Babilon made Socoth, Benoth. The mē of Cuth made Nergel. They of Hemath made Asima. The Cuites made Nebahaz, and Tharthak. And the Sepharuaites burnt their childrē in fire vnto Adramelech & Anamelech, the goddes of the Sepharuaites. And thoughe they feared the Lord, yet they made them preastes of the lowest of the people, for the hilaulters which sacrificed for them in the houses of the hilaultars. And so they feared the Lorde, and yet serued their owne goddes after the maner of the people frome whence they were brought. F Socoth. Benoth. Nergel. Asima. Nebahaz. Tharthak. Inamelech.

Vnto this daye they do after the olde maner: they neyther feare the Lorde, neyther do after their owne ordinaunces and customes, & after the lawe and commaundement whiche the Lorde commaunded the children of Jacob whose name he called Israel, and made an appointement with them and charged thē sayenge: feare not any other gods, nor bow your selues to them nor serue them, nor sacrifice to them: but to the Lorde which brought you out of the lande of Egypt with great power and a stretched out arme: him feare and to him bowe, and to him do sacrifice. And the ordinaunces, customes, lawe and commaundment Gene.xxxii.b Jud.vi. Jere.x.a

ment which I wrote for you, se ye be diligent to do, for euermore, and feare not anye other goddes. And the appoyntment that I haue made with you, se ye forget not, and that you feare none other goddes: but the Lorde your God ye shall feare, and he shall deliuer you out of the handes of all your enemyes. Howbeit they herde not, but dyd after ỹ olde maner. And euen so dyd these nations feare the Lorde and serue theyr Ymages therto: and so dyd theyr children and theyr childrens children to. Euen as dyd theyr fathers, so do they vnto this daye.

In the fourth yere of kynge Ezechias whiche was the seuenth yere of Hosea sonne of Ela kynge of Israel, came Salmanasar kyng of Assiria vpon Samaria and beseged it. And they toke it at the ende of the yere, which was the sixte of Ezechias: that is to say the nynth yere of Hosea kynge of Israel, was Samaria wonne. And the kynge of Assiria dyd carye away Israel vnto Assiria, and put them in Hala and in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of Medes: because they wolde not herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde their God, But transgressed his appointment, and all that Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde cõmaunded, and wolde neyther heare nor do.

✶ The. xiiij. yere of kynge Ezechias came Sennacherib kynge of Assiria against all the stronge cyties of Juda and toke them. Wherupon Ezechias kynge of Juda sent to ỹ kynge of Assiria to Lachis, sayenge: I haue offended. But departe from me, and what thou puttest on me that will I beare. And the kyng of Assiria asseased vpon Ezechias kynge of Juda, thre hundred talentes of syluer and thirty talentes of golde. ✶ And Ezechias gaue him all the syluer that was founde in the house of the Lorde and also in the treasure of the kynges house. And the sayde season Ezechias rent of the dores of the temple of the Lorde and the pyllers, whiche the sayde Ezechias kynge of Juda couered ouer, and gaue thẽ to the kinge of Assyria.

And the kynge of Assyria sent Tharthan and Rabsaris and Rabsakeh from Lachis to kynge Ezechias with a great host to Jerusalem. And they went vp and came to Jerusalem, and went and stode by the coundyt of the ouermost pole whiche is in the waye to the fullers felde, and called to the kynge. And there came out to them, Eliakim the sonne of Helkiah stuarde of housholde and Sobnah the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph, theyr recorder. And then Rabsakeh sayd to them, Tell ye Ezechias I pray you: thus sayeth the greate kynge the kynge of Assyria. What confidence is this that thou hast? thou wylte happely speake a lyght worde, that thou hast counsell and power to make warre. On whome then doest thou trust, that thou rebellest against me? doest thou truste to the staffe of this bruysed reede Egypt, on whiche yf a man leane, it wyll renne in to his hande and perce it. For so euen so is Pharao kynge of Egypte vnto all that truste on hym. ✶ Yf ye saye vnto me, we trust in the Lorde our God. Is not this God he, whose hyl aultares and other aultars, Ezechias hathe put downe, and hath sayde to Juda and Jerusalem, bow your selues before this aulter here in Jerusalem? Now therfore ioyne thy selfe to my Lorde the kynge of Assyria, and I will deliuer the two thousande horses, yf thou be hable to set ryders vpon them (and yf thou be not) how then arte thou hable to resist one of the leste Dukes of my masters seruauntes? or trustest thou to Egypt for charettes and horsmen? Moreouer thinkest thou I am come without the bydding of the Lorde to this place to destroye it? Naye: the Lorde sayde to me, go vp to this lande and destroye it. Then sayde Eliakim the son of Helkiah and Sobnah and Joah, to Rabsakeh: speake, we praye the, to thy seruauntes in the Sirians language, for we vnderstande it: and talke not with vs in the Jewes tongue, in the eares of the people that are on the walles. And Rabsakeh sayde vnto them: hath my master sent me only to thy master and to the, to speake these wordes, or rather to the men that kepe the walles, that they shal eat their owne dyrt and drinke their owne pisse with you.

And so Rabsakeh stode and cryed with a lowde voyce in the Jewes language, and spake, sayenge: Heare the sayenge of the great kynge, the kynge of Assiria. Thus sayth the kynge: Let not Ezechias beguyle you, for he is not hable to deliuer you out of myne hande: neyther let Ezechias make you truste to the Lorde sayenge: the Lorde shal surely rydde vs, and this cytie shall not be deliuered into the handes of the kynge of Assiria. Herken not vnto vnto Ezechias, for thus sayth the kyng of Assiria, Deale kyndely with me, and come oute to me. And then eat euery man of his owne vyne, and of his fygge tree, and drynke euery man of the water of his owne welle, tyll I come and fet you to as good a land as yours is, a land of corne and wyne, a lande of bred and vynyardes, a lande of olyue trees of oyle and of hony. And ye shall lyue and not dye. And herken not vnto Ezechias for he wyll beguyle you, saying: the Lorde shall delyuer vs. For haue the goddes of the nacyons delyuered any God his lande, oute of the hande of the kynge of Assyria? where are the gods of Hemath and of Arphad? where are the goddes of Sepharuaim of Ana and Auah? did they delyuer Samaria out of myne handes? what God of any lande hath delyuered his lande oute of myne hande, that the Lorde shulde delyuer Jerusalem out of myne hand?

But the people helde theyr peax and answered not him a worde: for the kinge hadde commaunded, sayenge: answere him not.

Then Eliakim the stuarde of housholde, and Sobna the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph the recorder, came to Ezechias with their clothes rēt and tolde him the wordes of Rabsakeh.

¶ The Aungell of the Lorde kylleth. Clxxxv. thousande men of the Assyrians. Sennacherib is kylled of his owne sonnes.

CAP. XIX.

When kynge Ezechias herde this, he rent his clothes and put on sacke, and went to the house of the Lorde. Furthermore he sent Eliakim stuarde of housholde, & Sobna the scribe, & the elders of the Preastes clothed in sacke, to Isai the Prophete the sonne of Amoz. And they sayde to him, thus sayth Ezechias: This daye is a daye of tribulation of rebukynge and raylinge: Euen as when ỹ children are redy to be borne, and the mothers haue no power to be delyuered. Oh that the Lorde thy God wolde heare al the wordes of Rabsakeh, whome the kyng of Assiria his master hath sent to rayle on the lyupnge God, & to rebuke him with wordes, which the Lord thy God hathe herde. Wherfore lyft vp thy prayer for the remnaunt that are left. When the seruauntes of kynge Ezechias were come to Isai: Isaia sayde to them. So shall ye say to your master. Thus sayth the Lord: be not afrayde of the wordes thou herdest, wt which the younge men of the kynge of Assiria haue rayled on me. For I will sende him a blaste that he shal heare tydinges, and so returne to his owne lande: And I will ouerthrowe hym with the sworde, euen in his owne lande.

And Rabsakeh went backe agayne & found the kynge of Assiria fyghting against Lobnah: for he had herde, that he was departed from Lachis. And he herde tydinges of Theraka kyng of the blacke Moxes, that he was come out to fight against him. And therupon he departed and sent messengers vnto Ezechias, sayenge. Thus saye to Ezechias kynge of Juda, Let not thy God cary the out of the way, in whome thou so trustest, saying: Jerusalem shall not be delyuered into the hande of the kynge of Assyria. Beholde, thou haste hearde what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue vtterlye destroyed theym, And howe then shuldest thou escape? hathe the goddes of the heythen delyuered them whiche myne auncestoures haue destroyed: as Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the children of Eden which were in Thelasar? where is the kynge of Hemath, the kyng of Arphad the kynge of the cytie of Sepharuaim, & the kynge of Ana, and the kynge of Auah?

When Ezechias had receyued the lettres of the hande of the messengers and hadde red them: he went into the house of the Lorde, & layde them abrode before the Lorde. And Ezechias prayed before the Lorde & sayd: Lord God of Israell, whiche dwellest betwene the Cherubes, thou arte God alone ouer all the kyngdomes of the earthe, and thou hast made both heauen and earthe. Lorde, bowe thyne eares and heare: Open Lorde thyne eyen and se: & heare the wordes of Sennacherib which hath sent to rayle on the lyuing God. Certes o Lorde, the kynges of Assiria haue destroyed nations and their lādes, and haue set fyre on their goddes. For they were no goddes, but the worke of the handes of man: euen wood and stone. And therfore they destroyed them. Now therfore (Lorde our God) saue thou vs out of his hande, that all the kyngdomes of ỹ earthe maye knowe, that thou Lord art God alone. And Isai the sonne of Amoz sent to Ezechias sayenge: Thus saith the Lorde God of Israel, the thinge that thou hast prayed to me concerninge Sennacherib kyng of Assiria, I haue herde, This is the thinge that ỹ Lord sayth of him: He hath despysed the, O virgine wughter of Sion: He hath shaken his hed at the, thou wughter of Jerusalem: whome hast thou rayled on, and whom hast thou reuyled? Against whome hast thou lyfted vp thy voyce and hast eleuate thyne eyes so hyghe? Euen against the holy of Israell. By the hand of thy messengers thou hast rayled on the Lord and sayde/ with the multitude of my charettes I am come vp to the heyght of the mountaynes euen alonge by the sydes of Libanon, & haue cut of the hyghe Cedar trees, and the lustye fyxe trees therof, euen to the woode of Carmel that belongeth therto. I haue dygged & dronche straunge waters, and haue dryed vp with the soles of my fete poles enclosed. But haste thou not hearde howe I haue ordeyned suche a thinge a greate whyle a go, and haue prepared it frome the begynnynge? And nowe I bringe it forth, and it shalbe to destroy, and to bringe stronge cyties, in to rude heapes of stones. And the enhabitauntes of them shall be of lytle power, and faynte hearted and confounded. * They shalbe lyke the grasse of the felde, and grene herbes, and as the hey on the toppes of the houses whiche wethereth or it come to any heyght. knowe I to, and how thou settest vp thy bylles agaynste me. And because thou settest vp thy bylles agaynst me, and that thy ragynge is come vp to myne eares: therfore I wyll put a rynge in thy nose and a byt in thy lyppes, and wyll bryngе the backe agayne ꝑ same waye thou camest. And this shall be a sygne vnto the: eate this yere of the frutes of the seed that fell oute, and the nexte yere, that waxeth of it selfe. And the thyrde yere sowe ye and reape, plant vyneyardes and eate the frutes therof. For ꝑ house of Juda that is escaped and left, shall yet agayne take rotyng downewarde, and beare frute vpward. For out of Jerusalem shall go a remnaunt, & a nombre that shall escape out of mount Sion: the zele of the Lorde of ✠ Hostes shall bryngе this thynge to passe.

G 2 Reg. xvii. c.

Wherfore thus sayth the Lorde ouer the kynge of Assyria: he shall not entre into this cytye, nor shote one arowe into it, nor come before with shylde nor caste anye bancke agaynst it: but shall go backe agayne ꝑ waye he came, and shall not come at this cyty, sayth the Lorde. For I wyll defend this cytye and saue it. For myne owne sake & for Dauid my seruauntes sake.

The selfe same nyght the Aungell of the Lorde went out and smote in the hoste of the Assyrians an hundred foure score & fyue thousande. And when they were rysen early in the morynge: beholde, they were al deed corses. And so Sennacherib kynge of Assiria auoyded and departed and went agayne, and dwelt at Ninive. And as he was in his deuocion knelinge in the house of Nisroch his God, Adramelech and Sarasar smote him with ꝑ sword. And they escaped into the lande of Ararat, & Asarhadon his sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ Ezechias is sycke and receyueth the sygne of his health by the dyall of Achaz. He receyueth rewardes of Berodach, and is reproued of Isai wraule he shewed hym the treasure. He dyeth and Manasses his sonne raygneth in his steade.

A 2 Par. xxxii. f. Esa. xxxviii. a

ABout that tyme Ezechias was sicke vnto the deathe. And the Prophete Isai sonne of Amoz came to him and sayde to him. Thus sayth the Lorde: put thyne housholde in an ordre, for thou shalt dye and not lyue. And Ezechias turned his face to the wall and besought the Lorde sayenge: Oh Lorde, remembre yet how I haue walked before the truely, and with a perfecte herte, and haue done that which is good in thy sight, and wept a great pace. And Isai was skarce gone out into the myddle of the cytie, but that the worde of the Lord came to him, sayeng: turne agayne and tel Ezechias the leader of my people. Thus sayth the Lord God of Dauid thy father. I haue herde thy prayer and sene thy teares. Beholde I will heale the, and this daye thre dayes thou shalt go vp into ꝑ house of the Lorde. And I will lengthen thy dayes yet fyftene yeres, and will deliuer bothe the and this cytie out of the hande of the kynge of Assiria, and will defende this cytie for myne owne sake, and for Dauid my seruauntes sake. And Isai sayde: bringe a lumpe of fygges. And they brought and put it on the sore, and he recouered.

Then sayde Ezechias to Isai: What is the signe, that the Lorde will heale me, and that I shall go vp into the house of the Lorde the thirde daye? And Isai sayde: this signe shalt thou haue of the Lorde, that the Lorde will do that he hathe spoken: shall the shadwe go forwarde ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees? And Ezechias sayde: It is a lyghte thing for the shadwe to go downe ten degrees. Therfore I will not that: but let the shadwe go backwarde ten degrees. And Isai the prophete called to the Lorde, and he brought ꝑ shadwe ten degrees backwarde by which it had gone downe, in the dyall of Achaz.

At this same season Berodach Baladan the sonne of Baladan kynge of Babylon sent letters and presentes vnto Ezechias, for he herd that Ezechias was sicke. And Ezechias hardened vnto them and shewed them al that was in the spycery house, and his siluer and golde and odoures and precioule oyntementes and his armorye and all that was founde in his treasure: there was nothinge in his house or in all his realme, that he shewed them not.

Then came Isai the Prophete vnto kynge Ezechias and sayde to him: What saye these men and frome whence come they to the? And Ezechias sayde: they be come from a farre countrey, euen frome Babilon. And he sayd: what haue they sene in thy house? And Ezechias sayde: all that is in my house haue they sene: there is nothinge amonge my treasure that I haue not shewed them. And Isai sayde to Ezechias: Heare the worde of the Lorde. Beholde the daye shall come, that all that is in thyne house and that thy fathers haue layde vp in store vnto this daye, shall be caryed to Babilon, and nothinge shall be left sayth the Lorde. And of thy sonne that proceded out of the, which thou begatest, shall there be caryed awaye, and shalbe made chamberlaynes in the palace of the kynge of Babilon. And Ezechias sayde to Isai: welcome be the worde of the Lorde which thou hast spoke: so that peace and trouthe be kept in my dayes.

The reste of the dedes of Ezechias, and all his power, and how he made a pole and a conduit and brought the water into the cyty, are written in the boke of Chronicles of kynges of Juda. And Ezechias layde him to rest with his fathers, and Manasses his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Wycked Manasses restoreth agayne the Idoles, and after dyeth, in whose stede Amon his sonne succeedeth, whiche is kylled of his owne seruauntes. After him raygneth Sayntfull Josias.

CAPI. XXI.

MAnasses was twelue yeres olde when he began to raygne and raygned fyfty and fyue yeres in Jerusalem: his mothers name was Haphzibah. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde, euen after the abominacions of the heythen which the Lorde threw out before the childzen of Israel. And he wet and buylt the hyllaulters agayne, whiche Ezechias his father had destroyed. And he rered vp aulters to Baal and made groues, as dyd Achab kynge of Israell. And he bowed him selfe vnto all the hoste of heauen and serued them. And he buylt aulters in the very house of the Lorde, of which the Lorde had sayde: * in Jerusalem I wyll put my name, And he buylt alteres vnto all the host of heuen, euen in two courtes of the house of the Lorde. And he offered his sonne in fyre, and obserued dismal dayes, and vsed witchcraft and maintayned wozkers with spirites, and tellers of foztunes: and wzought moche wyckednesse in ꝑ sight of the Lorde to angre him.

And he put an Ymage of a groue that he had made, euen in the verye temple of whiche the Lorde hadde sayde to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne, * in this house and in Jerusalem whiche I haue chosen oute of all tribes of Israel, wyll I put my name foz euer. Neyther wyll I make the fete of Israell moue anye moze oute of the lande whiche I gaue theyz fathers: so that they wyll be dylygent to do all I haue commaunded them, and all the lawe that my seruaunte Moses commaunded them. But they herkened not: foz Manalles had led them out of the waye, to wo moze wickedlye then dyd the Panyms which the Lorde destroyed before the face of the childzen of Israel.

And the Lorde spake by his seruauntes the Pzopheres sayenge: because Manalles kynge of Juda hathe wne suche abominacions, and hath wzoughte wyckedly aboue all that the Amozites which were before him dyd: & hathe made Juda synne also with his Ymles: therfoze thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell.

* Beholde, I will bzinge suche euell vpon Jerusalem and Juda, that the eares of all ꝑ heare it, shall tyngle at it. And I will stretche ouer Jerusalem the squarynge lyne of Samaria and the plometh of the house of Achab. And I will wype oute Jerusalem, as a man wolde wype a dysshe, and when he hath wyped it turneth it vpsetwowne. And thoughe I leue a remnaunt of myne enheritaunce, yet I will delyuer theym into the handes of theym that hate them, and they shall be robbed and spoyled of all their ennempes: euen because they haue wne wyckedly and haue angred me sythens the tyme their fathers came oute of Egypte vnto this daye. And mozeouer Manalles shed innocent bloude exceadinge aboundauntly, in so moche that he replenysched Jerusalem in all cozners, belyde his synne wherwith he made Juda synne and to wo euyll in the sight of the Lorde. The rest of the actes of Manalles and all he dyd and his synne that he synned, are wzitten in the boke of Chzonicles of kynges of Juda. And Manalles layde him to slepe with his fathers, and was buryed in the garden of his owne house, euen in ꝑ garden of Oza: and Amon his sonne raygned in his steade.

Amon was. xxij. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned two yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Mesalemeth the dwghter of Haru of Jathbah. And he did that displeased the Lorde as his father Manalles did. He walked in all the way that his father walked in, and serued the Imles that his father serued, and bowed hym selfe to theym. And he forsoke the Lorde God of his fathers, and walked not in the waye of the Lorde. Amon.

And the seruauntes of Amon conspired against hym, and slue him in his owne house. But the people of the lande slue all that cõspired agaynst kynge Amon, and made Josias his sonne kynge in his rowme. The reste of ꝑ actes of Amon whiche he dyd are wzytten in the Chzonicle of ꝑ kynges of Juda And they buryed him in his sepulchze in the garden of Oza, and Josias his sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ After Josias herde of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he sendeth to Oldah the Pzopheresse foz counsill.

CAP. XXII.

A ii. Paralip. xxxiiii. a Josias.

Josias was. viij. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned. xxxj. yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jdida ꝑ doughter of Adaiah of Bezecath. And he dyd that semed right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in all the wayes of Dauid his father and bowed neyther to the ryghte hande ne to the lefte.

ii. Pa. xxxiiii. b

And the. xviij. yere of his raygne kynge Josias sent Saphan the sonne of Azalia, the son of Mesulam the scribe to the house of ꝑ Lozd sayenge: go to Helkia the hyghe preaste, and let him summe the syluer that is wzought into the house of the Lorde, whiche the kepers of the dozes haue gathered of the people, and let them delyuer it into the handes of the werke man that haue the ouersyghte of the house of the Lorde, which shall gyue it to theym that wozke vpon the house of the Lozd, to repayze the decayed places thereof, euen vnto carpenters and masons, and foz to bye tymbze and fre stone to repayze the house. Howbe it let no rekenynge be made with them of the mony that is delyuered into their handes, but let theym doo it of their conscience. And Helkia the hyghe preest sayde to Saphan the scribe. I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the temple of the Lorde, and Helkia gaue the booke to Saphan, and he red it. And then Saphan the scribe went to the kynge and wzought him wozde agayne, and sayde: thy seruauntes powred out the syluer that was founde in the tẽple, and haue delyuered it vnto the wozkemã that haue the ouersight of the house of ꝑ Lord. Furthermoze Saphan the scribe shewed the kynge sayenge: Helkia the preast hath delyuered me here a boke. And Saphan red it before the kynge. iiii. Reg. xii. b. ii Par. xxxiiii. B C

And the kynge as sone as he had heard the wozdes of the booke of the lawe, he rente his clothes clothes, and commaunded Helkia the preest & Ahikam the sonne of Saphā and Achobor the sonne of Michaia/and Saphan the scribe, and Asahiah a seruaunte of the kynges, sayinge: goo ye and seke of the Lorde for me and the people, and for all Juda, concernynge the wordes of this boke that is foūde. For it is a great wrathe of the Lorde that is kendled vpon vs that oure fathers haue not harkened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do in all poyntes as it is wrytten therin.

Jeremy.xxvi.a

And Helkia the hyghe preeste and Ahikam Achobor, Saphan, Asahia wente vnto Olda the Prophetesse, wyfe of Selum the sonne of Tekuah, the sonne of Harahaam keper of the robes/ whiche Prophetesse dwelte in Jerusalem in the second warde, and communed with her. And she sayde to them: Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel. Tell the man that sente you to me/thus sayth the Lorde: Beholde I wyll bryngе euyll vpon this place, and on the dwellers therin: euen all the wordes of the boke whiche the kynge of Juda hathe redde/ bycause they haue forsaken me, & haue burnte offerynges vnto other Goddes, to angre me with all the ✠wordes of theyr handes. Therfore is my wrathe kendled agaynst this place, and shall not be quenched. But to the kynge of Juda, whiche sente you to enquyre of the Lorde/ so shall ye saye: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell/ as touchynge the wordes whiche thou herdest. Bycause thyne herte did melte, and thou mekedest thy selfe before me the Lorde, when thou herdest what I spake agaynste this place, and the inhabitauntes of the same/how that it sholde be destroyed and made a curse: & tarest thy clothes and weptest before me: of that also I haue herde sayth the Lorde. And therfore/ loo, I wyll receyue the vnto thy fathers, and wyll sette the vnto thy graue in peax/thyne eyes shall se none of the euyll whiche I wyll bryngе vpon this place. And they brought the kynge worde agayne.

¶ Josias readeth Deuteronomium before the people. He putteth downe the Idolles, after he had killed the preastes therof. He keepeth passouer. He was kylled in Magedo, & his son Jehoaaz raigneth in his stede: after he was taken his sonne Jehoakim was made kynge.

CAPI. XXIII.

A ii.Pa.xxxiiii.c

THen the kynge sente and gathered vnto him al the elders of Juda and of Jerusalem, and the kynge wente vp in to the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and all thinhabitauntes of Jerusalem with him/ and the preestes and the Prophetes and all the people bothe small and great. And he redde in hearynge of them, all the wordes of the boke of the testament, whiche was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kynge stode by a pyller, and made a couenaunt before the Lorde, that they sholde walke after the Lord, and kepe his commaundementes and his witnesses, and his ordinaunces with al theyr hertes, and all their soules/ and make good the wordes of the sayde appoyntment that were wrytten in the foresayd boke. And all the people consented to the appoyntment. Then the kynge commaunded Helkia the hyghe Preest and the lower Preestes and the kepers of the wore, to bryngе out of the Lordes temple, all the vesselles made for Baal, and for the grone and for all the hoste of heauen. And he burnte them without Jerusalem in the feldes of Cedron, and caryed the asshes of them in to Bethel. And he put downe the relygyous preestes, whiche the kynge of Juda hadde setted burne offeryngs in the hyll aultets in the cytyes of Juda rounde about Jerusalem, and also them that burnt sacrifices vnto Baal, the sonne and to the moone, and to the planetes/ and to all the hoste of heauen. And he broughte oute the grouc frome the temple of the Lorde without Jerusalem, vnto the brooke Cedron/ and burnte it at the brooke Cedron/ and stampte it to pouldre, and caste the duste therof vpon the graues of the people of the countreye. And he brake downe the hye gerye places that were in the house of the Lorde in whiche the women woue coueryns for the groue.

And he brought all the preestes out of the cities of Juda, and defaced the hyllaultres where the preestes dyd burne sacrifyce from Gabaa to Berlabe. And he brake downe the hyllaulters of the Gates, that were in the entrye of the Gate of Josua the gouernour of the cytye, whiche were on the lefte hande of the Gate of the cytye. Neuertheleſſe the preestes of the hyllaulters myght not come at the aulter of the Lorde in Jerusalem, saue onely they dyd eate of the swete breed among their brethren.

And he destroyed Topheth also whiche is in the valeye of the children of Hennom, because no mā shulde offer his son or his daughter in fyre to Moloch: he put downe the horses that the kynges of Israel had gyuen to the sonne at the entryng of the house of the Lord in the chamber of Nathanmelech the chamberlayne which was of Paruarim, and burnt the charettes of the sonne with fyre. And the aulters that were on the toppe of the parlour of Achaz which the kinges of Juda had made, and the aultares which Manasses had made in the two courtes of the house of the Lorde, the kinge brake downe, and ranne thence and caste the duste of them in to the brooke Cedron.

And the hylaulters that were before Jerusalem on the ryght hande of the mount Mashith, whiche Salomon kyng of Israel had buylt to Astaroth the abhominacion of the Zidons and to Chamos the abhominacion of the Moabites/ and to Melchom the abhominacion of the chyldren of Ammon/ the kynge destroyed and brake the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and fylled the places with the bones of men.

Moreouer the aulter that was at Bethel, and the hyl aulter made by Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, that whyche made Israell synne: both the aultare and also the hyll he brake downe and bonne the hyll and stampte it to powder, and burnt the groue. And as Josias toorned hym selfe, he espyed the graues that were in the mounte, and sent and fet the bones oute of the graues and burnt them vpon the aultare and polluted it accordynge to the worde of the Lorde that the man of God had proclaymed, whiche openlye hadde renounced the same thynges.

Then the kynge sayde: What meaneth yonder graue stone that I se? And the men of the cyte tolde hym, it is the Sepulchre of the man of God, which came frome Juda and openlye renounced the selfe same thynges that thou haste done to the aultare of Bethel. And he sayde let hym be: se that no man moue his bones. And so his bones escaped, with the bones of a Prophete, that came oute of Samaria.

And therto all the houses of the hylaulters of the cyties of Samaria, whiche the kynges of Israel had made, to angre the Lorde with: Josias put out of the waye, and dyd to them in all poyntes as he dyd in Bethel. And he sacrificed all the preastes of the hylaultats that were there euen vpon the aultares, and burnt mens bones vpon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

And the kynge commaunded all the people sayeng: * kepe the feast of pallouer vnto the Lorde your God, as it is written in the boke of this testament. For there was no pallouer holden lyke that, frome the dayes of the iudges that iudged Israel, and thorowe oute all the dayes of the kynges of Israell and of Juda. And in the. xviij. yere of kynge Josias, was this pallouer holden to the Lorde in Jerusalem.

Moreouer workers with spirites, sothsayers, Images of wytchecrafte, Idols and all other abhominations that were espyed in the lande of Juda and in Jerusalem, Josias put out of the waye, to make good the wordes of the lawe, which were wrytten in the booke † Helkia the preaste founde in the house of the Lorde: Lyke vnto hym was there no kynge afore him, that turned to the Lorde with all his herte, with al his soule, and al his might, accordinge to all the lawe of Moses, neyther after him arose there any suche.

Notwithstandinge the Lorde toorned not him selfe frome his fearce and great wrathe, wherwith he was angrye against Juda vpon all the prouocacions that Manasses prouoked him. But the Lorde sayde: I will put Juda in lyke maner out of my sight, as I haue done Israel, and will cast of, this cyte Jerusalem, which I haue chosen, and the house of which I haue sayde, my name shalbe there.

The rest of the dedes of Josias, and all he dyd, are written in the boke of the Chronicles of kynges of Juda.

* In his dayes Pharao Necoa, kynge of Egypte, went against the kynge of Assyria to the ryuer Euphrates. And kynge Josias went against him, and was slayne of him at Magedo when he had sene him. And his seruauntes carped hym dead from Magedo & brought him to Jerusalem, & buryed him in his owne Sepulchre. And the people of the lande toke Joachaz the sonne of Josias, and annoynted hym, and made hym kynge in his fathers rowme.

And Joachaz was thre and twenty yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned three monethes in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamital, the doughter of Jeremia of Lobnah. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde, in all thinges as his fathers had done. And Pharao Necoa put him in bondes at Reblah, in the lande of Hemath, in the tyme of his raygne in Jerusalem, and put the lande to a tribute of an hundred talentes of syluer and a talente of golde. And Pharao Necoa made Eliakim, the sonne of Josias, kynge, in the rowme of Josias his father, and toorned his name to Joakim, and toke Joachaz awaye, whyche when he came to Egypte / dyed there.

And Joakim gaue the syluer and the golde to Pharao: howbe it he taxed the lande, to gyue the moneye at the commaundemente of Pharao, and as euery man was set at, so he requyred the syluer and the golde of the people of the lande, to gyue Pharao Necoa. Joakim was fyue and twenty yeres olde, when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned eleuen yeres in Jerusalem. His mother was named Zebda the doughter of Phadaia of Rama. And he dyd that was euyll in the syghte of the Lorde / lyke in all thynges as dyd his fathers.

¶ Joakim dyeth, and after him succeadeth Joacin: Jerusalem is besyeged of the Babilonians. Joacin yeldeth him selfe to the kynge of Babilon. And in his rowme came Mathaniah, whiche was called Zedekias.

CAPI. XXIIII.

IN his dayes came Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon, and Joakim became his seruaunte three yeres, and then toorned and rebelled agaynste hym. And the Lorde sent vpon him men of warre oute of Caldeye, oute of Syria, oute of the Moabites, and frome the children of Ammon: and sente theym into Juda, to destroye it, accordynge to the sayenge of the Lorde whiche he spake by his seruauntes the Prophetes. Only at the bydding of the Lorde happened it so to Juda, to put theym oute of his sight, for the synne of Manasses accordinge to all he dyd: and for the innocent bloude that he shed and fylled Jerusalem with innocent bloude, whiche the Lorde wolde not forgyue.

The rest of the dedes of Joakim and all he dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Juda. And Joakim layd him to slepe with his fathers, and Joacin his sonne raygned in his stede. But the kynge of Egypte, came now no more oute of his lande: for the kynge of Babilon had taken frome the ryuer Euphrates, all that pertayned to the kynge of Egypte. Joacin was eyghtene yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned in Ierusalem three monethes. His mothers name was Nehusta the doughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde in all poyntes as his father dyd.

he caryed awaye Joacin to Babylon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, and his chamberlaynes, and the myghtye of the lande caryed he awaye frome Jerusalem to Babilon. And all the men of actiuite to the nombre of seuen thousande, and craftesmen & toyners a thousande, all stronge and apte for warre, dyd the kynge of Babilon bring to Babilon to dwell. ✱ And the kynge of Babilon made Mathaniah his fathers brother, kynge in his stede, and chaunged his name and called him Zedekia.

ii.Par.xxvi.b Jerem.xxv.a

Zedekia was one and twentye yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned eleuen yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamital / the doughter of Jeremia, of Lobnah. And he dyd euyll in the sight of the Lorde, in all poyntes lyke to Joakim. For throughe the wrathe of the Lorde it so chaunced to Jerusalem and Juda, vntyll he had cast them out of his sight. And the sayde Zedekia rebelled against the kynge of Babilon.

C By the rebellynge of Zedekia is the towne of Jerusalem beseaged of Nabuchodonozor. The towne and the temple are both burnte. The sonnes of Zedekia are slayne before his eyes, and after are his eyes put oute. Juda is brought to Babilon, and after is Joacin exalted.

CAP. XXV.

A Jerem.xxix.a. and.lii.a

Wherfore in the nynthe yere of his raygne, the tenth daye of the tenth moneth came Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon with al his power to Jerusalem: and pitched against the towne and made engynes against it on euery syde. And the cytye continued beseged vnto the eleuenth yere of kyng Zedekias. And the nynth daye of the fourth moneth of that yere, there was so great hunger in the cytie, that there was no sustinaunce for the people of the lande.

And the cytie was broken vp: wherfore all the men of Armes fled by night, by a way that row a gate, betwene two walles harde by the kynges garden: the Caldeys stode about the cytie.

Then the kynge went straight towarde the wyldernesse. And the host of the Caldeys followed after him, and toke him in the wyldernesse of Jericho, all his armye beynge scattered awaye frome him. When they had taken him, they brought him to Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon to Reblah, whiche impeached him of treason. And they slewe the sonnes of Zedekias before his eyen, and put out the eyen of Zedekias, and fettered him, and caryed him to Babilon.

In the seuenth daye of the fifthe moneth which was in the nynetenth yere of kyng Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon, came Nabusaradan seruaunte of the kynge of Babilon, a chiefe Capitayne vnto Jerusalem: and burnt the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house and all the houses of Jerusalem, and al great houses with fyre. And all the host of the Caldeys that were with the chiefe Capitayne: brake downe the walles of Jerusalem round aboute. And the reste of the people that were lefte in the cytye, and they in that were fledde to the kynge of Babilon, and the reste of the commen people, Nabusaradan the chiefe Capitayne caryed awaye, and lefte of the poore of the lande to dresse the vynes, and to tyll the grounde.

And the pyllers of brasse that were in the house of the Lorde and the botomes, and the brasen see that was in the house of the Lorde, the Caldeys brake, and caryed the brasse of them to Babilon. And the lauers, shouelles, dressynge knyues, ladelles, and the myntstring vesselles of brasse, they caryed awaye. And fyrepannes, and basens that were eyther of golde or syluer, toke the chiefe Marshall awaye with the two pyllers & the see of brasse, and the bottomes which Salomon had made in the house of the Lorde, The brasse of all these vesselles was without wayght. The heyght of the one pyller, was .xviij. cubytes, and the heed theron was brasse, and three cubites longe with a wreethe and pommegranetes roundabout vpon the heed, all of brasse. And of the same fassion was the seconde pyller in a wreth.

And the chief Capitayne toke Saraiah the chiefe preaste, and Zophoniah the hyghest preast saue one, and three kepers of the doze. And out of the cytie he toke a certayne chamberlayne that had the ouersight of the men of warre, and fyue men that were euer in the kynges presence, which were founde in the cytye, and Sopher the Capitayne of the hoste taught the people of the lande ℔ feates warre and three score men of the people of the lande that that were founde in the cytie also. And Nabuzaradā the chief Capitayne toke thē & brought them to the kynge of Babylon to Reblah. And the kynge of Babilon smote them & slew them at Reblah in the lande of Hemath. And so Juda was caryed awaye out of their land.

And ouer the people that remayned in the lande of Juda, which Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babylon left, he set Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam the sonne of Saphan. And when all the capitaynes of the men of warre and the men herde that the kynge of Babylon hadde made Godoliah gouerner: there came to Godoliah to Mazphah: Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah and Johanan the soune of Kareah & Sarajah the sonne of Thanehumeth the Netophathite and Jezoniah the sonne of Maachati and their men. And Godoliah sware to them, and to their men, and sayde to them: feare not ye the seruauntes of the Caldeyes, but dwel in the lande and serue the kynge of Babilon and ye shalbe in good state.

But it chaunced the seuenth moneth after, that Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah the son of Elisama of the kynges bloude came, and ten men with him, and smote Godoliah that he dyed: and so dyd he the Jewes & the Caldeyes that were with him at Mazphah. Wherupon all the people both smal and great and the Capitaynes of the mē of warre arose, and went to Egypte: for they were afrayed of the Caldeyes.

Notwithstandinge yet the thirtye and seuenth yere, after Joacin kynge of Juda was caryed awaye, the twenty and seuenth day of the twelfte moneth, dyd Euilmerodach kynge of Babilon lyft vp the heed of Joacin kynge of Juda out of the prysonne house, and spake kyndly to him, and set his seate aboue ỹ seate of all the kynges that were with him in Babilon, and chaunged his prysen garmentes. And he dyd euer eate bred before him all the dayes of his lyfe. And a cōtinual porcion was alligned him of the kynge, frome daye to daye as longe as he lyued.

And when it was knowen amonge the Philistines, that Dauid was anoynted kyng vpon all Israel, all the Philistines went vp to seke Dauid. And Dauid herde of it, and went out agaynste them. And the Philistines came & praunsed in the valeye of Raphaim. And Dauid asked God, sayinge: Shall I goo agaynst the Philistines? and wylt thou deliuer them in to myne handes? And the Lorde sayde to him: go, for I will delyuer them into thyne handes. And when they were come as ferre as ✠ Baal Pharazim, Dauid bet thē there. And Dauid sayde: God hathe deuyded myne enemyes with myne hande as a man wold deuide water. And therfore they called the name of the sayde place Baal Pharazim.

✠ Some rede, the playne of valley.
And they left theyr gods there, which Dauid bad to be burnt with fyre.

And the Philistines came agayne and ran abrode in the valey. Then Dauid asked God: And God sayd to him go not after them, but turne awaye from them, and come vpon them strayght from the pere trees. And when thou hearest a sounde of one ✠ go in toppes of the pere trees, then goo oute to battayle: for God wyll go out before the to smyte the host of the Philistines. And Dauid did as God cō maunded him. And they smote the host of the Philistines all the waye frome Gabaon to Gazer. and the fame of Dauid went out into all landes, and the Lorde made all nations feare him.

¶ The Leuites bringe agayne the Arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde. Dauid daunsynge before it is despysed of his wyfe Micholl, the daughter of Saul.

CAPI. XV.

AND Dauid made him houses in the cytye of Dauid, and prepared a place for the Arcke of God, and pitched for it a tent. And then Dauid sayd, the Arcke of God oughte not to be caryed but of the Leuites. For them hath the Lorde chosen to beare the Arcke of the Lorde and to mynyster to him for euer. And therfore Dauid gathered all Israel to Ierusalem, to fetche the Arcke of the Lord vnto the place, whiche he had ordeyned for it. And Dauid brought together the children of Aaron and the Leuites. Of the sonnes of Cahath: Uriel the chiefe, and of his brethren an hundred and twentye. And of the children of Merari: Asaiah the chiefe, and of his brethre two hundred and twentye. For because ye were not there at the fyrste tyme, the Lorde our God hathe deuyded vs, for that we sought hym not as the fashion ought to be. And the preastes and the Leuites sanctified themselues, to fet the Arcke of the Lorde God of Israel. And the children of the Leuites, bare the Arcke of God vpon theyr shoulders with staues as Moses commaunded, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. And Dauid spake to the chiefe heedes of the Leuites, that they shulde appoynt of theyr brethren to synge with instrumentes of musycke Psalteryes, Harpes, and Symbales that sounded, and to synge in hygh with ioyfulnesse. And the Leuites appoynted Heman the sonne of Joel: and of his brethren, Asaph the sonne of Barachiah. And of the sonnes of Merari theyr brethren Ethan the sonne of Cusaiahu. And with them theyr brethren the seconde degree: Zacharias, Ben, Jaaziel, Semiramoth, Jahiel, Uni, Eliab, Banaiah, Maasiah, Mathathiah, Eliphelehu, Machamiah, Obed Edom, and Jaiel, porters. Heman, Asaph, and Ethan sange with symbales of brasse to make sound. And Zachariah, Oziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Ani, Eliab, Maasaiah, and Banaiah sange with psalteries on an ✠ Almoth. And Mathathiah, Eliphelehu, Makemiah, Obed Edom, Jehiel, and Oziah sange with harpes, and ouer aboue to courage withall. And Conamiah the chiefe of the Leuites was master of the songe, and taught to synge / for he was a man of vnderstandynge.

And Barachias and Elcana kepte the dore of the

And Obed-Edom and Iahiah were kepers of the wore of the arcke. ✠ And Dauid and the elders of Israell, and the Capitaynes ouer thousandes wente to fet the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde oute of the house of Obed Edom with gladnesse. And when God had holpe the Leuites that bare the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde, they offered seuen oxen and seuen rammes. And Dauid hadde on hym an albe of bisse, and so had the Leuites that bare the arcke, and so had the syngers, and Conaniah the ruler of the songe and of the syngers. And Dauid had moreouer vpō him an Ephod of lynnen. And all Israell broughte the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt with shoutyng and with blowynge of hornes, and with trompettes and symbales that sounded, and with psalteries and harpes.

And as the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came in to the citye of Dauid, Michol the doughter of Saul loked oute at a wyndowe: and when she sawe kynge Dauid daunsynge and playinge, she despised hym in her herte.

After the Arcke was brought, Dauid ordeyneth Asaph and his brethren to ministre before the Lord. And he prayseth the Lorde God of Israel.

CAPI. XVI.

When they had brought in ꝑ arcke of God, they set it in the tente, that Dauid hadde pitched for it. And they broughte burnt sacrifice and peaxofferynges before God. And when Dauid had made an ende of offeryng of burntofferinges and of peaxofferinges, he blessed the people with the name of the Lord. And he dealte to all Israel bothe man and woman a cracknell of breed, a pece of flesshe, & a messe of soppes.

And he appoynted certayne of the Leuites to ministre before the Lorde, and to repete, and to thanke and prayse the Lorde God of Israell/ that is to wete: Asaph the chefe, and nexte to him Zachariah, then Ieiel. Semiramoth, Iehiel, Mathathiah, Eliab, Banaiah, Obed Edom, and Ieiel with psalteryes and harpes. But Asaph with soundynge symbales and Banaiah & Iahaziel Priestes with trompetts contynually before the arcke of the couenaunt of God. In that tyme Dauid dyd appoynte chefly to thanke the Lorde, Asaph and his brethren. ✠ Thanke the Lorde, call on his name, make his actes be knowen amonge the people.

Syng vnto him and play vnto him, and reorde all his wonderfull dedes. Prayse his holy name, And let the hertes of them that seke the Lord reioyce. Seke the Lord and his strength: seke his presence alwaye.

Remembre his meruayles whiche he dyd, and his wonders, and the iudgementes of his mouth: The seed of Israel are his seruantes: the chyldren of Jacob are his chosen. He is the Lorde our God: & in all landes are his iudgementes. Thynke on his appoyntment euer, & on the word which he commaunded to a thousande generations. Of his couenaunt to Abraham, and of his othe to Isaac: whiche he set before Jacob for a decree, and to Israel for an euerlastyng couenaunt, sayinge: to the I wyll gyue the lande of Canaan, to be the portion of your enheritaunce. When you were a smalle company in nombre, euen but a few, and therto straungers therin. And they went from people to people, and frome one kyngdome to an other nation. He suffered no man to do them wronge: But rebuked kynges for their sakes. Touche not myne annoynted, nor do my Prophetes anye harme. ✠ Synge vnto the Lorde all the erth, and shewe from daye to daye his victoryes. Psal.xcv.a

Tell amonge the Heathen of his glorye: and amonge all nacyons of his wonderfull dedes.

For greate is the Lorde, and to be prayfed excedyngly: and terryble is he aboue all goddes.

For all the goddes of the heathen are ydols: but the Lorde made heuen.

Prayse & honour are in his presence: stregth and gladnes are in his place.

Ascribe to the Lord, o ye kynredes of people: ascribe to the Lorde glory and strength.

Gyue honour vnto the Lordes name: bring presentes and come before him, and bowe to the Lorde in holy apparell.

All the earthe feare hym, he stablysshed the earthe that it can not moue. The heauen reioyce, and the earthe be gladde / and let men tell amonge the nations, that the Lorde is a kynge.

Let the see sounde and his fulnesse, and let the feldes reioyce and all that are therin.

Let the trees of the wod syng at the presence of the Lord: for he commeth to iudge the erth.

Thanke the Lorde for he is good, & his mercye lasteth euer/ and saye: saue vs (o God our sauiour) and gather vs togyther, and deliuer vs from the heathen, that we may thanke thy holy name, and prayse the with prayse that becommeth the. Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel for euer & euer, and all nations shall saye Amen/ so prayesynge the Lorde.

And he lefte there before the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt, Asaph and his brethren, to ministre before the arcke euermore daye by daye. And Obed Edom with his brethren three score and eyght/ and Obed Edom the sonne of Iduthum and Osah to be porters. And Zadock the preeste with is brethren the preestes dyd he set before the tabernacle of the Lorde at the hyll aulter of Gabaon, to offre burntofferynges vnto the Lorde vpon the burntofferynge aulter perpetually at morynge and euenynge: according to all that is wrytten in the lawe of the Lorde whiche he commaunded Israell. And with them Heman and Iduthum, and other that were chosen and named by name, to thanke the Lorde that his mercye lasteth euer. And with the sayde Heman and Exod.xxix.g Nu.xxviii.a

AND as Dauid dweite in his house, he sayde to Nathan the Prophete: loo, I dwell in an house of Cedar tree: and the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt dwelleth vnder skynnes. And Nathan sayd to Dauid: wal that is in thyne herte, for God is with the. But the same nyght the worde of God came to Nathan, sayinge: goo and tell Dauid my seruaunt, thus sayth the Lorde: thou shalte not bylde me an house to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no house sythens I brought out the chyldren of Israell vnto this daye: but I haue gone from tent to tent, and from one tabernacle to an other. Neyther in anye place where so euer I haue walked thorowe out all Israel, spake I euer one worde to anye of the Iudges of Israel which I commaunded to fede my people, sayinge: why bylde ye not me an house of Cedar tree? Now therfore thus saye vnto my seruaunt Dauid: thus sayth ꝑ Lorde of hostes: I toke the out of the pasture where thou keptest shepe, that thou shuldest be capytayne ouer my people Israel. And I haue ben with the in all that thou tokest in hande, and haue wedded out all thyne ennemyes out of thy syghte, & haue made the a name lyke the name of the greatest men of the earthe. And I wold ordeyne a place for my people Israel, and wyl make it faste/ and they shall dwelle vnder it, and shall moue no more. Neyther shall the chyldren of wyckednesse vexe them anye more, as at the begynnynge, and sythens the tyme I commaunded Iudges to be ouer my people Israell/ and wyll brynge vnder all thyne ennemyes, (for I tolde the that the Lorde wyll bylde the an house.) But when thy dayes be exprired that thou muste go after thy fathers, I wyll set vp thy seed after the, whiche shall be of thy sonnes, and wyl settle his kyngdom. He shal bylde me an house, & I wyll stablische his seate for euer. I wyll be his father, and he shall be my sonne, and I wyl not put my mercye awaye from him, as I dyd frome him that was before the. But I wyll set him in myne house, and in my kyngdome for euer, & his seat shall be sure for euer.

When Nathan had tolde Dauid according to all these wordes, and to all this vision, king Dauid went and sate him before the Lord, and sayd: what am I, O Lorde God, and what is myne household, that thou hast promoted me thus farre. And yet this semed lytle in thyne eyes, O God. But that thou sholdest speake of thy seruantes house for a great while to come: and hast loked vpon me as vpon a mā of high degree, O Lorde God. What can Dauid desire more of the, wherin thou sholdest make thy seruaunt more glorious? Thou knowest thy seruaunte: And Lorde for thy seruauntes sake, euen accordynge to thyne owne herte, thou haste wone all this magnificence, to shewe all bounteousnesse Lorde, there is none lyke the, nor anye God saue thou: accordynge to all that we haue herde with oure eares. Wher ouer what nacyon on the earthe is lyke thy people Israell? whiche God went and redemed to be his owne people, and to make the a name of excellencye and terrydlenesse, with castynge oute nacions before thy people for euer, and thou Lorde, arte become their God.

And now (Lorde) the thynge thou hast spoken concerning thy seruaunt and his house, be it true for euer, and do as thou hast sayd. And thy name continue and waxe greate for euer/ that it be sayd: the Lord of hostes, the God of Israel is God in Israel, and the house of Dauid thy seruaunt be stable before the. For thou Lorde hast tolde thy seruaunt that thou wylt bylde hym an house. And therfore thy seruaunt hath founde in his herte to praye before the. And now Lorde, thou arte the very God, and haste promysed this goodnesse vnto thy seruaunt. Now therfore goo to, and blesse the house of thy seruaunt, that it maye contynue before the for euer. For what thou blessest, O Lorde, that is blessed for euer.

¶ The battayles of Dauid agaynst the Philistines.

CAPI. XVIII.

AFter this, Dauid beat the Philistines, and subdued them/ and toke Geth and the townes thervnto pertaynynge, out of the handes of the Philistines. And he beat the Moabytes, and the Moabytes became Dauids seruauntes, and payde hym tribute. And Dauid beate Hadadezer kynge of Zobah vnto Hemath, as he wente to bynge his dominion vnto the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke from hym a thousande chaarettes, and seuen thousande horsemen, and twentye thousande fotemen, and brake all the chaarettes, saue that he reserued of them an hundred. Then came the Sirians of Damasco to helpe Hadadezer kyng of Zobah. And Dauid slew of the Sirians, two and twentye thousande: and put garisons in Siria Damasco: And the Sirians became Dauids seruauntes, and broughte hym tribute. For the Lorde holpe Dauid in all that he wente about. And Dauid toke the shyldes of golde that were on the the seruauntes of Hadadezer and broughte them to Jerusalem. And frome Thebahath & Chun, cytyes of Hadadezer, broughte Dauid exceedinge moche brasse, Wherwith Salomon afterwarde made the brasen see and the pyllers and the vesselles of brasse.

And when ꝑ Thou kynge of Hemath herde how Dauid had beaten all the hoste of Hadadezer kyng of Zobah, he sent Haduram his sonne to kyng Dauid, to aske his peace, and to praise hym hym, bycause he had foughte with Hadadezer and beaten hym, (for Thou had warre wt Hadadezer) and sent all maner of iewels of golde syluer and brasse with him. And kynge Dauid dedicated them also vnto the Lorde with the siluer and golde that he brought from all nacions/from the Ewmites, from the Moabites, from the chyldren of Ammon, from the Philistines, and from the Amalekites. And Abisai ℔ sonne of Zaruiah slewe of the Edomites in the salt valeye. xviij. thousand, and put a garrison in Edom. and all Edom became Dauids seruauntes/for the Lorde kept Dauid in all that he toke in hande. And Dauid raygned ouer all Israell, and dyd ryght and equite vnto all his people. And Joab the sonne of Zaruiah was ouer the hoste, and Josaphat the son of Ahilud recorder, and Zadock the son of Achitob, and Abimelech the son of Abiathar were the prestes, and Susa was scrybe/and Banaiah the sonne Joiada was ouer the Cerethites and the Pherethites, and the eldest sonnes of Dauid wayted at the kynges hande.

¶ Hanon kyng of the sonnes of Ammon doth great iniurye to the seruauntes of Dauid.

CAPI. XIX.

AFter this, it chaunsed that Nahas king of the chyldren of Ammon dyed / & his son made kynge in his stede. Then sayd Dauid: I wyll shewe kyndnes vnto Hanon the sonne of Nahas, bycause his father dealt kyndly with me. And therupon Dauid sét messengers to comforte hym ouer the dethe of his father. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come in to the land of the childre of Ammon to Hanon to comforte hym, the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayd to Hanon: thinkest thou that Dauid dothe honoure thy father in thy syght, that he hath sent comforters vnto the? Naye, but it is to serche and ouerthrow and to espye out the land, that his seruauntes be come vnto the.

Wherupon Hanon toke Dauids seruaũtes and shaued them, & cut of their cotes harde by their buttockes, and sent them awaye. Then they departed, and sent Dauid worde how they were serued. and the kynge sent to mete them (for the men were exedryngly ashamed) and sayd: tarye at Jericho vntyll your berdes be growen, and then retourne. And when the chyldren of Ammon perceyued they had wone inmyte vnto Dauid: Hanon and the chyldren of Ammon sente a thousande talentes of syluer to hyre them charettes and horsemen oute of ♁ Mesopotamia and oute of Syria Maacah and oute of Zobah. And they hyred two and thyrtye thousande charettes, and the kynge of Maacah and his people, whiche came & pytched before Medba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered them selues togither from their cityes, and marched oute to battayle. And as soone as Dauid herde of it, he sent Joab with all the hoste of stronge men. And the childzen of Ammon came out and put them in araye to battayle before the gate of the citye. And the kynges that were come, kepte them by them selues in the felde.

When Joab saw that the front of the battayle was before hym and after, he chose out of all the youthe of Israell, and put them in araye agaynst the Syrians. And the rest of the people he delyuered vnto Abisai his brother, that they shoulde put them selues in araye agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, and sayde: yf the Syrians be to stronge for me, succoure me/ and yf the chyldren of Ammon be to good for the, I wyll helpe the. Plucke vp thyne herte, and let vs playe the men for our peoples sake, and for the citye of our God, and the Lorde wo what semeth hym beste. And Joab and the people that were with hym drewe nye to the Syrians to fyght, and they fledde before hym. And when the cyldren of Ammon sawe that the Syrians were fledde, they ranne awaye lykewyse from Abisai his brother, and gat them in to the citye. And Joab came to Jerusalem. Also when the Syrians sawe that they were put to the worse of Israell, they sente messengers, and set oute the Syrians that are beyonde the ryuer with Sophach the cappytayne of the hoste of Hadadezer before them. Whiche when it was tolde Dauid, he assembled all Israel, and went ouer Jordan, and set vpon them. And Dauid put him selfe in araye agaynste the Syrians, and they foughte with him. But the Syrians fledde before Israel, and Dauid destroyed of the Syrians seuen thousande charettes, and slewe fourtye thousande fotemen, and kylled Sophach cappitayne of the hoste. When the seruauntes of Hadadezer sawe that they were put to the worse of Israel, they made peax with Dauid, and serued hym. Neither wolde the Syrians helpe the chyldren of Ammon any more.

CAPI. XX.

IN the yere folowynge about the tyme that kynges go out a warrefare, Joab caryed out the armye of the hoste and destroyed the cõtreye of the children of Ammon, and went and beleged Rabah and destroyed it: But Dauid bode at Jerusalem whyle Joab smote Rabah and destroyed it: ✶ And Dauid toke their kynges crowne from his heed, and founde therin the wayght of a talent of golde, & there were precyous stones in it. And it was set on Dauids heed. He brought out also the spoyle of the citye, whiche was exedyng mocke. And he brought forthe the people that were in it, and tamed them with sawes and harowes of yron and with brakes, and so dealt Dauid with all the citycs of the childzen of Ammon. And then Dauid and all the people came agayn to Jerusalem. ✶ After that, there arose warre at Gazer with the Philistines, at whiche tyme Sobocai the Husathite slew Saphai that was of the chyldren of ✶ Raphaim, and they were subdued. And Jonathan the sonne of Samaa Dauids brother, slewe hym. These were borne of Haraphah at Geth, and were ouerthrowen by the hand of Dauid, and of his seruauntes.

¶ The people are punyshed with pestilence, because Dauid caused them to be nombred: so that there dyed thre score and ten thousande men.

CAPI. XXI.

A And Satan stode vp agaynst Israel, and perswaded Dauid to nombre Israell.
☞ And Dauid sayd to Joab and the rulers of the people/ go ye and nombre Israell from Berseabe to Dan, & bringe it to me, that I may knowe the nombre of them. And Ioab answered: the Lord make thy people an hundred tymes so many moo as they be. But my lorde kynge, are they not all my lordes seruauntes? why then dothe my lorde requyre this thynge? why shoulde my lorde be a cause of trespace to Israel?

Neuertheles the kynges wordes preuayled agaynst Joab. And Joab toke his waye & went thorow out all Israel, and came to Jerusalem and gaue the nombre of the count of ỹ people vnto Dauid. And all Israell were in nombre a thousande thousandes, & an hundred thousande men that drewe swerde: and Juda was foure hundred and thre score and ten thousande men that drewe swerde. But the Leuites and Ben Jamin he counted not amonge them. For the kynges dede semed abhominable to Joab. And the Lord was displeased with this thyng, and smote Israell. Then sayde Dauid to God: I haue synned exceadyngly in doynge this thyng. Neuertheles yet doo awaye the wyckednesse of thy seruaunt, for I haue wone aboue measure foolysshly.

And the Lorde spake vnto Gad Dauids
B seear of vysyons, sayinge: goo and tell Dauid ☞ sayinge: Thus saythe the Lorde: I gyue the the choyse of thre thynges: chose the one of them, that I may do vnto the. And Gad came to Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: Thus saythe the Lorde: Chose the, eyther thre yeres famyshement, or thre monethes to be consumed of thyne aduersaries, the swerde of thine ennemies ouertakynge the: or els the swerde of the Lorde thre dayes and pestilence in the lande, the aungell of the Lord destroying thorow out all the costes of Israel. And nowe aduyse thy selfe what worde I shal bryng agayn to hym that sent me. And Dauid said to Gad, I am in exceadynge strayghtes. But let me fall in to the handes of the Lorde / for pasynge greate is his mercye, and let me not fall in to the handes of men.

And the Lorde sente pestilence vpon all Israel, so that there were ouerthrowen of Israel thre score and ten thousande men. And God sente the aungell to Jerusalem to destroye it. And as he was aboute to destroye, the Lorde beheelde, and had compassion on the wretchednesse, and sayde to the aungell that destroyed, it is ynoughe, now cease thyne hande. And the aungell of the Lorde stode by the threshynge flooze of Ornan the Jebusite. And Dauid lyft vp his eyes, and sawe the aungell of the Lord
E stand betwene the erth and heuen with a drawen swerd in his hand, stretched out toward Jerusalem. Then fel Dauid and the elders of D Israel clothed in sacke vpon theyr faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God: Is it not I that commaunded to nombre the people? And I am he that haue synned and wone euyll in dede. But what haue these shepe wone? let thyne hande therfore, O Lorde God, be on me and on my fathers house, and not on thy people to destroy them.

And the aungell commaunded Gad to saye to Dauid, that Dauid shoulde goo and rere vp an aulter vnto the Lorde in the threshing flooze of Ornan the Jebusyte. And Dauid
F wente at the sayinge of Gad, whiche spake in the name of the Lorde. And Ornan tourned aboute, and sawe the aungell, and his foure sonnes with hym, and hyde them selues: for Ornan was threshynge whete. And Dauid came to Ornan. And when Ornan loked and sawe Dauid, he wente out of the threshynge floore and bowed him selfe to Dauid, with his face to the grounde.

And Dauid sayde to Ornan: gyue me the place of the threshynge flooze, that I maye buylde an aulter therin vnto the Lorde. Let me haue it for as moche money as it is worth, that the plage maye cease frome the people.
D And Ornan sayde to Dauid: take it to the/ and let my Lorde kyng do what semeth good in his eyes: se, I gyue the oxen for a burnt sacrifice, and the threshynge sleades for wode, and whete for meatofferynge: I gyue it all. But kynge Dauid sayde to Ornan: not so/ but I wyll bye it for as moche money as it is worthe. I wyll not take that whiche is thyne for the Lorde, and offre burntofferynges wythoute coste.

And so Dauid gaue to Ornan for the place sycles of golde sixe hundred by waygyte. And Dauid buylte there an aulter vnto the Lorde, and offered burntofferynges and peaxofferynges/ and called vnto the Lorde, and he herde hym frome heauen in fyre vpon the aulter of G burntofferynge. And the Lorde commaunded the aungell to put vp his swerde agayne into the shethe of it. At that tyme whē Dauid sawe that the Lorde had herd him in the threshing flooze of Ornan the Jebusyte, he vsed to offre there. For the tabernacle of the Lorde whiche Moses made in the wyldernesse, and the aulter of burntofferynge, were at that season in the hyll at Gabaon. And Dauid coulde not goo before it to seke God, bycause he was aferde of the swerde of the aungel of the Lord. And Dauid sayde: This is the house of the Lorde God, and this is the burntofferynge aulter for Israel.

¶ Dauid

¶ Dauid wylleth his sonne Salomon to buylde the temple of the Lorde: whiche thynge he hym selfe was forbydden to do.

CAPI. XXII.

A AND Dauid commaunded to gather the straungers that were in the lande of Israell, and set hewers to hewe stone, to buylde the house of God. And Dauid prepared plentye of yron for nayles to the wyes of the gates, and to ioyne with all, and aboundaunce of brasse without wayght, and of Cedar trees without nombre. For the Zidons & they of Tire brought moche Cedar woode to Dauid. For Dauid thus thought, Salomon my sonne is young and tender, and the house that is to be buylte for the Lorde, muste excede in greatnesse, that it maye be spoken of and praysed in al landes. I wil therfore make ordinaunce for it. And so Dauid made greate prouision before his death.

And he called Salomon his sonne and charged him to buylde an house for the Lord God of Israel: And Dauid sayde to Salomon: ✱ my sonne, I hadde in myne hert to buylde an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God.

But the worde of the Lorde came to me sayenge: thou hast shed moche bloude, and hast made many battelles. And the people reioyced that they were so wyllynge; for with a pure herte they were wyllynge vnto the Lorde, And therto Dauid the kyng reioyced with grete gladnesse. And Dauid blessed the Lorde before all the congregacion and sayde: Blessed arte thou Lorde God of Israel oure father, for euer & euer. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatnesse, power glorye, victorye, and prayse: for all that is in heauen and in erthe is thyne and thyne is the kyngdome (O Lorde) and thou arte lyfte vp an heed aboue all. Ryches and honoure come of the, and thou raygnest ouer all and in thine hande is power and strengthe, and in thyne hande it is to make great & to gyue strengthe vnto all. And Nowe oure God, we thanke the, and prayse thy glorpouse name. For what am I? and what is my people? that we shuld obtayne strengthe to be so wyllynge? But all is of the, and of that we receyued of thyne hande we haue gyuē the. For we be but straūgers before the and tenauntes, as were all oure fathers. Oure dayes on the erthe is but a shadowe, and there is none abydynge. O Lorde oure God, al this heape that we haue prepared to buylde the an house for thy holye name, commeth of thyne hande, and is al thyne.

I wote my God, that thou prouest the herte and hast pleasure in playnesse. And in playnesse of myne herte I haue wyllyngly gyuen all this. And now I se thy people whiche are here in gladnesse to offer wyllyngly to the. O Lorde God of Abraham / Isaac and of Israel our fathers / kepe this for euer in the ymaginacyon of the thoughtes of the herte of thy people / and prepare theyr hertes vnto the. And gyue vnto Salomon my sonne / a pure herte to kepe my cōmaundementes / thy testimonyes and thyne ordynaunces / and to do all / & to buylde the house which I entended.

And Dauid sayde to all the congregacyon: blesse the Lorde your God. And all the congregacyon blessed the Lorde God of theyr fathers / and stowped and bowed them selues vnto the Lorde and to the kynge. And they offered offerynges vnto the Lord. And on the morowe after the sayd daye / they offered in burntoffrynges vnto the Lorde a thousande oxen / a thousande rammes and a thousande lam mes with theyr drynkeofferinges. And they slue plenteously thorowoute all Israel, and dyd eate and drynke before the Lorde the same day with great gladnesse. And they made Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge the second tyme, and anoynted him vnto the Lord to be ruler, and Zadocke to be the preste. And so Salomō sate on the seate of the Lord and was kynge for Dauid his father, and prospered, and all Israel obeyed him. And al the Lordes and men of power, and all the sonnes of kynge Dauid submytted them selues vnder kynge Salomon. And the Lorde magnifyed Salomon on hyghe in the syght of all Israel, and gaue him so glorioule a kyngdome as none of all that were kynges before in Israell had. Now Dauid the sonne of Isai was kynge ouer all Israel. And the space he raygned ouer Israel was fourtie yere: seuen yere in Hebron and .xxxiij. yere in Jerusalem. And he dyed in a good age: olde, ryche and glorioule: And Salomon his sonne raigned in his steade. The actes of Dauid the kyng bothe fyrst and laste, are wryten in the bokes of Samuel the seare and in the boke of Nathan ℔ prophete, and in the boke of Gad the seare of bishons, with all his kyngdome and power & tymes that wēt ouer him & ouer al ℔ kīngdomes of the erth.

¶ The offeryng of Salomon in the hyllaulter at Gabaon, where he receyueth an aunswere of God what wysdom shulde be gyuen hym with the numbre of his charettes and horsemen.

CAPI. I.

AND Salomon the sonne of Dauid waxed stronge in his kyngdom and the Lorde his God was with him & auaunced him on hyghe. And Salomon comuned wt all Israel, the capitaynes ouer thousandes & hundredes the iudges and al other lordes and auncient hedes thorow out all Israel. And so Salomon and all the congregacion with him went to the hillaultter of Gabaon: for there was the tabernacle of the wytnesse of God, *whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde made in the wyldernesse. But the Arcke of God had Dauid brought frome Kariath Jarim, in to the place he hadde prepared for it. Where he had pytched a tent for it euen at Jerusalem. Moreouer the brasen aulter that Bezeleel the sonne of Ur, the sonne of Hur had made, was at Gabaon also, before the tabernacle of the Lorde. And Salomon and the congregacion went to vyset it. And Salomon offred there before the Lorde vpon the brasen aultare that was by the tabernacle of witnesse, a thousande burntsacrifyces. And the same night God apeared vnto Salomon and sayd to him: aske what shal I gyue the. And Salomon sayde vnto God: thou hast shewed great mercy vnto Dauid my father, and haste made me kynge in his stede *& now Lord God let thy promyse vnto Dauid my father be true for thou haste made me kynge ouer a people lyke the dust of the earth in multitude. Wherfore gyue me wysdome and knowledge howe to behaue my selfe vnto this people: for who is able to iudge this people that is so great?

Then God sayde to Salomō, because thou haddest this in thine hert, and dydest not aske treasure and rychesse, honoure and the lyues of thyne enemyes, neyther yet longe lyfe: but hast asked wysdome and knowledge, to iudge my people, ouer which I haue made the kyng: wysdome and knowledge shalbe gyuen the, & I will gyue the treasure, rychesse, and glorye also, that amonge the kynges before the or after the, none was or shalbe lyke §. And so Salomon came frome the hylaulter that was at Gabaon to Jerusalem frome the tabernacle of wytnesse and raygned at Jerusalē. And Salomon gathered charettes & horsemen: so that he had a thousande and foure hundred charettes, and twelue thousande horsemen, whiche he bestowed in the charet cyties and aboute § kynge at Jerusalem. And the kynge made siluer and golde at Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plentye as the mulberye trees that growe in the valeyes. And the horses which Salomon hadde, were brought him out of Egypte frome Reua. The kynges marchantes fet them out at Reua at a pryce. They came and brought out of Egypte a charet for sixe hundred sycles, and an horse for an hundred and lyxty. And so brought they to all the kynges of the Hethites and to the kynges of Siria thorow the handes of the sayd marchauntes. ii. Regū. i. d.

¶ Salomon sendeth to Hiram the kynge of Tyr for wood and workemen.

CAP. II.

AND Salomon determined to bupld an house for the name of the Lorde, & an house for his kyngdome: and tolde out thre skore and ten thousand men to beare burdens and foure skore thousand to hewe in the mountayne, and thre thousande and sixe hundred to ouerse them.

*And Salomon sente to Hiram kynge of Tire sayenge: As thou dyddest deale with Dauid my father and dyddest sende him Cedar wodde, to bupld him an house to dwell in, euen so deale with me now: that I may bupld an house for the name of the Lorde my God, to consecrate it to him to burne swete odoures and to set shewbred before him perpetually, & for burntsacrifice morninge and euenynge, & on the Saboth dayes, and the first daye of euery new moone, and in the solemne feastes of § Lorde our God, so to continew euer in Israel. And the house whiche I bupld is greate: for great is our God aboue all goddes: So that who can be able to bupld him an house: whe that heauen, neyther heauen aboue all heauens is able to receyue him, what am I then that I shoulde bupld him an house? naye, but to burne sacrifice before him: sende me nowe therfore a connyng man to worke in golde, siluer, brasse, yron, scarlet, cremosyn, and Jacinct coloure, and that can skyll to graue, to be wt the connynge men that are with me in Juda and Jerusalem, whiche Dauid my father dyd prepare. And sende me also Cedar trees, sirre trees and *Algume trees out of Libanon. For I wote well thy seruauntes can skyll to hewe tymbre in Libanon. And loo, my men shalbe with thyne, that they may prepare me tymbre ynough. For the house which I bupld is great and wonderfull. And beholde, I sent for thy seruauntes the cutters and hewers of tymbre twenty thousande quarters of whete, and twentye thousande quarters of barleye, and twentye thousande bathes of wyne, and twenty thousand bathes of oyle. A iii. Regū. v. d. B C *Some rede Cozal or Bzasyll.

tynge and sent to Salomon: because the Lorde loueth his people, he hathe made the kynge ouer them. And Hiram sayde moreouer: blessed be the Lorde God of Israell, whiche hath made both heuen and erth, that he hath gyuen Dauid the kynge a wyse sonne ℔ hath discrecion and vnderstandynge, to buylde an house for the Lord, and an other for his kingdome. And nowe I haue sent a wyse man and D a man of vnderstandynge called Hiram Abi, ℭ is the sonne of a woman of the daughters of Dan (how be it his father was a Tirian) and he can skylle to worke in golde, syluer, brasse, yron, stone, tymbre, scarlet, Jacinct, bysse, and cremosin: and graue all maner of grauinges, and to fynde all maner sotle worke that shalbe set before hym, with thy cunnynge men, ℭ with the connynge men of my Lorde Dauid thy father. And nowe the wheat, barley, oyle and wyne whiche my Lorde hath sayde, lette him sende his seruauntes. And we wyll cutte wood out of Lybane, as moche as thou shalt nede and wyll brynge it to the in shyppes, by see to ports Jabo: and thence thou mayste carye them to Jerusalem. And Salomon nombred all the straungers that were in the lande of Israel, after the tyme his father Dauid had nombred them. And they were founde an hundred and. lij. thousande and sixe hundred. And he set. lxx. thousande of them to beare burthens, and. lxxx. thousande to hew in the mountayne, and three thousande and sixe hundred to encourage and to set the people a worcke.

THen Salomon began to buylde ℔ house of the Lorde, at Jerusalem, in mounte Moriah, which was shewed Dauid his father when he prepared a place in the threshinge floure of Ornan the Jebusite. And he began to buylde the seconde daye of the seconde moneth, the fourthe yere of his raygne. And this is the foundacion of Salomon in buyldinge the house of God. The length was three skore cubites after the old cubyte, ℭ the bredth xx. And the porche at the ende was as large as the house bredth twenty cubytes: ℭ the height was an hundred and twenty cubytes. And he

And he paued the house with precious marbell goodly. And it was gold of Pharuaim. And he ouerlayde the house: both beames, postes, walles and wres with golde, and graued Cherubes vpon the walles.

And he made the house molle holye, whose length was ℔ twēty cubytes lyke to the bredth of the house, and the bredth therof was also twenty cubytes. And he ouerlayde it with the best golde, that drue to the somme of sixe hundred talentes, he made also nayles of golde, ℭ the wayght of euery nayle of golde weyed fifty sycles. And he ouerlayde the vpper chābres with golde.

And he made in the house molt holy two Cherubes of Image worke, and gylded them with golde. And the wynges of the Cherubes were twenty cubytes longe. The one wynge was fyue cubytes and touched the wal of the house, and the other wynge was lykewyse. v. cubytes and touched the wynge of the other Cherub. And the one wynge of the other Cherub was fyue cubytes, and touched the wall of the house, and the other wynge was fyue cubytes also, and reached to the wynge of the other Cherub. So that ℔ wynges of the sayde Cherubes raught twentye cubites. And they stode on their fete and loked inwardes. And he made a fore hangynge of Jacynct colour, of

And the hed that was aboue on the top of one of them was. v. cubytes. And he made suche chaynes as was in the quere, ℭ put them on the heedes of the pyllers, and made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on ℔ cheynes. CAPI. IIII.

AND he made an aulter of brasse. xx. cubytes longe and. xx. cubytes brode and ten cubytes hyghe. And he cast a brasen see of ten cubytes from brym to brym, and round in compase and fyue cubytes hygh: and a lyne of thirty cubytes might haue cōpased it roūdaboute. And the lykenes of oxen dyd compase it roundabout vnder it: that is to wete, twoo rowes of oxen casse whiche when it was cast dyd compase that see which was ten cubytes wyde, roundeabout. And it stode also vpō. xii. oxen: of which three loked North, three West, three South, and three East, and the see vpon them aboue an hyghe, and the hynder partes of them inward. And the thickest of it was an handebreede, and the brym lyke the brym of a cup, with floures of lylyes. And it receyned ℔ belde the thousand bathes.

And he made ten lauers: and put fyue on ℔ ryghthande and fyue on the left, to wasshe in. And in them they thrust the flesh of the burnt offerynges. But the see was for the preastes, to wasshe in. And he made ten candelstyckes of golde in their facyons, and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryghthande and fyue on the left. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryghtsyde and fyue on the left. And he made an hundred basens of golde. And he made the courte of the preastes, and the greate courte and dores to it: and ouerlayde the doores of theym, with brasse

And Hiram fynished the worke he made for kynge Salomon vnto the temple of God: The two pyllers with their scalpes of ꝑ two heedes that were on the toppes of the pyllers and the two wrethes to couer the twoo scalpes of the heedes that were on the toppes of the pyllers: and foure hundred pomegranates for the two wrethes, two rowes of pomegranates for euery wrethe, to couer the two scalpes of the heedes that were on the pyllers. And he made bottomes, and lauers vpon the bottomes: and the see with twelue oxen vnder it. And therto pottes, shouelles, flesshe hokes, and all their vessels dyd Hiram Abi make for kyng Salomon for the house of the Lorde, of bryght ydalle. In the playne of Iordan dyd ꝑ kynge cast them, in the thicke earthe, betwene Soroth and Zaredatha. And made of al these vessels so myghty great aboundance, that the wayght of ydalle coulde not be reckened.

And Salomon made all the vesselles that pertayned to the house of God: the golden aulter and the tables with the shewbred vpō thē the candlestickes with their lampes to burne after the maner before the quere, and that of pure golde, and the floures and the lampes, & the snoffers were golde, and that perfect golde: and the dressynge knyues, basens, sponces and censers of pure golde. And the vnner wyes of the place most holy, and the wyes of the temple, were golde. And thus was all the worke ꝑ Salomon made for the house of the Lorde fynished.

And when the worcke that Salomon made in the house of the Lorde was fynished: then Salomon brought in the gyftes dedycate by Dauid his father, the syluer and the gold and all the iewels, and put them amonge the treasure of the house of God.

¶ After the store houses and the Arcke were put in the temple, the glorye of the Lord fylled the temple.

A 3. Reg. 8. a

THen Salomon gathered the elders of Israel togither and al the heedes of the trybes and auncient Lordes among the children of Israel, vnto Ierusalem: to bryngе the Arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde forth of the cytie of Dauid which is Sion. And all the men of Israell resorted vnto the kynge in the feast of the seuenth moneth. And when al the elders of Israell were come, the Leuites toke vp the Arcke, and the preastes and the Leuites brought awaye the Arcke and the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the holye vesselles B that were in the tabernacle. And kynge Salomon and all the congregacion of Israell that were assembled vnto him before the Arcke, offred shepe and oxen, so many that they coulde not be told or numbred for multitude. And the preastes brought the Arcke of the apoyntemēt of the Lorde vnto his place in the quere of the temple and place moost holye: euen vnder the wynges of the Cherubes, that the Cherubes stretched oute their wynges ouer the place of the Arcke and couered the arcke and her staues aboue on vpgbe. And the staues of the Arcke, were so longe, that they were sene a lytle before the quere, but not farre without. And there it remayneth vnto this daye. Moreouer there was nothinge in the Arcke saue the two tables whiche Moses put therein at Horeb, which the Lorde had wryten to the children of Israel, after their commynge forth frome Egypte. And when the preastes were come oute of the holy place (for all the preastes that were founde there sanctified theym selues and dyd not as yet at that tyme wayte by course) But the Leuites euery one of them that were vnder Asaph, Heman and Iduthun, and amonge their children & brethren, were arayed in lysse and sange with Simbales, Psalteries & harpes standinge east frome the aulter, and with them an hundred & twenty preastes blowinge trompettes. And the trompet blowers and the singers so agreed, that it semed but one voyce D in prayesinge and thankynge the Lorde. And as the voyce of the trompettes, symbales and instrumentes of melody arose, ✳ & as they prayesed the Lorde, that he was good and that his mercy lasteth euer, the house of the Lorde was fylled with a cloude: so that the preastes could not endure to minister by reason of the cloud. For the glorye of the Lorde hadde fylled the house of God.

CAPI. VI.

THen Salomon sayde: The Lorde hathe A spoken, that he wyll dwel in darcknesse. iii. Reg. viii. b
And I haue buylt an habitation for the and a place to dwell in for euer. And the kyng turned his face and blessed the hole congregacion of Israel, and all the congregacion of Israel stode. And he sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel whiche spake with his mouthe to my father Dauid & hathe fulfylled it with his handes, for God sayde: sythens the tyme I brought my people oute of the lande of Egypte, I chose no cytie amonge all the trybes of Israel to buylde an house in, that my name myght be there, neyther chose I anye man to be a ruler ouer my people Israell. But nowe I haue chosen Ierusalem to haue my name there, and haue chosen Dauid to be ouer my people Israel.

✳ And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel: But the Lorde sayd to Dauid my father: for as moche as it was in thyne herte, to buylde an house for my name, thou dydest well that thou haddest it in thyne hert. sayenge that he hathe spoken. For I arose in the rowme of Dauid my father, and sate on the seate of Israell, as the Lorde promysed, & haue buylt an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And therin I haue put ỹ aercke wherin the couenaunt of the Lord made with the children of Israel, is. And he stepte forthe before the aulter of the Lorde in the presence of all the congregacion of Israell, and stretched out his handes, for Salomon had made a brasen pulpyt of fyue cubytes longe and. v. cubytes broade, and three of heyght, and had set it in the myddes of the great court, vpon ỹ he stept and kneled downe vpon his knees before all the congregacion of Israel, and stretched out his handes to heauē and sayd: Lord God of Israel there is no God lyke the ether in heauen or in earthe, which kepest couenaūt and shewest mercy vnto thy seruauntes, that walke before the with all their hertes. Whiche hast kept with Dauid my father that thou promysedest him: thou saydest it w̄ thy mouth and hast fulfilled it with thyne hand, as it is to se this daye.

Now Lorde God of Israel kepe with thy seruaunt Dauid my father, that thou promysedest him sayenge: ✱ thou shalt not be without one or other in my sight that shall sit vpō the seate of Israel, vpon this condicion yet, if thy children will take hede to their wayes to walke in my law, as thou hast walked before me. Now Lorde God of Israel let thy saying be true, whiche thou saydest vnto thy seruaūt Dauid. How be it in very dede, cā God dwel with man on earthe? Beholde, neyther heauen or heauen aboue all heauens is hable to contayne the: how shuld the house then whiche I haue buylt for the w̄ it? But turne to ỹ prayer of thy seruaunt and to his supplicatiō (O Lorde my God) to herken vnto the voyce and prayer which thy seruante maketh before the. That thyne eyes be open ouer this house daye and night, and ouer the place of whiche thou hast sayde, that thou woldest put thy name there: to herken vnto the prayer which thy seruaunt prayeth at this place: herkē ther fore vnto the prayers of thy seruaunte and of thy people Israell, whiche they praye in this place. But heare thou it out of thy dwellinge place heauen: and when thou hearest it be mercyfull. ✱ If a man synne againste his neyghboure, & an adiuration be layde to his charge, to adiure him with all, and the adiuration come before thyne aulter in this house: then heare thou from heauen, and worke & iudge thy seruauntes, that thou rewarde the euyll, and bringe his waye vpon his heed, and iustifye the righteous, and gyue him according to his righteousnesse.

Lykewyse yf thy people Israel be put to ỹ worse before their ennemyes, because they haue synned against the: Yet yf they turne & confesse thy name, and make intercession and praye before the in this house: thē heare thou from heauen and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and bringe them agayne vnto the land which thou gauest to them and to their fathers.

Yf heauen be shut vp, ỹ there be no rayne, & because they haue synned against the: yet yf they praye at this place and confesse thy name and turne from their synnes at thy scourging: then heare thou from heauen and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy seruauntes and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe thē a good waye to walke in, and sende rayne vpon thy lande which thou hast gyuen vnto thy people for an enheritaunce.

Yf there chaunce darthe in the lande, pestilence, drought, or myldewe, grashoppers or caterpillers, or that their ennemyes besyege them in the cytes of their owne land, or what so euer plage or sickenesse it be. Then all the supplications and prayers that shall be made of all men amonge all thy people Israel, whiche shall know euery man his owne sore and his owne grieke, and shall stretche out their handes towarde this house: thou shalt heare from heauen thy dwellynge place, and shalt be mercyful, and gyue euerye man accordinge vnto all his waye, euen as thou shalt knowe euery mans herte: for thou onely knowest the hertes of the childrē of Adam: that they maye feare the and walke in thy wayes as longe as they lyue vpon the earthe, which thou gauest to our fathers.

Moreouer a straunger whiche is not of thy people Israell, yf he come from a farre lande for thy great names sake & thy myghty hande and stretched out arme, and so come and pray at this house: thou shalt heare him from heauen thy dwellynge place, and shalt do accordinge to all that the straunger calleth to the for: that al the nacyons of the erth may know thy name, and feare the, as doeth thy people Israell: and that it maye be knowen that this house which I haue buylt, is called after thy name.

When thy people shall go out to warre against their enemyes ỹ way ỹ thou shalt sende them: Yf they praye to the the waye towarde this cytie whiche thou hast chosen, and house which I haue buylte for thy name: then heare from heauen, their supplication and prayer, and helpe them in their right.

Yf they shall synne against the (as there is no man but that he shall synne) and thou be angrye with them and delyuer them to their enemyes, and they leade them awaye captiue vnto a lande ferre or neare, yet yf their hertes come to them agayne in the lande, where they be in captiuite, and turne and praye vnto the in the lande where they be in captiuite, sayeng we haue synned and haue done euyll and wickedly, and turne agayne to the, with all their hertes, & all their soules, in the lande of their captiuite where they be kept in bondage, and so praye towarde their lande which thou gauest vnto their fathers, and cytie whiche thou hast chosen, and to this house whiche I haue buylt for thy name: Then heare from heauen thy dwellinge place, their supplication & prayers, and iudge their cause, and be mercyfull vnto thy people, thoughe they haue synned against the.

And nowe therfore aryse Lorde God in thy restinge place: bothe thou and the Arcke of thy strength, and let thy preastes put on victory and thy sayntes reioyse in goodnes And Lorde God turne not awaye the face of thyne annoynted: But remembre the mercyes promysed to Dauid thy seruaunt.

¶ The fyre consumeth the sacrifyce. The Lorde appeareth to Salomon the seconde tyme.

a When Salomō had made an ende of prayenge, there came downe fyre frome heauen and consumed the burntoffring and the sacrifices. And the glory of the Lorde fylled the house: that the preastes coulde not go into the house of the Lorde, because the glory of the Lorde had fylled the house of ꝑ Lord.

b And all the children of Israel sawe howe the fyre came downe, and the glorye of the Lorde vpon the house, and stouped with their faces to the earthe vpon the pauement and bowed theym selues, and confessed vnto the Lorde, that he was good, and that his mercye lasted euer.

And the kynge and all the people offred offringes before the Lorde, So that kynge Salomon offred. xxij. thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousande shepe. And so the kynge and al the people halowed the house of God. And the preastes wayted on their offices and the Leuites with instrumentes of musyke of the Lorde whiche kynge Dauid made to confesse vnto the Lorde that his mercy lasteth euer, when Dauid gaue prayse thorow their handes. And the preastes blewe trompettes fast by them: and all Israel stode. Moreouer Salomon halowed the myddle of the courte that was before the Lorde: for there he offred burntofferinges and the fat of the peaceofferinges, because the brasen aulter which Salomō had made, was not hable to receyue ꝑ burntoffringes and the meateoffringes and the fat.

c And Salomon kept a feast the same season of seuen dayes, and all Israell with him, an exceadinge great congregacion, euen from Hemath vnto the ryuer of Egypte. And ꝑ eyght daye they made a gatheringe. For they kepte the halowynge of the aulter seuen dayes and the feast seuen dayes. And the. xxiij. daye of ꝑ seuenth moneth, he let the people departe into their tentes, glad and merye in hert for the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed to Dauid, to Salomon and to Israel his people.

d e * And so Salomon fynyshed the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house, and all that came in his herte, to make in the house of the Lorde and in his owne house, and that prosperously.

f And the Lorde appeared to Salomon by nyght and sayde to him: I haue herde thy petition and haue chosen this place for my selfe, to be an house of sacrifice. Moreouer yf I shut vp heauen that there be no rayne, or yf I commaunde the grashoppers to deuoure the lande or yf I sende pestilence amonge my people: yet yf my people that are named after my name, shall humble them selues and make intercession and seke my presence, and turne from their wycked wayes, then will I heare frome heauen and be mercyfull to their synnes, and wil heale their lāde. Furthermore myne eyes shal be open and myne eares attent vnto the prayers made in this place. And fynally I haue chosen & sanctified this house, that my name be there for euer, and myne eyes & myne herte shalbe there perpetually.

And yf thou shalt walke before me as Dauid thy father walked, to do accordinge to al that I haue commaunded, and shalte kepe myne ordinaunces and my lawes: then I wil stablyshe the seat of thy kyngdome, accordinge to the couenaunt I made with Dauid thy father sayenge: * Thou shalt haue euer one or other that shall rule in Israel. But yf ye turne awaye and forsake myne ordinaunces and my commaundementes whiche I haue set before you, and shall go and serue other goddes and bowe your selues to them: then wil I plucke them vp by the rootes out of my lande which I haue gyuen them, and will cast this house which I haue sanctifyed for my name oute of my sight, and wil make a prouerbe and a tale of it amonge all nations. And this house that is so hyghe, shall be a wonder to all that passeth therby, that they shall saye: Why hathe the Lorde dealt on this fashion with this land and with this house? And it shall be aunswered them, because they forsoke the Lord God of their fathers whiche brought them out of the lande of Egypte, and claue to other goddes, and bowed to them and serued them: euē therfore brought he on them all this euyll.

¶ The cities that Salomon buylded after the house of God was fynyshed.

CAPI. VIII.

A After twenty yeres when Salomō had buylte the house of the Lorde, and his owne house: he buylte the cyties that Hiram gaue him, and put certayne of the children of Israel in them. And Salomon wente to Hemath Zobah and strengthed it. And he buylte Thadmor in the wyldernesse and all ꝑ store cyties which he buylt in Hemath. And he buylt Bethhoron the vpper and Bethhoron the nether, and made them stōge cyties with walles, gates and barres. And Baalath and all the store cyties that Salomon had, and all the charet cyties and the cyties of horsmen. & all that Salomon had lust to buylde in Ieruselem and Libanon, and thorowoute all the lande of his dominion.

* iii. Regū. ix. b

B And all the people that were left of the Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuites and Iebusites, whiche were not of the children of Israel: euen the children of them, whiche were lefte after them in the lande, and were not cōsumed of the children of Israel, vpō Salomō make tributaries vnto this daye. But of the childzen of Israel dyd Salomō make no bōdmen in his wozke: but they were men of war and rulers and greate Lozdes with him, and capitaynes ouer his charettes and hozsemen. And kynge Salomons officers that ouersawe and ruled the people, were two hundzed and fyftye.

And Salomō brought the wughter of Pharao out of the cytie of Dauid vnto the house þ he hadde made foz her. Foz he sayde: my wyfe shall not dwell in the house of Dauid kynge of Israell, foz it is holy, because the Arcke of the Lozde came into it.

And frome thencefoz the Salomon offered burntoffringes vnto the Lozde on the aultare of the Lozde whiche he hadde buylt befoze the pozche to offer daye by daye accozdinge to the commaundement of Moses, and in the sabbotes and newmones, and the thze solemne feastes of the yere, the feast of swete bzed, þ feast of wekes and the feast of boothes.

And Salomon assigned the pzeastes euerye man to his office as Dauid his father had ozdred them, and the Leuites vnto their office, foz to pzayse and minister befoze the pzeestes daye by daye, and the pozters by course at euery gate. Foz so hadde Dauid the man of God commaunded. And the commaundemente of the kynge vnto the pzeastes and the Leuites concernynge what so euer cause it was, and concernyng the treasures, was not disobeyed.

And all the wozke of Salomon went well fozwarde euen frome the daye of the foundacion of the house of the Lozde was layde: tyll he had fynyshed it, that the house of the Lozd was perfect. And then went kynge Salomon to Azion Gaber, and to Eloth and to the seeside in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sent him by the hande of his seruauntes, shippes & seruauntes that coulde skill of the see: Whiche went with the seruantes of Salomon to Ophir, and brought thence foure hundzed and fyftye talentes of golde, and brought it to kynge Salomon.

¶ The cōmunicacion of Salomon with the quene of Saba, and the gyftes that the one gaue the other. The deth of Salomon: after whome succedeth Roboam.

CAPI. IX.

1. Regū. x. a Math. xii. d
Luc. xi. d

And the quene of Saba herde of þ fame of Salomon and came to proue him with ryddelles at Ierusalem, with a very great companye, and with camelles that bare swete odures and plentye of golde and pzecioule stone. And when she was come to Salomon, she communed with him of al that was in her herte. And Salomon sayled her al her questions, that there was nothinge hyd frome Salomon, which he tolde her not.

And when the quene of Saba had sene the wysdome of Salomon and the house that he had buylt, and the meat of his table and the sittinge of his seruauntes, and the standinge of his wayters, and their apparell, and his buttelars with their apparel, and his pacions out of whiche he went into the house of the Lozde, she was so astonyed that there was no moze heet in her.

And then she sayde to the kynge: the saying whiche I herde in myne owne lande, of thyne actes and of thy wysdome, is truthe. But I beleued not the wozdes of theym, vntyll I came and myne eyes hadde seneit. And lo, the one halfe of thy wysdome was not tolde me: thou excedest the fame that I herde, happy are thy men, and happy are these thy seruauntes which stande befoze the alwaye and heare thy wysdome. Blessed be the Lozde thy God whiche had lust to the, to make the, kynge on his seate, vnto the Lozde thy God. Because thy God loued Israel, to make them continewe euer, therfoze made he the kynge ouer them to weight and equite.

And she gaue the kynge an hundzed and xx. talentes of golde, and of swete odures exceadynge great aboundaunce with pzecioule stones, that there was no such swete odures as the quene of Saba gaue kynge Salomon. And mozeouer the seruauntes of Hiram and the seruauntes of Salomon whiche brought golde frome Ophir, brought also * Algume wood and pzecioule stones. And the kynge made of the Algume wood steyares in þ house of the Lozde and in the kynges palace, & harpes and psalteries foz singers. And there was no suche wood sene befoze in the lande of Iuda. And kynge Salomon gaue to the quene of Saba all her desyre that she asked aboue that she brought vnto the kyng. And so she turned and went awaye to her owne lande with her seruauntes.

The somme of golde that came to Salomon yere by yere, was sixe hundzed. lxbi. talentes of golde, besydes that which chapmen and marchauntes brought, and all the kynges of Arabia, and Dukes of countreyes brought golde and siluer to Salomon. And kynge Salomō made two hundzed bokelers of golde. vj. hundzed sycles of beten golde to a bokelar: and thzee hundzed shyldes of beten golde, thzee hundzed sycles of golde to a shylde, and he put them in the house of the forest of Libanon.

And the kynge made a great seate of Iuory and ouerlayde it with pure golde. And there were sixe steppes to the seate with a fotestole of golde fastened to the seate: and pomelles on eche syde of the sittinge place, and two lyons standinge by the pomelles. And. xij. lyons stoode on the one syde and on the other, vpon sixe steppes, that there was no suche in any kyngdome.

And all the dzynkynge vessels of kyng Salomon were golde, and all the vessels of the house of the fozest of Libanō, were pure gold, & as foz siluer, it was coūted nothinge worth in the dayes of Salomō. Foz the kynges shippes went * to Tharsis with the seruantes of Hirā euery thze yere ones. And the shippes of Tharsis brought golde, siluer, the tethe of elephantes, apes and pecockes.

And kynge Salomon passed al the kynges of the of the earthe in rychesse and wysdome. And all the kynges of the earthe soughte the presence of Salomon, to heare the wysdome that God hadde put in his herte. And they brought euerye man his presente in vesselles of syluer, and vesselles of golde, and rayment, harnesse, swete odoures, horses and mules, yere by yere.

And Salomon had foure thousande maungers of horses and charettes for them, and .xij. thousande horsemen. And he bestowed them in the charet cityes, and with the kynge at Jerusalem. And he raygned ouer al the kinges from Euphrates, vnto the lande of the Philistines, and so to the borders of Egypt. ✱ And the kinge made syluer in Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plenteous as the mulberye trees that grow in the valeyes. And Salomon had horses brought him out of Egypt, and out of all landes.

✱ The rest of the actes of kynge Salomon bothe fyrste and laste, are wrytten in the boke of Nathan the Prophete, and in the prophesye of Ahiah the Silonite, and in the vysyons of Jadi the sear of vysyons agaynste Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. And when Salomon had raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Jsraell fourtye yeres, he layde hym to reste with his fathers, and was buryed in the citye of Dauid his father, and Roboam his sonne raygned in his stede.

CAPI. X.

AND Roboam wente to Sichem: for to Sichem were all Jsrael come to make him kynge. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat beynge in Egypt herde it (for he was fled for feare of Salomon the kynge) he returned out of Egypte. And they sent and called him. And so Jeroboam and all Jsraell came and communed with Roboam and sayd. Thy father made vs a greuous yoke: but rempt thou somwhat of the greuous seruyce of thy father, and of his heuye yoke that he put vpon vs, and we wyll serue the. And he sayde to them: come agayne after thre dayes to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Roboam counselled with the elders that stode before Salomon his father, whyle he lyued, and sayde: What counsell geue ye me, to aunswere this people agayne? And they tolde him sayinge: yf thou shalte be kynde to this people and please theym / and shalte speake louynge wordes to them, they wyll be thy seruauntes for euer. But he lefte the counsell whiche the elders gaue him, and take counsell with the younge men that were noursed vp with hym, and hadde stande in his presence, and sayde to them: What aduyse geue ye, that I may answere this people whiche haue communed with me, sayinge: Abate somwhat of the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs.

And the younge men that were noursed vp with him, talked with him, sayinge: thus answere the people that spake to the, sayinge. Thy father made our yoke heuye: But make thou oure yoke somwhat lighter. Thus wyse aunswere them: My lytle fynger shall be heuyer then my fathers loynes. ✱ For where my father put a heuye yoke vpon you, I wyll put more therto / & where my father chastised you with whippes, I wyl chastise you with Scorpyons. Nowe when Jeroboam and all Jsrael were come the thyrde daye, as the kynge bad, sayinge: come agayne to me the thyrde daye: The kynge answered them cruelly: for kyng Roboam lefte the counsell of the aged men, & answered them after the aduyse of the yonge men, sayinge: Yf my father haue made youre yoke greuouse, I wyll adde therto / and where my father chastised you with whippes, I will chastise you with scorpions. And so the kynge harkened not vnto the people / for the turnyng awaye was of God, that the Lorde myghte make good his sayinge whiche he spake by the hande of Ahiah the Silonite to Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. And when all Jsrael saw that the kynge wolde not heare them, the people answered the kynge sayinge: what part haue we with Dauid, or enheritaunce with the son of Jsai? let euery mā of Jsrael go to his tent. ✱ And nowe Dauid se to thyne owne house. And therupon all Jsraell gette them to theyr tentes / so that Roboam raygned ouer no mo of the chyldren of Jsrael then dwelte in the cityes of Juda. Then kyng Roboam sent to the Haduram that was ouer the trybute, and the children of Jsrael stoned him with stones that he dyed. But kynge Roboam made spede and gat him vp to his charet to fle to Jerusalem. And so Jsrael departed from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

¶ Roboam is forbydden to fyghte agaynste Jeroboam. He hathe eyghtene wyues and thre score concubines: and by them eyght and twentye sonnes and three score daughteres.

CAPI. XI.

AND when Roboam was come to Jerusalē, he gathered of the house of Dauid and Benjamin to the nombre of nyne score thousande chosse men of warre to fyght with Jsraell / for to brynge the kyngdome agayn to Roboam. But the worde of the Lord came to Semeiah the man of God, sayinge: speake vnto Roboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Juda, and to all Jsraell that are in Juda, and to Benjamin, and saye: thus sayth the Lorde. Go not nor fight with your brethre: but returne euerye man to his house / for this thyng is done of me. And they obeyed the wordes of the Lorde, and returned from goynge agaynst Jeroboam.

And Roboam dwelte in Jerusalem & buylt stronge cityes in Juda: as Bethlehem, Etam, and Thekua: Bethzur, Socho, and Odllam: Geth, Mareshah and Ziph: Adurahim, Lachis and Azecah: Zarah, Aialon, & Hebron. Which were the stronge cityes of Juda, & Benjamin.

And

And when he hadde repayred suche stronge cities, he put capitaynes in them, and store of vitayle, and of oyle, and of wyne. And he ordeyned in all cities shyldes and speres, and made them exceedyng stronge. And so Juda and Benjamin were vnder him.

And the preestes and the Leuites that were A in all Israell resorted to him oute of all theyr coostes. In so moche that the Leuites lefte their suburbes and possessions and came to Juda and Jerusalem: for Jeroboam and his sonnes had cast them oute from ministringe vnto the Lorde. * And he ordeyned him preestes of iii.Reg.xii.g hyllaulters, bothe to kylde deuylles, and also to the calues whiche he hadde made. And after them there came of al the tribes of Israel (such as their hertes moued them to seke the Lorde God of Israell) to Jerusalem to offre vnto the Lord God of their fathers, & so they strēgthed the kyngdom of Juda, and made Roboam the sonne of Salomon myghty thre yere long/ for thre yere they walked in the waye of Dauid and Salomon.

And Roboam toke him Mahalath ꝑ doughter of Jerimoth the sonne of Dauid to wife/ And Abihail the doughter of Eliab the sonne of Jsai, whiche bare him chyldren: Jeus, Samariah & Zaham. And after her, he toke Maacah the doughter of Absalom, whiche bare him Abiah, Ethai, Ziza and Salumith. But Roboam loued Maacah the doughter of Absalom aboue all his other wyues & concubynes/ for he toke eyghtene his wiues, & thre score concubynes, and begate thre score doughters, and eyght and twenty sonnes. And Roboam made Abiah the sonne of Maacah the chyefe ruler amonge his brethren, for to make him kynge. And he played a wyse parte, and scattered of al his chyldren thorow out all the countreyes of Juda and Benjamin in euery stronge city. And he gaue them aboundaunce of vitayle, and asked many wyues.

¶ Sesac kynge of Egypt robbeth the temple of the Lorde. Roboam dyeth, and Abiah his sonne succedeth him.

CAPI. XII.

A AND when Roboam had stablysshed the kyngdome and made it stronge he forsoke the lawe of the Lorde, and all Jsrael with him. * Wherfore the fyfte yere of iii.Reg.xiiii.g kynge Roboam, Sesac the kynge of Egypte came vp agaynste Jerusalem (bicause they had trespassed agaynste the Lorde) with twelue hundred charettes, and thre score thousande horsemen. And the people were without nombre that came with hym forth of Egypte, with them of Libia / and the ꝑ Succhites, and the blackemoores. And they toke the stronge cytyes that were in Juda, and came to Jerusalem.

ꝑ Some rede Troglodites.

Then came Semeiah the Prophete to Roboam, and to the lordes of Juda that were gathered to Jerusalem for feare of Sesac, & sayd to them: thus sayth the Lorde: Ye haue lefte
C me, and therfore wyll I leaue you also in the
B handes of Sesac. Wherupon the lordes of Jsrael and the kyng humbled them selues & sayde the Lorde is righteous. And when the Lorde sawe ꝑ they submitted them selues, the worde of the Lorde came to Semeiah, sayinge: they meke them selues, and therfore I wyll not destroye them. But I wil deliuer them somwhat, and my wrath shall not fall vpon Jerusalem. Neuertheles they shall be his seruauntes, to knowe what difference is betwene my seruyce and the seruyce of the kyngdomes of other landes. So Sesac kynge of Egypte came to Jerusalem, & toke away the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of the kynges house, and shortly he toke all. And he toke also the shyldes of golde whiche Salomon made. In stede of whiche kyng Roboam made shyldes of brasse, and put them in the keppynge of the capitaynes of his garde, whiche wayted in the gate of the kynges house. And as often as the kynge went to the house of the Lorde, the garde went and fet them, and brought them ageayne vnto the garde chambre. And so bicause he humbled him selfe, the wrathe of the Lorde turned from him, and destroyed not all together. And moreouer there were many good thinges yet in Juda.

So kynge Roboam waxed myghtye in Jerusalem and raigned. And Roboam was one
D and fourty yeres olde when he was made kynge, and he raigned seuentene yeres in Jerusalem the citye whiche the Lorde had chosen oute of all the tribes of Jsrael, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naamah, an Ammonite. * And he dyd euyll, for he prepared not his herte to seke the Lorde. The actes of Roboam first and last, are written in the sayinges of Semeiah the Prophete, and of Ado the seer at of bysyons, so moche as they recorde his genealogye, and the perpetuall warre that was betwene Roboam and Jeroboam in E synge theyr lyfe. And Roboam layd him to slepe with his fathers, & was buryed in the cytye of Dauid, and Abia his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ The vyctorye of Abia agaynste Jeroboam.

CAPI. XIII.

THe eyghtenth yere of kynge Jeroboam began Abia to raygne ouer Juda, and F he raigned thre yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Michaiah, the doughter of Uriel of Gabaah. And there was warre betwene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia made a battayle with an hoste of fyghtynge men, of foure hundred thousande chosen men. And Jeroboam put in araye to fyghte agaynste him, with eyght hundred thousande ryght men and stronge.

And Abia stode vp vpon Zemaraim an hyll in mount Ephraim, and sayd: Heare me thou Jeroboam and all Jsraell. Becommeth it not you to knowe that the Lorde God of Jsrael gaue the kyngdome of Jsraell to Dauid for G euer: euen to hym and to his sonnes, with a ꝑ salted couenaūt? But Jeroboam the sonne of

Nebat

Nabat, the seruaunt of Salomon, the sonne of Dauid rebelled agaynste the Lorde. And there gathered to hym lewde men and vnthryftes, and preuayled agaynst Roboam the sonne of Salomon: for Roboam was yonge and tender herted, and not stronge ynoughe for them.

And nowe ye thynke to preuayle agaynste the kyngdome of the Lorde in the hande of the sonnes of Dauid, bicause ye be a greate multitude, and haue with you the golden calues whiche Jeroboam made you for goddes. And haue ye not caste oute the preestes of the Lorde the sonnes of Aaron, and the Leuites/ and haue made you preestes lyke the nations of other landes: euen who so euer commeth and consecrateth his hande with an oxe, and seuen rammes, the same is made preest to them that are no goddes.

But with vs is the Lorde our God whom we haue not forsaken / and the preestes of the sonnes of Aaron ministrynge vnto the Lorde/ and the Leuites in office burnynge vnto the Lorde euery morynge and euery euen burntofferynges, & swete incense: and the shewebreed put in order vpon a pure table: and the candel stycke of golde, with the lampes of the same, to be lyght euery euen. For we kepe the watch of the Lorde oure God: But ye haue forsaken him. Moreouer, beholde, God is with vs in the forewarde, and his preestes and the ronynge trompettes to crye alarum agaynste you. Ye chyldren of Israel fyght not with the Lorde God of youre fathers: for it wyll not prospere with you. But for al that, Jeroboam sent men priuily aboute to come behynde vpon them: and so they were before Juda, and the layers in wayte were behynde them. And whe Juda tourned and sawe the battayle behynde and before, they cryed vnto the Lorde, and the preestes blewe the trompettes, and the men of Juda gaue a shoute. And as the men of Juda shouted, God smote Jeroboam and all Israel before Abia and Juda. And the chyldren of Israell fledde before Juda / and the Lorde delyuered them in to the handes of Juda. And Abia and his people slewe a greate slaughter of them: so that there were stryken downe of Israell, fyue hundred thousande chosen men. And so the chyldren of Israell were broughte vnder at that tyme/ and the chyldren of Juda preuayled, bycause they leaned vnto the Lord God of theyr fathers. And Abia folowed after Jeroboam, and wanne certayne cityes from him: Bethel, with townes belongynge therto/ and Jesanah with the townes that longed therto/ and Ephron with her townes. And Jeroboam recouered not strengthe agayne in the dayes of Abia. At laste the Lorde plaged hym that he dyed.

And Abia waxed myghtye, and toke hym fourtene wyues, and begat two and twentye sonnes, and sixtene doughters. The reste of the actes of Abia, and his wayes and doinges, are wrytten in the hystorye of the Prophete Ado. And when Abia was layde to slepe with his fathers, they buryed hym in the citye of Dauid. And Asa his son raygned in his stede. In whose dayes the lande was quyet tenne yeres.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND Asa dyd that was good and ryghte in the eyes of the Lorde his God, and toke awaye the aulters of straungers, & the hyllaulters, and brake the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and commaunded Juda to seke the Lorde God of their fathers, and to do accordynge to the lawe and commaundement. And he put awaye oute of all the cityes of Juda, the hylaulters and the ydolles: for ỹ kyngdome was quiet before him. And he buylt stronge cityes in Juda, bicause the land was in reste, & he had no warre in those yeres. For the Lorde had gyuen him rest. A iii. Regũ. xv. b Isa.

And therfore he sayd to Juda: let vs buylde these cityes, and compasse them with walles and towres, gates and barres, whyle we haue the lande quiet. For we haue sought the Lord oure God: and bicause we haue soughte him, he hathe giuen vs reste on euerye syde. And so they buylte and prospered. And Asa hadde an armye that bare shylde and spere, oute of Juda thre hundred thousande/ and oute of Benjamin that bare shilde and drewe bowes, two hundred and foure score thousande, and were all stronge men. B

And there came oute agaynste them Zarah the Morian, with an host of ten hundred thousande, and thre hundred charettes, and came as ferre as Maresa. And Asa wente oute to him, and they put in araye to battayle in the valeye of Zephatah beside Maresa. And Asa cryed vnto the Lord his God, and sayd: Lorde it is all one with the, to helpe them that haue no power, with fewe or with manye: helpe vs O Lorde our God for we truste to the, and in thyne name we be come agaynste this multytude. Thou arte the Lorde oure God, let not man preuayle against the. And the Lord smote the blacke Moren before Asa and Juda, that they fled. And Asa and the people that was wt him, pursued them as farre as Gerar. And the blacke Moren were ouerthrowen, that there remayned none alyue of them, but were destroyed of the Lorde, and of his hoste/ they caried also a mightye great pray. And they smote all the cityes rounde aboute Gerar. For the feare of the Lorde came vpon them. And they robbed all the cityes, for there was exceedynge moche to be robbed in them. Furthermore they smote the tentes of the cattel, and caried away plentye of shepe, and camelles, and so returned to Jerusalem. C. i. Regũ. xiiii. d ¶ Kynge Asa by the monicion of the Prophet Azaria after he had put downe the Idolles, sacrifyseth to the Lorde. He depryueth his mother of her dominion.

CAPI. XV.

And

A AND the spirite of God came on Azaria the sonne of Obed. And he went out agaynst Asa, and sayde to hym: heare me ☞ Asa and all Juda and Ben Jamin. The Lorde is with you whyle ye be with him / and yf ye shall seke him, he wyll be founde of you: but yf ye shall forsake him, he wyll forsake you.
☞ There wyll come manye dayes in Israell, in whiche there shall be no true God nor preeste that teacheth, nor anye lawe. And in theyr tribulacion they shall tourne vnto the Lorde God of Israel, and shall seke him, and he shall be founde of them. And in those dayes there shall be no peax to them that goo oute and in. But great veracion on euery syde vpon the inhabitoures of all landes. For one nacion shall destroye an other, and one citye an other: for God wyll vexe them with all aduersitie. But plucke you vp youre hertes, and let not youre handes faynte, for youre workes shall be rewarded.

B When Asa herde those wordes and the Prophesye of Azaria the sonne of Obed the Prophete, he toke courage & put awaye the abhominacions oute of all the lande of Juda and Ben Jamin, and oute of the cityes whiche he wanne in mounte Ephraim, and renued the aulter of the Lorde that was before the porche of the Lorde. And he gathered all Juda and Ben Jamin, and the straūgers with thē out of Ephraim, Manasses, and Simeon. For there fell manye to him oute of Israell, when they sawe that God was with him. And they
C assembled at Jerusalem the thyrde moneth of the fyftene yere of the raygne of Asa. And they offered vnto the Lorde the same tyme of the spoyle whiche they had broughte, seuen hundred oxen, and seuen thousande shepe. Then they made a couenaunt to seke the Lord God of their fathers, with all theyr hertes, and all their soules: so that all that soughte not the Lord God of Israel, sholde dye for it whether he were small or greate, man or woman. And they sware vnto the Lord with a loude voyce and showtyng, and with trompettes and hornes. And al Juda reioyced in the othe, for they
D had sworne with all theyr hertes, and soughte him with all their luste, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue them rest roundeaboute. ☞ Furthermore kynge Asa put Maacah his mother oute of auctoritie, bycause she had made an vgly in a grove: and brake downe her vgly, and stampte it and burnte it by the brooke Cedron. But they put not the hyllaulters out of Israel: neuertheles the herte of Asa was pure all his lyfe. And he broughte in to the house of God the dedicate gyftes whiche he and his father hadde dedicate, in golde, syluer, and other iewelles. And there was no more warre vnto the fyue and thyrtye yere of the raygne of Asa.

CAPI. XVI.

IN the fyue and thyrtye yere of the raygne of Asa, came Baasa kynge of Israell agaynst Juda, and buylte Ramah, to the entent he wolde let none that pertayned to Asa kynge of Juda haue passage in and out. Wherupon Asa fet syluer and golde forth of the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and of the kynges house, and sent it to Benhadad kyng of Syria that dwelt at Damasco, and sayd. There is a leage betwene me and the, and so was betwen my father and thyne, wherfore I haue sent the syluer and golde, that thou goo and breake thyne appoyntment with Baasa kynge of Israel, that he may depart from me. And Benhadad graunted vnto kynge Asa, and sent the capitaynes of his armye agaynst the cityes of Israel. And they beat Ijon, Dan, Abelmaim, and all the store cityes of Nephthali. But whē Baasa herde this, he lefte buyldynge of Ramah, and lette his worke cease. And then Asa the kyng toke al Juda, and caryed away stones and tymbre of Ramah, wherwith Baasa was a buyldynge: and he buylte therwith Gaba and Maspha.

At that same tyme Hanani the sear, came to Asa kynge of Juda, and sayde to hym: bycause thou trustest in the kynge of Syria, and trustest not in the Lorde thy God, therfore is the hoste of he kynge of Syria escaped oute of thyne hande. Were not the blacke Moores and they of Libia a greate hoste, with exceedynge manye charettes and horsemen? And yet bycause thou trustedest in the Lorde, he delyuered them in to thyne hāds. For the eyes of the Lorde beholde all the earthe, to strengthe the hertes of them that are hole with hym. Herein thou haste wone folysshely / and therfore frome henceforthe thou shalte haue warre. Wherupon Asa was wrothe with the Sear, and put him in prysō, for he was displeased with hym bycause of that. Moreouer Asa oppressed certayne of the people the same season.

The dedes of Asa bothe fyrste and laste, are writte in the boke of the kinges of Juda and Israell. And the nyne and thyrtye yere of his raygne, Asa fell sycke of his feete, and that his disease exceded. And besyde this in his sickenesse he asked no counsell of the Lorde, but of physicions. And at the laste Asa fell on slepe with his fathers, and dyed when he hadde raygned one and fourtye yere. And they buryed hym in his owne sepulchre whiche he had made in the citye of Dauid, and layd him in the bed which he hadde filled with swete odoures of dyuers kyndes, made by the craffte of the potecaryes. And they dyd exceadynge great coste aboute burynge of him.

¶ Josaphat succedeth after Asa, whiche caused the feare of the Lorde to be renued among the people.

CAPI. XVII.

AND Josaphat his sonne raygned in his stede, and mightyer then Israell. And he put souldyours in all the stronge cytes tyes of Juda, & set rulers bothe in the lande of Juda, and also in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa his father had wonne. And the Lorde was with Josaphat, bycause he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauid, and soughte not Baals: But soughte the Lorde God of his father, and walked in his commaundementes, and not after the doynges of Israell. Therfore the Lorde stablysshed the kingdome in his hande, and all Juda broughte him presentes, that he became exceadynge ryche and glorious. And his herte was courageous in the wayes of the Lorde, and he put downe yet more of the hyllaulters and groues out of Juda.

In the thyrde yere of his raygne he sente of his Lordes: Benhail, Abdiah, Zachariah, Nathanael, and Michaas to teache in the cytyes of Juda: and with them Semeiah, Nathaniah, Zabadiah, Asahel, Semiramoth, Jonathan, Adoniah, Thobiah, and Thobodoniah Leuites: and with them Elisama and Joram preestes. And they taughte in Juda, and had the boke of the law with them, and went aboute thorow out all the cytyes of Juda and taught the people.

And the feare of the Lorde fell vpon all the kyngedomes of the landes that were rounde aboute Juda, that they durst not warre with Josaphat. And the Philistines broughte Josaphat giftes and tribute sluer. And therto ỹ Arabians broughte him of shepe, seuen thousande and seuen hundred rammes, and seuen thousande and seuen hundred he gotes. And so Josaphat prospered and greewe vp on hygh. And he buylte in Juda castelles and store cytyes, and had great substaunce in the cityes of Juda, and fyghtynge men and men of myghte in Jerusalem.

And this is the order in the houses of theyr fathers of the capitaynes ouer thousandes in Juda: Ednah the capitayne, and with him of fyghtynge men, thre hundred thousande. And nexte to him Johanan a capitayne, and with him two hundred and foure score thousande. And by his syde Amasias the sonne of Zechri willynge vnto the Lorde, and with him two hundred thousande mightye men. And of the chyldren of Benjamin, Eliada was a man of myght, and had with him armed with bowes and shyldes, two hundred thousande. And by his syde Josabad, with whom were an hundred and foure score thousande furnysshed for warre. These wayted on ỹ king, besydes those which the king had put in stronge cityes thorow out all Juda.

¶ After Achab had asked counsell of the foure hundred Prophetes, he putteth Micheas in prysone. He dyeth with the shote of an arowe.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND Josaphat became verye ryche & glorious/and ioyned alliaunce with Achab. And after certayne yeres he wēt downe to Achab to Samaria. And Achab slewe shepe and oxen plenteously for him, and for the people that came with him, and intreated him to go vp vnto Ramoth in Galaad. And Achab kyng of Israel sayd to Josaphat kyng of Juda: wilt thou go with me to Ramoth in Galaad? And he answered him, I wyll be as thou, & my people shall be as thyne, and we wyll be with the in the warres.

And Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: aske I praye the, the worde of the Lord. And the kynge of Israel gathered togyther of the prophetes foure hundred men, and sayd vnto them: shall we goo to Ramoth in Galaad to fyght, or shall I cease? And they sayde, go: the Lord shal delyuer it in to the kinges hand. And Josaphat sayd: Is there yet here neuer a Prophete more of the Lorde, that we myghte aske of him? And the kynge of Israell sayd to Josaphat: there is yet one, to aske the Lorde by him: But I hate him, for he neuer prophesieth me good, but alwaye euyll, one Micheas the sonne of Jemla. And Josaphat sayde: let not the kynge saye so. Then the kynge of Israell called one of his chamberlaynes, and sayde: fetche hyther quyckly Micheas the son of Jemla. And the kynge of Israell, and Josaphat kyng of Juda, sate eyther of them on his seate in their apparell, in a threshynge flooze besyde the gate of Samaria, and all the Prophetes prophesyinge before them. And one Sedechias the sonne of Chanaana made him hornes of yron, and sayde, thus sayth the Lorde: with these thou shalte pusshe Syria, vntyll thou haste broughte them to noughte. And all the Prophetes prophesied euen so, sayinge: goo vp to Ramoth in Galaad and prospere, for the Lorde shall delyuer it in to the hande of the kynge. And the messenger that wente to call Micheas, spake to him, sayinge: behold the wordes of the Prophetes are pleasaunt to the kynge with one assente, lette thy wordes I pray the, be lyke one of theirs, and speake that whiche is pleasaunt. And Micheas sayde: as truly as the Lord lyueth, euen what my God sayth, that wyll I speake. And when he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayd to him: Micheas, shall we goo to Ramoth in Galaad to fyght, or shall I be in reste? And he answered: go ye and prospere, for the Lorde shall delyuer it in to youre handes. But the kynge sayde to him: how often tymes shall I adiure the that thou saye nothyng but truthe to me in ỹ name of the Lorde.

Then he sayd: I se al Israel scattered in the mountaynes, as shepe that haue no shepeherd. And the Lorde sayd: these haue no master, let them returne euerye man to his house in peace. Then sayde the kynge of Israell to Josaphat: dyd I not tell the that he wolde not prophesye good vnto me, but euyll? And he answered: therfore heare ye the worde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sytte vpon his seate, and all the companye of heuen standynge on his right hande and on his lefte. And the Lorde sayde: who shal discreue Achab kynge of Israel, that he may go and be ouerthrowen at Ramoth in Galaad. And whyle one sayd thus, & an other that, there came out a spirite and stode before the the Lorde and sayd: I wyll disceyue him. And the Lord sayd to him, how? And he sayd I wyl go out, and wyll be a lyenge spirite in ꝯ mouthes of all the Prophetes. And the Lorde sayd thou shalte disceyue him, and shalte preuayle, go out and do euen so. And nowe beholde the Lorde hath put a lying spirite in the mouthes

F of all these thy Prophetes, and yet the Lorde hath spoken euyll agaynste the. And Sedechias the sonne of Canana went and smote Micheas vpon the cheke, and sayd: by what way wente the spirite of the Lorde frome me, to speake in the? And Micheas sayde: thou shalt se the daye when thou shalte runne from chamber to chambre for to hyde thy selfe. Then sayd the kynge of Israel: take ye Micheas, and deliuer him to Amon the gouernour of the citye, and to Joas the kynges sonne, and saye/ thus sayth the kynge: put this felowe in prysone, & fede him with breed of sorowe, and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peax. And Micheas sayd: yf thou come agayne in peax, then hath not the Lorde spoken in me. And Micheas sayd moreouer: harken ye people euery one of you. And so the kynge of Israell and Josaphat the kynge of Juda wente vp to Ramoth in Galaad. Then sayd the kynge of Israel to Josaphat: I wyl chaunge my clothes and get me to battayle, but se thou haue thyne owne apparel vpon the. And the kyng of Israel chan
G ged him selfe, and they went to battayle. But the kynge of Siria commaunded the capitaynes of his charettes, sayinge: se ye fyghte not agaynst small or great, sane agaynst the kynge of Israel onely.

And when the capitaynes of the charettes sawe Josaphat, they had thoughte he had ben the kynge of Israell, and therfore compassed him, to fyghte. But Josaphat cryed oute, and the Lorde holpe him, and God tourned them awaye from him. For when the capitaynes of the charettes perceyued that it was not the kynge of Israell, they tourned backe agayne from him. And a certayne man drewe his bow at auenture, and smote the kynge of Israel betwene the ioyntes of his habergyne. And he sayde to the charet man, tourne thyne hande and carye me oute of the hoste, for I am hurte. And the battayle was sore that daye. How be it the kyng of Israel contynued standynge in his charet agaynste the Sirians vntyll euen. And about the sonne goynge downe, he dyed.

¶ After Josaphat was rebuked by the Prophete Jehu, he called agayne the people to the honourynge of the Lorde God.

CAPI. XIX.

A Jehu THen Josaphat kynge of Juda returned to his house safe and sound to Jerusalē. And Jehu the sonne of Hanani the sear, went out agaynst him, and sayd to kynge Josaphat: oughtest thou to helpe the wycked, and to loue them that hate the Lorde? For this cause is the wrath of the Lorde vpon the. Neuertheles there are good thynges founde in the, in that thou hast put awaye the corrupte groues oute of the lande, and hast prepared thyne herte to seke God. And as Josaphat dwelte at Jerusalem, he wente agayne amonge the people frome Berlabe to mount Ephraim, and broughte them agayne vnto the Lorde God of their fathers. And he set Judges in the lande, throwe oute all the stronge cityes of Juda, citye by citye/ and sayde to the Judges: take hede what ye do, for ye be not Judges in the lawe of man, but of God, whiche is with you in the wordes of the lawe. Wherfore let the feare of the Lorde be with you, and take hede and do it. For there is no vnrighteousnesse in the Lorde our God * nor regardynge of persones, nor takynge of rewardes.

Moreouer in Jerusalem dyd Josaphat ap- poynt certayne of the Leuites & the prestes, and of the auncient heades of Israell, ouer the customes of the Lorde, and causes of strife. Whiche done, they returned to Jerusalem. And he charged them, sayinge: do euen so in the feare of the Lorde, with truthe and perfect herte. And what so euer come to you of your brethren that dwelle in their cytyes/ betwene bloude and bloude, lawe, commaundement, ordinaunces and customes: se ye warne them that they trespace not agaynst the Lorde, lest wrathe come vpon you, and on youre brethren. Thus do, and ye shall not offende. And beholde here Amarias the Prieste, whiche is heade ouer you in all matters of the Lorde, and Zabadias the sonne of Ismael, a ruler in the house of Juda, he is ouer all causes concernynge the kynge, with officers of the Leuites before you. Take courage to you, and goo vpon it, and the Lorde shall be with the good.

¶ The meruelouse victory that the Lorde gaue Josaphat kynge of Juda agaynst the Moabites, and the chyldren of Ammon, and them of Seir.

CAPI. XX.

AFter this came the chyldren of Moab, & the chyldren of Ammon, and with them a companye of the Ammonites agaynst Josaphat to battayle. And there came & tolde Josaphat, saying: there commeth a great multitude agaynste the from the other syde the see out of Siria. And se, they be in Hasason Thamar, whiche is Engadi. Then Josaphat feared and set him selfe to seke the Lorde, and proclaymed fastynge throwe out all Juda. And Juda gathered them selues togyther to aske counsell of the Lorde. Furthermore there came out of al ꝯ cityes of Juda to seke the Lorde. And Josaphat stode in the assemble of Juda and Jerusalem in the house of the Lorde before the newe courte, and sayd: Lorde God of oure fathers, arte not thou God in heuen, and raygnest not thou ouer al the kyngdomes of the Paynyms? And in thyne hande is power and mygh, so that no man can stand before the? Art not thou our God, whiche dyddest cast out thinhabitantes of this lande before thy people Israel, and gaue gaueſt it to the ſeed of Abraham thy frend for euer? And they dwelte therin, and haue buylt for the a temple therin vnto thy name, & ſayd: when eupll commeth vpon vs, as the ſwerde of iudgement, peſtilence, or hunger: then ye we ſtande before this houſe and before the (for thy name is in this houſe) and ſhall crye vnto the in our tribulacion, thou ſhalt heare and helpe. And nowe beholde, the chyldren of Ammon and Moab, and mount Seir, by whiche thou woldeſt not let Iſracll paſſe, what tyme they came forthe of Egypte: but they departed from them, & deſtroyed them not. And now marke how they rewarde vs/they come to caſt vs out of thy poſſeſſion whiche thou haſte gyuen vs. O oure God, wylte thou not iudge them? for we haue not ſo great puyſſaūce that we can make reſiſtence agaynſt this great compayne that commeth agaynſt vs. Neyther wot we what to do, but our eyes be vnto the. And as all Juda ſtode before the Lorde with their yonglynges, their wyues and their chyldren: the ſpirite of the Lord came vpon Jahaziel the ſonne of Zacharias, the ſonne of Banaia, the ſonne of Jeiel, the ſonne of Mathaniah a Leuite of the ſonnes of Aſaph, euen as he was in the myddes of the company. And he ſaid: harken all Juda, and the inhabitours of Jeruſalem, and alſo kyng Joſaphat. Thus ſayth the Lorde vnto you, be not aferde or kaynte herted bycauſe of this greate multitude. For the warre is not yours, but Gods. And to morow ye ſhall goo downe to them: ſe, they come vp at Ziz, and ye ſhall mete them in the toppe of the brooke of the wyldernelle of Jeruel. For it ſhall not be you that ſhall fyghte in this quarell: but ſtand forth onely, and behold the helpe of the Lorde, whiche is with you: feare not, nor let your hertes faile, O ye of Juda and of Jeruſalem. To morow marche forwarde to them: for the Lorde is with you.

And Joſaphat bowed him ſelf with his face to the cityе, and all Juda and the enhabitours of Jeruſalem fell before the Lorde, and worſhypped him. And the Leuites and the chyldrē of the Cahathites and of the Corahites ſtode vp to prayſe the Lorde God of Iſracll with a loude voyce on hyghe. And ſo they aroſe early in the morninge and gat them out vnto ꝑ wildernelle of Thekua. And when they went out Joſaphat ſtode and ſayd: heare me Juda, and ye inhabitours of Jeruſalem. Bileue in ꝑ Lord your God, and ſo ſhal ye continue: and bileue his Prophetes, and ſo ſhal ye proſpere. And he gaue the people counſell, and let the ſingers of the Lorde, and them that prayſed in holy apparell, to goo oute before the armye, and to ſaye praiſe the Lord, for his mercy laſteth euer. And what time they began to laud and prayſe, then the Lorde ſet their ennemyes vpon their owne ſelues as many as were come to fight agaynſt Juda, euen the chyldren of Ammon and Moab & mount Seir, for the chyldren of Ammon and Moab aroſe agaynſt the inhabitours of mount Seir, to deſtroye them vtterlye, and to wype them awaye. And when they had made an ende of the inhabitoures of Seir, then they holpe to deſtroye eche other.

And when Juda came to Maſphah in ꝑ wildernelle, they loked to the multitude. And beholde, they were dead carkelles fallen to ꝑ erth, and none eſcaped. And Joſaphat and his people went to ſpoyle and ſpoyle the dead, & found amonge them abundance of goodes and rayment and of pleaſaunt iewelles, and caughte from them more then they coulde cary awaye: ſo that they were thre dayes in gatheryng of ꝑ ſpoyle, it was ſo moche. And ꝑ fourth day they aſſembled in ꝑ valey of bleſſyng, for there they bleſſed the Lorde. And therfore they called the name of the ſaid place the valey of bleſſing vnto this daye. And ſo al the men of Juda and Jeruſalem returned, & Joſaphat among the thickeſt of them, for to go agayne to Jeruſalem wt gladneſſe, for the Lord had made thē to reioyſe of their enemyes. And they came to Jeruſalem with pſalteries & harpes and trompettes, euen vnto the houſe of the Lorde, & the feare of God fel in the kyngdomes of all landes, when they had herde that the Lorde fought agaynſt the ennemyes of Iſrael. And ſo the realme of Joſaphat was in tranquilite: for his God hadde gyuen him reſt on euery ſyde.

So Joſaphat raygned vpon Juda, and was xxxv. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and raigned. xxv. yere in Jeruſalē. And his mothers name was Aſuba the doughter of Silhi. And he walked in the waye of Aſa his father, and bowed not thence, but did that was pleaſaunt in the ſyghte of the Lorde. Howbeit they put not downe the hylaulters, neither did the people yet prepare their hertes vnto the God of their fathers. The reſt of the actes of Joſaphat firſt and laſt are written in the workes of Jehu the ſonne of Hanani, which noted them in the boke of the kynges of Iſrael.

After this Joſaphat kynge of Juda ioyned him ſelfe with Ochoziah kynge of Iſracll, whiche was a wycked doar. And he coupled him ſelfe with him to make ſhyppes to goo to Tharſis. And they made the ſhyppes in Azion Gaber. And Eliezer the ſonne of Dodanah of Mareſa prophecied agaynſt Joſaphat, ſaying: bycauſe thou haſt ioyned thy ſelfe with Ochoziah, the Lorde hath broken thy workes. And the ſhyppes were brokē that they were not able to go to Tharſis.

¶ Joſaphat dyeth & Joram ſucceadeth him, which putteth to deathe his brethren/ and is oppreſſed of the Philiſtines/and dyeth of the flyxe.

CAPI. XXI.

JOſaphat layde him to reſt with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytye of Dauid, and Joram his ſonne raygned in his rowme, which Joram had other brethē ſonnes of Joſaphat: Azariah, Jehiel, Zacharias, Azariah, Michael, and Sephatiah. All theſe were the ſonnes of Joſaphat kynge of Juda. And their father gaue them many great gyftes in ſyluer, golde, and other precious thinges, wt ſtronge cityes in Juda: but the kyngdome he gaue to Joram becauſe he was the eldeſt. Whē Joram was promoted vpon the kyngdome of his father and settled, he slew all his other brethren with the swerde, and diuers of the lordes iiij.Re.xviij.d of Israel also. ✱Joram was two and thirtye yere olde when he began to raygne, & raigned B eyghte yeres in Jerusalem. And he walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, lyke as did the house of Achab (for a doughter of Achab was his wife) and he wrought euil in the eyes of the Lorde. How be it the Lorde wolde not destroye the house of Dauid, because of the couenaunt he hadde made with Dauid, and as he promised to gyue a lyght to him and to his sonnes for euer.

In his dayes the Edomites rebelled because they wolde not be vnder the hande of Juda, & made them a kynge. And Joram wente forthe
C with his lordes and al his charettes with him and rose by nyghte and layde on the Edomy-tes. Whiche compassed hym in, and the Capi-taynes of his charettes. And so Edom departed from the subiection of Juda vnto this day.
That same tyme also dyd Lobnah departe frō beynge vnder his power, because he lefte the Lorde God of his fathers. Moreouer he made hyllaulters in the mountaynes of Juda, and caused thinhabitauntes of Jerusalem to com-myt adulterye, and he thrust Juda oute of the waye.

The lettres of Elias And there came a wryting to him from Elias the Prophete of this tenoure. Thus sayth the Lorde God of Dauid thy father: because thou walkedest not in the wayes of Josaphat thy father, and in the wayes of Asa kynge of Juda, but walkedest in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and hast made Juda & the dwellers of Jerusalem go a whorynge, lyke to the horing of the house of Achab, & hast therto slayne thy brethren that were thy fathers house, whiche were better then thou: Beholde, the Lorde wyll smyte the with a myghtye plage in thy folke, in thy chyldren, in thy wyues, and in thy goodes. And thou shalt haue moche disease thorowe infirmitie in the bowelles, tyll thy bowelles fall oute by reason of thy syckenesse daye by daye.

D And the Lorde stered vp agaynst Joram the spirite of the Philistines and the Arabias that dwelled on the blacke Mores: Whiche came a-gaynst Juda and all to tare the lande, and ca-ryed awaye all the substaunce that was found in the kynges house/ and moreouer his sonnes and his wyues, so that there was not one son lefte him, saue Joachaz his yongest sonne. And after all this, the Lorde smote him in his bo-welles with an incurable disease. And in proces of tyme, euen about the ende of two yeres his gutes fell oute by reason of his sycknesse: and so he dyed of euyll diseases. But they made him no bonefyre lyke the bonefyres of his fathers. When he began to raigne, he was .xxxij.
yere olde, and raygned in Jerusalē eyght yere.
And he walked not pleasauntly, and they buryed him in the citye of Dauid: but not in the sepulchre of the kynges.

¶ Ochozias raygneth i the rowme of Joram/ Jehu kyng of Israel kylleth Ochozias. Athaliah putteth to deth all the kynges kynage onely Joas escapeth.

CAPI. XXII.

AND the inhabitoures of Jerusalem made Ochozias his yongest sonne kyng in his stede. For the men of warre that came with the Arabians in the hoste, had slayne all his elder sonnes. And so Ochozias the son of Joram kynge of Juda was made kynge. Two and fourtye yere olde was he, when he began to raygne, and raygned one yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Athaliah the doughter of Amri. And he walked also in the wayes of the house of Achab / for his mother was his counsellour for to worcyll. Wherfore he dyd that displeased the Lorde, lyke to the house of Achab, for they were his counsellours after the deth of his father, to his destruction, and he also walked after their counsell. And Joram sonne of Achab kyng of Israel went to fyght with Hazael kynge of Syria at Ramoth in Galaad/ and they of Ramoth wolded him.
Wherfore he returned to be healed in Jezrael of the woundes which were gyuen him at Ra-moth, when he fought with Hazael kynge of Syria. And Ochozias the son of Joram kyng of Juda, wente downe to se Joram the son of Achab at Jezrael, because he was diseased. For it was thryste in to Ochozias of God to go to Joram, and that when he was come, he sholde go out with Joram, agaynst Jehu the sonne of Namsi, whom the Lorde hadde annoynted to destroye the house of Achab.

And as Jehu was executynge iustyce vpon the house of Achab: he founde the lordes of Juda, and the sonnes of the brethren of Ochozias, that wayted on Ochozias, and he slewe them. And he sought Ochozias, & they caught him where he was hid in Samaria, & brought him to Jehu. And when they hadde slayne him, they buryed him: because (sayde they) he was the son of Josaphat whiche sought the Lorde with all his herte. And there was none of the house of Ochozias that coulde obtayne to be kynge.

D ✱For Athaliah the mother of Ochozias, when she sawe her sonne was deed, arose and slewe all the seed of the kyngdom of the house of Juda. But Josabeth the doughter of the kynge toke Joas the sonne of Ochozias, and stale him from among the kynges sonnes that were slayne, and put him and his nource in a sleppynge chambre. And so Josabeth the dough-ter of kynge Joram and wyfe of Joiada the Preeste (because she was the syster of Ochozias) hyd him from Athaliah that she slewe him not. And he was with them hydde in the house of God, sire yere. And Athaliah raygned ouer the lande.

¶ Joas the sonne of Ochozias is made kynge: Athaliah is put to death.

CAPI. XXIII.

IN the seuenth yere Joiada toke herte, and made a bonde with the capytaynes of hun-dredes, Azariah the sonne of Jeroham, Ismael the sonne of Johanan, Azariah the sonne of Obed, Maasiah the sonne of Adaiah, and Elisa-

Elisaphat the sonne of Zechri. And they went aboute in Juda and gathered the Leuites oute of all the cityes of Juda, and the auncyente headdes of Israell, and came to Jerusalem. And all the congregacyon made a bonde with the kynge in the house of God. And Joiada sayd to them: Beholde, the kinges sonne muste raygne ouer the chyldren of Dauid, as the Lorde hathe sayde. This is it therfore that ye shall do. The thyrde parte of you Preestes and Leuites whiche come in the Sabothe daye, shall kepe the wores, and an other thyrde parte shal be in the kynges house, and an other thyrde parte shall be in the gate of the foundacion, and all the people shall be in the *courtes of the house of the Lorde. And there shall none come in to the house of the Lorde, saue the preestes and the Leuites that ministre. They shall goo in, for they are holye. and all the people shal kepe the watche of the Lorde. And the Leuites shall compasse ꝑ kyng rounde aboute, euerye man his weapon in his hand: and what so euer other man come in to the house of the Lorde, he shall dye for it, and they shal be with the kyng, as he commeth in, as as he goeth out.

And the Leuites and all Juda dyd in all thynges as Joiada the preeste commaunded, and toke euery man his men: both them that came in, and them that went out the Sabothe daye: for Joiada the preest dyd let none of the companyes departe. And Joiada the preest deliuered to the capitaynes of hundredes speres and shyldes, and boukliers that pertayned to kynge Dauid, and were in the house of God. And he sette all the people and euery man his weapon in his hande, from the ryghte corner of the house to the lefte corner of the houle, along by the aulter, and the houle round about the kynge. And they broughte out the kynges sonne, and put on him the crowne and the testimonie, and made him kyng. And Joiada and his sonnes annoynted him and said: God saue the kynge.

When Athaliah herde the noyse of the people runnynge and prayseynge the kynge, she went amonge the people into the house of the Lorde. And when she sawe the kynge stande at his pyller in the enterynge, and the lordes and trompettes aboute the kynge, and all the people of the lande reioysynge and blowynge with trompettes, and the syngers with instrumentes of muscyke teachynge to prayse: She rente her clothes and cryed: treason treason. And Joiada the Preeste wente oute with the capitaynes of hundredes that were appoynted to gouerne the hoste, and sayde to them: haue her oute withoute the araye, and who so euer foloweth her, lette hym be slayne with the swerde. For the Preeste sayde: slee her not in the house of the Lorde. And they layde handes on her, and when she was come out to the enteryng of the horsegate in the kynges house, they slew her there. *And Joiada made a bond bytwene him and all the people and the kyng to be the Lordes people. And all the people wente to the house of Baal and destroyed it, & brake the aulters and ymages, and slewe Mathan the Preeste of Baal afore the aulters. And Joiada put the offices of the house of the Lorde in the handes of the Preestes, the Leuites whiche Dauid hadde diuided in companyes for the house of the Lorde, to offre burnt offerynges vnto the Lord, as is wrytten in the lawe of Moses, with reioysyng and singing, as it was ordeyned by Dauid. And he set porters vnto the gates of the house of the Lord, ꝑ no vncleane person in anye poynte shoulde entre in.

And he toke the capitaynes of hundredes, and the nobles and the gouernours of the people and all the folke of the lande, and brought the kyng downe out of the house of the Lord, and they went thorowe the hyghe gate in the kynges houle, and set the kynge vpon the seat of the kyngdome. And all the people of ꝑ land reioysed, and the cirye was in tranquilitie, but they slewe Athalia with the swerde.

¶ Joas durynge the lyfe of Joiada keyeth the lawe, but after his deathe he regardeth it nat. He killeth Zacharias the Prophete. Joas is killed of his owne seruauntes, after whome raygneth Amazias.

CAPI. XXIIII.

IOas was seuen yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned fourtye yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zebia of Bersabe. And Joas dyd that pleased the Lorde all the dayes of Joiada the Preeste. And Joiada gaue him two wyues, and he begate sonnes and doughters. A iiij. Regū. xij. d

It chaunsed after that, that Joas was minded to mende the house of the Lorde. Wherupon he gathered togyther the Preestes & the Leuites, and sayd to them: *go out thorowe the cities of Juda, and gather of all Israel syluer to strengthe the house of your God, yere by yere, and se ye haste the thynge: how be it the Leuites were slacke. Then the kynge called Joiada that was the chyefest, and said to him: Why requyrest thou not of the Leuytes to bringe in, oute of Juda and Jerusalem, the summe appoynted by Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde, and by the congregacion of Israel, for the tabernacle of wytnesse. For wycked Athaliah and her chyldren hadde broken the house of God, and hadde bestowed all the dedicat gyftes of the house of the Lorde, aboute Baals. B

Wherfore at the kynges commaundement they made a cofer, and sette it at the gate of the house of the Lorde: and made proclamacyon thorowe Juda and Jerusalem to bringe in to the Lorde the * taxacion of Moses the seruaunt of God, whiche he set vpon Israel in the wildernesse. And the Lordes and al the people reioysed, and brought in and caste in to the cofer, vntyll it was full. And when the tyme came that the chest shoulde be brought in by the handes of the Leuites at thappoyntmente of the kynge. when they sawe that there was mo the moneye: then came the kynges scrybe, Exod. xxx. b.

and one appoynted by the chiefe Preeſte, and powred out that was in the cofer, and toke it and caryed it to his place agayne, and thus they dyd daye by daye, and gathered moche money.

D And the kyng and Iotada gaue it to workemen that wrought vpon the houſe of ꝑ Lorde, and hyred maſons and carpenters to repayre ꝑ houſe of the Lorde, and artificers in yron and braſſe, to repayre the Lordes houſe. And the workemen wrought, and the worke proſpered thorowe their handes: and they made ꝑ houſe of God as it oughte to be, and ſtrengthed it. And when they had finiſhed it, they brought the reſt of the money to the kyng and Iotada, and therwith were made veſſels for the houſe of the Lorde: that is to ſaye veſſels to miniſtre withall, and to ſerue for burntofferynges, as ladels and veſſels of golde and ſyluer. And they offered burntofferynges in the houſe of ꝑ Lorde continually all the dayes of Iotada. And Iotada waxed olde and full of yeres, and dyed. An hundred and thirtye yere olde was he

E when he dyed. And they buryed him in the city of Dauid amonge the kynges, becauſe he had wone good in Iſrael, and on God, and on his houſe. After the deth of Iotada came the lordes of Juda and made obeyſaunce to the king. And then he harkened vnto them. And ſo they left the houſe of the Lorde God of their fathers, ꝑ ſerued groues & ymages. And then came there wrath vpon Juda and Ieruſalem for this their treſpace. Notwithſtandynge God ſente Prophetes to them, to bringe them agayne vnto the Lorde. And they teſtifyed vnto them. But they wolde not heare.

Zacharias. And the ſpirite of God came vpon Zacharias the ſonne of Iotada the preeſte, and he ſtepte vp aboue the people, and ſayde to them. Thus ſayth God: why breake ye the cõmaundementes of the Lorde? ye ſhall therefore not

F proſpere, but as ye haue forſaken him, ſo ſhall he forſake you. * Wherupon they conſpyred

Math. xxiii. d agaynſte him, and ſtoned him with ſtones, at commaundement of the king, euen in the court of the houſe of the Lorde. And Joas the kynge remembred not the kyndnes which Iotada his father had done to him, but ſlewe his ſon. And when he dyed, he ſayd: the Lorde ſe & requyre a reckenynge.

And when the yere was oute, the hoſte of the Sirians came agaynſte hym: and they came to Juda and Ieruſalem, and deſtroyed all the lordes of the people, and ſente all the ſpoyle of them vnto the kynge to Damaſco. And thoughe the armye of Siria came with a

G ſmall companye of men, yet the Lorde delyuered a verye great hoſte in to their handes, becauſe they had forſaken the Lord God of their fathers, and therto they ſerued Joas according to his deſertes.

And as ſoone as they were departed frome him, thoughe they lefte him in greate diſeaſes, yet his owne ſeruauntes conſpired agaynſte him for the bloude of the chyldren of Iotada the Preeſte, and ſlewe him on his bedde. And when he was deed, they buryed him in the cytye of Dauid, but not in the ſepulchres of the kynges. And theſe are they that conſpyred againſt him: Zabad the ſonne of Samaath an Ammonite, and Joſabad the ſonne of Simeth a Moabite, and his ſonnes. And the ſumme of the taxe that came to him, and the foundacion of the houſe of God, are wrytten in the boke of kynges. And Amazias his ſonne raygned in his ſtede.

¶ Amazias ouercometh the Edomites. And Joas kynge of Iſrael ouercometh and kylleth Amazias.

CAPI. XXV.

AMazias was fiue and twenty yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned nyne and twentye yere in Ieruſalem. His mothers name was Joiadan of Ieruſalem. And he dyd that pleaſed the Lord, but not with the hole herte. And as ſoone as he was ſettled in the kyngdome, he ſlewe them ꝑ kylled the kyng his father. But he ſlewe not their children, accordynge to that is wrytten in the lawe in ꝑ boke of Moſes, to whom the Lorde commaunded, ſayinge: * the fathers ſhall not dye for the childrens cauſes, nor the childre for the fathers, but euery mã ſhal dye for his owne ſynne. And Amazias aſſembled Juda togither and made capitaynes ouer thouſandes, & ouer hũdredes in the houſes of their fathers thorowout all Juda and Benjamin. And he nombred them from twenty yere and aboue, and founde them thre hundred thouſande ponge luſty men hable to go to battayle, and that could handle ſpere and ſhild. And he hyred therto an hũdred thouſande fyghtynge men out of Iſrael, for an hundred talentes of ſyluer.

But there came a man of God to him and ſayde: Kynge, lette not the armye of Iſrael goo with the, for the Lorde is not with Iſrael neyther with anye of the houſe of Ephraim. Or elles yf thou nedes wylte, then go and do

L it, and make thy ſelfe ſtronge to battayle: and thou ſhalte ſe, that God ſhall make the falle before thyne ennemyes. For God hath power to helpe or to caſte downe. And Amazias ſayd agayne to the man of God, what ſhall we do then for the hundred talentes whiche I haue gyuen vnto the hoſte of Iſrael? And the man of God ſayde: the Lorde is hable to gyue the moche more then that.

Then Amazias ſeuered the armye that was come to him oute of Ephraim, to goo home agayne. Wherefore they were exceedynge wrothe with Juda, and returned home in great angre.

And Amazias toke herte, and caryed oute his hoſte, and wente to Saltdale. * Where he ſlewe of the chyldren of Seir ten thouſande. And other ten thouſande the chyldren of Juda toke alyue, and caryed them vnto the top of a rocke, and caſt them downe from the top of the rocke, that they al to burſt: but the men of the armye whiche Amazias had turned backe and

D wolde not let go with his people to battayle, ran vpon the cities of Juda from Samaria vnto Bethhoron, and ſlewe three thouſande of the and wan moche ſpoyle.

And

And it chaunced, after that Amazias was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, and had brought the goddes of the childre of Seir, he set the vp to be his goddes, and bowed him selfe before them, & burned incense vnto them. Wherfore the Lorde was wrothe with Amazias, and sent to him a Prophete, & said to him: why seketh thou the goddes of the people whiche were not able to deliuer their owne people out of thyne handes? And as the Prophet spake to him, he said to ꝑ Prophete: haue men made the of ꝑ kynges counsel? cease, leest thou be beaten. And the Prophete ceased and sayd: I am sure that God hath taken counsel to destroy the, bicause thou hast wne this, and obeyest not my counsell.

Then Amazias kyng of Juda toke aduyse, and sent to Joas the sonne of Joachaz the son of Jehu kynge of Israell, and sayd: come and let vs se eyther other. And Joas kynge of Israell, sente agayne to Amazias kynge of Juda sayinge: a thystell in Libanon sente to a Cedar tree of Libanon, saying: ✠ giue thy daughter to my sonne to wyfe. But there came the wylde beastes of Libanon, and trode downe ꝑ thystel. Thou thynkest: lo, I haue beaten the Edomites, therfore thyne herte aryseth to glorye thy selfe. Now abyde at home: what needeth the to prouoke to cupl, that thou perisshe and Juda with the?

But Amazias rested not: for it came of God, euen to deliuer them in to the handes of their enmemyes, and that bycause they hadde soughte the goddes of the Edomites. And Joas kyng of Israel came vp: and they sawe eyther other, bothe he and Amazias kynge of Juda at Bethsames in Juda. And Juda was put to the worsse before Israel, and fledde euery man to his tente. And Joas kynge of Israel toke Amazias kynge of Juda the sonne of Joas, the sonne of Ohoziah at Bethsames: and broughte him to Jerusalem, and tare the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim, vnto the corner gate, foure hundred cubytes longe. And he toke all the golde and siluer and all the iewelles that were founde in the house of God with Obed Edom, and the treasure of the kynges house and hostages, and returned to Samaria.

And Amazias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda lyued after the deathe of Joas sonne of Joachaz kynge of Israell fyftene yeres. The rest of the actes of Amazias fyrst and laste, are wrytten in the boke of kynges of Juda and Israel. And after the tyme that Amazias dyd turne awaye frome the Lorde, they conspyred treason agaynste hym in Jerusalem: and he fledde to Lachis, whyther they sente after him and slew him there, and brought him vp with horses, and buried him with his fathers in the cite of Juda.

¶ After the dethe of Amazias raygneth Oziah whiche is stryken with the lepre, and Joatham raygneth in his rowme.

CAPI. XXVI.

Then all the people of Juda toke Oziah whiche was sixtene yere olde, and made him kynge in the rowme of his father Amazias. And he buylte Eloth and brought it agayne to Juda, after the kynge was layde to reste with his fathers. Sixtene yere olde was Oziah when he began to raygne, and he raygned two and fifty yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jecaliah of Jerusalem. And he dyd that pleased the Lord in all poyntes, as dyd his father Amazias. And he soughte God whyle Zachariah the teacher to se God lued: and as long as he sought the Lord, God made him prosperc.

And he went to battayle agaynste the Philistines, and brake downe the walles of Geth and the walles of Jabneh, and the walles of Asdod / and buylte cityes aboute Asdod, and amonge the Philistines. And God holpe hym agaynste the Philistines, and agaynste the Arabiens that dwelte in Gurbaal, and agaynst the Meunites. And the Ammonites gaue tribute to Oziah, and his name spred abrode euen to Egypt: for he played the man, and exceded. Moreouer Oziah buylte towres in Jerusalem ouer the corner gate, and ouer the valeye gate, and ouer other corners, and made the stronge. And he buylte towres in the wyldernesse, and dygged manye welles. For he hadde moche catteil, bothe in the valeye, and also in the playne, and plowmen and vyne dressers in the mountaynes and in Charmel, for he loued husbandrye.

And Oziah hadde an hoste of fyghtynge men that wente oute to warre in the armye, and were tolde and nombred by Jeiel the scryde, & Maasiah an officer, vnder the hande of Hananiah one of the kynges lordes. And the hole nombre of the auncient heades of the men of myght, were two thousande and fyre hundred, and vnder the handes of them was the armye of the hoste, thre hundred and seuen thousande, and fyue hundred that made warre w̄ myghte and strengthe, to helpe the kynge agaynste his ennemyes. And Oziah prouyded them throw oute all the hoste, shyldes, speres, helmetes, habergynnes, bowes, and slynges for stones. And he made engynes in Jerusalem by the crafte of artificers, to be on the towres and corners, to shote arowes and greate stones with. And his name spred farre abrode / for he was wonderfye holpe, vntyll he was become myghtye.

And in his greatnesse his herte arose, that he was marred, and transgressed agaynste the Lorde his God. For he wente in to the temple of the Lorde to burne incense vpon the auter of incense. But Azarias the preest wente in after him with foure score preestes of ꝑ Lorde that were bolde men. And they stepte to Oziah the kynge, and sayde to him: it pertayneth not the Oziah to burne incense vnto the Lorde, but to the preestes the chyldren of Aaron that are consecrate for to burne incense. Come out of the sanctuarye, for thou hast trespaced, and it shall be no worshyp to the before the Lorde God.

And Oziah was wroth & had incense in his hande to offre, and in his indignacion agaynste the Preest, * the lepre sprange in his forehead before the Preestes in the house of the Lorde, euen beside the incense aulter. And Azarias the chiefe Preeste with all the other Preestes loked vpon hym: and beholde, he was a lepre in his forehead, and they draue him thence. And therto he was fayne to go oute, because the Lorde hadde plaged him. And Oziah the kynge continued a lepre vnto the daye of his deathe, and dwelt in an house at libertie: how be it he was cast oute of the house of the Lorde. And Joatham his sonne had the gouernaunce of the kynges house, & iudged the people of the lande. 3. Reg. 15. d. a.

The reste of the actes of Oziah bothe firste and laste, dyd Isaias the Prophete, the sonne of Amos wryte. And when Oziah was layde to rest with his fathers, they buryed him with his fathers in the felde of the burial of the kinges. For they sayd: he is a lepre. And Joatham his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ Joatham raygneth and ouercōmeth the Immonites. Achaz his sonne raygneth after him.

CAPI. XXVII.

1 IOatham was fyue and twentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jeruiah the doughter of Zadoc. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde in all poyntes as dyd his father Oziah: saue, that he came not to the temple of the Lorde, and that the people dyd yet corrupte theym selues. He buylte 2 the hye gate of the temple of the Lorde, and on the walle Ophel he ouylte mocke. Moreouer he buylte cities in the mountaynes of Iuda, and in the wodde countrey he buylte castels and towres.

And he foughte with the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, and preuayled agaynst them. And the chyldren of Ammon gaue him 3 tame yere an hundred talentes of syluer, and tenne thousande quarters of whete, and as mocke barley. So mocke also did the chyldren of Ammon gyue him the seconde yere, and the thirde to. And Joatham became myghtye, bycause he dyrected his waye before the Lorde his God.

The reste of the actes of Joatham and all 4 his warres and his wayes are wrytten in the boke of kynges of Israell and Juda. He was fyue and twentye yere olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. And when Joatham was layde to reste with his fathers, they buryed him in the city of Dauid: and Achaz his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ The wyckednesse of Achaz kynge of Juda. After him raygneth Ezechias.

CAPI. XXVIII.

1 AChaz was twentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd not that pleased the Lorde, as dyd his father Dauid: but walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and made therto Baals of metall. And 2 he offered incense in the valeye of the chyldren of Hennon, and burnte his chyldren in fyre after the abhominacion of the nacyons whiche the Lorde threwe oute before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered burnt incense in hyewlters, and on mountaynes, and vnder euery grene tree.

Wherfore the Lorde his God deliuered him 3 in to the hande of the kynge of the Syrians: whiche beat him, and caryed awaye a great multitude of his captiue in to Damascon. And further, he was delyuered in to the hande of the kyng of Israel, which slewe of his a mighty slaughter. For Phaceh the sonne Romeliah slewe in Juda an hundred and twentye thousande in one daye, and all fyghtyng men: and that bicause they had forsaken the Lorde God of their fathers. And Zechri a mighty man 4 in mount Ephraim slewe Maaliah the kynges sonne, and Aliricam the lorde stewarde of housholde, and Elcanah that was next to the kyng. And the chyldren of Israell toke prysoners of 5 their brethren two hundred thousande wiues, sonnes and doughters, and therto caryed awaye moche spoyle of them, and brought it to Samaria.

But there was a Prophet of the Lordes 6 named Obed, whiche wente oute to the hoste that came to Samaria, and sayd to them: Se, bicause the Lorde God of youre fathers was wrothe with Juda, he delyuered theym in to youre handes. And ye haue slayne them with 7 cruelnye that reacheth vp to heauen. And now ye purpose to kepe vnder the chyldren of Juda and Jerusalem, and to make them bondemen and bondewomen. What other thynge do ye (ye vnhappye) then offende the Lorde youre God? But nowe heare me, and deliuer the pryseners agayne whiche ye haue taken of youre brethren, for the great wrathe of the Lorde is vpon you.

And certayne of the heades of the chyldren 8 of Ephraim: as Azarias the sonne of Johanan, Barachiah the sonne of Mesimeloth, Jehezekiah the sonne of Selum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadalai stode vp agaynste them that came from warre, and sayd vnto them: ye shal not bryng in the captyues hyther. For when 9 we haue offended the Lorde alredye, ye entende to adde moze to oure synnes and trespace. For oure trespace is greate alredye, and there is feare wrathe vpon Israel. Wherupō 10 the men of armes lefte the captyues and the spoyle before the lordes and all the congregacion.

And there arose certayne appoynted therto 11 by name, and toke the pryseners and clothed all that were naked amonge theym, of the spoyle, and arayed them and shoed them, and gaue them to eate and to drynke, & annoynted them, & caried all that were feble of them vpō 12 asses, and brought them to Jericho the cite of palme palme trees fall by theyr brethren: and the returned to Samaria agayne.

And at that same tyme kynge Achaz sent vnto the kynges of Assur to haue helpe. And the Edomites came yet agayne and slue of Juda and caryed awaye some captyues. And the Philistines inuaded the cytyes in the lowe countrey and the south of Juda: And toke Bethlames, Ataion, Gaderoth, and Socoh: with the townes belongynge therto, and Thimna with the townes of the same. And Gimso with her townes, and dwelte therin. For the Lorde brought Juda lowe, because of Achaz kynge of Juda, whiche made Juda naked and transgressed agaynst the Lorde. And Thiglath palneser kynge of Assur came vpon him and besieged him, but preuayled not agaynste him. For Achaz toke awaye out of the house of the Lorde and oute of the kynges house and out of the Lordes houses and gaue vnto the kynge of Assur, though it holpe him not. And therto in the very tyme of his tribulacion dyd kynge Achaz trespace yet more agaynst the Lorde. For he offred vnto the Gods of them of Damasco which bet him and sayde because the goddes of the Syriens helpe them therfore will I offer to them, that they maye helpe me also. But they were his destruction & the destruction of all Israel. And Achaz gathered togither the vessels of the house of God & brake them, & shut vp the wyes of the house of the Lorde, and made him aultars in all corners of Jerusalem. And in al the cytes of Juda cytie by cytie he made hylaulters to burne incense vnto other goddes, and angred the Lord God of his fathers. The rest of his actes and all his wayes both first and last are writte in the boke of kynges of Juda and Israell. And whē Achaz was layde to rest with his fathers they buryed him in the cytie of Jerusalem: but brought him not vnto the sepulchres of the kynges of Juda. And Ezechias his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ Ezechias restoreth vnto the temple of the Lorde all the thinges that had not bene regarded of his predecessoures.

CAPI. XXIX.

A Ezechias began to raygne when he was. xxv. yere olde, and raygned. xxix. yere in Jerusalē. And his mothers name was Abia the wyghter of Zachary. And he dyd that was right in the sight of the Lorde in all poyntes, as dyd Dauid his father. He opened the wyes of the house of the Lorde in the fyrste yere and first moneth of his raigne, and repaired them. And he brought in the preastes and the Leuites and gathered theym togyther into the east strete: and sayde vnto them.

Heare me ye Leuites: purifye youre selues and halow the house of the Lorde God of your fathers, and bynge out the fylthynesse out of the holy place. For our fathers haue trespaced and done wyckedly in the eyes of the Lorde our God: and haue forsaken him, and turned awaye their faces from the habitation of the Lorde and turned to their backes. And beside that they haue shut vp the wyes of the porche and quenched the lampes and haue neyther burned incense nor offred burntofferinges in the holy place vnto the God of Israel.

Wherfore the wrathe of the Lorde fell on Juda and Jerusalem: and he scatered theym & made them so thynne that men hisse at it, euen as ye se with youre eyes. For lo, our fathers were ouerthrowen with the swerde, and oure sonnes, our doughters and our wyues were caryed away prysoners for the same. Now haue I in my herte to stryke a couenaunt with the Lorde God of Israel: that his wrathe maye cease. Now therfore my sonnes be not negligent: for the Lorde hathe chosen you to stande before him, and to ministre and burne offringes to him.

Then the Leuites arose: Mahath the son of Amasai and Joel the sonne of Asariah beynge of the children of the Cahathites: and the sonnes of Merari, Kis the sonne of Abdi, and Asariah the sonne of Jalaleel: and of the Gersonites, Joah the sonne of Simma and Eden the sonne of Joah: and of the sonnes of Elizaphan, Simri and Jeiel: and of the sonnes of Asaph, Zachariah and Mathaniah: & of the sonnes of Heman, Jehiel and Semei: & of the sonnes of Jeduthun, Semaiah and Oziel. And they gathered their brethren and purifyed them selues, and then went at commaūdement of the kynge by the worde of the Lord for to clense the house of the Lorde. And the preastes wente into the house of the Lorde to clense it, and brought oute all the vnclennesse they founde in the temple of the Lorde, and in the courte of the house of the Lorde. And the Leuites toke it & caried it oute into the broke Cedron. They began the first daye of the fyrste moneth to purifye, and came the eyght day to the porche of the Lorde: so that they had purged the house of the Lorde in eyght dayes and the. xvj. daye of the first moneth they made an ende.

And then they wēt in to Ezechias the kyng and sayde: we haue clensed all the house of the Lorde, and the aulter of burntofferinges, with all his vessels, and the shewbreed table with all his apparell: and therto all the vessels whiche kynge Achaz dyd cast a syde when he raygned and transgressed, them we haue repayred and sanctified: and se, they are before the aulter of the Lorde. And Ezechias the kynge rose early and gathered the Lordes of the cyty and went vp to the house of the Lorde. And there were brought seuen oxen, seuen rammes, seuen lambes, and seuen kyddes to be a synneoffring for the kyngdom, for the sanctuary and for Juda. And he commaunded the preastes the sonnes of Aaron to offer them on the altar of the Lorde.

And they slewe the oxen: and the preastes receyued the bloude and sprynkled it on the aultare: and they slew the rammes and sprinkled the bloude vpon the aultare: and they slewe the lambes and sprinkled the bloude vpon the aultare. And then they brought forth the kydes of the synneoffringe before the kynge and the the congregacion which put their handes vpō them. And the preastes slew them and offered the bloude of them vpon the aultare, to make

f satisfaction for all Israel: for the kynge sayd: that the burntoffringe and the synneoffringe shulde serue for all Israel. And they set the Leuites in the house of the Lorde with Symbales. Psalteries and harpes accordynge to the commaundemente of Dauid and of Gad the kynges sear of visions and of Nathan the prophete. For so was the commaundement of the Lorde thorow the hande of his prophetes.
And so the Leuites stode with the instrumentes of Dauid, and the preastes with trompettes. And Ezechias commaunded to offer the burntoffringe vpon the aulter. And when the burntofferinge began, the songe of the Lorde began, and the trompettes with the instrumētes of Dauid kynge of Israel. And all the congregacion bowed theym selues, and the syngers sange, and the trompettes blew, and cōtinued vntyll the burntoffringe was fynysshed.

And when they hadde made an ende of the burntoffringe, the kynge and all that were w̄ him kneled downe, and bowed them selues, & gaue prayse and thankes. And Ezechias the kynge & the lordes bade the Leuites to prayse the Lorde with the wordes of Dauid and of Asaph the sear of vysions. And the Leuites praysed that they reioysed agayne, and the other stouped and bowed them selues.

6 that ye haue fylled your handes to the Lorde go to and bringe in the sacrifices and thankoffringes into the house of the Lorde. And the congregacion brought in the sacrifices & thankoffringes, and all that were willing brought burntoffringes. And the nombre of the burnt offringes which the congregacion brought in was seuenty oxen, and an hundred rammes & two hundred lambes: and all for burntoffringes to the Lorde. And beside that they dedicated sixe hundred oxen, and three thousande shepe.

But the preastes were to fewe, and were not able to flaye all the burntofferinges. Wherfore their brethren the Leuites holpe them tyll the worke was ended, and vntyll ỹ preastes were sanctified. For the Leuites were purer herted to sanctifie them selues then the preastes. And therto the burntoffringes were manye with the fat of the peaxoffringes and the drynkeoffringes that belonged to ỹ burnt offringes. And so the seruice pertayninge to ỹ house of the Lorde went forwarde. And Ezechias reioysed, and all the people, that God had made the folke so redy: for the thing was sodenly done.

CAPI. XXX.

a AND Ezechias sent to all Israel and Iuda: and therto wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasses, that they shoulde come to the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem, to offer passeouer vnto the Lorde God of Israel. And the kynge helde a counsell with his lordes and all the congregacion at Jerusalē to kepe the feast of passouer in the second moneth. For they coulde not kepe it at that tyme for there were not preastes ynough sanctified, neyther was the people gathered togither to Jerusalem. And the thynge pleased the kynge and all the congregation. And they decreed it shulde be proclaymed thorowe out all Israell frome Berlabe to Dan, that they shuld come and holde the feast of passouer vnto the Lord God of Israell at Jerusalem: for they hadde not often done it, as it is wrytten howe they shulde.

And the messengers went with letters of ỹ hande of the kynge and of his lordes thorow out all Israel and Juda, at the commaundement of the kynge which sayd: children of Israell, tourne agayne vnto the Lorde God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israell, and so will he tourne to the remnaunt of you that are escaped out of the handes of the kynge of Assur. And be ye not lyke youre fathers and youre brethren whiche trespaced againste the Lorde of your fathers, which therfore gaue them vp ỹ they are wasted as ye se. Wherfore be not hyr necked lyke vnto your fathers, but yelde your selues vnto the Lorde, and come to his holye place whiche he hathe sanctified for euer, and serue the Lorde youre God, that his wrathe maye turne frome you. For yf ye tourne vnto the Lorde, youre brethren and youre children shall fynde compassion in the presence of them that holde them captyue, that they may come agayne vnto this lande: for the Lorde youre God is full of mercye and compassion, & will not turne his face frome you, yf ye tourne agayne to him.

And the postes went from cytie to cytie thorow out the lande of Ephraim and Manasses and euen vnto Zabulon. But they laughed them to scorne and mocked theym. Neuertheles yet dyuers of Asser, Manasses and of Zabulon meakened them selues and came to Jerusalem. And therto the hand of God was in Juda, to make them of one accorde to do the commaundment of the kynge and the capitaynes, which was according to the worde of the Lorde. And so there assembled to Jerusalem moche people and a myghtye great congregacion, to holde the feast of swete bred in the seconde moneth.

And they arose and put awaye the aultars that were in Jerusalem. And all the incense f they dyd awaye and cast theym into the broke Cedron. And they slewe passouer the fourtene daye of the seconde moneth. And the preastes and Leuites sanctified them selues for shame, and broughte in the burntofferinges into the house of the Lorde. And they stode in their ordinge after their maner accordinge to the law of Moses the man of God. And the preastes sprynkled the bloude receyuinge it of the handes of the Leuites. And because there were many in the congregacion that were not sanctified: and therfore dyd the Leuites sley passouer for all that were not cleane to sanctify them them to the Lorde.

There was very moch people out of Ephza im, Manasses, Jlachar & Zabulon that were not cleane, and therfore dyd eate passeouer o= therwyse then wrytinge specifieth. But Eze= chias prayed for them and sayd: þ good Lorde be mercyful to all that set their hertes to seke the God that is the Lorde God of their fa= thers, thoughe they w it not accordinge to the clennesse of the holy place. And the Lord herd Ezechias and healed the people. And so þ chil dren of Jsrael that were founde at Jerusalem helde the feast of swete bred seuen dayes with great gladnesse, and the Leuites and the prea sts praysed the Lorde day by day with lowde instrumentes.

And Ezechias spake hertely vnto the Leui tes that had good vnderstandinge of þ Lord. And they dyd eate that feast seuen dayes long and offred peaceoffringes & thanked the Lorde God of their fathers. And the hole assemble toke counsell to kepe seuen dayes moo: & they helde those seuen dayes with gladnesse. For Ezechias kynge of Juda gaue for heaueoffrin= ges to the congregacion a thousand oxen and seuen thousande shepe. And the Lordes gaue to the congregacion for heaueoffringes a thou sande oxen and ten thousande shepe. And the preastes sanctified them selues, that they were ynoughe.

And all the congregacion of Juda with the preastes and Leuites, and all the congrega= cion that came out of Jsraell and the straun= gers, both that came out of the lande of Jsrael and that dwelt in Juda, reioysed: and there was greate ioye in Jerusalem. For frome the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge of Jsrael it happened not so in Jerusalem.

And the preastes and the Leuites arose & bles sed the people, and their voyce was herde, and their prayer went vp vnto his holy dwelling place heauen.

¶ After Ezechias had called agayne the people vn= to the waye of the Lorde he ordeyneth the preastes, vnto whome he commaundeth to gyue tythes.
